and envelopes. Souvenir badges are given to visitors from New Jersey at the building. These are in the form of a button with a piece of blue ribbon attached. A reproduction of the State's building is in the centre, and above are the words "Jamestown Tercentennial Exposition," and beneath it "New Jersey." The building is the only one on the grounds which is completely surrounded by an ironwork fence.

Visitors from New Jersey are scarce, and the register book in the State building contains the names of only a few. The New Jersey commission has wisely chosen October as the month when the building is to be dedicated. It is thought by that time the buildings, exhibits and grounds will have been thoroughly completed and will see the exposition in full bloom.

At present visitors are much disappointed at the incompleteness of everything, and it will be at least two months, according to conservative estimates of those connected with the exposition company, before the full loveliness of the grounds, buildings and exhibits can be appreciated.

CHURCHMEN AT DINNER

President, Howard Fleming; vice president, George S. Clay; secretary, Dr. Harold D. Corbusier; treasurer, Edward F. Feickert; members of the executive committee, one year, J. A. Lane, F. W. Iredell, H. B. Coombe, Thomas Beard, Herbert Jackson, R. M. Huse, G. M. Hoestein, John C. Moore; for two years, C. P. Karr, J. P. Nolting, Laurens Van Buren, W. H. P. Veysey, W. W. Whelan, Chas. du Bois, A. E. Faber.

A motion by Hugh F. Fox that one evening of the next club year be devoted to municipal problems and that the Mayor and the heads of the city departments be invited to speak to the club on that night raised something of a breeze. Marion S. Ackerman and one or two other members protested against the plan; it smacked too much of things political, they held, to be proper for the club, which was expressly non-political, to dally with. The motion was passed.

The reports of the secretary and treasurer showed a healthy and encouraging state of affairs. The club has a membership of 100, of which thirteen were added last year, and the treasury is in a strong condition.

A vote of thanks was extended to the dinner committee, which was made up of E. F. Feickert, Howard Fleming, Thomas Beard, J. Paul Nolting, George S. Clay and W. H. P. Veysey.

Reads Bible, Will Not Eat.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., May 14.—Kate Stahl, twenty-eight years old, a maid employed by J. F. Whalen, of Chester Nill, who has starved herself for six days and who was declared to be suffering from acute religious mania, was taken to the Hudson River State Asylum, in Poughkeepsie, yesterday. Miss Stahl began showing signs of insanity a week ago, when she spent all her time in her room reading a Bible and praying aloud. "There is enough in the Bible for me without eating," was all that the police could get her to say when she was urged to eat.

Murdered For Small Sum.

Freeport, L. I., May 14.—Elmira Simonson, seventy-three years old, was found dead in the kitchen of her home, in Main street, in this village, today, in circumstances which indicate she was murdered and robbed. The murderer is supposed to have got between $50 and $100.

HYPNOTIST'S TRICKS MYSTIFIES AUDIENCE

DR. PAULINE HAD DRS. BROWNING AND GESSWEIN AMONG COMMITTEE.

Dr. Pauline, the hypnotist, assisted by several vaudeville numbers, entertained a big audience last night at the New Plainfield theatre with experiments in hypnotism and telepathy. Guided by the minds of a committee of four selected from the audience, Pauline located articles hidden in the audience, picked out women at whom the committee had merely looked, and did one trick of telepathy without the aid of contact.

The committee, which included Drs. W. K. Browning and C. A. Gesswein and J. Wiswald Drayton, stated that they were satisfied with the genuineness of the tests. They examined the blindfold used by Pauline and declared he couldn't see a thing. Then with their finger tips touching his they proceeded to guide him from place to place in the theatre. Pauline helped materially to wear out the carpet in the aisles and kept his committee going so that they felt like asking for the return of their entrance money and for a dividend beside.

Pauline succeeded in making his entertainment interesting and, to a large share of the audience, mysterious. He captured the women with a trick of locating rings on their fingers and he had the men puzzled when the members of the committee found they could not fathom his methods. Each of the committee expressed satisfaction with the experiments but the audience was unable to discover whether that satisfaction was on account of telepathy or hypnotism.

With the committee on the stage Pauline hypnotized a subject he carries with him and then permitted the committee to make various tests to discover whether or not the subject was in hypnotic sleep. The committee prodded the eyes of the sleeper and tried in other ways to make him move but he remained rigid until the hypnotist spoke.

The last of the programme consisted of hypnotism of young people from the audience and the performing of funny antics at command of the hypnotist. This part of the programme provided a long roar of laughter, in fact some of the women became almost hysterical.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock Pauline will attempt the unusual and difficult feat of learning by means of telepathy the location of a hidden key, a postoffice box, discover a certain letter, the person to whom it is addressed and deliver it in person to the addressee, doing the entire feat with his eyes covered and unaided by any accomplice. In order to insure everybody that he is unaided in performing the feat he will be accompanied on his search by a committee representing the newspapers and by well-known men of the city. The committee will, hide, within a couple of blocks from the theatre, a key to some box in the local postoffice in which there will be a letter addressed to some Plainfield business man whose place of business will be near the theatre, in order that Pauline will not be obliged to travel too far and completely exhaust himself in the search. This committee after hiding the key will return to the theatre. There Pauline proposes to get into communication with the thoughts of one of the committee merely by placing his forefinger upon the wrist of the committeeman. With the committeeman's mind set upon the hiding place of the key Pauline will trace the course of the committee to its hiding place, return to the postoffice box, take out the letter intended to be used for the purpose and deliver it to the addressee.

Pauline will be at the New Plainfield theatre tonight and also Friday and Saturday nights. Tomorrow and Thursday nights he will be at the Casino because of the theatre being taken for the rehearsal and presentation of the "Peasant Prince."

Hidden Gold Vanishes.

New York, May 14.—Israel Yipharofsky, who keeps a feed store at No. 1,893 Third avenue, is anxious to know whether one of his horses has $140 in gold in his inside. His three daughters, Yetta, Rose and Pauline, went out Saturday night and hid the gold in a bag of oats for safe keeping. When they came back they found that the horses had been fed and the money was gone. Alexander Rezarth, a driver, and Resco Zenkarch, a stableman, both employed by Yipharofsky, gave the horses their meal, and they swore that they hadn't seen the money, but they were held in $500 bail by Magistrate Harris yesterday.

America Honors First Colony.

Norfolk, Va., May 14.—Both on Jamestown Island, forty miles up the James river, and on the exposition grounds, elaborate exercises were held yesterday in commemoration of the three hundredth anniversary of the landing at Jamestown of the first English settlers in America. All the nations represented in the great international fleet in Hampton Roads took part, and perfect weather contributed its full share to the success of the celebration of the arrival of Sir Christopher Newport and Captain John Smith and their companions.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, God, in His infinite wisdom, Whose thoughts are higher than our thoughts and Whose ways are past finding out, has removed from our midst our much beloved sister and friend, Mrs. Hattie Mitchell, the devoted wife and help-mate of Mr. Fred Mitchell; and

Whereas, for many years she was an active and earnest member of the Mt. Olive Baptist church and Sunday-school, serving the church as an organist and the Sunday-school as a teacher; and

Whereas, she was a devoted wife, a loving mother and a faithful Christian, and for such as she there is no death, but death is simply a transition; therefore be it

Resolved, 1. That we as a Sunday-school, recognizing in all things the hand of an omnipotent and loving Father, bow in humble submission to His will, knowing that He doeth all things for the good of those who trust Him. 2. That we learn from her life true loyalty and devotion. 3. That her Christian life and work among us be an inspiration to us and that each member of the church and Sunday-school strive to meet her in the bright beyond. 4. That this removal from our social and Christian life will bind us more closely together and draw us to Him; be it

Resolved, further, that we extend to the family our deepest sympathy and commend them to God's Holy Word for comfort and consolation in this, the greatest sorrow their lives have yet known;

Resolved, further, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to The Daily Press for publication.

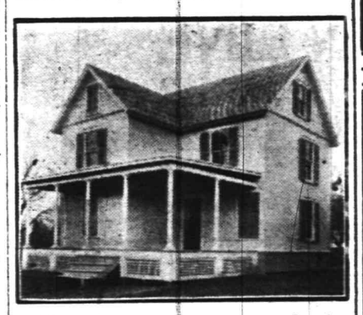
NEW SYSTEM OF BUILDING.

A MARVEL IN THE SCIENCE OF CONSTRUCTION.

A method far in advance of anything formerly used in the preparation of the different parts of a house when erected in sections, making it easy to construct any design of a house, and a very superior house for all seasons, countries and climates at a great reduction in cost.



These houses are constructed principally from the best kiln dried lumber in a factory entirely protected from weather, where best high speed woodworking machines are used for cutting and shaping of every piece, reducing cost for mechanics fully one-half, making a superior house when finished.

Houses or other structures erected under this system make the warmest houses in winter, and the strongest building that can be constructed with any material, the fiercest storm fails to cause any vibration whatever. They are adapted to receive all improvements, plumbing, lighting, heating, etc., when desired.

A new method of lath and plaster is used for interior finish, making a perfect indestructable wall superior to anything ever before used.

Strikebreaker Murdered.

New York, May 14.—After working all day to learn the motive for the murder of the Italian who was found stabbed to death in the cellar of the tenement No. 333 Columbia street, Brooklyn, early yesterday morning, the police of the Hamilton avenue station were forced to accept the theory that he was killed for having taken the place of a striking longshoreman. The police have been unable to learn anything about the murdered man beyond the fact that he was employed on the dock of the Ward Line Steamship Company, at Remsen street, where he was known to be timekeeper as Sam Chelef. Mark Bascelo, the young Italian who, with his clothing covered with red stains, was arrested by Policeman Joseph Dunn in front of the tenement a few minutes after the murder was committed, denied committing the deed.

Mrs. Mitchell's Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Frederick J. Mitchell, whose death occurred suddenly last Friday morning, was held at her late home on West Third street, yesterday afternoon. It was attended by a large gathering of friends and was conducted by Rev. M. A. Alexander, assisted by Rev. G. W. Bailey, and Rev. E. B. Maynard. Resolutions from the Sunday school of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, in which she was a prominent worker, were read by Miss Maud Green and the church choir, assisted by Mrs. Mitchell's Sunday school class, sang several selections. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery, the pall bearers being George Harry, John and Joseph Mitchell, Marry Morris and William Cruse.

Caught Stealing Trunk Checks.

Three Hungarians, one holding a single ticket to Chicago, tried to have some fun with T. A. Linaberry, the agent at the South Plainfield station of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, yesterday afternoon. Those who did not have tickets tried to steal checks off of trunks and bags about the station. John Higgins, the baggagemaster, discovered the Hungarians in the act and they were frightened away. Mr. Linaberry finally got trace of the pair and arrested them. This morning they were sent to New Brunswick where they will be held for the Grand Jury. The third man boarded his train for Chicago.

Dr. Elizabeth B. Stowe, of the Babcock Building, who was called to New York State several days ago, has returned home.

ANNUAL MEETING OF HOSPITAL GOVERNORS

MESSRS. ACKERMAN AND REYNOLDS MADE HONORARY GOVERNORS.

Eight members of the Board of Governors were chosen at the May meeting of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, at the Casino, last night, to take the places of those whose terms of office expire at the June meeting. These persons were chosen to serve for three years: Samuel Huntington, Charles J. Fisk, William L. Saunders, Benjamin A. Hegeman, Jr., Julius E. Erickson, S. Durell Lounsbery, David T. Kenney and Leighton Calkins.

It having been made known to the board that Howard P. Reynolds and Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, whose terms of office expire in June, will be unable to continue as active members, the Board of Governors, in recognition of special and valuable services to the hospital, unanimously elected both to honorary membership in the board.

The report of the medical board for April follows:

Patients remaining at date of last report, 29; admitted, 73; total number treated, 102; discharged cured, 40; improved, 11; not improved, 4; died, 6; remaining, 41; operations, 62. In the dispensary: Number of patients treated, 48; visits of patitents, 137; operations, 7.

Received a Big Reward.

Louis Davis, a machinist employed in the Quincy-Manchester-Sergeant shop, is suffering from a severe shock brought about by the beneficence of a well known borough resident, Saturday night. While playing pool in a place on Somerset street, Davis picked up a pocketbook on the floor that had a roll of bills in it big enough to shock a horse, exactly $385. After some difficulty he located the owner and returned it and for his honesty received the munificent gift of a five cent cigar. Davis took the weed home and has placed it in a frame.

William Calloway Injured.

William Calloway, aged 26 years, residing at 337 McDowell street, and employer as a helper on one of the local ice wagons, inflicted a deep and painful wound in his left arm this morning while using an ice axe. The man was taken to the hospital, where the flow of blood was stopped and the wound was dressed. The injury is not serious.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

If you want the best fuel to be obtained go to John Johnson, South avenue. Delivery prompt.

Catering that is high art is the boast and the proved achievement of D. Demolli & Co., West Front street.

There is no place like Hodge's Pharmacy for perfect ice cream soda. Go there also for fine candy—Belle Mead Sweets.

M. F. Gano, the real estate dealer, of North avenue, has a number of exceptional bargains in real estate and those in search of homes should consult him.

The City National Bank invites savings accounts and has a department devoted especially to them. A good rate of interest is paid on all amounts.

Beside handling a complete line of gold and silver jewelry, L. Moraller & Son, of Park avenue, do expert watch and clock repairing. They guarantee all work and charge only fair prices.

William H. Brokaw, of West Front street, is a carpenter and builder of wide experience and will quote estimates for any class of work in his line at any time. He will call and see you upon receipt of a postal.

For the benefit of his many patrons and the general public, Proprietor Henry Windham has added an up-to-date restaurant to the Hotel Waldorf. The service is excellent and the patronage increasing daily.

Shoe values at M. C. Van Arsdale's store, East Front street, are always attractive. You get the latest and the best for the fairest possible prices. Mr. Van Arsdale's stock is full and up to the last word in fashion's dictates.

There is never any question as to the quality and the weight of meat and poultry sold by Fred Endress, West Front street. You may send a tot to do your marketing there, and be sure she will be served as well as the best judge of meat.

COUNTY LIQUOR LICENSES.

Judge Atwater, in Court of Quarter Sessions, Saturday morning, granted an inn and tavern license to Fred Tabi, of Union Township, the application being one of several presented on Tuesday last and laid over until Saturday for further consideration.

The application of Joseph Citrandello to keep an inn and tavern in Roselle Park and Joseph Pein to keep an inn and tavern in Linden Township, against which objections had been made, were withdrawn.

The application of John Westcott to keep an inn and tavern in Linden Township, against which a protest had been entered, was continued one week, in order to give the applicant an opportunity to show why the license should be granted.

The application of Aleander Ackerman to keep and inn and tavern in Fanwood Township, against which a protest had also been presented, was laid over for two weeks.

Union's Strong Men.

Union county, which in the past has sent many notable men to represent it at Trenton, has reason to be proud of the men who represented the county, this year, as Senator and Assemblymen. Randolph Perkins' great service to the State on the closing night when his moderation stayed the rising tempest was the culmination of his work in the Legislature during the entire session. Again and again he has been the real leader of the House in some emergency. The other members of the delegation have been prominent, each one in his own way. Senator Ernest R. Ackerman never missed a session, and, with the help of an efficient clerk, kept such a record of the bills that he was one of best-informed members on current legislation. Familiar with parliamentary law and the rules of the Senate, he carried every bill in his care through the Senate. One of the important bills in his care compells corporations to get the consent of township officials before erecting poles or stringing wires. Assemblyman Peter Tillman had a bill to give eight hours to the employes and inmates of penal institutions of the State. This bill was urged by the labor unions of the State, but there was great opposition to it. His fight was successful, and on his sick bed the news came to him that his humane measure had passed. Assemblyman John R. Moxon, the new member, proved his fitness for the place in many ways. He was easily the most prominent and best-informed member of the Committee on Game and Fisheries. Moxon made good headway for a young member, and will next year be one of the leading men in the Legislature.—Summit Herald.

FLOWER AND TREE.

The cannon ball tree is a myrtle which grows to a height of eighty feet, has pinkish flowers and a fruit the size of a thirty-two pound shot.

The very best way to keep violets fresh is not to put them in water, but to throw over them a handkerchief thoroughly wet and set them in a draft.

THE ASHES OF LOVE

By D. E. JOHNSON

(Copyright, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"Shall I read another?" he asked, turning the pages of the rare little volume of prose pearls.

"Yes, please do," she answered in her soft voice, half coaxing, half commanding.

He settled back and began to read.

"It was noon time and all the land was warm with the kindly sun and sweet with the fragrance of flowers. The man and the woman paused to feel the pulse of life. They had come to the end of the road.

"'Let us tarry here a while, love,' he whispered, the fire of his soul gleaming through his eyes.

"'No, dear, I cannot stay. We have come to the parting of our paths and I must go back.' Idly she plucked a red rose that brushed the border of her mantel.

"'Darling, come with me!' he cried, and drew her to him, covering her mouth with flaming kisses.

"'I cannot, dear, I do not love enough.' The woman's lips trembled and her voice broke in a sob.

"The man sat still a long time, tense with the frenzy of his passion. Then he arose slowly. 'I shall go,' he said, 'but the fire of my love shall never die.' She put the red rose into his hand and left him standing there, as one dazed, at the edge of the wood.

"Time passed and the woman's heart began to ache. It was hunger that made it ache and with each passing day the pain grew more intense. The only relief she found was to go to the end of the road by the edge of the wood and look and listen longingly. At last she could remain no longer, so she set out in search of her love whom she had sent away. She journeyed a long time, over rough roads and through dark woods, and after many days came upon a deserted hovel. Being tired and foot-sore she entered it to rest. The hut was empty and bare, save for a crudely built hearth, on which was a heap of dead ashes. In the baked clay above was scrawled 'The fire of love.' The woman looked again. At her feet was a dead rose half hidden in the ashes."

The reading came to an end, but, with the book still open before him, the reader looked absently into space. Presently he drew out a pencil and wrote something in the margin.

The girl, too, had been in thought, but broke the silence by saying with a touch of bitterness in her voice. "How like a man's love, to burn and sear, then die. I have always believed it to be a thing of passing moment."

"'Pauline!" the man cried fiercely, between set teeth. "You speak like a child that has not yet known the first, faint awakening of love." He had leaned forward to look her in the eyes, but now he sank back slowly, an expression of ineffable sadness coming over his face. "But then, how could you know, if you have never felt its relentless call if you have never known its infinite measure?" He paused a moment. She was quite still, the stillness that is awe in the presence of power. "When I came here to-night, I came with the burden of my love filling my heart—my love for you. I was consumed with the fire of it, mad with the joy of it, and transfigured with the glory of it. But now mere words would die on my lips. They say love kindles love, but they are wrong; for then, surely, my love would have burned into your soul."

The girl looked tensely at the floor. "Perhaps I cannot love," she said simply. "I care for you, I know—yes, more than anyone else. But I do not love you. I can feel nothing of the passion you have pictured."

The man arose. "No, that is true. I shall carry away no illusions. You were kind, very kind. Some day, I hope, you may feel a measure of that infinite law of life."

James Farnsworth and Pauline Colton shook hands and parted, nor did they meet again before the latter sailed for Europe.

In the meantime Farnsworth passed through a stormy period of self-discipline that went toward the development of the fibre and muscle of character, albeit at the expense of that transcending quality, idealism. His was not a sufficiently practical nature to accept a situation as one of the inevitable decrees of fate and adjust itself accordingly. On the contrary, up to this time he had never really taken serious account of fact but had dwelt in the rarefied atmosphere of theory. And now the order of his existence had been reversed. He was brought to earth with a jolt.

To the troubled in spirit there is one avenue of escape—work—and this Farnsworth seized with avidity and in it found sanctuary. From the literary dilettanteism that had served him as pastime before, he now gave himself to really serious work. He was writing a play begun with no other object than to occupy his thoughts, but which was destined ere long to absorb his entire being. It is often just such an occurrence—the sudden upheavel of a cherished ideal, the tragedy of a bitter disillusionment—that raises its victim like the phoenix bird out of the ashes of sorrow to soar far away into the unexplored regions of highest achievement. But the pinions that carry him in the flight upwards are work, relentless untiring work.

And so it was with Farnsworth. He began by merely working against time, not to forget his love but to forget the pain of it. Then, when the love of the doing began to take possession of him, he gave himself to it with such zeal that he surprised even himself. His friends seldom found him at the clubs and his brother artists missed him at the theaters. On the few occasions when he did go out among people he invariably returned filled with a score of regrets because he had gone, for it invariably chanced that he heard something about her. Her sojourn with friends in London was one of unsurpassed social success. In Paris she had been dined and wined, and the last floating rumor was that she had joined a motor party through France to the Reviera. She was the guest of the Mathew Henderson's and, cruel tongues added, young Henderson had fallen madly in love with her.

Farnsworth did not speculate further, but the sting of the pain remained. It was there always, in the morning when he arose and at night when he went to bed, always that dull, aching pain. It is hard to work when an unseen viper is slowly eating out the very core of one's heart, but Farnsworth clutched his play with a grip of steel and wrote on feverishly. Into it he put all the joy of his love, all the bitterness of his sorrow, and his theme was the immutability of love. He was just writing the closing speech.

"Love! It is the crowning boon of God, it is God, the infinite, the quintessence of perfection. It has no beginning and no end. Glory be to love eternal!"

The writer pushed back his chair and stared blankly into space. Then he drew a small vellum from his desk and turned to the allegory, "The Ashes of Love." A wan smile overspread his weary features.

An hour or two later there was a tap at the door of Farnsworth's apartments, but there was no answer from within. The tap was repeated; then the door was pushed open gently from without.

A young girl in traveling costume entered shyly, looking cautiously about her. Her glance took in the deserted studio and swept down the shadowy vista through the rooms beyond. There seemed to be no occupant. Reassured, she crossed over to the desk. She would leave a note and slip out. A strange fluttering of the heart seized her when she found a heap of tumbled sheets of a manuscript written in his hand. Something irresistible held her gaze. Before she was aware of it, she was reading the closing lines. Her heart within her almost ceased to beat. Then her eyes fell on the little volume lying carelessly among the leaves. It opened at "The Ashes of Love," and in the margin she read his note—"base sacrilege." All the wildness of pent emotion mastered her. She kissed the words hotly.

There was a sudden stirring in the farther corner of the room. The girl turned and, to her unspeakable amazement, found a figure stretched out on a couch, the face buried in the pillows. Softly she tiptoed to the prostrate man, bending over him until her hot breath fanned his hair. He stirred again and, unable to control herself longer, she took his head between her hands, smothering hot kisses upon his hair, his cheek, his mouth. He opened his eyes unseeingly. "Pauline!" he cried, "Pauline, don't go!"

"No, I won't go, darling. I've come back to look for you. I came as soon as I found out. It was one morning in the cathedral of Notre Dame when the great organ was crying out to touch the souls of men. It was then that I felt the divine revelation. I knew what it was to love." A great dry sob rose in her throat, but she added with a trembling voice, "the knowledge of love came to me, but not the faith of it—not until now—for all through the suspense of this dragging week I felt the cold fear clutch at my heart, the fear that I should find only the ashes of love and the empty scrawl."

The man, now fully awake, was staring fixedly at the girl kneeling by his side. Then he threw his arms passionately about her. "Pauline!" he cried, holding her so close that he smothered her sobs. "Pauline, I thank God it was given you to know and to believe."

Silver Tips on Pocket Knives.

"You wouldn't think that the little German silver tips on pocket knives are cast separately, but such is the case," said Clayton Davis. "Just why they cannot be cut from one large sheet of metal I do not know, but every one of these tiny pieces of metal is poured separately, thousands of little molds being required for the purpose in a large establishment. Scrap German silver is melted down and a little aluminum added, the effect of which is to release the oxides in the silver and make it run more easily. The molds are poured 'standing up,' and when the metal hardens the casting is pared off to give it the rounded shape in which it is used.

"The American boy of the present day is not the whittler his Yankee ancestors are said to have been, but there is plenty of sale for pocket knives, those of good quality being bought extensively. The English and Germans are ahead of us in making tool steel and the result is that 'Made in Germany' is seen on the blades of knives that are made in Connecticut and elsewhere."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

A Merry Suggestion.

"Do you think that government ownership of railways will ever come to pass?"

"Ha! ha!" said the man who dearly loves a pun; "in my opinion the pass will be the principal feature of it."—Washington Star.

The Prudential

A lady of Bergen County lost her husband last year in an automobile accident. He was insured for $5,000 in The Prudential. This sum under such circumstances meant great comfort for the family.

The attention of renters of Safe Deposit boxes in New York is called to the fact that New York State levies a tax on the contents of the Safe Deposit box of a non-resident at his or her death, which tax may, of course, be avoided by keeping one's valuables in the same state in which one resides. It is, therefore, greatly to the advantage of a resident of New Jersey to keep personal property in a Safe Deposit box within the state.

LECTURE ON SCOTLAND

Rev. W.T. Dorward Described Land of the Heather Before Baptist Men's Club.

MANY FINE PICTURES

Before a large audience, composed of the members of the Men's Club of the First Baptist church and others, Rev. W. T. Dorward, pastor of the Stelton Baptist church, gave an illustrated lecture, last night, on "Bonnie Scotland." His views of the land of the heather were among the finest yet seen and recalled familiar scenes to many Scotch people present.

At the outset Mr. Dorward exhibited several pictures and gave a description of the homes of Robert Burns and Sir Walter Scott. The views included many of the beautiful lakes, rivers and mountains to be seen in Scotland, and a series of four pictures aroused much enthusiasm. The first was a picture of a Highland cattle, the second one of a Scotch collie, the third one of a Scotch lad, Mr. Dorward's son, and the fourth that of Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, who, the speaker said, "possessed all the good qualities of making a good Scotchman."

Other views included Balmoral Castle, now owned by Edward VII, Aberdeen, Aberdeen University, Montrose, the birthplace of Mr. Dorward, Dundee, St. Andrews, where many martyrs were born, lived and died, Edinburg Castle and Melrose Abbey, all giving the audience an excellent idea of some of the principal places in Scotland. While the views were fine, the lecture was enjoyed fully as much. The speaker interspersed his talk with witty remarks which amused the audience greatly.

The lecture was given under the auspices of the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, and was the last of the series for this season, which have been arranged by Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, chairman of the committee. Included in the series have been a talk on mosquitoes by Prof. John Smith, a lecture by Willard Miner on the Telegraphone, and an illustrated talk by Dr. Harold Corbusier on "China, and the Boxer Uprising."

HOLY CROSS BOYS DEFEAT ORANGE TEAM.

Local Nine Has a Runaway Game With Their Old-Time Rivals.

The Holy Cross church baseball team defeated the Prospects, of Orange, on the Cricket Field, Saturday afternoon, by the score of 17 to 7. Despite the fact that all of the players on the home team, but two were credited with an error, they more than made up for it by their stick work, securing twenty-two hits, against two for the opposing team. The pitching of Ira Vail was a feature. The score:

Laurels Will Play.

Some question as to the right of the Bound Brook nine to play the opening game of the Inter-City league season against the Y. M. C. A. team arose last week, because the Laurels failed to send their entry list to Secretary Listman fifteen full days before the opening, as required by the constitution of the league. The Laurels were two or three days late with their list. Secretary Listman, who manages the Y. M. C. A. nine, said yesterday that he did not believe there would be any trouble over the delay. His team preferred to play the game, and would make no effort to have the game awarded on a forfeit.

Hypnotized Himself.

Worcester, Mass., May 14.—More than two weeks ago Andrew H. Simpson, one of the most prominent men in Southbridge, hypnotized himself and cannot be brought out of the state of unconsciousness which he has been in continuously since that time. Sometime before his family found him unconscious he had remarked that he had been reading a very interesting case of hypnotism. It was one in which the subject had hypnotized himself and had remained dead to the world for two weeks. Impressed with the case, Mr. Simpson tried it on himself, and so successfully that Boston and Worcester doctors and specialists have been unable to rouse him. He remains dead to the world, is in a critical condition and physicians despair of saving his life. The case has astonished the medical fraternity. The family took very careful precautions to keep Mr. Simpson's serious illness and its cause secret, but it all leaked out today. Mr. Simpson is forty-three years old. His relatives absolutely refuse to discuss the case.

Corey Weds His Mabelle.

New York, May 14.—Miss Mabelle Gilman, actress and singer, and William Ellis Corey, president of the United States Steel Corporation, at fifteen minutes past twelve o'clock this morning were married in a private chapel in the Hotel Gotham. Mr. and Mrs. Corey left the hotel shortly afterward and were conveyed by automobile to Hoboken, where they boarded the Kaiser Wilhelm II., on which they are now at sea on their bridal journey.

GOVERNOR STOKES SIGNS TWENTY-FIVE BILLS.

Several of the New Laws Are of Interest to Plainfield and Vicinity.

Among the bills signed yesterday by Governor Stokes are the following of local interest: Senate No. 149, by Mr. Hillery—Enables b oards of freeholders to improve county roads in the same manner as State aid roads are now improved. House No. 433, by Mr. Perkins—Incorporates the Borough of Kenilworth, Union county.

House No. 354, by Mr. Taylor—Makes it unlawful to construct or maintain any hospital, sanatorium or other building for the treatment or cure of pulmonary tuberculosis or infectious, contagious or communicable disease, within one-quarter of a mile from any building used or designated as a dwelling, without the consent of the governing body of the municipality within which the building is to be located. Notice must be given of the application for such consent.

Senate bill No. 279, by Mr. Avis—Amends the law regulating fraternal beneficiary societies, orders or associations; eliminates endowment features and confines their business to the payment of benefits to members who are ill or disabled, and in case of death

Dollar Wheat Arrives.

New York, May 14.—"Dollar wheat" came in yesterday with a rush that literally swept the grain trade off its feet. Every market in the world, from the banks of the Danube to Budapest, and from there to Hamburg, to Berlin, to Paris and to London, began to report higher prices for wheat long before Chicago and New York markets were opened. The more westerly the grain markets the more sensational was the rise that followed. In Chicago wheat for delivery in December soared in a manner that bespoke a panicky condition of the trade. The December option sold there at 103, an advance of 7¾ cents a bushel as compared with the closing figure on Saturday. In this market the same option sold at 105¾ cents. All the principal options in New York, the market at the seaboard, sold above $1.02 a bushel.

Jockey Garner's Narrow Escape.

New York, May 14.—Charles Garner, hero of two Metropolitan Handicaps, narrowly escaped serious injury yesterday at Belmont Park. He had the mount on Marbles, favorite in the second race. The filly bolted to the outer rail in the first half furlong, throwing her rider with great force. Only by a narrow margin did his head miss striking a post. Had he struck the post the result undoubtedly would have been fatal to him. Even as it was the little fellow was more or less painfully injured. He was taken in the starter's wagon to the temporary hospital in the office of the association. Both J. H. MacCormick and W. H. Bissert, who are in control of his services, were in attendance on the boy, whose pluck enabled Mr. McCormick to add the great Morris Park classic to his long list of turf triumphs. A broken bone in the left hand was the result of the boy's injuries. It will keep him out of the caddle for several weeks. Last winter the little fellow sustained a fall at New Orleans which kept him from riding for nearly a month. Other features of the day was the easy victory of F. R. Hitchcock's Dandelion in an overnight handicap, in which seven of the nine acceptances are Brooklyn Handicap candidates. Only six horses ran, however, and one of these, J. L. McGinnis' handsome three-year-old Frank Gill, was left at the post. The pace set by Alphenmarchen, the leader, was not as fast as the Brooklyn Handicap will see, yet it was good. Despite his high weight—126 pounds—Dandelion always held the race safe.

Sailed Against Hydrophobia.

Boston, Mass., May 14.—With the virus of hydrophobia coursing through his veins and one thousand miles of sea between him and proper medical treatment, Captain F. E. Dodge, of the bark Loveisa, raced his ship to Rio Janerio, Brazil, and thereby saved his life, for he was given the Pasteur treatment just in the nick of time. The Loveisa reached Boston yesterday morning. Captain Dodge was the owner of a pet dog, which, when several days out from Montevideo, developed hydrophobia and attacked several sailors. Captain Dodge grabbed the dog and ran to the side of the ship to throw it overboard, but the animal sank its teeth into his shoulder.

Kills Child, Tries Suicide.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 14.—After a written declaration that he was afraid he would soon die from heart trouble, and that he did not want to leave this world without his favorite child, Hazel, aged five years, Francis M. Schults, aged fifty-six years, of No. 5,125 Reno street, took the little girl last evening to a secluded spot in Fairmount Park and there murdered her by putting a bullet through her head. He then gashed his throat with a razor. Discovered a few minutes later by a park guard, with the dead child clasped in his arms, he was taken to the Presbyterian Hospital. There is little chance of his recovery.

COLONIAL TEA A SUCCESS

STATE REGENT PRESENT

Personal Greeting Extended By Mrs. Donald McLean, President General of D. A. R.

The colonial tea and entertainment given at the Park Club, yesterday afternoon, under the auspices of the Continental Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, was largely attended and a great success. The affair was held chiefly for the purpose of stimulating interest in the movement to raise funds for erecting a suitable monument at Washington Rock, and a considerable sum was added to the fund. The clubhouse was appropriately decorated with flowers and flags.

The programme, which was an attractive one, was in charge of the officers and board of management. There was a brief address of welcome by Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, regent of Continental Chapter, in which she explained the object of the affair and in a few words told of the work of the local chapter.

Miss Ellen Mecum, State regent of the D. A. R., gave a short address, telling of the work being accomplished throughout the country by the D. A. R. She said that memorials have been built, landmarks and relics preserved, history enriched and interesting incidents of the Revolutionary period found and added to history and now efforts are being directed toward the erection of a building in Philadelphia, which is to be a memorial to every man, woman and child of the Revolutionary period, who had anything to do with the events of that war. All the historical records are to be kept in this building, when completed.

In speaking of New Jersey's part in this building, Miss Mecum said that the State had subscribed $1,000 to be used in finishing a room, and oak taken from the frigate Augusta, of Lord Howe's fleet, which was sunk off Red Bank in the Delaware river, was used for that purpose. She said that the oak was found to be in an excellent state of preservation. The porticoes were furnished by the States which were included in the thirteen colonies. The building is being completed as the funds are obtained, it being the intention of the D. A. R. not to incur any debt.

Mrs. Kearfritt, of Montclair, vice president general of the D. A. R., spoke especially of the educational work being accomplished. She said that an effort is being made to educate the mountain whites, who crave education. In Montclair the order maintains a public playground and vacation school and much progress is being made in educating the young foreign element with the idea of making them patriotic citizens.

Following the addresses, the programme of entertainment was enjoyed. There was a piano duet, a selection from Rubenstein, by Mrs. A. H. Atterbury and Miss Susan Corez,, after which Miss Caroline Minturn Hall gave French recitations. Miss Mary Hubbell gave contralto solos, "What Is Love?" and "Mistress Prue," accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Atterbury.

It being impossible for Mrs. Donald McLean, the president general of the D. A. R., to be present, she sent a personal greeting, in which she extended her best wishes and expressed regrets that other duties prevented her attendance.

A feature of the programme was a monologue, "An Afternoon Tea at the Waldorf—Astoria," or "Hurry-up Hysteria," as she called it. The sketch was amusing and provoked much laughter. The programme was concluded with fancy dances by Miss Helen Stevens, accompanied on the piano by Miss Anna Davis.

After the entertainment refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed. Those in charge of the affair were as follows:

Stage and decorations, Mrs. Chas. W. McCutchen, the Misses Sarah and Harriet Manning, Mrs. A. V. D. Honeyman; reception of guests, Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, regent; Mrs. David Hall Rowland, and Miss Mary E. Brown, vice regents; Mrs. George H. Campbell, secretary; Mrs. N. W. Currie, treasurer; Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, Mrs. Charles P. Leggett, the Misses Manning, board of management; tea and refreshments, Mrs. Charles P. Leggett, Mrs. Frederick G. Mead, Mrs. John Gray Foster, Mrs. Stephen R. Struthers, Mrs. Henry A. McGee, Mrs. Charles E. Rocap. Among those who assisted in serving were Miss Kathryn Rocap, Miss Marion Rocap, Miss Margaret Leggett and other members of the chapter. Mrs. George H. Campbell was in charge of the Revolutionary relics, which were so much admired. Bertram Leggett acted as door-keeper.

MAC CLYMONT--CLINTON OPERA TOMORROW NIGHT

UNUSUAL INTEREST MANIFESTED IN THE COMING PRODUCTION.

"The Peasant Prince," a comic opera in three acts, music and lyrics by William E. MacClymont; book by Charles A. Clinton, will be given at the New Plainfield theatre, tomorrow night at 8.15. The principals and chorus have attained a high state of efficiency and a finished production is assured.

The opera will be produced under the personal direction of the following: Musical director, William E. MacClymont; stage manager, Charles A. Clinton; chorus and ensemble work, H. Fletcher Rivers. As this will be the first performance of the opera, unusual interest is being shown. The principals and chorus are all local people. The patronesses for the opera are as follows:

Mesdames A. H. Atterbury, M. S. Ackerman, E. R. Ackerman, Harry C. Adams, Charles F. Abbott, William Barlow, H. E. Butler, George A. Beaton, F. W. Butler, E. H. Booth, George H. Babcock, H. B. While there has been a great demand for seats there are a number of good ones left.

THIEF'S VICTIM FINDS THREE STOLEN BIKES.

A conglomerate bicycle and a mess of bicycle parts were awarded to Frank Ganunzi, Charles Spaluti and Frank Spallata, by Justice Clark Mundy, in the borough court last night. They were found in the possession of Michael Ricardo and Salvi Vananzi, when an officer visited the house jointly occupied by them, with a search warrant sworn out by the trio.

Ganunzi Spaluti and Spallata went to a christening party in October of last year, riding bicycles. The wheels were stolen, and they got no trace of them until last week, when Gaunuze saw Vananzi riding a bicycle that had parts of all three in its make up. He swore out a search warrant with his friends, and the discovery of the stolen property followed. The wheel Vananzi rode was the only whole one found. There was a lot of parts, that looked as if they would make up into two other wheels. The court merely awarded the wheel and the parts to the three claimants. The story of the defendants that they bought the wheels from a man in Brooklyn was accepted as true, and their discharge followed. V. W. Nash, Jr., appeared for the claimants, and F. J. Blatz defended Ricardo and Vananzi.

All-Day Sewing Meeting.

Miss Sara Curry, matron of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, has asked for 555 garments, including gingham aprons, little skirts, etc., for the children who will spend the summer at the Home, and the Christian Endeavorers will hold an all-day sewing meeting in the lecture room of Trinity Reformed church, tomorrow, beginning at 9 o'clock in the morning. Each one is asked to bring her own lunch; tea and coffee will be served at the church. Those attending are also requested to bring scissors.

C. E. Anniversary.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel will celebrate its anniversary in the chapel, tomorrow night, with a special programme arranged by Mrs. Joseph O. McKelvey, consisting of shadow pictures, illustrating "The Story of the Three Bears," and "The Ballad of Mary Jane." Refreshments will be served. An offering will be received for the furnishing fund of the new chapel.

Y. M. C. A. WILL HOLD SUMMER TENT MEETINGS

CANVAS TABERNACLE TO BE SET UP IN CONCERT PARK NEXT MONTH.

There will be no summer lull in the religious work of the Y. M. C. A. Plans for activity as great, if not greater than in the other seasons, were made by the Religious Work committee last night for the three months beginning June 15.

For one thing, tent meetings will be held at Concert Park every Sunday afternoon. The committee voted to buy a fifty-foot tent, and this will be set up at the park in time to start the meetings on June 15. They will be held weekly until September 15. The committee will secure strong speakers, and attractive music will be a feature.

Open-air meetings were held at the park last summer. They were successful to a high degree, and the measure of success attending them led to the plan for the tent meetings.

DR. PAULINE MOVES TO THE CASINO TEMPORARILY.

Because of the New Plainfield theatre being taken tonight and tomorrow night by the "Peasant Prince" company, Dr. Pauline will move to the Casino. The doctor will continue his demonstrations of hypnotism and mind reading and has prepared a programme unlike that of Monday and last nights. At the Casino, the same prices and conditions as at the theatre will prevail and seats may be had at the box office now. Pauline will conclude his engagement in this city at the theatre on Friday and Saturday nights.

Pauline succeeded yesterday in giving a public demonstration of his wonderful mind-reading powers. A letter addressed to the Daily Press office was placed in a box at the post office by a committee of local men and the key to the box was placed on top of a chandelier in the store of Marcus Hoyt & Co. Pauline took one member of the committee and by reading his thoughts, first located the key, then the proper box and finally delivered the letter to the Daily Press office. His trips backward and forward attracted a large crowd and he was cheered enthusiastically when he concluded.

MILK WILL SOON COST MORE.

Dealers Expect Rise in Price Will Come This Summer.

Elizabeth, May 15.—Local milk dealers, when interviewed today, stated that while there would be no concerted action on their part, an increase in the price of milk in this city this summer was likely.

With respect to the Ridgeway law which goes into effect July 1, and which provides that all milk be bought and sold by liquid measure, it was declared that the change, such as it was, would have no effect, and that it was simply because of the increase in the cost of supplies and of living in general that the farmers and the dealers in turn would be compelled to ask more for milk before the close of the present year.

Seeking a Saloon License.

A New York man was in town yesterday soliciting signers for a saloon license for the vacant store on North avenue, next door to The Monarch Printing office, which is owned by the Rising Sun Brewery Company, of Elizabeth. In connection with such a license the party soliciting for signers says the place will be in charge of a New Yorker, who will also conduct an electric lunch-room, where all things will be cooked by electricity. Since the Common Council has granted all the saloon licenses they intend to this year, there is no possibility of the North avenue place getting one for the present, at least.

Seven Days For Mrs. Willis.

Mrs. Edward Willis, or Mary Garvel, who was arrested as she was wielding a hat pin at Somerset street and Greenbrook road, Monday night, was given her choice of $5 or seven days by Recorder Dolliver last night. Not having the money she is the guest of the borough while a friend is trying to get it. Edward Kiely, who was arrested with her and later released on bail, will be arraigned tonight.

Clark Committed to Somerville.

Colonel Clark, the negro charged by his wife with abducting his sixteen-year-old stepdaughter, was taken to Somerville by Chief Marshal Weiss, of the borough police force, yesterday. He will be held for the Grand Jury on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon, while the other matter is looked into.

BRICK LOSING GROUND?

Some Councilmen Said to Have Changed Their Ideas of Paving.

MAYOR LOOKS FOR BRICK

Doesn't Think Opposition To It Will Develop Strength Enough to Cause Change of Ordinance at Meeting Tonight.

An adjourned meeting of the Common Council will be held tonight when among other things to be disposed of will be that in reference to the permanent pavement ordinance which will come up for final reading and adoption. This ordinance calls for the use of vitrified brick in certain streets selected by the street committee, but it is understood that since its introduction, some of the members of the Common Council have had a change of heart and desire that some other kind of pavement be used, notably the Hassam concrete, and that there is likely to be some opposition to the adoption of the ordinance in its present form.

Mayor Fisk in speaking of the matter today, said that he understood some opposition had sprung up against the use of vitrified brick, but he hardly believed that it would be strong enough to defeat the ordinance.

"The great trouble," said the Mayor, " is that everyone is agreed that permanent pavement should be laid, but all have their own ideas as to the kind of material to be used. It is impossible to agree on one kind of pavement. This will always be so. Some prefer wood, others brick, while still others favor concrete, asphalt and bitulithic. I believe that the citizens should express their opinions, but at the same time the Common Council I think can be depended upon to do that which is for the best interests of the city."

Evidence of the confidence that a majority of the people have in the street committee and the Common Council to do the best thing, was shown a week ago at the public hearing granted to give all an opportunity to speak concerning permanent pavement. Mayor N. B. Smalley and L. B. Woolston, both residents of North Plainfield, were the only persons present who had anything to say, and Mr. Woolston said that he was willing to let the Common Council decide the question as to what kind of pavement to adopt.

Another matter that will probably be decided tonight will be that of awarding the contract for crushed stone, six sidewalks and culverts for the coming year. As it stands now the Watchung Stone Company has submitted the lowest bid, and it is said that that concern will get the contract.

FIREMEN MAY STRIKE.

Asbury Park Department Objects to Negro Company and Will Fight.

Asbury Park, May 15.—A general strike of Asbury Park's efficient volunteer fire department is threatened unless the Common Council enacts the pending ordinance calling for a reorganization of the department. The reorganization scheme is opposed by three of the councilmen and Mayor Atkins, because the Eureka Company, composed of negroes, would be eliminated. The ordinance was approved Monday evening on first reading by a vote of 4 to 3, but Mayor Atkins has publicly declared that he will veto it when it is presented to him for his signature, and the reorganziation advocates in the Common Council lack one vote of the number required to pass the ordinance over the Mayor's veto.

The white firemen object to the negro company and threaten to quit if it is officially recognized any longer. There are twelve companies in the department. Several of the companies own their horses and hose wagons. These will be sold, they say, unless the Eureka Company is disbanded. A meeting of the protestants will be held this week, when an ultimatum to the Common Council will be promulgated. In case the white firemen go on strike the Common Council will in all probability organize a paid department. The Eureka company is in Springwood avenue, on the west side of the city, and has performed efficient fire service in the past. The taxpayers are about evenly divided over the proposition to drop it.

Exempt Firemen in Session.

The New Jersey State Exempt Firemen's Association is holding its annual convention at Bergen, today. D. W. Littell, of this city, is the president, and V. W. Nash, Sr., is a member of the executive committee. Among the other Plainfielders present as representatives are Eugene M. Laing, Edward T. VanWinkle, Thomas Carty, William A. Woodruff and F. O. Cranston.

AMATEURS TO HAVE NIGHT AT THEATRE

UNDISCOVERED TALENT WILL HAVE CHANCE TO SHINE NEXT TUESDAY.

Amateur theatrical talent will be given a chance to sprout and bud next Tuesday night at the New Plainfield theatre. Following the second presentation of "The Little Outcast," the Galvin production to be brought here for a benefit to Fred Bennett and David Bush, of the theatre staff, an "amateur night" programme will be given.

A prize of $5 will be given the performer who comes nearest to stellar excellence. The competition is open to all pure amateurs, and they may ring in any specialty, from buck-and-wing dancing to Shakespearean recital.

Nets will be on hand for the faint-hearted competitors who desire them. For further encouragement of the aspiring, it was said by Johnny Galvin this morning that not a hook would be allowed near the stage.

SUFFRAGETTES LOSE.

London, May 15.—It would seem that the efforts of the suffragettes to secure the election of the Hon Bertrand Russell to Parliament from Wimbledon turned public support to his opponent, Henry Chaplin. The election returns show that Chaplin has been elected by a majority of 6,964, although less than 14,000 votes were cast, as against 17,000 in 1906, when the Unionist majority was 2,114. Chaplin is a Conservative and Russell is a Liberal Free Trader who has espoused the woman suffrage cause.

As a matter of fact, Chaplin's election was so well assured from the moment he was nominated that the Liberals decided not to contest the constituency. But the leaders of the suffragettes stepped into the breach and decided to run a candidate of their own. Suffragettes poured into Wimbledon from all quarters, accordingly, and so energetic were they in canvassing on Russell's behalf that they made themselves a nuisance. In many parts of the district notices were displayed in the windows of houses requesting them not to call.

PUT UP JOB ON MINISTER.

Someone Telephoned His Witnesses Not to Appear in Court.

New Brunswick, May 15.—The trial of Henry and Peter Klein, proprietors of the Raritan House, charged with selling liquor on Sunday, was adjourned yesterday until July 7, to enable the court to investigate charges made by the Rev. Samuel H. Hahn, of Camden, superintendent of the Law and Order League.

The superintendent says that a telephone message was sent to his detectives, notifying them that they would not be wanted in court and that the sender of the message gave the name of Dr. Hahn. As a result the detectives did not appear at the trial and the prosecutor and Dr. Hahn believes that the message was sent with an idea of handicapping the State in the prosecution of the defendants. An attempt will be made to run down the person who telephoned and thus fix the responsibility.

Against Divorces.

The Episcopal convention of the Diocese of New Jersey at Trenton last night adopted unanimously a resolution placing it on record as opposed to sanctioning the marriage of divorced persons. The resolution was introduced by the Rev. W. Strother Jones, of Trenton, who declared that the canon of the Church which permits the marriage of the innocent person in a divorce suit after a lapse of one year had been repeatedly violated. The resolution follows: "Resolved, That inasmuch as it is difficult to determine who the so-called innocent party in a divorce case is this convention expresses the opinion that its clergymen shall not give the benedictions of the Church to any person divorced for any cause whatsoever."

Twenty Days for Schenck.

John Schenck, a well known local colored man, was sent to jail for twenty days by Recorder Dolliver, last night. He was arrested by the borough police yesterday for drunkeness and disorderly conduct. The court opined that a sojourn at Somerville might straighten him out.

—Mr. and Mrs. Harry Adams have given up housekeeping and are boarding with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Vail, of Orange place.

—George T. Rogers, of the borough, has leased a cottage at Belmar, adjoining the one owned by Samuel St. John McCutchen, and he and his family will spend the summer there. Mr. and Mrs. McCutchen will leave for Belmar in a few days.

TWO QUESTIONS FOR LEAGUE TO SETTLE

BOUND BROOK AND SCOTCH PLAINS HAVE ENTRY LIST KINKS.

The Inter-City Baseball league will hold the last meeting before the opening of the league season on Friday night, at the office of Secretary G. L. Listman, Y. M. C. A. building. Final plans for the opening in this city, which will take place at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon with a game between Y. M. C. A. and Bound Brook, will be made.

Among the things to be conducted at the meeting are an application from Scotch Plains for permission to change one or two names in the entry list and the matter of Bound Brook's delay in filing names of players. Bound Brook broke the rule requiring names to be filed fifteen days before the opening date, holding back the list for several days, and speculation as to what the league would do about it has been rife among the clubs.

Scotch Plains wants to change to correct what is said to be an error of the old management. It is claimed that one or two names were entered wrongly, and permission is asked to straighten out the tangle. It was said by one of the "magnates" yesterday that both Bound Brook and Scotch Plains would be allowed to clear themselves as desired. The league will probably waive discipline in Bound Brook's case, with a warning; and to be consistent, if for no other reason, Scotch Plains will be allowed to get the new names in. It would not be logical to allow Bound Brook to pass in fifteen names after the time limit and deny Scotch Plains the right to get two names in.

ELECTED DYING MAN.

The annual state convention of the Knights of Columbus of New Jersey was held yesterday in Columbia Hall, a clubhouse owned by the Jersey City knights. Forty-six councils were represented. State Deputy Charles J. Barrett was seriously ill with typhoid fever at his home in South Orange, and Past Day Deputy Thomas J. Fay, of Long Branch, presided. He died last night. The convention despite the illness of the state deputy re-elected him for the sixth term. The Plainfield council was represented by A. A. Cannon, A. E. LaPorte and J. J. Hines.

C. A. Gough, of Trenton, was re-elected as secretary after a close contest with E. A. McGlennon, of Kearny. The vote was 47 to 43. Another exciting contest was for state advocate. P. J. Dolan, of Newark, won with 46 votes to 43 for John J. Cone, of South Amboy. James F. Lynch, of Jersey City, was unanimously elected treasurer. The delegates to the national convention at Jamestown, in August, are: James J. Hopkins, Jersey City; John J. Hickey, Bayonne; Thomas J. McLaughlin, Newark. The reports show that the organization has had a prosperous year. The next annual convention will be held in Lakewood on the second Tuesday of May, 1908.

Noted Soloist Will Assist.

William N. Searles, Jr., who will be the assisting artist at Miss Whitney's musicale at the Park Club, Tuesday evening, May 28, is the popular and successful soloist at St. Paul's church, Newark. He holds the position of precentor to the delight and satisfaction of all. Miss Whitney is considered fortunate in securing Mr. Searles for this occasion and music lovers will enjoy a treat. Another feature of the evening will be the Grand Duo, "Hommage a Handel" by Moscheles, performed on two pianos, by Misses Frances Rittenhouse and Muriel Collins, two young pupils who have already made remarkable progress in the art of piano playing. Admission to the recital will be by cards of invitation.

Y. M. C. A. Circus Party.

A circus party is being organized among the Y. M. C. A. boys by Office Secretary W. E. Andrews. The juniors will get together at the association building at 1.15 Saturday afternoon, and go to the Forepaugh & Sells show in a body. They will enjoy all the delights, with a huge joint stock of peanuts and pink lemonade on the side.

ARRESTED FOR FORGERY

Man From Boston Charged With Using W.M. Stillman's Name Fraudulently.

GAVE CLOTHIER CHECK

Charged with forging the name of William M. Stillman, the lawyer, to a check for $32.87, a man who gives his name as Charles E. Fay, and says his home is in Boston, Mass., was arraigned before City Judge Runyon, sitting as a State magistrate, this morning. He gave the check to Harry Werner, a West Front street clothier, at 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon, in payment for a bill of goods amounting to $27. He was remanded for examination tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

The prisoner is a tall, cadaverous-looking man, partly bald, and looks the 48 years he gives as his age. He told Policeman Florence McCarthy, who arrested him, that he came here from Elizabeth yesterday afternoon. He claims a temporary residence on North Broad street, Elizabeth.

Fay bought a $20 suit of clothes and several articles of furnishings from Mr. Werner, and gave the check for $32.87. He said Mr. Stillman had drawn it in payment of commissions due him. Mr. Werner accepted it without suspicion at the time, and gave the man $5.87 in change. Fay left the store with his purchases, and walked leisurely to Edward A. Laing's stationery store on the opposite side of the street. When his customer stepped from the store Mr. Werner thought of the possibility of the check being bogus. He took the check to the store of Putnam & DeGraw, next door, and asked for rent receipts signed by Mr. Stillman, who owns the building, for a comparison of signatures.

The signatures didn't look much alike. As Mr. Werner and Mr. DeGraw were bending over the papers, near the front of the store, Policeman McCarthy looked in.

"What's the matter?" he asked.

They told him. When he learned that Fay was at Laing's store he lost no time in going there and placing the stranger under arrest.

Fay told the policeman that Mr. Stillman had given him the check in payment of commissions on "some business" two or three hours before. He described Mr. Stillman accurately, and gave his address on West Seventh street correctly. Mr. Stillman, called up on the telephone from Police Headquarters, unhesitatingly denied giving anybody a check within the time cited by Fay.

Two charges were entered against the prisoner, one of forgery by Mr. Stillman and another of uttering a spurious check by Mr. Werner. Blank checks on the First National Bank were found in the man's pockets. The check given to Mr. Werner was drawn on the First National.

BARROWS MADE CHAIRMAN OF SHADE TREE COMMISSION.

The new shade tree commissioners, Elliot T. Barrows, Miles Roberts and Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett, appointed recently by Mayor Fisk, met last night in the Mayor's office and after taking the oath of office, administered by Mr. Fisk, organized by electing Mr. Barrows chairman and Mr. Gavett secretary.

No work was decided upon, the evening being devoted to a general discussion of plans likely to be undertaken. The commission is to take charge of all shade trees in Plainfield and direct the planting and cutting down of such trees as in the judgment of the members is thought desirable.

Luncheon to Department Heads.

Former Mayor William L. Saunders, of the borough, tendered a luncheon to the heads of departments of the Ingersoll-Rand Drill Co. at the Lawyers' Club, New York, yesterday. His main reason for giving the affair was to introduce the officials to M. P. Grace, of London, who represents the heaviest stockholders of the company. Those from Plainfield in attendance were L. I. Wightman, manager of the advertising department; C. B. Morse, manager of the publishing department, and F. C. Iglehart, Jr., office manager.

TUNNEL COMPANY PURCHASE.

New York, May 15.—The Hudson Companies, a corporation formed to build the trolley tunnels under the Hudson River, has bought the Davidson building, a four-story office structure on the southwest corner of Washington and Montgomery streets, Jersey City. The deed for the property was filed Monday at County Register James C. Clarke's office. It sets forth that John J. Treacy, a Jersey City lawyer, conveyed the building and land to the Hudson Companies for $10. Mr. Treacy purchased the property from the Smith estate a year ago for $164,000.

The building stands on the line of the tunnel running from the Pennsylvania Railroad Station west to Newark, and also on the line of the branch now being built under Washington street extending north to Hoboken. It is said that this branch eventually will be extended from its intersection with the main subway south to the Jersey Central Depot at Communipaw.

The tunnel people have made no announcement of their plans as to the future of the Davidson building. There may be an entrance to the subway at that point.

Bishop to be Buried at Linden.

The late Bishop James N. Fitz-Gerald, of the Methodist Episcopal church, who died in China, April 4, and who was such a noted and influential man, is to be buried on Friday afternoon in the cemetery at Rosedale and Linden Park, located between Linden and Elizabeth. The funeral services will be held Friday afternoon in the Central Methodist church, Newark, at 4 o'clock. After the service a special train will convey the remains, relatives and friends to the cemetery at Linden. The remains will rest in a large and attractive plot which will be marked by a suitable monument.

Ball Player May Go to Asylum.

Washington, May 15.—Augustus Geager, a catcher, who has played in a large number of semi-professional and also several league baseball teams in this State and Pennsylvania, will probably be taken to the Morris Plains Hospital. Geager came here with his wife Friday, and Monday, it is said, he became violent and steps were taken to have him removed to the hospital, where he was once an attendant. There also he was catcher for the hospital team. Lately Geager has been making his home in Somerville.

Had Objectionable Postal Cards.

Dover, May 15.—Fred Grant, who keeps a fruit store on East Blackwell street, was arrested Monday, charged with the sale of objectionable postal cards. Police Justice Young fined him $25 on one charge and $5 on each of two additional charges under a town ordinance for the prevention of vice and immorality. It is said that the postal cards got in the hands of school children. Marshall Byram obtained the evidence against Grant.

Reliable Money Lenders

Forget Your Money Troubles—We Can Show You How

Start life afresh. Borrow from us to pay the several you owe and make payments in keeping with your income. By so doing you keep your credit good. Ease up the pressure on yourself and have a chance to "turn around" in other things needed for the family.

An Illustration

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

They will return home about the first of August, when the family will go to the mountains for the rest of the summer, returning to Plainfield in the fall.

PARADE FULL OF NOVELTY.

New Circus Ideas Devised by Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros.

One million dollars expended to provide free amusement! This is the sum of money represented by the great parade of the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros. shows, which will exhibit in this city on Saturday.

In fact, there are two parades in one this season—that is to say, the pageant is twice as long as that to be seen with any other circus. It is also twice as good. The first thing to strike the spectator is the originality—a thousand features new to pageantry, giving the spectacle the charm of great novelty. All the old sights that can be seen with other circuses are missing.

Music is furnished by military bands, chimes, steam pianos, barbarian tom-toms and the weird-sounding reeds of semi-savage musicians. The spice of comedy is added by a company of clowns, who keep the spectators along the street curbs in continuous shouts of laughter. The costumes and trappings for the 1,200 people and 500 horses represent a fortune in themselves; banners and flags are made of the finest silks, and pure gold-leaf is used in the decoration of the wagons and chariots.

There is more to be seen in this parade than can be shown by any other circuses combined, it being the Aim of the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros. management not to excel merely in size but to add every novelty that can be discovered or devised and make everything the best in quality. The result is the perfect new circus.

ENGLISH ETCHINGS.

Fewer than 8,000 people own half the soil of Great Britain.

Of the boy workers in London newsboys are the healthiest, barbers' boys the most unhealthy.

For every English person who lives in a house valued at over £20 a year six live in dwellings of lower value.

There are now 30,000,000 acres of permanent pasture in England, and the extent of grass land is still increasing.

The smallest capital in the British empire is Edinburgh, the chief and indeed only town in Tristan da Cunha. It has ninety-seven inhabitants.

There are 2,000 golf clubs in England, with 300,000 player. These use 500,000 golf balls a week and in a year walk after golf balls about 240,000,000 miles.

Women of the poorer class in London have adopted Dutch wooden shoes for indoor use. The sabots are imported by a Streatham Hill firm, and their price is from 25 cents upward. They are becoming popular in London, although no one has yet appeared in the streets wearing them.

SHORT TALKS BY L. T. COOPER.

"HOW TO KEEP HEALTHY."

"I am not a believer in too much medicine. Don't take medicine all the time. Get a good tonic and take it until the old vitality returns then stop. A general tonic and system renovator should be taken in the spring and fall. For this purpose there is nothing better on earth than Cooper's New Discovery, but I advise no one to take this medicine or any other all year long. Give nature a chance. Establish regularity in movement of the bowels. Drink plenty of water but not at meal time. Chew your food very carefully and eat slowly. Sleep with the window open, don't be afraid of fresh air and do not eat a great deal of grease. Be regular at meals. Go to bed and get up at the same hour each day if possible. Take a bottle of Cooper's New Discovery twice a year and your life should be long and healthy.

MISS MIDDLETON.

"I have been sick for a number of years with stomach trouble and also from backaches and headaches. Sometimes I became so weak I could not stand on my feet. My food did not seem to nourish me and I could not gain strength. I felt tired to death all the time. Nothing I took helped me, and hearing so much of the Cooper medicines I decided to try them."

"I have taken two bottles of Cooper's New Discovery with the most remarkable results. I now feel entirely well. My appetite is fine, I sleep well, have no more headaches and am quite strong again. I cannot express my thanks for what these medicines have done." Sallie Middleton, 1957 Central Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Ask us about these medicines.—We sell them.

SIRES AND SONS.

Leroy Hillman, of Indianapolis, is the youngest captain in the United States army. He is twenty-seven years of age and is on duty at Rock Island.

Dr. Adolf Harback, director of the Royal library of Berlin, is expected to be present at the opening of the Carnegie institute at Pittsburg on April 11.

F. S. Garvan, District Attorney Jerome's assistant in the Thaw trial, was a great middle distance runner at Yale and defeated Captain Bigelow of Harvard six years ago.

Commander Peary in a talk at Princeton let out the fact that the flag which he unfurled at his "farthest north" point was a Princeton flag. He will soon give it to the university.

Senator Beveridge's speech in advocacy of his child labor bill beat all records for years in point of length. He consumed the greater part of four legislative days of the Senate in its delivery.

To spite his relatives Robert MacDonald, of Lake Ainslie, Cape Breton, recently made a will bequeathing his estate, amounting to $8,000, to his two pigs, and every cent is to go to them and their keepers.

Theodore Gill, who knows as much about fishes as any one in the world, works for the government at the Smithsonian institution for $1 a month. He easily can afford to do this, as his personal fortune is $250,000.

Senator Money has determined to retire from public life solely because of his inability thus far to obtain any permanent relief from the recurrent attacks of neuralgia, from which he has been a sufferer for several years.

James E. Martine, the "farmer orator" of New Jersey, enjoys the distinction of having been the candidate of his party—the Democratic—for almost every office in his county and Senate district for the last thirty years without every having won. Mr. Martine, who was defeated for Congress at the last election, was the Democratic choice for United States Senator to succeed Mr. Dryden.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

"Lou" Wiltse, of this city, is alternating between first base and left field for the Jamestown Tri-State League team. His arm evidently is not in shape for pitching.

The game on Monday between the Giants and the Cincinnati "Reds" was a remarkable one. Mason, a youngster pitched against McGinnity, the veteran, and there was little to choose from. The scratch hit by Corcoran brought in the single tally for the Giants.

The Giants are playing a game today that is the wonder and admiration of the fans of the country. Such work is just the kind to win pennants.

The Philadelphia press, notably the North American, has taken a drop in flinging complimentary remarks about McGraw and his team.

The P. H. S. freshmen schedule of games for the rest of the season follows: May 17, Cedarcroft; 18, Sophomore; 20, Stillman; 21, Holy Cross; 25, Sophomore; 27, Holy Cross; 29 and June 1, open dates; June 3, Stillman.

It is possible that the Holy Cross team will cancel its game at Orange on Saturday because of the circus coming to town.

Trenton is in fourth position in the Tri-State League race; not so good at that considering the material of which the team is made.

The 14 to 11 contest at Boston on Monday, which was won by Pittsburg, reminds the fans of other days. It was a good old-fashioned slugging match in which honors were nearly even.

There is unusual interest in the opening of the Inter-City Amateur League game on Saturday, when the Y. M. C. A. will meet the Bound Brook team at Crescent Oval. Minford will pitch for the locals. At the same time Clinton Avenue will meet Scotch Plains at the latter place and Dunellen will lay off for the day.

Until Walter Nelson is graduated from Rutgers College in June, Overton will probably do the backstop work for the Y. M. C. A. team. He will then be used in another position as he is too valuable to remain idle.

GOLF.

Robert Abbott, a student at Yale, is showing his old-time form in playing the game. He promises to be a factor in the big tournaments this season.

The improvements at the Plainfield Country Club are greatly appreciated by the players.

The social season will be opened at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday with a tea. There will be music by the Neapolitan Hungarian Orchestra, of New York.

There will be play for the Golf committee and Green committee cups at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday.

Already many local golfers are playing the game Sundays at the Westfield and Baltusrol Golf Clubs. Either place is a convenient trip in an auto or carriage, while the New Orange Railroad is quite handy from Roselle.

The Cranford Golf Club course, considered one of the best nine-hole links in the east, bids fair to be one of the most popular this season. Already several low scores have been made in competition. The course is a great center of attraction for "pros."

Just now the greatest interest is shown in the ninth annual tournament of the Metropolitan Golf Association to be held at the Nassau Country Club, May 22, 23, 24 and 25. Plainfield will be represented in the play.

Besides offering exceptional advantages at the course and clubhouse, the Plainfield Country Club has outdone itself this year in the matter of offering prizes. There are a great many handsome and valuable trophies to be competed for.

The Baltusrol Golf Club has acquired title to the twenty-five acre farm in the rear of the present clubhouse and extending along the foothills from the main highway back to the sixth green and skirting the seventeenth and eighteenth holes of the golf course. The club is to build a garage on its new land, also tennis courts. The Baltusrol schedule for the season has also been arranged for and includes a team match next Saturday with Essex County Club, matches with Morris County golfers, twenty-five men on a side, and the semi-annual championship for the president's cup, thirty-six holes, medal play. During May, June July and August on Saturdays there will be a contest for a cup presented by I. K. Taylor and in July once a week for a cup presented by the Green committee.

CIRCUS DAY IS COMING SO LAY ASIDE THE "DOUGH."

It's only four more days now till the circus will be here. Comes a-rolling in on Saturday, and the little boys will cheer. Uncle John and Cousin William may be heard to whisper low. "Guess I've got to take young Charlie; so, of course, I'll have to go." There'll be raging, roaring, lions and of tigers just a few, monkeys, elephants and zebras eke the gentle, horned gnu. Uncle John and Cousin William may behold them at the show, but will view them with unwilling eyes, because they "have" to go. You can hear the chariots rumble all parading down the streets, while the tinsled men and women cling most fearsome to their seats. Grown-ups attend half-hearted, while remarking rather slow: "I'd never never in the world come here, but Mary had to go."

'Neath the canvas men will mimic fighting at the fearful flame, rescues made from tottering buildings, gain the rescuer hall of fame. Uncle John and Cousin William won't see this, of course, you know, for they came to guard the children. They don't want to see the show. Well, the circus is a-coming, it will be here right on time. Boys gaze at the wondrous posters and exclaim: "Gee! That's jest fine!" Uncle John and Cousin William, sort of hope there will be snow that will stop them from attending. 'Cause, of course, they hate to go. "But I s'pose th' kids'll need me, as a pilot in th' throng, so, though I wan't countin' on it, guess I'll hev t' go along. Lots of bother, this here circus, wish I didn't hev t' go, but, t' please th' youngsters, Mandy, I'll take in th' hull blamed show."

ONE KILLED, ONE HURT, IN MOTOR EXPLOSION.

Accident Happened at Singer Sewing Machine Works at Elizabethport.

By an explosion last evening in the motor room of the Singer Sewing Machine Works at Elizabethport, one man was killed and another was so badly injured that he is not expected to live. He has been unconscious since the accident and is at the Alexian Hospital, Elizabeth. He is about forty years old. His name has not been learned by the hospital authorities. The dead man is John A. Hupple, fifty years old, single.

The accident was caused by the bursting of a motor which was being experimented on. It is said too much gas was put in it. Several other employes in the room had narrow escapes from death or injury by the flying fragments.

The explosion started a fire in the motor room; which was extinguished by the fire department connected with the company's plant, not, however, before considerable damage was done.

Lay Death to Christian Scientists.

New York, May 15.—Censure for all persons who were in any way concerned in the withholding of medical attendance from Mrs. Corinne McBride, who died of pneumonia when underdoing Christian Science treatment, was meted out yesterday by a jury of laymen and physicians empanelled by Coroner Acritelli. Mrs. McBride's husband, Robert C. McBride; the Christian Science practitioners who attended her and, last but least, certain physicians who make it a profitable custom to prepare death certificates for persons who have died when undergoing the treatment prescribed by the Eddy cult were all included in the scorching arraignment. The hearing threw new light upon the methods of Christian Science, and revealed important facts concerning its practice.

STATE-WIDE IMPORTANCE FOR THE MARTINE DINNER

LIST OF SPEAKERS INDICATES A DESIRE TO HARMONIZE FACTIONS.

General D. F. Collins, who is on the committee to arrange for speakers for the Martine dinner on May 29 in Turn Hall, Elizabeth, has given out a list of the speakers and the guests. It shows that the dinner is to have a State-wide importance, and that the leading Democrats of New Jersey will be on hand either to listen or to talk.

The list is a representative one and seems to be designed to bring Democrats of all stripes together in a harmonious gathering.

The speakers will be James E. Martine, former Senator James Smith, Jr., Assemblyman James Baker, of Hudson; William B. Gourley, chairman of the Democratic State Committee; Peter F. Daley, Surrogate of Middlesex county; William L. Saunders, of Somerset, and former Mayor of North Plainfield, and William J. Curtis, of Summit, recently a candidate of a faction of the Union Democracy for United States Senator.

All have had their subjects assigned except former Senator Smith. The toasts will be: "Our Guest, the Farmer Orator," James E. Martine; toast, unassigned, James Smith, Jr.; "The Legislature of 1907," Assemblyman James Baker; "The State Democracy," William B. Gourley; "The Democracy of the Fathers," Peter F. Daley; "Democracy's Hope in New Jersey," William L. Saunders; "The United Democracy," William J. Curtis.

The invited guests include all the members of the Democratic State Committee, who are William B. Gourley, chairman, of Paterson; William K. Devereux, secretary, of Asbury Park; William C. Heppenheimer, treasurer, of Hoboken; Robert S. Hudspeth, of Jersey City; Howard Carrow, of Camden; Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of Trenton; William A. Faunce, of Atlantic City; Luther A. Campbell, of Hackensack; Benajah P. Wills, of Mount Holly; William H. Davis, of Camden; Matthew Jefferson, of Sea Isle City; Samuel Iredell, of Brigeton; James R. Nugent, of Newark; Edward E. Grosscup, of Wenonah; James N. Pidcock, of White House Station; Michael Hurley, of Trenton; Oliver Donelly, of Metuchen; David S. Crater, of Freehold; Willard C. Cutler, of Morristown; Charles L. Rogers, of Lakehurst; Louis F. Braun, of Paterson; Robert Gwynne, of Salem; Samuel S. Childs, of Bernardsville; Lewis S. Iliff, of Newton; Peter Egenolf, of Elizabeth, and Johnston Cornish, of Washington.

There have also been invited Robert Davis, of Jersey City; Mayor Albert Bollschweiler, of Perth Amboy; E. C. Drake, of Chester; Senator James F. Minturn, of Hudson; Louis J. Thompson, of Newton; Senator John Hinchcliffe, of Paterson; Speaker of the Assembly E. E. Lethbridge, of Orange; William J. Thompson, of Gloucester county; Alvah H. Clark, of Somerville; William R. Smith, of Camden; Congressman William Hughes, of Paterson; William L. Stryker, of Washington; Rufus Blodgett, of Long Branch; William R. Gebhardt, of Flemington; George C. O. Vanderbilt, of Trenton; George Prickett, of Palmyra; F. H. Hoagland, of Rockaway; David J. Carney, of Plainfield; Archibald Hacquer, of Plainfield; Herman B. Walker, of Newark; D. W. Martine, of Plainfield; Robert Foote, of Morristown; Whitfield Gillen, of Dover; S. R. Lynd, of Dover; James Firth, of Phillipsburg; Richard Kuhl, of Flemington, and George S. Silzer, of New Brunswick.

The invitation extended to the entire Democratic State Committee recalls the severe attack to which the members were subjected recently by Robert Davis and others who did not come out so openly as the Hudson leader. Davis said the State Committe was neither useful nor ornamental, and that it was politically incompetent. He said the younger men were tired of the committee, and especially tired of Gourley, the chairman. Many Democrats have shown dissatisfaction with the State Committee, and have expressed the demand that the members should all resign. The list of names for the Martine dinner would seem to indicate that there is a desire to harmonize the factions who are warring over the question of the personnel of the State Committee.

SCHUYLER TO HANG; LAST USE OF ROPE.

The New Electrocution Law Not Binding Because Murder Antedated It.

Flemington, May 15.—John E. Schuyler was sentenced yesterday by Judge Alfred Reed to be hanged Friday, June 28, for the murder last January 19 of Manning Riley, at Califon. Judge Reed was much affected in pronouncing the sentence and the prisoner swayed to and fro as the Judge fixed the day of his execution. As sentence was pronounced a woman in the crowded court-room fainted.

Schuyler was handcuffed and surrounded by a squad of constables. As he was led back to prison his steps became more and more uncertain and he almost collapsed when he reached his cell. Then he denied his guilt and said it was too bad to hang an innocent man. Schuyler's lawyer will make application immediately for a new trial.

As the law passed requiring the death penalty to be paid in the electric chair does not apply to any capital crime commited previous to last March Schuyler will have to be hanged here. It has been seventy-nine years since there has been a hanging in Hunterdon county and only three persons have ever been executed there. If denied a new trial Schuyler will be the last person to be hanged in the State.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

"The Flower of Yeddo," a Japanese entertainment and floral fete, will be held in the Baptist church Friday night, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society. It will be a novel affair. Tea will be served by women in Japanese costume. The church will be elaborately decorated with Japanese lanterns and American flags.

The committee of arrangements in charge of the entertainment to be given in Temperance Hall, Wednesday night, May 29, under the auspices of the Good Government Club, met last night and completed the details for the affair.

A special meeting of the executive board of the newly-organized fire department was held last night to discuss matters relative to completing the organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Springer were received into the Baptist church by letter from the First Baptist church, Plainfield, on Sunday.

William G. Minogue has gone to Long Island to accept a position with the Long Island Railroad Company.

Mr. Wagner, of Allentown, has taken up his residence with Mrs. Major.

WOMEN POOR EMBALMERS.

So Declares the State Examining Board In Its Report to Governor.

Trenton, May 15.—An interesting discussion of the comparative merits of men and women undertakers, with the honors about evenly divided, is contained in the annual report of the State Board of Embalmers, which has just been submitted to Governor Stokes. The report suggests that there is a slight leaning in favor of men as undertakers, because they seem to take more readily to the practical part of the work.

The first practical demonstration of embalming was made in this city several months ago. At that time a woman was the first candidate called upon to embalm a body. She advanced rather timidly to the subject, fainted and fell prostrate over the body. The other women candidates fainted in turn as they took their places, according to the board's report. The board concludes that, while women are capable of acquiring all the theoretical knowledge required of an undertaker, they are not likely to prove a success in the business because of their timidity.

IMPROPER POSTAL CARDS.

Manhattan Firms Said to Have Sent Them to Newark.

Charged with selling by wholesale improper illustrated postal cards in Newark, Herbert Sherman, an agent for the Anglo-American Postcard Company, of No. 54 Third avenue, Manhattan, and Jacob Carraso, agent for the Pregressive Postcard Company, of No. 10 East Fourteenth street, Manhattan, were arrested yesterday at Newark by constables sent out by Sheriff Sommer. They were held pending an investigation of their business methods by the Sheriff.

It is alleged that these and other agents of the New York companies have been supplying retail dealers in Newark with illegal postcards. Several of the retailers were arrested after raids were made on their establishments. The New York men carried satchels containing large quantities of cards similar to those the sale of which caused the Sheriff's raids.

Death Trailed Him Oversea.

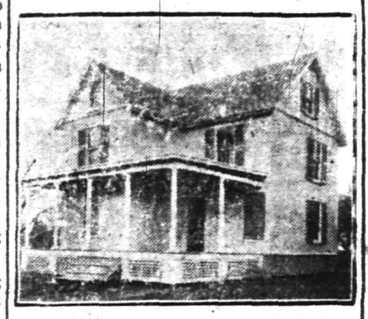
New York, May 15.—Forced to flee from Brooklyn to Newark about two years ago by threatening Black Hand letters, demanding that he pay $2,000 or forfeit his life, and a month ago compelled for the same reason to go from Newark to his native place, near Genoa, Italy, Vincezo Buffardo has at last been murdered by his secret enemies. This information came yesterday to Detective Sergeant Joseph Farrell, of Newark, from friends of Buffardo, who said they had just received a letter saying he had been killed about eleven days ago. Uneasy over his absence beyond the time at which he had told her he would return, his wife walked from their little cottage in the suburbs of Genoa to call him. Almost on the door steps she found him dead. He had been shot in the back and his throat had been cut. So silently and surely had the assassins worked that Mrs. Buffardo had not heard an unusual sound.

—An executor's sale of real estate of the late Michael Heffernan will be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, May 20, on the premises, 531, 533 and 535 East Third street. Joseph Harrigan is the executor.

NEW SYSTEM OF BUILDING.

A MARVEL IN THE SCIENCE OF CONSTRUCTION.

A method far in advance of anything formerly used in the preparation of the different parts of a house when erected in sections, making it easy to construct any design of a house, and a very superior house for all seasons, countries and climates at a great reduction in cost.



These houses are constructed principally from the best kiln dried lumber in a factory entirely protected from weather, where best high speed woodworking machines are used for cutting and shaping of every piece, reducing cost for mechanics fully one-half, making a superior house when finished.

Houses or other structures erected under this system make the warmest houses in winter, and the strongest building that can be constructed with any material, the fiercest storm fails to cause any vibration whatever. They are adapted to receive all improvements, plumbing, lighting, heating, etc., when desired.

A new method of lath and plaster is used for interior finish, making a perfect indestructable wall superior to anything ever before used.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Miss Ella Galvin, in "A Little Outcast," will appear at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday and Tuesday nights. The play tells a thrilling story of life in New York city and is a revelation to those who have never seen the under world. The setting of the play shows careful study and the remarkable realistic scenery deserve special mention. The third act shows the incoming tide at the docks of the Battery; the hiss of the waves is heard and a great duel takes place in the tumbling billows. Other good views are Cooper Union, the famous Chinese restaurant, Pell street, a Wall street office and the great panorama of the World building and adjacent sky scrapers. Lillie Steele and the Newsboys' Duo are receiving great applause for their good singing and dancing and little tootsie the tiny tot who wanders in and out through the last two acts is as perfect a stage baby as a child can make the part. "A Detective Phonograph" in the last act is a matter of much interest.

Commencing Thursday, May 23d, a season of moving pictures and illustrated songs at popular prices is announced for the New Plainfield theatre. Performances will be continuous from 1 p. m. to 5.30 p. m. and from 7 to 10.30 p. m. and Archie L. Shepard's high class moving pictures direct from the Manhattan theatre, New York city, will be presented and a program, that for excellence of material and choice of selection has not been equalled in the course of such entertainments heretofore. Comedy of course will be uppermost in the program, though care has been taken to install as great a variety of subjects as is possible in order that all may be entertained and pleased. It is an entertainment that especially appeals to everybody. Constant changes is the watchword and a variety that includes subjects of travel, current events, magic, mirth, mystery, vaudeville, comedy, drama, history, pageant and every phase of the commercial and theatrical life will be a sure antidote for ennui.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

V. W. Nash, Sr., the Park avenue coal dealer, is taking orders for next winter's supply. Prices are low.

George F. Brown, the real estate dealer of Somerset street, has a list of desirable properties for sale or lease. Consult him.

John A. Koch, the Watchung avenue butcher, sells only the best cuts of meat, both fresh and salt. He also sells choice Jersey chickens.

If you have any sort of a painting or decorating contract to be executed give it to Woolston & Buckle, North avenue. It will be executed properly.

E. B. Maynard, the North avenue barber, conducts one of the best appointed shops in the city and the State. Only first-class work is done by expert barbers.

There are a multitude of attractive things to be seen on the shelves and counters of J. W. Gavett, West Front street. The searcher after the useful as well as well as the seeker for the ornamental will find the thing to be taken there.

—Marshall Darragh will appear at the Casino, Wednesday night, May 29, in a reading of "The Tempest," from Shakespeare.

—The Donegan company of comedians are creating roars of laughter with Forepaugh and Sells Bros.' circus in a ludicrous roller rink act, which is the funniest clown stunt ever conceived.

REAPING BENEFIT.

From the Experience of Plainfield People.

We are fortunate indeed to be able to profit by the experience of our neighbors. The public utterances of Plainfield residents on the following subject will interest and benefit thousands of our readers. Read this statement. 'Tis emphatic and convincing. No better proof can be had.

Mrs. David Arthur, of 111 Grandview avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been used for several years in our family with the best of results. My husband, my two daughters and myself, each having had occasion to use the remedy have found in it just the relief we sought from the backaches and headaches that come from kidney troubles. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to several people, and shall continue to do so."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

IT'S WORTH REMEMBERING.

That gossips never secure "permanent jobs."

That love may be ever so great, but must also be wise to grow.

That happiness is found only when you look within, not without.

That a fool is never so foolish but that he may teach another fool something.

That to be poor without losing self-respect or a sense of enjoyment is a fine art.

That kindness of any true sort must be expressed in terms of the recipient, not of the donor.

That friendship is genuine may invariably be recognized in that it is neither jealous nor selfish.

That capability marks some men, and importance others, but that indispensability attaches to none.

That indolence among the rich is more to be condemned than ignorance among the poor. The rich know better.

That mediocrity, provided it be persevering, accomplishes more than fitful talent. Hares and tortoises still run races.—Success.

ALL TRUE.

Best part of a bargain is the gain.

If a man is a loafer he has but little to live for.

Find fault with your friends and it will make them faultier.

After a man has proposed he is sometimes disposed to renege.

After inducing a man to make a fool of himself a woman gives him the laugh.

He is a mean man who will let a woman marry him for his money when he hasn't any.

Some men seem to think that borrowed money and umbrellas are in the same class.

Everybody wants something for nothing, but few people are satisfied with what they get that way.

WORDS OF THE WISE.

Fraud is the recourse of weakness and cunning.—Gibbon.

It avails little to the unfortunate to be brave.—From the Spanish.

A woman either loves or hates; there is no third part.—Publius Syrus.

The good or evil we confer on others often recoils on ourselves.—Fielding.

The more a man denies himself the more will he receive from Heaven.—Horace.

Never esteem anything as of advantage to thee that shall make thee break thy word or lose thy self-respect.—Marcus Aurelius.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

Hope makes hopeless fools of some people.

Look out for propositions that will not bear looking into.

Some free church seats are not as easy as they might be.

A wise man never boasts of his wisdom. He wouldn't be wise if he did.

It takes a handsome young widow to make a woman hater change his mind.

WORDS FROM BR'ER WILLIAMS.

By de time we say "Good-mawnin'" in dis worl' de good-night bell rings, "Go home!"

W'en de wolf howls at yo' do', de bes' thing you kin' do is ter git on de blind side er de wolf en skin him alive!

De troubles er termorrer is all in de air. W'en you meets termorrer you soon finds out it's only second-cousin ter ter-day.—Atlanta Constitution.

HUNG FROM TRESTLE WITH BOY HE SAVED

Paterson, N. J.—While walking on the trestle of the Erie railroad at Riverside, 40 feet above the Passaic river, 12-year-old Edward Berger missed his footing and fell between the ties, striking the steel framework in his descent to the water.

As the boy fell Chris Naumann, with a friend, Peter Brueck, started across the trestle on their way from Hawthorne to this city. They saw the boy struggling in the river and Naumann ran to the nearest pier and clambered down the steel work. At the base of the pier, which is barely wide enough for a foothold, Naumann took off his overcoat and threw one end to the boy, who was clinging to a cake of ice.

The boy caught the coat and Naumann hauled him to the pier. He was exhausted and unable to help himself, and Naumann, who is big and muscular, put the boy on his back and started up to the top of the trestle. He had first instructed Brueck to see if a train was coming. Naumann reached the top of the trestle with the boy on his back when Brueck began waving his arms wildly. An express, which Brueck saw he would not be able to stop, was almost on the trestle when Naumann had lowered the helpless boy between the ties with one hand and was hanging himself to a tie with the other.

The express roared above them, and following it as swiftly as his legs could carry him came Brueck, who marveled at his friend's escape. Brueck helped Naumann and the boy back on to the trestle.

The two men carried Berger to his home in River street and left him with his mother, not stopping long enough to tell the story of the boy's double peril and Naumann's gallantry. The boy recovered enough to tell it himself soon afterward.

FAITHFUL DOGS SAVE HUNTERS.

Animals Bring Workmen Who Effect Their Rescue from Morass.

Newark, N. J.—To the intelligence of two coon dogs, Albert Chichester and Edward Maynard, tanners from Harrisburg, Pa., owe their escape from death in the slime of the Newark meadows a few days ago.

The men were hunting muskrats. Maynard, walking ahead, jumped on what he thought was a bank of snow and ice. It suddenly gave way under his feet, and the mud of the salt marsh oozed about his waist. In his efforts to extricate Maynard, Chichester splashed into the quagmire.

The dogs raced about their masters, barking furiously. Suddenly the animals made straight for the spur of the Central railroad, half a mile away, where a gang of laborers was employed. Dashing among the workmen, the dogs began barking furiously. Two trackmen picked up planks, and, led by the dogs, went to where Maynard and Chichester were slowly sinking in the mud. They arrived just in time to effect a rescue.

Bloomer Bath Robes Latest.

Atlantic City, N. J.—Prudish visitors who have gasped at some of the rather scanty bathing costumes on the Atlantic City beach are due for another jar at the opening of the coming season when they are promised a peep at real bloomer bath robes.

The innovation is promised as a result of the visit of a bathing suit salesman, who booked orders for several thousand of the suits after he had submitted models on the form of a pretty assistant.

Owing to the chill still in the water, no attempt was made to give the new suits a tryout in the water, and some startling effects are expected in some of the suits that are made of clinging materials.

Father of 33 Children.

Uniontown, Pa.—Peter Burkett, a civil war veteran, 76 years old, of Clearfield county, has placed five children in the Soldiers' Orphans' school at Jumonville. He survives three wives and is father of 33 children, 21 of whom are living. During the civil war he served in company E, One Hundred and Forty-eighth Pennsylvania volunteers. He is believed to hold the record in Pennsylvania for number of children.

The attention of renters of Safe Deposit boxes in New York is called to the fact that New York State levies a tax on the contents of the Safe Deposit box of a non-resident at his or her death, which tax may, of course, be avoided by keeping one's valuables in the same state in which one resides. It is, therefore, greatly to the advantage of a resident of New Jersey to keep personal property in a Safe Deposit box within the state.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Sarah Blyth.

Mrs. Sarah Blyth, aged sixty-seven years, died last night at her home, 932 Terrill road, following a long illness. She had been a resident of this city for many years. A son and daughter survive her. The funeral services will be held tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock from the late residence, and at 9 o'clock from St Mary's church, where high mass will be said. Interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Abraham J. Skillman.

Abraham J. Skillman, one of the best known men in New Jersey, who gained fame in the late sixties and early seventies by reason of his identification with the old Bound Brook Railroad as a promoter and constructor of that railway, which is now known as the Philadelphia and Reading road, died at his home in Trenton, yesterday. He was born in Somerset county and lived there until twenty-five years ago, when he went west, where he engaged in railroad contracting business. He formerly lived at Skillman Station, which place was named after him.

He Made Death Certain.

New York, May 15.—In sight of women and men crowded on a station of the Third avenue elevated railroad at 143d street, Peter Cain, a member of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, No. 52, threw himself in front of a north bound train a few minutes before 11 o'clock last night. His body was ground beneath the wheels of the forward truck and his right hand came in contact with the third rail, causing a burst of blue flame as the electric current was short circuited. Cain had been walking up and down the platform, apparently waiting for a train. Nothing in his manner attracted attention until, without warning, he threw himself head first to the tracks. Witnesses said he seemed to have an idea of making certain of his death by striking the third rail, as he was seen to reach for it as he fell.

Longshore Strike Dying.

New York, May 15.—With the grain handlers refusing at the last hour to join them, with the steamships receiving coal and strike breakers coming in from every side, the longshoremen yesterday passed the hardest day of their strike. All of the ten thousand men now idle were forced to a realization that they must fight their battles absolutely alone, and they acknowledge that their treasury is not very full. They have successively tried the teamsters, the tugboat men, the lighter men and the grain men, and in every case they have been unable to obtain reinforcements. Had they won the teamsters, who, with their helpers number 3,600, they would have stopped the freight traffic of the water front, but the teamsters told them they had a contract with the produce men they would not break for anybody.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Missionary and Aid Society of Warren chapel will meet at the chapel Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The reception which was to have been given to Rev. C. E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Thursday night, will be held at a later date.

The Epworth League chapter of the First M. E. church will entertain the chapters from the Grace M. E. and Monroe Avenue M. E. churches in Vincent chapel, Friday night. There will be a musical programme and refreshments will be served.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Irving, of East Front street, are entertaining relatives from Qincy, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schafuss, of Fairview avenue, are spending a few days with friends in New York State.

Miss Lillian Vail, of Norristown, Pa., is visiting her sister, Mrs. William E. MacClymont, of Woodbine avenue.

Mrs. Warren Ackerman, of Scotch Plains, who has been seriously ill, is very much improved, with excellent chances for recovery.

Miss Jessie Munger and Harry Munger, of Washington avenue, will sail for Europe a week from today, to be absent several weeks.

Assemblyman Peter Tillman, of Rahway, who has been critically ill for several weeks, is now improving rapidly and is considered out of danger.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Plainfield Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., will initiate seven candidates at its meeting Monday night, May 20.

Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., will confer the master mason degree on three candidates at a communication to be held Tuesday night, May 21.

There will be a special communication of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., tonight, when Right Worshipful Brother Theodore B. Townley, past District Deputy of the old Fifth Masonic District, will be the guest of honor. There will be an entertainment, followed by a banquet.

Had Six Reasons For Suicide.

Chicago, Ill., May 15.—Six reasons why he killed himself were given by Beauford L. Leeds, a guest of the Warner Hotel, who was found dead in his room from poison. He left a note saying: "1. I have been dissatisfied since I was a child. 2. I have been handicapped throughout life with deformed feet. 3. One side of my body has been partly paralyzed for the past ten years. 4. My right hand has been ruined by an accident. 5. I have been a sufferer from neuralgia. 6I I have been up against a score of financial misfortunes." Leeds, who, it is believed, was a chemist, left a letter addressed to Miss Blanche Keller, at Swanton, Ohio. He was about thiry years old.

JOHN SMITH'S BUSY DAY.

Certainly Accomplishes Much in the Twenty-four Hours.

"The person in this town that arouses my profoundest respect," said the gray-headed New York man, "is John Smith. I admire him because he accomplishes so much. No other man that I know of performs one-half the stunts that are credited to Smith. A study of yesterday's news reports reveals how prodigious are his labors. According to the papers he began the day—say about three a. m. —by shooting a burglar. At six o'clock he scalded himself with a pot of hot coffee, and at ten o'clock he fell into a coal hole in Tenth avenue. But not even these disturbances impaired Smith's vigor, for after repairing damages he found time to figure as a principal in two weddings and one divorce. Also he appeared in a police court on a charge of arson, was a witness at two trials, attempted to cut his throat with a razor, drove a runaway team hitched to a pickle wagon, and as a wind-up to his activities was run in on a charge of disorderly conduct. All of which, it strikes me, constitutes a pretty strenuous day even for a Smith."

FUNNY ERROR OF PRINTER.

He Was Not Expecting Latin in Newspaper Copy.

William F. Waller of 3417 Harrison street, now a real estate man, but formerly a printer, newspaper man and publisher, was talking recently of amusing typographical errors. "From 1881 to 1884, when Rose Field was managing editor of the old Kansas City Times, I was foreman of the composing room," he said. "One night Field wrote an editorial paragraph poking fun at the Latin a morning contemporary had printed. Field wound up his effort with a quotation from one of Cicero's orations. The words were 'O tempora! O mores!' meaning 'O the times, O the manners.' The paragraph went up late, and the proof-reader didn't even get a long distance look at it. The paragraph was in the paper the next morning, but the quotation read: 'O tempest, O Moses!'"—Kansas City Star.

"The thing that surprised me most when I began to teach," said the instructor of a class of adults in manual training, "was the number of people who can not tell, instinctively, the right hand from the left. Fully a third of my pupils hesitated a moment before obeying instructions to do this thing or that thing with the right hand or the left. The thing that fixes the proper hand in their minds finally is some incident in which that hand has figured. By recalling that story they know which hand to use. One of the brightest women I know declares that the only way she can tell one hand from the other is to remember the time when, as a child, she tried to milk a cow and was sent flying heels over head. She approached the animal from the wrong side, and the picture of the position of her right hand then is so vivid that it enables her to distinguish that member to this day."

Where the Gold Goes.

Egypt is having a boom, and that explains in part the old mystery where all the gold goes to. There is a crazy land speculation in Cairo, the cotton crop is increasing at good prices, the area of arable land is increased by the new Nile dam, rain is more common from the same cause. And gold is being hoarded in the oriental way usual when times are good. A consular report says that nearly $20,000,000 was sent from London recently, but it has all been absorbed. The sellers of the cotton crop have the money hoarded in their houses. The goldbeaters' bazaar is crowded all the time and it is estimated that each week many pounds sterling in gold coin are melted or beaten into bracelets, necklaces and chains. That gold is always hoarded in Egypt is proved by the fact that some George III. sovereigns are coming into circulation.

Eyes and Exercise.

It was a matter of surprise to Emerson that the following little piece of advice by De Quincey should not have attracted more attention: "The depth and subtlety of the eyes varies exceedingly with the state of the stomach, and if young ladies were aware of the magical transformation which can be wrought in the depth and sweetness of the eye by a few weeks' exercise I fancy we should see their habits on this point altered greatly for the better."—Health Record.

Only Way to Do Good.

There is only one way to make men better. The work must be done from the inside. The seed must be planted in the human heart. The individual conscience must be awakened and enlightened. No reform theory can be made which is automatic. The individual must do the reforming within himself, and all that the outside world can do is to lend him a sustaining hand, a cheering voice and an encouraging look.—Exchange.

Just One Thing.

"When we sat down to the table," said Sue Brette, "I picked up the wine list." "My!" exclaimed Fanny Footlites, "what did he do, drop dead?" "He never winced. I said: 'May I have anything on this?' He said: 'Sure. You'll find it down in the right-hand corner—beer ten cents a bottle.'"—Philadelphia Press.

"CENTRAL PARK"

Was—Is—Will Be

IT WAS, only about a year ago, just a pretty farm.

IT IS to day the finest building site in Plainfield, with broad avenues macadamized their entire width, concrete curb, sidewalks, trees, gas, electric light, in fact all improvements. Nearly $100,000 expended in new and handsome dwellings, now ready for the market.

WHAT IT WILL BE we hardly dare predict, with contracts out for even more extensive improvements and twelve more handsome residences.

Lots selling rapidly—Prices very low—Great investment or speculative opportunities.

Monkey House Case Ended.

New York, May 15.—Enrico Caruso, leading tenor in the Metropolitan Opera House, who was convicted of having annoyed Mrs. Hannah Graham in the monkey house in Central Park and fined $10, will take no further steps to fight his conviction. His lawyers have withdrawn their notice of appeal to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, and yesterday Frederick W. Sperling, of his counsel, paid to Edward R. Carroll, clerk of the General Sessions Court, the fine which had been imposed in a magistrate's court. Mr. Caruso, after his arrest, was taken before Magistrate Baker, and although Mrs. Graham did not appear as a witness, the Magistrate held that he was guilty. An appeal was taken to the General Sessions Court, which upheld the Magistrate.

Seventy Firemen Overcome.

New York, May 15.—During a fire in the cellar of the Remington Typewriter Company, at Nos. 325 and 327 Broadway yesterday seventy firemen, constituting the entire third battalion, were overcome by the fumes of gas and burning chemicals. Many of the men were overcome three times and then violently resisted being carried to ambulances. More than half of those overcome were taken to hospitals, many of them in a serious condition. From about eleven o'clock when the first company went into the cellar which was filled with the deadly fumes, until half past one the men were being carried out in a steady stream. Sidewalks were lined with unconscious firemen and offices in adjacent buildings were turned into temporary hospitals.

AUTO 'POLICEMEN' NAMED

Mayor Fisk Appoints Eight Machine Owners to Assist in Regulation of Speeders.

CAN MAKE ARRESTS

Many Routine Matters Considered at Last Night's Adjourned Meeting of the Common Council.

Following up the suggestion made at the meeting of automobile owners at the Casino a few days ago, Mayor Charles J. Fisk appointed several owners of autos as special policemen at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, the purpose being that they are expected to assist in the effort being made to regulate the running of autos in the city. Those appointed are Dr. F. C. Ard, Benjamin Wood, S. A. Cruikshank, Willard Wadsworth, Albert A. Tilney, M. B. Mellor, J. B. Stevens and W. A. Coddington. The appointments were confirmed and they are now given authority to make arrests for reckless driving of autos.

The oaths of office of the shade tree commission, E. T. Barrows, Andrew J. Gavett and Miles Roberts, as well as those of the sewer assessment commission, Robert A. Meeker, S. P. T. Wilbur and H. B. MacDonald, were presented and filed.

The petition of A. G. Negley, Jr., for permission to m ove a couple of buildings on his land a distance of about forty feet was granted on motion of Mr. Hibbard, chairman of the fire and building committee.

Mr. Tolles, chairman of the finance committee, to whom was referred the matter of securing a new lease from Woolston & Buckle, owners of the building occupied by the city, reported that a new lease for five years at an annual rental of $1,610, had been executed, to run from April 1, it being agreed by the owners to paint and make all necessary repairs, properly heat the building and that upon ninety days' notice the city can purchase the building for $37,000. The rent is to be payable quarterly. Mr. Tolles offered a resolution accepting the lease, and it was adopted.

Mr. Tolles offered a resolution, which was adopted, granting the petition of V. W. Nash, Sr., who sought equity in the properties at 928-932-940-942 Prospect avenue, held for Martin Act tax, upon the payment of $1,070. The transfer will be made after the payment of the consideration and signing of the papers.

Mr. Tolles moved that the sum of $20 be appropriated for the use of the tax assessors in employing an auto or other conveyance to inspect properties. The law requires that this must be done on May 20 and it would be impossible for the assessors to do the work on foot. The motion was adopted.

Another resolution by Mr. Tolles, which was adopted, authorized the street commissioner to have twelve new signs made and five old ones repaired, to be placed about the city as warning to automobile drivers.

Mr. Ginna, chairman of the street committee, reported back T. M. Day's petition for a crosswalk on Putnam avenue, stating that it had been laid. He also reported back the petition of the Board of Trade asking that North avenue be included in the streets to be paved, adding that the street had been incorporated in an ordinance to be introduced.

On motion by Mr. Ginna, the Watchung Stone Company was awarded the contract for furnishing crushed stone, culverts, crosswalks and curbing for the coming year, its bids being the lowest regular one received. The contract will become effective when signed by the company.

Mr. Hibbard reported that in accordance with a previous action of the Common Council, the fire committee had sold the fire horses "Billy" and "Jerry," each for $50, but owing to much criticism, "Jerry" was purchased again by the committee and given away to a person who would take proper care of him. On motion the petition of F. W. Gray to move a barn on his property on Hillside avenue was granted.

Despite Mr. Buxton's objections, based on the assumption that the matter had not been considered by the fire and building committee, Mr. Hibbard's motion that S. Sharkey's petition for permission to remove an iron awning from North avenue to Richmond street was granted. On Mr. Hibbard's motion L. E. Hart was also given permission to remove the dwelling at West Front street and Elmwood place to Elmwood place.

Mr. Buxton raised an endless discussion over the petition of Mr. Negley to m ove a couple of buildings forty feet on his property on West Seventh street, claiming that the matter had not been considered by the committee. Mr. Tyler also opposed such hasty action, but Mr. Hubbard said that the petition had been approved by Building Inspector Doane

CITY PHYSICIAN NOT MADE POLICE AND FIRE SURGEON

MAYOR FISK FAILS TO APPROVE OF THE MEASURE AND TELLS WHY.

The amendment to the ordinance, introduced at a previous meeting of the Common Council and intended to increase the salary of the city physician, Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, and at the same time make him police and fire surgeon, was returned at the adjourned meeting, last night, by Mayor Fisk, without his approval, and it failed to pass when a vote was taken.

In explaining his action, Mr. Fisk stated that there was a question that the proposed adopted might make Dr. Lufburrow a regular member of the city departments and bring him under the tenure of office act, whereby he would be eligible to a pension and a life position under good behavior. Other cases of a similar character were cited where this had been done, and he recommended that the ordinance be not passed. He suggested, however, that he believed that the Common Council had sufficient authority to give Dr. Lufburrow a salary commensurate with the services performed by him. When a vote was taken on passing the ordinance all the members voted in the negative, except Councilmen Gloak and Buxton. No doubt further action will be taken later to suitably pay the city physician for his services.

ALL FORMER COMPETITORS IN HORSE SHOW ENTRIES.

Committee Also Has the Assurance That Many New Exhibitors Will Compete.

The entry list for the fourth annual horse show under the auspices of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, June 6, 7 and 8, will contain the names of every competitor of last year, as well as many new ones. There are fifty-two classes in all, covering every department in riding, driving, jumping and special events and for each day an excellent programme will be arranged.

Exhibitors' horses and vehicles will be transported free from Jersey City to Plainfield by special shipment. The entries close Saturday, May 25, with Charles W. Smith, assistant secretary, 16 East 23d street, New York city. The judges chosen are Messrs. George Willing, Dr. H. D. Gill, D. V. S., William G. Rockefeller, George G. Haven, Jr., Hamilton H. Salmon, Robert A. Fairbairn, S. Taber Willets, Charles H. Hurkamp, Harry T. Peters, Dr. E. R. Voorhees, D. V. S., and Dr. T. Earle Budd, D. V. S.

REALTY CHANGES HANDS.

Quoin Investment Co. Purchases Property On North Avenue.

The Quoin Investment Company has purchased through John P. Emmons, the agent, the property on North avenue, formerly owned by Frank M. Clute, of New York city, consisting of the large brick building extending from North avenue to East Second street, which at present is occupied by the Plainfield Cab Company and other tenants. The purchase was made simply for investment purposes and no changes are contemplated as the tenants all hold leases.

The Quoin Investment Company, which was recently formed, has elected these officers: President, Clarence L. Murphy; vice president, Ira L. LaRue; secretary, Clarence B. LaRue; treasurer, Arthur Murphy.

Funeral of C. J. Barrett.

Members of the Knights of Columbus, of this city, have received notice of the announcement of the arrangements for the funeral services of the late Worthy State Deputy Charles J. Barrett, who died suddenly Tuesday night after being elected to the chief office of the order in the State. The funeral will take place from the late home, 400 Valley street, South Orange, tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, with solemn requiem mass at Our Lady of Sorrows church. All members of the order throughout the State are invited.

The G. A. R. Memorial Detail will meet Saturday night to complete the arrangements for the observance of Decoration Day. Since the reorganization of John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, that body has been invited to take part in the parade on Decoration Day and will probably accept.

County Registrar Enjoying Trip.

Letters received from County Registrar F. H. Smith, who with Mrs. Smith is in California, indicate that he is enjoying the trip immensely, and that his health is much improved.

—Strawberries are getting better and the prices lower at Neuman Brothers'. The prices on all fresh vegetables are also much lower.

WILL BUILD STORM SEWER

Plainfield Avenue Improvement Passes Council After Three Year's Effort.

MR. GLOAK QUERULOUS

Criticised Handling of the Ordinance and Refuses to Vote For It.

The Plainfield avenue storm sewer again furnished a breezy time for the members of the Common Council, last night, and it looked as though the entire history of this time-worn subject was to be repeated. The fun began when Mr. Ginna, chairman of the street committee, called up on third reading the ordinance providing for this improvement.

Mr. Gloak, who has opposed the improvement because of what he terms "the methods employed in putting it through," wanted to know if the ordinance was drafted by Corporation Counsel Marsh and had his approval. He said that he did not wan to block the sewer, but could not stand for the way in which it has been handled. It looked to him as though the committee was trying to railroad the ordinance through.

Mr. Ginna was not absolutely certain that Mr. Marsh drafted and approved the ordinance, and Street Commissioner Gavett, who was appealed to said that he thought it was, but could not say positively. The ordinance was so old that he really had forgotten the origin. Mr. Tyler ventured to say that Mr. Marsh had approved the ordinance, when Mr. Gloak replied that he was not asking the opinion of the Third ward member. Later, however, Mr. Tyler had a chance to give official sanction to the ordinance.

Mr. Mellick again acted as a peacemaker by pouring oil on troubled waters. He argued in favor of the improvement, adding that there appeared to be a personal feeling in the matter which he hoped would be laid aside for the best interests of the city.

Mr. Buxton thought the members ought to know positively whether the ordinance was approved by Mr. Marsh, and one or two other members expressed similar opinions. Mr. Gloak took another fling at the improvement by saying that the matter had never been before the street committee for consideration and he did not think it a fair way to act. He had no personal feeling, but he remembered that two years ago Corporation Counsel Marsh would not allow the ordinance to go through.

Once again Mr. Buxton, Mr. Gloak and Frank Randolph wanted the ordinance referred back to the committee, but their motions did not prevail.

When a vote was taken to adopt the ordinance on third and final reading, Councilmen Ginna, Hibbard, Mellick, Montgomery, C. C. Randolph, Tolles, Tyler and Daniel voted for adoption and Councilmen Buxton, Gloak and Frank Randolph against it.

COLBYITE MEETINGS.

Second Ward Elects Officers; Chairman Tracy Continued at Head.

The second ward branch of the Equal Taxation League elected the following at a meeting in the Camera Club rooms last night: Chairman, Howard C. Tracy; vice chairman, Arthur Lovell; secretary, Frank L. Holt; treasurer, Clarence Goss; executive committee, Robert H. McCready, William Taylor, Charles B. Morse, R. H. Depew, William N. Runyon, Edward Willis.

There was a meeting of the League general committee after the Ward election, but nothing of interest to the outside world, it was said afterwards, was done.

New Market Girl Weds.

In the presence of a gathering of relatives and close friends, Miss Kate Cole and Frank Broshart were married at the home of the bride's brother, Capt. Benjamin A. Cole, of New Market, last night. The ceremony was performed at 8 o'clock by Rev. W. W. Casselberry, pastor of the Dunellen Presbyterian church. The bride was attended by her niece, Miss Mabel Cole, and the best man was William Piddington. A supper followed the marriage.

Amende Honorable For Bobby.

It was not, as was stated, Bobby Leach' lunch wagon from which Joseph Stevens fell Monday night. Bobby says he has troubles enough of his own, without having his wagon dragged unnecessarily into drunk and disorderly cases.

Moved Flower Shop.

Louise Casenove, who manufactures artificial flowers, has sold his place in the mountains, and removed his shop and home to a house on Summit avenue. He purchased the latter place recently.

MEET AT DRIVING PARK

Sunday-School Athletic League Secures the Horse Show Grounds.

LIST OF THE EVENTS

Four Classes of Competitors Will Meet—Seniors Will Have a Mile Run and Mile Relay Race.

Plans have been completed for the first outdoor meet of the Sunday-school Athletic League. It will be held at the Riding and Driving Club track, Randolph road, Saturday afternoon, June 15.

The card will include events for four classes: Boys, juniors, intermediates and seniors. Heavy entry lists are expected in all the classes. The last indoor meet brought out close to 75 entries, and the outdoor affair is expected to call pretty nearly 100 separate entrants. The events are closed to all but members of the league.

In the boys' class there will be two events: Three-legged race, 75 yards; and 50-yard dash. The juniors will have running broad jump, 50-yard dash and 440-yard relay race, four boys. The intermediates will engage in three events: 75-yard run, running hop-step-and-jump, and 220-yard run. Seven events will try out the mettle of the seniors. There will be a mile relay race, four men; running high jump; running broad jump; 12-pound shot put; mile run; 440-yard run and 100-yard run.

Entries will close with the secretary, G. L. Listman, at the Y. M. C. A., on June 5. Handsome prizes will be up. The winning school will receive a trophy, and the individual winners will receive medals and buttons.

Officials will be decided upon at a meeting of the league. The meet will start at 2:30 o'clock.

PARK COMEDY CLUB PLANS SEASON'S END

WILL PRESENT THREE ONE-ACT PLAYS BEFORE ITS FRIENDS.

Elaborate preparations have been underway for the last month for the annual public performance of the Park Comedy Club, which will conclude a very successful season and one which has been satisfactory to the members. Following its usual custom, the friends of the club have been entertained with several short plays during the winter. As a conclusion, this elaborate production of three one-act plays has been planned and the receipts will go toward the expenses of the Comedy Club during the season.

Seats were placed on sale this afternoon at Schreiner's Pharmacy and the Park Club. The date of the performance is announced as Thursday, May 23, and, as usual, it will be held at the Park Club. The plays to be produced are "Miss Civilization," a farce from the pen of Richard Harding Davis, which deals with the adventures of a railway magnate's daughter with three yeggmen; "Our Aunt from California," by Madalene Demarest Barnum, which scored a decided hit at the recent Floral Carnival at the Casino; and "The Old Master," one of Henry Arthur Jones' plays and among the best written by that English dramatist.

Edgar T. M. Hart, senior instructor of the Sargent School of Acting, has devoted much time to the coaching of all three plays and the productions will be under his personal supervision.

Officials To Enjoy Shad Dinner.

The annual plank-shad dinner which is enjoyed every year by Republicans and Democrats at Gloucester, will be held at that place today, and among those who will sit about the festive board are William R. Codington, District Court Judge William Newcorn, Freeholders J. Hervey Doane and S. P. T. Wilbur and B. Frank Coriell. A large delegation of officials from other parts of the county will also be among the guets.

Wife Didn't Press Charge.

Leander Brown, colored, was arrested at his home on West Third street, last night, on complaint of his wife, who told Policeman Martin Vanderweg that he had beaten her. She seemed very anvious to have him locked up, but she failed to appear against him this morning in the city court. Judge Runyon suspended sentence.

SCREEN QUESTION AGAIN

Councilman Tyler Springs the Much-Discussed Saloon Law on His Colleagues.

QUOTES JUDGE SWAYZE

Asserts Council Is Liable To Indictment If Ordinance For Their Removal Is Not Adopted.

Councilman Tyler, the exponent of strict regulation of the liquor traffic, caused considerable discussion among his colleagues at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, when he introduced an amendment to the ordinance to regulate inns and taverns and saloons. The ordinance provided that except in the case of hotels and taverns, restaurants, etc., where provisions are made for the boarding of guests, all screens tending to prevent a clear and unobstructed view of the interior of a place where liquor is sold, shall be removed while liquor is sold and during prohibitive hours.

After City Clerk MacMurray read the ordinance, Mr. Tyler explained that it had been sent to President Daniel and himself by Corporation Counsel Marsh, who stated that such an ordinance must be adopted by the Common Council in accordance with the provisions of the Bishop's law. He called attention to the charge of Justice Swayzey to the Grand Jury at the opening of the May ferm of court in Elizabeth, when he said that failure to adopt such an ordinance would make an excise board or other governing body liable to indictment, and it was at the urgent request of Mr. Marsh that he presented it and asked for action at once.

Mr. Tyler further explained that the ordinance as drawn provided that screens must be removed during and out of business hours, and his purpose in speaking of this was that the members might use their discretion as to whether they wanted to adopt it as drafted. Personally, he said that he favored the removal of screens at all time, believing this to be another step in the right direction.

Mr. Mellick said that while he had not had time to consider the matter fully, he would vote against the removal of screens during business hours, yet after more mature deliberation he might change his mind. It was then suggested by Mr. Tyler that the words "at any and all other times" be stricken out and the ordinance adopted as amended, with the understanding that after further consideration he would have the privilege of moving to amend so as to include these words.

Mr. Buxton said that fully eleven months had elapsed since the Bishop's law went into effect and he thought a delay of two or three weeks now would make no difference. He then moved to have the ordinance referred back to the committee. This was not seconded.

Mr. Tyler then moved to have the specified words stricken out, which finally prevailed, all voting in favor. On Mr. Buxton's motion to refer back, Councilmen Ginna, Hibbard, Mellick, C. C. Randolph, Tolles, Tyler and Daniel voted against and Councilmen Buxton, Gloak, Montgomery and F. Randolph voted in favor of the motion.

There was an impression that Mr. Tyler desired to "railroad through" the amendment, but his explanation appeared to justify his position to the contrary.

Building Nearing Completion.

It is expected that arrangements will be completed in a few days whereby the work of completing the new telephone building on East Fourth street will be undertaken. The Seaman Company, of Brooklyn, which had the contract, and failed, hopes to be able to finish the job. The Western Electric Company, which is installing the new equipment in the building, is progressing well with the work. It is expected that it will be completed within the next three weeks.

"The Peasant Prince" Tonight.

Everything is in readiness for the first production of "The Peasant Prince," by W. E. MacClymont and Charles A. Clinton, at the New Plainfield theatre, tonight. Those who have heard the comic opera say that it is one of the best of the kind yet heard here. The production will be handsomely staged and a large orchestra will assist under the direction of Mr. MacClymont.

Fay Again Remanded.

Charles E. Fay, the man accused of forging William M. Stillman's name to a check for $32, was again remanded for twenty-four hours this morning by Judge Runyon. The prisoner is being held to await the return of Chief Kiely, who went to Albany on Tuesday on police business. The chief will be back today.

COUNCIL FAVORS BRICK FOR PERMANENT PAVING

Proposes to Adopt Ordinance to That Effect at the Regular June Meeting.

STREETS SPECIFIED

North Avenue Included — Public Hearing in the Matter to Be Given Next Month—Bond Issue $47,000.

The permanent pavement that is proposed for the business section of the city and which has already been discussed at some length, is to be vitrified brick, or at least it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt on third reading an ordinance providing that specified streets be paved with that material, at the regular June meeting.

At a previous meeting, Mr. Ginna, chairman of the street committee, introduced an ordinance providing for brick pavement, but after a conference with persons interested in bonds, it was thought best to change the ordinance so that the bonds would have a longer time to run than arranged for in the first ordinance. The present ordinance introduced last night provides that the first of the bonds shall mature in 1911 and then every year afterward. The total issue of bonds will be $47,000, in $1,000 denominations.

Last night's action on the street pavement was not taken until Mr. Tyler had entered a protest against the exclusive use of brick, in fact he felt that the paving of North and Park avenues to be unnecessary at this time. He thought that some of the streets should be paved with the idea of ascertaining whether the pavement selected would be satisfactory, and then he understood that North avenue was to be presented in a separate ordinance.

Mr. Mellick said that the method proposed would have an effect on the sale of bonds for the work. He believed that the street committee should have some definite policy and then go ahead with its work. Mr. Buxton also understood that North avenue was to be considered separately and he moved that the ordinance be referred back to the street committee.

Mr. Montgomery said that the original ordinance had been amended so as to include North avenue, the Board of Trade had petitioned for it, and putting it off would not tend to help matters any. Brick pavement was well-known, was tried and proved satisfactory. He cited the fact that in Easton, Pa., the main thoroughfare has a brick pavement which has been in use seventeen years and at Middletown, N. Y., a similar pavement had been in use fifteen years and is still there today in good condition.

Mr. Tyler explained that he had no intention of blocking the improvement, but thought a member should have the opportunity of showing discretion. If there was any possibility of the ordinance being held up, he said he would do all in his power to secure its adoption.

The motion to refer the ordinance back to the street committee was lost, Councilman Ginna, Mellick, Hibbard, Montgomery, C. C. Randolph and Tyler voting against the motion and Councilmen Buxton, Gloak, F. Randolph, Tolles and Daniel for it.

Mr. Tyler's m otion to strike out North avenue from the ordinance was lost, Councilmen Buxton, Ginna, Gloak, Mellick, Montgomery, C. C. Randolph, F. Randolph and Tolles voting against, and Councilmen Hibbard, Tyler and Daniel for the motion.

Mr. Ginna explained that Mr. Buxton had a separate ordinance providing for North avenue, but that he had refused to introduce it, hence he included the avenue in his ordinance. He had been given an opportunity to present his ordinance, but did not accept. Mr. Ginna said that he had inspected the pavement at Easton

SEEKS DAMAGE FOR ALLEGED SLANDER

Suit has been started by Aleck Kane, a house wrecker, against John H. Doane, a real estate agent, for $1,000, claimed as damages for alleged slanderous statements by Doane regarding the plaintiff. The action is before the Circuit Court of this county, and is down for trial at the October term. The plaintiff's lawyer, Francis J. Blatz, has not yet filed a declaration.

The alleged slanderous remarks grew out of a realty deal, involving a piece of property on West Seventh street, owned by Frank Margentino. Mr. Doane, it is said by the plaintiff, was trying to effect a sale, and had opened negotiations with a prospective purchaser. Kane had dealings with the same man, and secured a contract of sale for the property. The real estate man, chagrined, it is said, made remarks about Kane in connection with the transaction, and the action followed.

EDITOR MORROW JOINS RANKS OF THE BENEDICTS.

Weds Mrs. Florence J. Johnston at Quiet Ceremony In New York.

Ralph Leighton Morrow, city editor of The Daily Press, and Mrs. Florence J. Johnston, daughter of the late Dr. Charles George Tomlinson, of New York, were quietly married yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the home of the bride, West Ninety-second street, Manhattan. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. A. Lincoln Moore, of New York, and was witnessed only by the members of both families. Following the nuptial event dinner was served at Sherry's.

Mr. and Mrs. Morrow will spend their honeymoon in Europe, visiting England, France and Germany. The bride is a native of New York city but has many friends in Plainfield.

CONSOLIDATION REPORT.

Councilmanic Committee Moves Action Upon It.

Councilmen Tolles and Tyler, who were appointed by President Daniel as the committee of two to represent the city in a joint consideration of the report of the consolidation commission, with a like committee from the borough, presented a brief report at the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night.

In substance it was that the report of the commission be filed and that preparations be made at once to have Legislative bills drafted that will accomplish the objects desired—annexation and consolidation and that steps be taken to have such bills introduced in the Legislature at the earliest possible date. The report also recommended that there be a consideration of the proportionate share of expense to be borne by the city and borough and that the city clerk notify the commission of the foregoing requests. It stated further that 1,250 copies of the commission's report were printed at an expense of $18 and that 500 copies were sent to the borough.

MASON'S ENTERTAIN.

Present Right Worshipful Brother With Handsomely Bound Resolutions.

Right Worshipful Brother Theodore B. Townley, past district deputy of the old Fifth Masonic District, was the guest of honor at a special communication of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., last night, and he was also presented with a handsome set of resolutions, leather bound, showing the appreciation of the members for the faithful services performed by Mr. Townley. The presentation was made by Worshipful Master Robert Reif on behalf of the lodge, and Mr. Townley responded in a happily worded speech thanking themembers for the gift.

Following the presentation a musical programme was given by Fred VanEps, banjoist; Fred'k J. Pope, baritone, and S. B. Howe, Jr., pianist. The worshipful master of the Cranford Lodge, also entertained with a monologue and German dialect stories. After the entertainment a banquet was served by the stewards of the lodge.

TRAIN AND TRACK.

Hungarian railway traveling is the cheapest in Europe. On some lines one can travel third class six miles for 2 cents.

The distance from Paris to Bordeaux is 380 miles. The state railway's fares are 3.41 cents per mile, first class; second class, 2.32 cents; third, 1.52 cents.

It is always a misdemeanor to cross the tracks at any railway station in Europe or to ride on the cars without a ticket. For the latter offense the penalty is heavy.

Chinese cities object so strongly to additional openings being made in their walls that the new railways are compelled to build their stations outside. No trains can enter the cities.

Dr. and Mrs. Marcus L. Clawson, of Park avenue, have returned from Atlantic City.

EXECUTOR'S SETTLEMENT — Notice is hereby given, that the account of the subscriber, executor of Sarah Lincoln deceased, will be audited and stated by the Surrogate, and reported for settlement to the Orphans' Court of the County of Union, on Wednesday, the twelfth day of June next.

Dated, May 8, 1907.

PERSONAL.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliot T. Barrows, of West Eighth street, will sail for Europe on June 12.

P. Frank Stone, of West Front street, has been entertaining his brother from New York.

Mrs. W. S. Angleman, of West Front street, is much improved from a long and tedious illness.

Mrs. C. C. Burnett and daughters, of Madison avenue, are home from a sojourn at Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. MacClymont, of Woodbine avenue, are entertaining company from Yonkers, N. Y.

Charles Staats, of Brooklyn, who has been spending the past week in town with friends, has returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Murray, Jr., of West Fourth street, left yesterday for Newport, R. I., to attend the funeral services of Mrs. Murray's grandmother.

Mrs. Everett Colby, formerly Miss Edith Hyde, who has been seriously ill for several months, is much improved. Mr. and Mrs. Colby are planning a trip abroad this summer.

Rev. R. D. Schoonmaker, who is engaged in mission work among the mountain whites of the south, is visiting his home in this city for a time. Tuesday night he spoke before the Christian Endeavor Society of Warren Chapel.

THREE TURNS AND A TWISTER!

The flying trapeze act of the Fisher family is one of the sensational features this season of the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros.' circus, which comes to this city on Saturday.

The act is something entirely new. One of the family, while being tossed across the arena, turns a triple somersault and a witster. He is the only man who has ever succeeded in doing this. Another sensational feature and which is also the most beautiful and graceful aerial act ever accomplished is the flying leap from one swing to another of Miss Minnie Forepaugh. This young woman seemingly can resist the laws of gravity, for she projects herself with such birdlike swiftness from one swing that she speeds as straight as an arrow's flight through fifty feet of space and catches the bars of another trapeze. This act has never been seen before.

All of the other 300 performers are as excellent in their distinct specialties as are the aerialists. The management has aimed to give the public all novelties, and they have succeeded so well that they have a circus absolutely new in idea. The street parade is something on an entirely different order from the old style affair, and it cost enough money to buy the ordinary entire circus. One million dollars was also spent on the fire drama which opens the regular program and is the most thrilling, dramatic and gorgeous entertainment ever seen under canvas.

CHURCH AND CLERGY.

Lancaster county, Pa., has twenty-one Presbyterian churches, and at least three of the congregations are almost 200 years old.

Dr. Emanuel Schreiber has been unanimously re-elected for a period of three years rabbi of Emanuel congregation of Chicago.

Dr. Francis E. Clark, of the Christian Endeavor society, is visiting the West Indies, Panama and South American republics in the interest of that organization.

The Rev. A. K. Baird, D. D., who spent several years as synodical missionary of Mantana after similar service in Iowa, Minnesota and the Dakotas, has accepted the position of pastor at large for Helena presbytery.

Dr. George E. Stokes, at one time a member of the northwest Indiana conference, will take charge of a portion of the work of Dr. Edward M. Taylor, field secretary for New England of the board of foreign missions, until Dr. Taylor's health will permit him to resume his duties.

GLEANINGS.

In Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Switzerland all soldiers are said to know how to read and write, and in England illiteracy is decreasing.

Japan's colony of Formosa has an area of 13,500 square miles and 3,000,444 inhabitants. The area and population equal those of Massachusetts and Connecticut combined.

A copy of Goldie's painting of the death of St. Francis Xavier, the great Christian missionary to Japan and China in the sixteenth century, has been ordered in London by the Japanese government for the public library at Tokyo.

The proper fee to a porter at any English railway station who carries your trunk to or from a cab is fourpence; for each valise, twopence. A porter that finds a good seat for you in a compartment and stows away your valises is entitled to sixpence.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"A Little Outcast," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre on Monday and Tuesday nights is a play of intense and startling realism. The equipment of electrical mechanical scenic effects are such as never before attempted by an attraction of this kind. Jas. A. Galvin has spared no expense in putting together a production which for realistic sensational far excells anything of the kind seen here. Charming Miss Ella Galvin, in the title role of "Bob" the Outcast, is peculiarly fitted for the part both as to stature and cleverness. She is ably assisted by a company which includes Jas. Grady, J. H. Miller, Jas. A. Harris, Johnny Galvin, Irene Drew, Lillie Steele, Loncile Norman and little Tootsie, a child actress, and others of equal merit. The play is one suited to all classes, and one of heart interest to the final curtain.

Commencing Thursday, May 23, there will be a change in the policy of the New Plainfield theatre when a season of moving pictures and illustrated songs will be inaugurated. The performance will be given every day and will be continuous, starting at 1 p. m. each day, continuing until 5.30 p. m. and from 7 until 10.30 p. m. The Archie L. Shepard Moving Picture Co. will offer an entirely new bill of large proportions as sweeping as it is varying in a wealth of magnificent subjects of equal merit. Pictures of great dramatic worth, splendidly acted by an imposing cast of merit, wherein expressive action of clear intent will interest, while climaxes that are perfectly graded will hold the audience spell-bound. The comedy pictures are those only that are new, original and real laugh producers and are advertisements alternating with subjects that touch and hold the interest of all whether in travel, the drama, the history, daily events, sports or in the realism of science, literature and art. There will be a change of pictures and songs every Monday and Thursday.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Fresh eggs, butter, milk and cream can always be had at the Brokaw creamery on East Front street. Prices are reasonable.

A. H. Enander, the sanitary plumber of Watchung avenue, is always prepared to do work promptly and at reasonable prices.

If you order your coal from Boice, Runyon & Co., of Park avenue, you will get the kind that burns clean and gives the most heat. Prices are always the lowest.

When you want your household goods moved or any carting done, give the work to John Winzenreid, the reliable trucker of Lee place, and it will be attended to promptly.

"The White Store," A. E. Force & Co., proprietors, want you to know that the best dry goods, men's furnishings, laces and embroideries, rugs and household goods are to be found at this modern store. A well-equipped millinery department is an attraction not to be overlooked.

AGE OF THE EARTH.

Radium's Part in Solving an Important Controversy.

"The discovery of radium has gone a long way toward solving an important controversy between mathematicians and geologists," said Sir Robert Ball at the Bishopgate institute not long ago in London. The controversy referred to concerned the time required for peopling the earth, and it appears that radium has come to the relife of the geologists and given them the victory. Sir Robert explaining the controversy, dealt with figures of bewildering magnitude.

Lord Kelvin had calculated that not more than 20,000,000 years ago the earth's usrface was so hot that water could not rest on it, and the oceans were vapors. He based his calculations on what was then known concerning the internal heat of the cooled rocks of the earth's crust.

"The geologists," said Sir Robert Ball, "complained that they could not make their discoveries and deductions accord with that miserable allowance of time. But the mathematicians, going over their calculations again, would not give them a week longer."

It seems that geologists wanted a modest 800,000,000 years, and the discrepancy of 78,000,000 years was disconcerting, for it looked as if science was contradicting herself. The geologists knew they must be about right, and the mathematicians knew that figures could not lie.

"The Hon. Mr. Strutt, son of Lord Rayleigh," said Sir Robert, "has shown that in the rocks in the crust of the earth there is a considerable quantity of radium which is forever pouring out heat at a great rate.

"This being the case, the date at which the earth rst became cool enough for life must have been far more remote than 20,000,000 years ago. It must have been sufficiently remote to give the geologists all the 800,000,000 years they demanded to account for the phenomena they had found."

AN ORDINANCE

For the Assessment of Taxes For the Year 1907.

Section 1. That pursuant to the statutes and ordinances and resolutions in such cases made and provided, there shall be assessed and raised by tax for the year nineteen hundred and seven, for the general purposes of said City, exclusive of School, Library, Poor, Fire and State and County Taxes, the sum of Sixty-one Thousand and Ninety Dollars ($61,090), (this sum including the sum of Thirty-five Thousand Dollars ($35,000) to be raised by general tax for street improvements), for the expense for said year for lighting the public streets and places in said city, as ascertained and determined by resolution of the Common Council and certified to the Assessors of said City, the sum of Fourteen Thousand Dollars ($14,000); for the principal of such sewer bonds (except obligations payable out of assessments and temporary obligations) as may mature during the ensuing fiscal year, under and by virtue of the Act of the Legislature, entitled "An act to provide for drainage and sewerage in cities of this state," approved April 7, 1890, and the several amendments thereof and supplements thereto, and proceedings had and taken thereunder in said City, the sum of Four Thousand Dollars ($4,000); for interest on the obligations of the City issued under said last mentioned Acts, the sum of Nine Thousand Dollars ($9,000); for the support of the City Poor, the sum of Six Thousand Seven Hundred Dollars ($6,700), (included in the last named sum is the sum of One Thousand Dollars for the purpose of supporting and maintaining such indigent patients as may be sent to Muhlenberg Hospital by order of the City Physician, Overseer of the Poor, or other proper authority of the City, pursuant to Chapter LXXVI, P. L. 1886, payable December 31, 1907, pursuant to contract between the Muhlenberg Hospital and the City); for the maintenance of the Public Library and Reading Room, the sum of Seven Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($7,500); for the maintenance of a Fire Department, to be under the control and government of said City, the sum of Twenty-nine Thousand Dollars ($29,000); for interest of School Bonds authorized under City Ordinance to fall due during the said year, the sum of Five Thousand Four Hundred and Forty Dollars ($5,440); for principal falling due May 2d, 1907, of bond issued for purchase of land for garbage disposal purposes under Chapter XL of the laws of 1895 and supplement thereto, Seven Hundred Dollars ($700); and in addition to the foregoing, a license fee of Two Dollars ($2.00) to be paid by the owner of every dog within the City of Plainfield.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The opening tea, marking the commencement of social activities at the Plainfield Golf Club will be held Saturday afternoon and a fine musical programme will be rendered by the Neapolitan Hungarian Orchestra, of New York.

The scheme of Leighton Calkins in changing the greens at the Plainfield Country Club from the level to the irregular, is meeting with the approbation of the players. It will make the course much more difficult and raise the scores.

June 15 will be a gala day at the Plainfield Country Club, when the open invitation tournament for all players in the Metropolitan Golf Association will be held. Six handsome prizes will be offered and this should attract an unusually strong field.

The Plainfield Country Club will make arrangements this season, as before, to have stages in operation between the trolley and the clubhouse on special days, when extra big events are scheduled.

Morris J. Dumont, one of the best golf players at the Plainfield Country Club, will undoubtedly be a member of the club team this season.

The backward spring has had its effect on golf players. As yet but few have become enthused enough to play a fast game. The weather has also had its effect in keeping many away from the links.

Being chairman of the Golf committee at the Plainfield Country Club, J. Whitney Baker, intends to spend much time on the links this season. While at Princeton he has always retained his interest in the game.

There is unusual interest this season among the older golf players, so much so that at the Plainfield Country Club there has been a division of classes. Those with handicaps of fifteen or over have been put in Class B, while those with handicaps of fourteen or under are in Class A. The new arrangement is giving much satisfaction.

Dinner-dances will be a strong attraction at the Plainfield Country Club during June and July.

DIAMOND DUST.

The Elizabeth fans are wailing because Dave Driscoll, manager of the county seat Lackawanna League team, does not play at home. They claim that they haven't had a look at the aggregation yet.

The Cincinnati National League team will play Burke's 'Port Stars on Sunday on the Star grounds, and McGraw's Giants will be the attraction at the 'Port on Sunday, May 26. During June the New York Americans, Detroit and Chicago will appear as opponents to the Stars.

It is puzzling to the fans just why Manager Burnham of the Newark Eastern League club, is permitting the Elizabethport Stars to play the National and American League clubs there. It is a dollar to a penny that the foxy Newark manager has something up his sleeve and that it is nothing less than an effort to put the Elizabeth Athletic League club out of business. When this has been accomplished, Burnham will probably turn his attention to Manager Burke.

The hospital list of the New York Americans is increasing rapidly and it is nearly time for Clark Griffith to send out his woeful tales of hard luck. The pitching staff has always been weak and not equal to those of the other clubs.

"Lefty" Davis, the former Plainfield and Plains pitcher, is doing good work for the Newark Atlantic League club. Must have secured some elixir of life.

Westfield will play at Dover on Saturday and it is hoped that it will make a better showing than in the opening contest against Irvington.

"Doc" Scanlon, who was slated to pitch for Westfield on Saturday, did not fare any better than his substitute, "Red" Waller. Both suffered a bad defeat.

Local fans will have their first taste of real baseball on Saturday when the Y. M. C. A. and Bound Brook teams will clash at Crescent Oval. Betting favors the local team. Minford will do the slab work and "Ted" Overton will be at the receiving end.

Clinton Avenue will make a big effort to win Saturday's opening game from Scotch Plains. The locals are in fine condition for a victory.

and was entirely satisfied with what he saw, while the best test offered by the concrete method was of only two or three years' duration and was not sufficient. He declared that the pavement at Easton, which had been in service fifteen years, showed no appreciable signs of wear.

The ordinance was finally adopted on first and second readings, and ordered advertised, President Daniel alone voting against it. According to the ordinance the pavement must be completed by November 30 next. The brick is to have a concrete foundation and a sand cushion. The work is to be given out by contract to the lowest bidder.

Gives $50,000 Each and Houses to Grandchildren and $2,500 to Home for Friendless.

The estate of Theodore B. Starr, the jeweller, who died at the home of E. S. Hyatt, of East Ninth street, on May 7 last, whose will was offered for probate in the Surrogate's Court, New York, yesterday, foots up $200,000.

To his granddaughter, Caroline Margaret Starr, daughter of Louis Morris Starr, the testator gives "his county home at Ridgefield, Conn., together with all its contents, furniture, pictures, etc., and the lands surrounding and adjacent thereto." To this young woman is also given $50,000 in cash, to be paid to her when she attains the age of twenty-eight years.

To Theodore Donald Starr, his grandson, a son of Howard White Starr, Mr. Starr bequeathes his property at Hulett's Landing, Lake George, with all its contents and appurtenances. To the young man is given also $50,000 in cash, the principal to be paid to him when he reaches the age of twenty-eight years.

To five nieces is given $2,500 each, and among other bequests to friends and relatives is one of $15,000 to William H. Jennings, of South Orange. To the Home for the Friendless is given $2,500 by Mr. Starr in memory of his mother, Harriet H. Starr. All the residuary estate is divided by Mr. Starr between his two sons, Louis Morris and Howard White Starr, who are also named as executors.

Rakes Corey Minister.

New York, May 16.—The Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton, pastor of the Clinton Avenue Congregational church and moderator of the council which received the Rev. Dr. John Lewis Clark, the clergyman who married William Ellis Corey and Mabelle Gilman, yesterday issued a statement in which he denied that the Congregational church approves of Dr. Clark's action or indorses his views on the marriage of divorced persons. "I am sorrow that the necessity arose for me to speak," Dr. Boynton said last night, "but under the circumstances I believe it my duty to let the world know that Congregationalism does not share the views expressed by Dr. Clark. Of course there is no law within the Congregational church on the subject, but every minister is expected to conduct himself according to decency and Christianity. "I suppose Dr. Clark did not realize what he was doing when he performed the ceremony. He must have been dazzled by the glitter and gleam of the surroundings. I do not believe that there is another minister in any Protestant denomination who would have done such a thing.

and he did not think that it was necessary to bring such a trivial matter before the committee. Motions were made by Mr. Buxton and Councilman Frank Randolph to have the petition referred to the committee, but they were lost. The motion to grant the petition was carried.

Mr. Tyler presented the resolution adopted by the Board of Health at its last meeting in reference to overhead high tension electric wires, and it was filed.

On motion of Mr. Montgomery, $1,200 was appropriated for the use of the shade tree commission. At the request of Mr. Buxton, Mayor Fisk explained that as the commission took office after the tax budget was made up it could not petition for money to carry on its work, and at the suggestion of Corporation Counsel Marsh, the appropriation was made through the light and tree committee.

Mr. Buxton offered a resolution, which was adopted, authorizing the city clerk to collect all insurance policies on city property and secure an expiration record book.

Mr. Montgomery stated that it was expected that the Public Service Corporation, as requested, would have its corrected bills in previous to the meeting so that they could be paid, but nothing had been heard from the company as yet.

On motion of Mr. Tolles the ordinance providing for the issuance of $68,000 worth of sewer bonds was adopted on third reading, and on motion of Mr. Buxton the city clerk was instructed to notify the Public Service Corporation that it is the intention of the city to lay brick pavement on Front street, Watchung avenue and Fourth street, so that if it has in mind the making of any repairs it can do so before the pavement is laid.

Mr. Ginna introduced the ordinance relating to the extension of the sanitary sewer system through certain streets in the East End and Southwestern part of the city, as already published and it was adopted on first and second readings and ordered advertised.

CIRCULAR LETTER BRINGS VISIONS OF WEALTH.

But Plainfield Martins Find After Investigation There's "Nothing To It."

Visions of being heirs to a large estate left by Jesse Martin, of Goshen, N. Y., have had a number of Plainfield persons of that name in a state of great expectancy during the past few days. Being desirous of reaching all the heirs to the estate, the executors sent out circular letters to hundreds of persons of the name of Martin, including those in this city.

Among those who received such letters is Edward Martin, the colored porter at the North Avenue station. He at once employed S. S. Swackhamer, the lawyer, to represent him in getting his share of the estate. Mr. Swackhamer communicated with the executors at Goshen and was told in reply that so far as they knew there were no colored people in that branch of the Martin family and therefore the Plainfielder could not hope to benefit by the death of Jesse Martin.

So far as can be learned there are no Martins in Plainfield or this vicinity who will come in for a share of the estate. The circular letter gave sufficient particulars to help the recipient to trace his lineage and requested attendance at the court house in Goshen on a certain date, when the will is to be read.

Woes of Tiny Hunchback.

New York, May 16.—Even the hardened habitues of the Children's Court softened perceptibly yesterday morning as a tiny hunchback boy, scarcely larger than a child of four, made his way into the court and to the dais in front of Judge McKean. Even Judge McKean started in amazement as the charge brought by the father was read. It was to the effect that the boy, Patrick Bergen, of No. 1,870 Third avenue, nine and one-half years old, was incorrigible, ran away, remaining away several nights in succession, and that he could not be controlled. In his testimony, Patrick, in a pitifully weak little voice, told of being cruelly beaten by his father, so that to escape these attacks he ran away from home. His stepmother, he testified, loved him and tried to shield him from the treatment, but was powerless to do much to protect him. He asked that he might go away somewhere where he could be free from his father's abuse. The boy was remanded until Friday.

His Smoke Cost $28,000.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 16.—A story has reached here of the accidental burning of a stage coach in Death Valley, near Ash Meadows, Sunday, in which $15,000, in bank bills, and $13,000 in registered mail were consumed. The stage is supposed to have caught fire from a cigar which the driver, "Ed" Love, was smoking. Love reached Greenwater Sunday night and related the story. The money was consigned to the Greenwater Bank.

Our AWNING AND WINDOW SHADE DEPT. is working night and day to keep up with the orders. Let us give you an estimate on work of this kind.

SURE HIS ARAB WILL WIN CROSS-CONTINENT RIDE.

Homer Davenport Welcomes Competition in Proposed Endurance Contest for Horses.

In a statement issued yesterday regarding his proposed horseback ride across the Continent, Homer Davenport, the cartoonist, said:

"When I proposed having an Arabian stallion ridden from Oregon to New Jersey my idea was to determine whether the Arab horse had the same powers of endurance in America that I have seen it exhibit in the desert.

"A ride against time or for a record is a dull affair, and I was more than pleased when others asked the privilege of entering a horse against mine. I am well aware of the splendid qualities of the Kentucky saddle horse, and so knew when Gen. Castleman picked the mare Virginia to represent the Kentucky Saddle Horse Breeders' Association, with the entire State to chose from, he picked a worthy one.

"Some one suggested that a mule also compete. It would lend interest, maybe comedy, to the ride but in any event I am willing. The more starters the better I will be pleased. I am not worried over the finish, though I am open to conviction.

"My only regret is that my own horse in Oregon has been laid up with a bad cough which has left a slight trace of heaves. But he is ready to start with as many breeds of horses and mules as the Government chooses to ship across the continent, and when the contest is once begun we shall know which has the staying qualities and which can average the most miles in the least time."

Ladies' Auxiliary to Assist.

The Ladies' Auxiliary to Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, met last night in Columbus Hall to discuss matters relative to the approaching carnival. Over one hundred women volunteered to assist at the carnival and much enthusiasm was shown. There was a discussion of details. The women will be in charge of the auxiliary tent, which will contain many booths and forms of amusement. As soon as the subcommittees are formed the names of the women who will assist will be made known.

Hypnotist at the Casino.

Pauline, the hypnotist, transferred his wonder-working from the theatre to the Casino last night. He entertained a large audience with feats of mind-reading and hypnotic control. As at the theatre some of his subjects furnished much amusement. Pauline will be at the Casino again tonight.

Death Train Starts East.

San Francisco, May 16.—The special train containing the bodies of twenty-eight of the Shriners and others killed in the Southern Pacific wreck at Honda last Saturday, reached Oakland pier at one o'clock yesterday morning. After a change of engines it immediately left for Buffalo and Pennsylvania points over the Southern and Union Pacific, St. Paul, Wabash and Pennsylvania lines. It will run on special time and reach Buffalo Sunday noon, where a committee of Reading (Pa.) Shriners of Rajah Temple will meet the funeral party. The train left Sara Barbara with nineteen bodies and took on nine more on reaching San Luis Opispo.

Dr. Norman H. Probasco, of East Front street, is planning a trip to Europe and will sail in the early part of June.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The baseball team was out for practice last night. Another practice will be held tomorrow night. Manager Frentz has not announced his lineup as yet for the opening league game Saturday, but it will practically be the same lineup as Saturday last, when the locals defeated the Watsessing team.

Moffett's photograph studio, which has been located on Park avenue, near the trolley, for the past two years, has been removed to Plainfield.

The work of repairing Lee's Hotel, which was damaged by fire several weeks ago, is completed. A. L. Frentz had the contract.

Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., will hold its regular meeting tonight in the library rooms.

The holes in the roadbed on Park avenue have been filled in with crushed stone.

To Get After Bettors.

New York, May 16.—In training his legal batteries on the men who are accustomed to make wagers on the horse races, instead of concentrating his fire on the bookmaker or the poolroom man, District Attorney Jerome has found a new plan which, he believes, will be eminently efficacious in abolishing the poolroom evil in this city. More than this should his course be followed by the District Attorneys of the counties in which the race tracks are located it will make betting so hazardous to the bettor as well as the bookmaker that wagers at the track will become a thing of the past. To effect this end Mr. Jerome, who will have the full co-operation of Corporation Counsel Ellison, invokes a section of the Penal Code to which little attention has been given. It provides that any man who wins or loses $25 in twenty-four hours may be punished by a fine of not less than five times the amount won or lost, to be recovered by civil action, and the fine to go to the benefit of the poor.

State Y. M. C. A. Meet.

A number of Plainfield Y. M. C. A. athletes will enter the State outdoor meet of the association, which will be held at Trenton, June 22. The events will include 100-yard dash; 120-yard hurdle; 440-yard dash; mile run; 12-pound shot; running broad jump; running high jump; mile relay race, four men.

LEAGUE UMPIRES.

They Are James Brown and "Rue" Dalley—Plans for Opening.

The umpires who are to act in the Inter-City Amateur Baseball League were announced by Secretary Listman today. They are Rutherford Dalley and James Brown. The latter acted in the city league, and is an umpire of experience and efficiency. Dalley is a western player, and has umpired before without raising undue ructions. The umps will receive $1.50 a game.

It is not known which of the two will officiate at the opening game between the Y. M. C. A. and Bound Brook nines at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon. The assignment will be made just before the game.

Plans for the opening will be completed to the last detail tonight. Mayor Fisk will be on hand, and Judge Runyon will let Manager Listman know this afternoon whether or not he can help the mayor start amateur ball again on its conquering way in Plainfield. There will be no band at the grounds. Manager Listman raked the town with a fine-toothed comb, but he couldn't find even a trombone blower with time enough to play Saturday.

Go-Between's Good Running.

New York, May 16.—Some compensation was given loyal racegoers at Belmont Park yesterday, where the sport was handicapped by misty atmosphere and intermittent drizzles, when Go-Between, victor in last year's Suburban, and Tokalon, winner of the Brooklyn Handicap, had a public trial for next Monday's Gravesend classic, and the horse beat the mare, as usually is the case. It was by no means a hollow conquest, however, for the game son of Meddler was doing his best all through the stretch, and Tokalon's backers thing a slight "bobble" at the last furlong pole, caused by Alpenmarchen swerving out from the rail, gave that mare a little the worst of it. Then again, Mountain had the mount on Go-Between as against Booker on Tokalon, and this counted for something in the exciting few moments which elapsed while the issue hung in the balance. E. R. Thomas and his friends were loyal to Go-Between, and the commissions executed on their behalf were large.

Kuroki in New York.

New York, May 16.—General Baron Tamemoto Kuroki, official representative of Japan at the Jamestown Exposition and one of the heroes of the Russo-Japanese war, landed on these shores yesterday afternoon and captured the city. Before even going to his hotel he called on the Mayor in the City Hall within twenty minutes after his arrival, and then, with his customary celerity, received delegations of admiring countrymen. He said in coming across the Hudson River on a ferryboat that he liked Americans because they were "hustlers," and thereupon he set a pace which was lively enough to meet the standards of the most energetic. He was the principal guest last night at a reception given at Sherry's by the Japanese colony and today he expects to visit the United States Military Academy at West Point.

Parson to Jail For Cruelty.

Athens, Ga., May 16.—Because he whipped his twelve-year-old son for playing baseball on Sunday, J. H. Arnold, a travelling revivalist, was yesterday sentenced to six months on the rock pile by Mayor Dorsey. Physicians testified that the boy was lashed until his flesh was reduced to a pulp and that he might not recover. Arnold said he believed it was a deadly sin to play baseball on Sunday and he had ordered his son not to play, but the latter disobeyed and was even capain of the team.

Drowned in Whiskey Mash.

Detroit, Mich., May 16.—William Kenney, an employee of the Walker Distillery, at Walkerville, Ont., just across the Detroit River from this city, was drowned yesterday in a vat of whiskey mash. In some unknown manner Kenney fell into the fermenting vat and his body was discovered there at midnight last night.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning May 19.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Little faults that spoil our lives. —Song of Solomon, ii, 15. (Union meeting with the Juniors.)

The Song of Solomon is a poem of human love in which the mutual love between Christ and the church is allegorically set forth. The topical reference suggested above consists of but a single verse—"Take us the foxes, the little foxes that spoil the vines, for our vines are tender" or are blossoming. The exact meaning of this verse is very much disputed. The most probable explanation is that it is the call of the maiden to her lover to go with her into the vineyard and catch the little foxes that destroyed the blossoms of the vines. The foxes, or little jackals, were very numerous in Palestine. They were seldom more than fifteen inches in height, yet they could do considerable damage, for, because of their size, they could enter the vineyards when the larger ones could not, and the destruction of the blossoms was as serious as the destruction of the clusters of grapes later on. The little foxes, therefore, needed to be carefully guarded against lest unawares they should do great damage to the vineyards.

The little foxes in all times have been used figuratively to illustrate little sins. They may seem so small as to do no harm, and yet how many lives, freed from great evils, are spoiled by petty little sins and faults. The little foxes did not cut down the vines or tear away the branches and yet they spoiled the fruit, which was the important thing after all. So our little sins and faults may not wreck our entire lives, they may not reduce us to poverty and rags or cause us to be cast out of the church of Christ on earth, and yet they do spoil our lives to a great extent and greatly cripple our influence for good. How many things that may seem trifling and unimportant impair our usefulness in life. Personal conceit, the tendency to exaggeration, little "white lies," an unpleasant disposition, an air of superiority—these and many other like attributes may make our entire lives barren and unfruitful. In a life where luscious fruit should abound the blossoms have been eaten away and the life is spoiled.

Little sins and little defects, if fostered, grow to larger sins and larger faults. Little foxes grow into great ones. So a little sin, if tolerated, may grow into a large one. Moderate drinking, which to some may seem so harmless, may lead to a drunkard's grave. Self conceit may develop into the worst form of hypocrisy. Little deceits and white lies may lead one to become a great liar. The only thing, therefore, to do is to destroy them while they are little. The cub may be easily handled; the grown animal becomes the master. "Take the foxes, the little foxes, that spoil the vine."

And how little sins multiply! Great sins are rare. In a lifetime we may not commit one of the greater sins, and yet the little ones may so multiply that ruin and misery may come to us. Let us be constantly on our guard and save ourselves from all sins, little or great.

BIBLE READINGS.

Prov. xii, 24-28; xxi, 8-10; xxx, 7-9; II Cor. xiii, 10-14; Rom. i, 30-32; Jas. iii, 1-10; iv, 13-17; I Pet. ii, 1-5; Heb. ii, 3.

"This One Thing I Do."

"This one thing I do" is a good motto for every Christian Endeavor society. This leads me to ask:

What is your purpose? Have you made any plans for the future, or are you living upon past achievements? God forbid that we should lean on the past and be content to drift through a winter of privilege and opportunity in the Master's work. Are you satisfied that Christian Endeavor in your church should stand wholly for the prayer meeting, or are you reaching out to something more? What shall it be? Local conditions must govern in a large measure. It may be the Lord has a place for you in connection with the midweek meeting, the Sunday evening service, the Sunday school, a service in some institution, visitation, evangelistic effort, sending a representative to the foreign field and keeping him there. I cannot answer the question for your society; you alone must determine the sphere to which God calls you. But of this one thing I am firmly convinced—to wit, that unless we bend our energies toward the accomplishment of some definite line of effort we lose one of the essentials which make for fervor and enthusiasm in the work of our society. God has a mission for you. Find it! Then address yourself to the appointed task. Let's stop talking about former achievements and get to work. Let's plan. Let's plan large things. And then—this one thing I do. And in the accomplishment will come power and spiritual enthusiasm. —H. A. Kinports, President New York State Union.

Fame For Dr. Clark's Sermon.

Dr. Clark has been requested for a copy of the sermon on John Calvin, which he preached in the Cathedral of St. Pierre in Geneva at the time of the world's Christian Endeavor convention, to be placed in the Calvinistic museum of Geneva and another copy to be put in the cornerstone of Calvin's monument to be erected in 1909 and also to have the original manuscript of the sermon placed in the Calvinistic museum. Christian Endeavor is thus greatly honored, and one of the utterances of the world's convention of 1906 will be preserved for centuries. Pastor Choisy, an eminent scholar and biographer of Calvin, whom our readers will remember as vice president of the Geneva convention, has secured these documents for the purposes indicated.

May 19: "Stewards of Grace." "As each has received a gift, ministering it as good stewards of the manifold grace of God."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Rom. xii, 6-8; II Cor. vi, 1-10.

In nothing is the teaching of Jesus plainer than in the matter of the use of the advantages which each of us possesses in some things. We are not equally nor similarly endowed. No two of us are exactly alike in nature or ability. We cannot do things in the same way even if we desire so to do. To complete the community and develop society every man with his peculiar equipment is needed. This is particularly true of the church of Jesus Christ. This truth was clearly seen by Paul, and his favorite way of declaring it was under the figure of the human body. All parts of the body are needed for its well being. None is superfluous. So among men. All are needed to contribute their particular effects to reach the final result.

This teaching is not peculiar to the New Testament. It is clearly set forth in the teaching of the great prophets of the Old Testament. So convinced are they that all must work together that they see nothing but disaster to the nation unless each man stands in his proper place and does his appointed work. Jesus simply carries out and makes plain these declarations of the old time messengers of Jehovah. The thought may be summarized like this:

Jehovah is maker of all things and gives to each man what he sees is best. Every one is accountable to Jehovah for the use of the things put in his possession. The land is Jehovah's, and every family is to have a proper share in its division. The poor are to have special consideration, for they are under Jehovah's particular protection. They are not to be oppressed, but to be given the chance in the fields and olive yards and vineyards to glean what they may need. The rich are to use their wealth not for their own selfish advantage, but to act as stewards and rulers under Jehovah to benefit all the people by administering the riches for God. The man who has wisdom is to use it for the benefit of his fellows. So all parts of the community are to be united in the bonds of brotherly consideration and mutual helpfulness.

It is not to be expected that in modern society the land schemes of ancient Israel can be successfully carried out, nor can all the minute provisions of their laws be put in operation now under the altered conditions of society. But the great eternal principles of right and justice and mercy have not changed, and our task is the same that Israel had to find the feasible way to embody in law and action these same unchangeable and fundamental principles.

In some respects great advancement has been made in recent times in these matters. The relief of the poor and diseased and unfortunate is now given attention as never before in the world's history. The duties of morality are recognized as never before. But where is the place that business is conducted on principles of righteousness, freedom and brotherly kindness?

The duty of every Christian man is clear. We are to use all our ability and possessions as God's stewards. We shall account to Him for the manner in which we gather as well as for the way in which we distribute our gain. Not enough to give liberally when the contribution box comes around. Every day in home and in business we are doing for God. All our work is for Him. Take heed to yourself that you do your work in such manner as He will approve, for you shall surely give an account to Him of your stewardship.

Better use your stewardship here in such way as to gain friends who will stick to you hereafter.

Showing His Love.

By my very sorrows I know that God loves me; I see not whether with approbation, but with an infinite kindness, an infinite pity. What I need is but to feel it, to pray for that feeling, to meditate upon all that should bring that feeling into my heart, to take refuge amid my sorrow in the assurance that God loves me; that He does not willingly grieve or afflict me; that He chastens me for my profiting; that He could not show so much love for me by leaving me unchastened, untried, undisciplined.—Orville Dewey, D. D.

Keep the Sentinel on Guard.

Those who indulge fretful feelings, either of anxiety or irritation, know not what an opening they thereby give to the devil in their hearts. Peace is the sentinel of the soul, which keeps the heart and the mind of the Christian through Christ Jesus. So long as this sentinel is on guard and doing his duty the castle of the soul is kept secure. But let the sentinel be removed and the way is opened immediately for an attack upon the fortress.—Bishop Huntington.

The Mystery of Carneycroft

BY JOSEPH BROWN COOKE. COPYRIGHT 1907 BY STORY-PRESS CORPORATION

CHAPTER I.

A Mystery Is Started.

That old John Carney dropped dead of apoplexy in his saddle while violently cursing the stable-boy for a trivial delay in bringing his horse to the door was not regarded by the community as any special cause for regret, but that the boy, who was kicked in the head by the plunging and terrified beast, died a few hours later, was looked upon in the village as little short of murder.

Young John was in Honolulu, presumably keeping a watchful eye on the family's sugar interests, but probably devoting himself to sociological studies and charitable work among the natives. Florence, the only daughter, was the mistress of her father's house, her mother having died in the early nineties. She was the only member of the family at home when the accident occurred.

She telegraphed immediately to me, I being the youngest and practically the only active partner in the firm of lawyers that managed her father's affairs. I responded at once in person and was at Carney-Croft by noon the next day.

I was astonished, not only by the extent of the place, but at its beauty and almost baronial magnificence. There were acres upon acres of velvety lawns intersected by miles upon miles of well-bedded roads and bridle paths, while the timber had been weeded out by a master hand so craftily that one was given the impression of an old and long inhabited estate rather than of a park hewn out of a virgin forest within a single decade.

The house was even more of a surprise than the grounds, for although it was, in some respects, scarcely finished, it was already moss-grown and ivy-clad and suggested a Jacobean structure of very respectable antiquity.

Miss Carney was watching for me at the entrance, and came running down the steps of the broad terraces surrounding the mansion, to greet me the more cordially as I clambered out of the old-fashioned trap that had brought me from the station.

"You were good to come so soon," she said gratefully, extending her hand with winning grace. "I wanted to send a carriage to meet you, but all the stablemen have left since the little boy died. I have only the house-servants that we brought from town."

I made the best answer I could under the circumstances for, while her recent bereavement was more than enough to excite my deepest sympathy, the fact that her father had been our best client for many years gave to my presence at the house a mercenary taint not exactly consistent with noblesse oblige.

Luncheon was served as soon as I returned from my room, and I was seated opposite my hostess at a small round table. I had never seen Miss Carney before and it cannot be denied that the vision of my sweet-faced companion, partly concealed by the palms between us, was in no way unappreciated by my masculine eye. After luncheon we sat in the library and talked over briefly the events of the past few days.

I had learned from my garrulous driver in the forenoon the circumstances that accompanied Mr. Carney's tragic death, and my interview with his daughter had more to do with the arrangement of her future affairs than with any references to the past.

"I wish Jack were here," she said suddenly; "it is so hard to be alone."

"I cabled him as soon as I received your telegram," I replied, "and he can get a ship to-morrow or the day after. But must you be alone? Have you no friends here in the village?"

"Not one," she returned. "You know we live very much by ourselves out here and—and—the village people have never taken kindly to father—or—or—to me, for that matter. In fact," she continued, smiling wanly through her tears, "they think us worldly and purse-proud and—and 'stuck up,' if I must say it. And yet daddie tried to do so much for them, and laid out work that wasn't at all necessary and all that—just to give them employment. Why! last winter, when some of the people were nearly starving, he had ice cut in the river and piled up on the banks for weeks at a time to keep the men busy, but as soon as the warm weather came they forgot it all and even said he was a fool who threw away his money. No," she added slowly, "I haven't a friend in the village to whom I could turn."

"But there must be someone," I insisted; "somebody who could come here and stay with you until your brother returns."

She rested her elbow on the chair arm for a moment and pressed her hand against her temple. Then, raising her head quickly with a satisfied air, she exclaimed:

"Why, yes! I could send for Annie Weston, and she would be delighted to come! It would do the poor girl good, too," she added thoughtfully; "she has been ill so long and is just beginning to improve. That's exactly what I'll do!"

"Who is Annie Weston?" I asked with interest, for the idea seemed to have brought new hope into her eyes, and I was glad that it had come from my suggestion.

"Oh!" she was a school friend of mine and is the sweetest girl that ever lived," returned Miss Carney. "Her father and mother are both dead and she is quite alone in the world, so she can come just as well as not, and I know she will love to be here as much as I will to have her. I should have asked her to visit me long ago, but she was taken ill soon after we left school and is only beginning to get back her strength."

The day after the funeral I returned to the city and, rather than subject Miss Carney to any inconvenience by accepting her offer of the only carriage at her disposal since the stable hands had deserted the place, I rode to the railway station in the trap that had brought me down.

"So you're old Carney's lawyer, be ye?" inquired my driver, with rustic familiarity, crossing his legs and leaning one arm carelessly over the back of the seat in front of me.

I admitted that I was, with monosyllabic brevity, and we proceeded in silence for a few rods.

"Pshaw!" he returned, in evident disgust, "that's all ye'd say if he was worth ten thousand dollars!"

Another short period of silence elapsed, and then he began abruptly: "Powerful strange to me haow a drinkin' man like him could accomilate so much money an' hold to it so tight."

"I never knew that Mr. Carney was a drinking man," I replied, with a sudden interest in my companion's gossip. "I mean," I continued, "I never knew that he drank to excess."

"Drink!" exclaimed the man. "Why! they wa'n't nuthin' he wouldn't do! Drink, smoke, gamble an' cuss, besides throwin' away his money on most wasteful things! When Sam Hoskins' boy was workin' up to the place he seen him an' another feller frum the city, a friend o' his'n, a-playin' poker one day, an' one or t'other of 'em, I fergit which 'twas, lost seven dollars an' 80 cents! An' as to drinkin', while he done most of it in the haouse, he wa'n't above takin' a glass at Hoskins' hotel every naow an' then, too!

"I rec'lec', one day, a-settin' on the stoop at Hoskins' waitin' fur a shaower to blow over, when I was a-gittin' in my hay, an' ole Carney drove up in his buggy. We was all a-talkin' abaout Freemasons, an' as he climbs aout I sez to him, sez I, 'Be you a Freemason?' sez I. 'No,' sez he, 'I hain't,' sez he, 'but I'm a free thinker,' sez he, 'an' I think I'll take a drink,' sez he. 'Ye won't be a free drinker,' sez Hoskins, under his breath and winkin' at me, as he follers him into the barroom to wait on him, an' sure enough, he tole us afterwards, he charged him reg'lar city prices, an' the ole man never knew the difference."

"By the way, what made the men leave the place so suddenly?" I asked, cautiously, thinking to divert the fellow's gabble into more profitable channels. "You know they have all gone, except the servants that were brought from the city."

"Wal," said the man with deliberation, slapping the horse's back with the reins and wriggling uncomfortably in his seat, "they left fur two reasons, I guess. In fac', the folks 'baout here ain't over anxious to work up to the place anyway, 'though they was allus willin' to be obligin' an' accommodate ole Carney when they wa'n't nuthin' else fur 'em to do; but naow, it's comin' on hayin' time, an' I s'pose they'd ruther work at hayin'."

The man had turned his back on me completely and was urging the horse forward at a rapid gait.

"Very generous of them to accommodate him when they had nothing else to do, and then leave his daughter as they have, just because haying time is here," I commented. "But you said there were two reasons. What is the other?"

We rode on in silence for quite a distance until, at length, the fellow responded in a gruff voice and without turning his head.

"Wal! it may be true an' it may be not! All I know is what I heerd up to Hoskins'. I don't take no great notice o' ghosts an' sich. But them men knows what they seen the night after the Widder Bruce's boy died, an' I know that ye couldn't git one of 'em on the place again with a team o' steers! No, sir! knowin' as they do, the character o' man that ole Carney was, an' the way he as good as murdered that poor lad with his cussin' an' quarrelin' an' fallin' off his hoss, 'stead o' goin' to the stable an' saddlin' up himself, like any man would that wa'n't too lazy to take off his coat when he et, it ain't no wonder they believed what the Widder Bruce tole 'em more'n a year ago!"

"What did the Widom Bruce tell them?" I asked anxiously, fearing that his communicative mood would leave him.

"Wal, she come over here from England with her boy 'baout the time ole Carney was a-buildin' his haouse, an' she sez, as soon as she seen it, that it was goin' to be jest like them places over in England where them dooks an' sech fellers live, that sooner or later someone 'ud die a vi'lent death there, an' then the place 'ud be ha'nted same's the dooks' places mostly is.

"When her boy went up to the place to work, 'baout a year ago, she took on terrible, an' allus said no good 'ud come of it, an' that somethin' would surely happen. But they wa'n't no other way out of it, fur they didn't have a bite to eat nor a rag to wear, an' if the boy hadn't decided to accommodate Carney's folks I guess they'd ha' starved.

"Ye see," he continued, in explanation, "old Carney wouldn't never give a cent to anybody that was able to earn it, an' when the parson come to him an' ast him to help the widder, all he sez was, 'Send that big hulk of a boy up here an' I'll give him a job an' good pay so'z he kin support his mother like a man,' he sez, 'but I won't give her a damn penny so long as he's able to work an' earn it,' he sez."

"But you haven't explained yet why the men left," I persisted, for we were nearing our destination and my time was growing short.

"I'm a-gittin' to that," he replied. "Ye see, Carney was such a mean, stingy cuss that, what with his drinkin' an' gamblin' an' other vices, the widder allus claimed he'd never rest easy in his grave. When the boy was killed she carried on like a crazy woman, an' swore the place would allus be ha'nted 'less the estate did the honest thing by her an' give her enough to pay her fur the loss of her son. That night, more fur fun than anything else, a lot of the fellers that was a settin' daown to Hoskins' went up by the haouse 'raound midnight, but they didn't see nuthin'. The nex' night—that's after you come—they all went up again, an' I tell you they all come back a-flyin'."

"What did they see?" I asked, with renewed interest, as a sudden idea entered my head.

"That's more'n I know," said the man, turning and looking me squarely in the face, "but they said they seen two ghosts, one fur the old man, an' one fur the boy, aout under the trees in front of the haouse right where ole Carney fell off his hoss! Every one of 'em seen the same thing, an' when nine men agrees to a dot on a thing of this kind it's pretty hard, even fur a church member, not to believe it.

"They'll all tell ye the same story. The boy was a-swayin' back an' forth, jest as he did after the hoss kicked him, an' the ole man kind o' hoverin' an' bendin' over him like he was in the saddle a-cussin' him again. The figgers was perfectly plain, all in white, but them that stayed to look long enough said ye could see the trunks o' the trees an' other things right through 'em, too."

"I suppose they all came back to Hoskins' after seeing this wonderful sight," I remarked.

The attention of renters of Safe Deposit boxes in New York is called to the fact that New York State levies a tax on the contents of the Safe Deposit box of a non-resident at his or her death, which tax may, of course, be avoided by keeping one's valuables in the same state in which one resides. It is, therefore, greatly to the advantage of a resident of New Jersey to keep personal property in a Safe Deposit box within the state.

DIAMOND DUST.

Manager Vail Explains.

Editor the Daily Press:—Holy Cross Club was somewhat amused, but not surprised at the account which appeared in your columns of a game said to bewon by Cedarcroft from our team. As a matter of fact we played Cedarcroft a week or so ago and trounced them soundly, despite the advantage of age and size, which was all on the side of Cedarcroft. Evidently the defeat rankled in the breast of our opponents. On Tuesday they appeared evidently determined to win by hook or crook. Among their number they attempted to play Mahaffey, who we understand is a semi-professional player. We very promptly protested and refused to play on any such basis. Holy Cross is strictly an amateur team and is willing and glad to play a gentlemanly game with all comers among amateurs. We refuse, however, to be a party to the unsportsmanlike spirit that anything is permissible so long as one wins. On general principles we avoid disputes and squabbles. No "mucker" baseball for us. A record of twenty-two consecutive victories and no defeats, last year, and a straight string of a half dozen victories and no defeats this year, is an answer to Cedarcroft's "nine to nothing."

Very sincerely yours,
Ira Vail, manager
Holy Cross Baseball Club.

Ruef Pleads Guilty.

San Francisco, May 16.—The city was startled yesterday by the news that Abraham Ruef had pleaded guilty before Judge Dunne to the charge of extortion contained in the indictment recently found against him by the Grand Jury in connection with the French restaurant cases. After weeks of delay a jury had finally been obtained and the actual trial of the indicted "boss" was to have begun yesterday. He made an impressive address to the judge, stated that he had commenced his career in politics with high ideals for himself and for the city, but that conditions had broken him down and he now desired only an opportunity to make reparation and restore his character before the world. When he concluded his address he fell back into his chair almost fainting and the tears coursed down his cheeks. His health, he said, could not endure the strain of the trial which he was facing, and the torture was beyond the endurance of those who were nearest and dearest to him. Before Ruef arose his attorneys, Henry Ach, Samuel Shortridge and Frank Murphy, one by one, arose and stated that, owing to a grave difference of opinion with their client, each of them must withdraw from the case.

Gets 99 Year Sentence.

St. Louis, Mo., May 16.—John Stapp, fifteen years old, who pleaded guilty yesterday in the Juvenile Court to the killing of Mrs. Otillia Kraus, was sentenced to serve ninety-nine years in the penitentiary. He received the sentence with the same unconcern he showed when told of his victim's death. It was brought out that young Stapp had planned to rob Mrs. Kraus, and on May 1 went to her husband's grocery and called for ten cents' worth of cheese. As the woman handed him the purchase he stabbed her, but was arrested the following morning. Mrs. Kraus the next day.

New York, May 16.—All except the most intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. John Love Elliott has obtained a divorce from her husband, and not half a dozen persons know that she received $1,000,000 in alimony and for the support of her daughter Ethel. Mrs. Elliott obtained the divorce on statutory grounds in Westchester county with so much despatch and secrecy that no whisper of it escaped the inmost circle of her friends. The co-respondent was not named in the papers on which the decree was granted. The entire proceeding was disposed of at a single evening's hearing.

Re-elected President of Exempts.

D. W. Littell, of this city, was re-elected president of the New Jersey State Firemen's Exempt Association, at its annual meeting in Union Hill, yesterday. He received practically a unanimous vote. V. W. Nash, Sr., was also re-elected a member of the executive committee.

In the Borough Court.

Edward Kiely, who was arrested at Somerset street and Greenbrook road, Monday night on a charge of disorderly conduct was arraigned before Recorder Dolliver in the Borough court, last night. He was given his choice of $10 or twenty days. He paid the fine.

CONGRATULATE BISHOP ON 50TH ANNIVERSARY

DR. JONES AND DR. BAKER AMONG DEPUTIES CHOSEN FOR CONVENTION.

The election of deputies to the general convention, the adoption of the resolution on heresy introduced by the Rev. Henry Bogert, a resolution congratulating Bishop Scarborough on the 50th anniversary of his ordination as deacon, and a resolution thanking Governor Stokes and the Legislature for heeding the protests of the clergy against the Bishops' bills, was the principal business of the closing day's session of the 123d annual convention of the Episcopal diocese of New Jersey in St. Michael's church, Trenton, yesterday.

The election of deputies to the general convention in Richmond next October was of the greatest interest. Four clergymen and four laymen were elected. There were 16 candidates desirous of the honor of attending. The general convention marks the 30th anniversary of the founding of the Episcopal church in this country. Those elected were the Rev. A. B. Baker, D. D., of Princeton; the Rev. W. Strother Jones, D. D., Trenton, the Rev. R. Bowden Shepherd, Burlington; the Rev. John Stoddard, Newark; John N. Carpender, William D'Olier, Harry Humphries and Charles Ewan Merritt.

The resolution introduced by the Rev. Mr. Bogert, Tuesday, on the heresy question, was adopted without a dissenting vote.

It was decided to continue the committee on diocesan appointment, and on resolution it was decided to appoint a committee comprising the Rev. A. B. Baker, the Rev. Mr. Glazebrook and the Rev. Robert Mac Kellar and Harry Humphries to act upon missionary appointments. A general collection will be taken in all the Episcopal churches of this country Sunday, June 16, for missionary work. I tis proposed to raise a fund of $1,500,000.

This standing committee of the diocese was appointed by Bishop Scarborough, as follows: The Rev. A. B. Baker, Princeton; the Rev. J. F. Olmstead, Burlington; the Rev. H. M. P. Pierce, South Amboy; the Rev. C. M. Perkins, Vineland; J. B. Woodward, Bordentown; Charles Townsend, Elizabeth; D. G. Laird, Beverly; Francis Collingswood, Elizabeth.

Bishop Lines, of Newark, was given a seat of honor beside the presiding officer. By a change in the by-laws members of the Episcopal churches will have to be habitual attendants at church to take part in elections, instead of attending six months prior to election, as heretofore. This change meets with general approval.

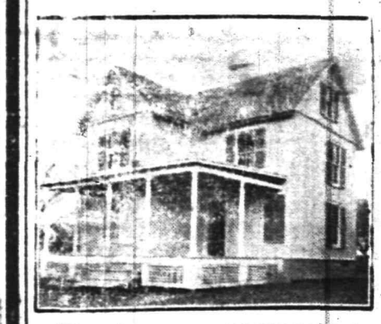
NEW SYSTEM OF BUILDING.

A MARVEL IN THE SCIENCE OF CONSTRUCTION.

A method far in advance of anything formerly used in the preparation of the different parts of a house when erected in sections, making it easy to construct any design of a house, and a very superior house for all seasons, countries and climates at a great reduction in cost.



These houses are constructed principally from the best kiln dried lumber in a factory entirely protected from weather, where best high speed woodworking machines are used for cutting and shaping of every piece, reducing cost for mechanics fully one-half, making a superior house when finished.

Houses or other structures erected under this system make the warmest houses in winter, and the strongest building that can be constructed with any material, the fiercest storm fails to cause any vibration whatever. They are adapted to receive all improvements, plumbing, lighting, heating, etc., when desired.

A new method of lath and plaster is used for interior finish, making a perfect indestructable wall superior to anything ever before used.

"PEASANT PRINCE" A HIT

MacClymont - Clinton Comic Opera Enthusiastically Received.

CAST WELL BALANCED

Judge Runyon Again Carries Off Individual Honors With Clever Singing and Comedy Work.

"The Peasant Prince," a comic opera in three acts by William E. MacClymont and Charles A. Clinton, had its premiere at the New Plainfield theatre, last night, and it was the general opinion that it was a success. As to be expected in a first production there were some rough spots, but altogether the opera was pleasing to a large audience that filled the playhouse and it showed its appreciation by frequent and hearty applause. Mr. MacClymont, who directed the production, came in for a large share of it, while the principals were handsomely remembered with flowers by their many admirers.

No doubt many changes will suggest themselves to Mr. MacClymont and Mr. Clinton, among them the first act, which is altogether too long. It required an hour and a half for the first act, while the other two were considerably shorter.

All of the principals scored, while the chorus was especially good for such a large one comprising home talent. The opera is one of constant action and there was a noticeable absence of the amateur in this respect. William N. Runyon, who took the part of the Prince's attendant, clearly carried off the honors of the evening. He was naturally funny and he introduced many little specialties which convulsed the audience with laughter continually. The part was especially well adapted to him and it gave him abundant opportunity to display his exceptional talent in light opera.

Mrs. Theodore Mantz, as "Lizette," the adopted daughter of Gustav Renee, (a miller), interpreted the part in a way that pleased everyone. She has a fine voice, which was heard to the best advantage, while her acting was without fault. She was given a great ovation throughout the production. Perhaps, second in importance were the parts taken by Mrs. William J. Counihan, as "Nanie," and Miss Margaret L. Yaeger, as "Marie." They displayed unusual talent in the singing and speaking parts.

As the exiled prince, William J. Tallamy, was exceptionally good. He makes a capital "lover," and showed decided improvements over previous appearances. Joseph C. Martin, as "Pere Morelle," the town watch, was fine. He was very funny in the speaking parts and his singing was greatly enjoyed. Other parts which were cleverly interpreted were those of W. R. Hill as "Gustav Renee," the miller; George O. Stevens, as "Pierre La Farge," a peasant; Lewis J. Geary, as "The King," and Bradley Hall as captain of the guards.

The plot is not altogether different from those of other productions of a similar character, but is cleverly put together by Mr. Clinton. Prince Henri, heir-apparent to the throne of Agraria, has been banished for supposed conspiracy against his father, King Joseph, and in company with Peter, his servent, both disguised as peasants, comes to the village of Cerealis, where he promptly falls in love with Lizette, a peasant girl, whose foster father, Gustav Renee, has betrothed her to a boorish peasant, Pierre La Farge. Lizette returns Henri's affection, and the knowledge of this leads Pierre to cause Henri's arrest, falsely charging that Gustav's life is threatened.

The king, having discovered that no conspiracy existed, sends his yeomen to Cerealis with a proclamation, describing the prince's apparel and ordering his return. Peter, whose clothes were better than those of the prince, had changed garments with him, and therefore, when the proclamation is read, Peter is acclaimed by everybody as the real prince. He finally surrenders to the inevitable, accepts the homage of the populace, releases the prince from prison and orders the marriage of Henri and Lizette.

The prince having supposedly been found, the king is apprised of the fact, comes to Cerealis, only to discover the truth. Peter explains everything. Henri is sent for and to the surprise of everyone, asks permission to remain a peasant in order that he may marry Lizette. She, however, is unexpectedly discovered to be the daughter of the king's cousin, Duke Richard, and the marriage is forthwith sanctioned by the king who abdicates in Henri's favor.

Among the musical numbers that scored were "I Am Simply It," by Judge Runyon; "Love Is It and That Is All," by Mrs. Mantz; duetts by Mrs.

SNEAK-THIEF GETS MONEY AND JEWELRY

HOME OF CHARLES VAN WINKLE, WEST FOURTH STREET, VISITED BY CROOKS.

Several pieces of jewelry and $50 in money were stolen from the home of Charles Van Winkle, 301 West Fourth street, last night by a sneak-thief. The theft was discovered when Mr. and Mrs. Van Winkle returned from the theatre. The thief is supposed to have worked between 8 and 10 o'clock.

Entrance was gained through an open kitchen window. The jewelry missing includes a boy's ring, a watch chain and fob, gold breastpin and an open-faced gold watch. A room rented by Mrs. Kirch, a nurse, was ransacked, but Mrs. Kirch is out of town and the extent of her loss is unknown.

Several rooms containing valuables were not visited by the thief. It is supposed he was frightened away by the return of Dr. C. W. Leonard, who rooms in the house, and who came in about 10 o'clock.

VANDERBILT HORSES TO BE AT LOCAL SHOW

COMMITTEE RECEIVES WORD THAT HIS STRING WILL BE ENTERED.

Reginald C. Vanderbilt will be among the most important exhibitors at the fourth annual horse show of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, June 6, 7 and 8, when he will bring to Plainfield his large string of blue ribbon winners which have appeared at Madison Square Garden, Philadelphia, Atlantic City and other big shows throughout the country. The horse show committee received definite information yesterday regarding Mr. Vanderbilt's appearance here and the announcement has caused the greatest interest.

Among the other large exhibitors, who will compete for honors, is J. W. Harriman, whose horses were the admiration of all at last year's show. He will bring his large string of prize-winners here as before. There is also considerable interest in the fact that William G. Rockefeller will be one of the judges. The entry list will be larger and better than ever. Copies of the prize list can be obtained at the Casino.

MUCH INTEREST SHOWN IN PARK CLUB DRAMATICS.

Splendid Casts Announced for the Three Sketches to Be Given Next Week.

Among the local amateur productions this season, unusual interest is being shown in the forthcoming presentation of three sketches by the Park Comedy Club at the Park Club on Thursday evening, May 23. Several new faces will be seen and a number of familiar ones.

Of the newcomers to local dramatic circles those who will fill the important roles are Mrs. Henry E. Butler, and Alson M. Abbott. Mrs. Butler is a young woman of charming personality on the stage as well as off and in the rehearsals has proved herself capable of filling the two important roles which have been assigned to her.

Mr. Abbott as a ruddy-headed yeggman, is a great success, but it is hardly likely that even his most intimate friends will recognize him in the part he takes in Richard Harding Davis' farce. Judging by the sale of seats, which began last night, the amateur theatricals at the Park Club are decidely popular with the public as well as with the club members. The casts for the three sketches follow:

"Miss Civilization:" Alice Gardner, the railway magnate's daughter, Mrs. Henry Emerson Butler; "Uncle" Joseph Hatch," alias "Gentleman Joe," Henry Crofut White; Harry Hayes, alias "Grand Stand" Harry, Spencer Fullerton Weaver; "Brick" Meakin, alias "Reddy, the Kid," Alson M. Abbott; The Chief of Police, Harry L. McGee.

"Our Aunt from California:" Felicia Needey, Miss Mabel Van Deventer; Rosalie Needey, Miss Helen Phillips; The Maid, Mrs. William R. Faber; Sally Needey, Mrs. Spencer Fullerton Weaver; Mrs. Merry Muntoburn, from California, Mrs. Henry Crofut White; Miss Wilcoxngibs, their dressmaker, Miss Katheryn Ball; Mrs. Needey, Miss Elsie de R. Suffern.

"The Old Master:" Simpkin, Sir Rupert's man, Alston M. Abbott; Sir Rupert Vanstone, Clifford W. McGee; Sophie Penrose, Matthew's daughter, Mrs. Henry Emerson Butler; Penelope Gamble, Matthew's sister-in-law and housekeeper, Mrs. Henry Crofut White; Matthew Penrose, a village schoolmaster, Henry Crofut White.

DEATH OF JOHN T. BAKER

A PROMINENT CITIZEN

John T. Baker, of Stelle avenue, one of the best known citizens of Plainfield, died suddenly at 6 o'clock last night in the Presbyterian Hospital, New York, following an operation. He had been in the hospital but two days and his death was a great shock to all, relatives and friends not realizing that his condition was so critical.

Mr. Baker was born at Watertown, N. Y., October 12, 1842, and he spent his boyhood days there. When a young man he went to New York, and at the outbreak of the Civil War enlisted with the Seventh Regiment and was with it during its entire time of service. He always retained a deep interest in the regimental association, as well as in Lafayette Post, G. A. R., of New York, of which he was a member.

Upon his return from the war he engaged in business as a marine underwriter, forming a partnership under the firm name of Carpinter & Baker, with offices at 76 Beaver street, New York. This was one of the oldest firms in the city, and rated high in the business circles of New York.

Mr. Baker and his family moved to this city in 1890 and continued their residence here ever since. Mr. Baker was alwaysidentified with the best interests of the city. He served as a member of the Common Council in 1898-1899, being president of that body during the latter year. The successful methods employed in his business proved of great value in serving the city, and he was a faithful and efficient member of the council. He was a member of many important committees during the first year.

As a member of the Plainfield Country Club the Park Club and the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Mr. Baker was active. During the palmy days of the old Union County Country Club, he was one of the leading members. He was always interested in anything that would tend to the advancement of Plainfield and its institutions.

Mr. Baker is survived by awife, one daughter, Mrs. Howard W. Beebe, a son, J. Whitney Baker and a brother, Frederick Baker, of New York. The funeral, which will be private, will be conducted by Rev. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, and the interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

ENDEAVORERS CELEBRATE.

Warren Chapelites Mark Nineteenth Anniversary of Organization.

The Christian Endeavor Society of Warren chapel held a sociable to mark its nineteenth anniversary last night. There was a large attendance, and the affair was much enjoyed. Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, wife of the pastor, was in general charge. Charles Windham, the retiring president of the society, presided.

The programme included violin and piano solos by John Spear and William Spear, vocal solo by Miss Nora Schenck, and shadow pictures in which the chief parts were taken by Augustus Windham, William Kenney, Charles Wakefield, Helen Vandenberg, Mina Bock, Charles Bryan, and Theodore Martin. Refreshments were served.

Harry Pugh Drops Dead.

Harry Pugh, who for the past thirteen years has worked at the coal storage plant for the Lehigh Valley Railroad at South Plainfield, dropped dead on the street, in Perth Amboy, Wednesday afternoon, while on his way home from work. Death was due to heart failure. Mr. Pugh lived with George Smith, at South Plainfield, for many years, his native home being at Pittston, Pa. He had complained of poor health for sometime. His body was removed yesterday to Pittston, where the funeral services will be held on Sunday. Several fellow-workmen will attend the services.

Spoke to Pupils.

Rev. George A. Warner, of Holy Cross church, addressed the High School and grammar pupils at the North Plainfield school house this morning. He spoke on oratory. He urged the pupils to practice public speaking and to cultivate frankness.

The Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church will give an entertainment in the lecture room of the church on Tuesday night, May 28, consisting of dialogues, recitations, etc.

ASKS QUICKEST TRIAL

Acknowledges He is "Handy With Checks"—Says He Passes Them Out Whenever He is Hard Up.

Charles E. Fay, the man arrested for passing a check on which he had forged the name of William M. Stillman, pleaded guilty before Judge Runyon, sitting as a State magistrate, in the city court this morning. He was held for the grand jury.

Fay made a clean breast of it to Chief Kiely yesterday afternoon, and said he was anxious to get his pleading and sentence over as soon as possible. When Judge Runyon told him he could demand an immediate examination or waive the hearing, this morning, he said:

"I want to do what is the quickest thing to end the case. If I can do it, I'd like to plead guilty here, and save the expense of sending witnesses to Elizabeth. Maybe that would bring my sentence around sooner, and I am anxious to have it all over and done with, with as little trouble, expense and delay as possible."

The limitations of Judge Runyon's jurisdiction interfered with his desire for a short-cut, and he had to be content with a simple plea of guilty and a waiver of examination.

Fay told Chief Kiely yesterday that he had served a term in prison in Massachusetts. He said forgery was an old trick of his. Whenever he was short of money, he said, he put out a check. He claims to be an ex-municipal clerk of Boston.

P.S.C. MOTORMAN SAVES PASSENGER'S FROM DEATH

Quick wit and steady nerve on the part of Peter Weissman, the motorman, save the passengers on a P. S. C. car in Rahway, yesterday afternoon, from a railroad horror. V. L. Frazee, of the New Madison, and A. J. Squier, of Stebbins place, were among the passengers.

The car, running up Irving street, toward Westfield Junction, was halted at the Pennsylvania railroad crossing by closed gates. An eastbound freight car rolled by, and the gates went up. The car was just pushing its nose across the furthermost track when the gate fell before it. Weissman looked up the track and was startled to see a fast express bearing down on the car. It was only about a block away. The passengers saw the approaching train, and a panic seized them. They had leaped to their feet to jump, as best they could, from the car, when Weissman acted.

Holding his nerve, he reversed the car and ran it back. The conveyance backed to the other side of the tracks just in time. Its nose was only about ten feet from the express when the train whizzed by.

William G. Peckham, of Westfield, the lawyer, was a passenger on the car, and he started the collection of a purse for the motorman. Weissmann received a substantial sum from the grateful passengers.

Hypnotized Man On Exhibition.

Pauline, the hypnotist, whose clever work in this city has attracted much attention, displayed further hypnotic power this afternoon, when at 2 o'clock he put a young man to sleep in the show window of I. H. Boehm's dry goods store on West Front street. The young man will be allowed to remain asleep until 8 o'clock tonight when he will be carried to the New Plainfield theatre and there awakened before the audience.

Eye Destroyed By Stone.

The throwing of a stone through a passenger coach window of a Philadelphia & Reading train at Cranford on Wednesday, will cost a Philadelphia merchant the loss of the sight of one eye. While the train was passing through Cranford a rock was thrown at one of the coaches. It crashed through the window next to the Philadelphian, hitting the eye and gouging it from the socket. Detective Gaffney and his men are now at work on the case. A boy is believed to have thrown the stone.

Wiedoson Will Recover.

Julius Wiedoson, the Alton farmer, who tried to commit suicide recently, continues to improve at the hospital and it is said that he will recover. He maintains a despondent and melancholy disposition.

FIGHTING SEWER PLANT

Residents of Greenbrook and Dunellen Aroused Over Borough Plans.

HOT PROTEST MEETING

North Plainfield's chance of using the Abram F. Vail farm, at the foot of Madison avenue, Dunellen, in the Greenbrook section, for a sewer plant, if the borough desides to build an independent plant, is growing very slender. The people of Greenbrook are strongly protesting against it and residents of Dunellen are backing them, and—more effective than any amount of protest—Mr. Vail has declared that he will not keep the contract of sale. He told a friend yesterday that he would stand a suit and its consequences before letting the place go for sewer purposes.

The borough has secured options on several farms in the Greenbrook neighborhood, to have some place ready for the plant if it is decided to care for the sewage independently of Plainfield. Until Greenbrook and Dunellen began to blaze with indignation the fact that North Plainfield had taken such a step was not made public. Speaking of the Vail place, John P. Emmons, the real estate agent who acted in the pending deal, said this morning that he never knew,, and did not now know, the borough as a party in the transaction. He said he had secured the option for an "individual," for whom he had purchased four or five other tracts within a year. So far as he knew, he said, the borough didn't have any interest in the Vail farm. He said he doubted that the borough had asked the township for permission to install a filtration plant. He would not give the name of the principal for whom he had acted.

Mr. Vail attended a protest meeting of the Greenbrook Improvement Association this week, and he assured the forty or more indignant property owners present that had he known he was contracting to sell his farm for sewer beds he would never have considered the deal. He said John P. Emmons, the real estate agent, had been negotiating for the farm for some time, and that the contract was not signed until May 3. He did not receive any hint of the use for which the property was designed until the borough's application for permission to install a filtration plant was presented to the Township Committee last week.

The final title to the farm, under the contract, was not to be passed until August 1. Mr. Vail declared yesterday that it would never be passed under the agreement. He took the contract to Craig A. Marsh for an opinion as to its validity. Mr. Marsh advised him that the contract would hold. Mr. Vail had hoped that something in the nature of the deal would have rendered the instrument valueless, but he was unmoved from his determination to block the sale by Mr. Marsh's opinion. He declared he would never allow the property to be used for sewer purposes, and was prepared to shoulder any loss that might be visited on him in a suit.

The Greenbrook Improvement Association is working actively to cover every possible means of stopping the sewer plans. Protests will be drawn up at a meeting to be held next Tuesday night, and filed with the Township Committee and with the Borough Council. Steps are being taken to employ counsel, and the campaign against the installation of a sewer plant anywhere in the township will be fought to the last ditch.

Dunellen property owners, who have been put out at the mention of sewer farm ever since the Plainfield plant was installed, are vigorously seconding the efforts of the Greenbrook residents. A mass meeting of protestants will be held at the borough hall on Friday night of next week. This meeting will be held under the auspices of the Dunellen Board of Health, which considered the threatened sewer farm at a meeting Wednesday night. The Board believes the plant would work harm to the section of the borough in the neighborhood of it. The Greenbrook residents say the winds prevailing in their section come from the direction of the Vail farm, and they regard the proposed plant as synonymous with intolerable odors and generally unhealthful conditions. The Dunellen people say enough w inds come their way from the direction of the farm to make it quite as undesirable for them as for Greenbrook folk. The Dunellenites say they have odors enough in one corner of the borough from the city farm, and they don't purpose to sit still and allow another part of their town to be made smelly.

COLORED CROOK BROUGHT HERE FROM BROOKLYN

ALLEGED PAL OF HARRY WILSON EXTRADITED.

William King, colored, the alleged pal of Harry Wilson, colored, caught after an attempt to rob August W. Kleinecke's house on June 25, 1906, who was captured in Brooklyn April 15, was brought here from Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, by Chief Kiely and Policeman F. S. McCarthy.

King was held for a month by the Brooklyn police, to give the local authorities time to secure extradition papers. Chief Kiely went to Albany Monday night. He got the papers without trouble.

King is under indictment and will be taken to Elizabeth this afternoon, in company with Fay, the forger. He has a long record of crimes. He and Wilson are said to be part of a gang of clever New York crooks who planned to "tear" Netherwood "wide open." The plans were broken up by the activity of Chief Kiely and his sleuths.

PLAINFIELDER SUES FOR $10,000 DAMAGES

JAMES CONWAY CLAIMS THAT AMOUNT FROM P.S.C. FOR INJURIES.

The damage suit of James T. Conway, of this city, against the Public Service Corporation, was called this morning in the Circuit Court, Elizabeth, before Judge Vail. The action is for $10,000. J. A. Kiernan represents the plaintiff, and A. A. Clark the defendant company.

The action is brought for injuries alleged to have been received by the plaintiff on the night of October 29, last, when he with Stephen A. Fitzgerald and two women, Miss Nehr and Miss Smith, were returning home from Scotch Plains in a trolley car. Conway claimed that he was sitting inside the car with the two women and desiring to expectorate, stepped out on the rear platform where Fitzgerald was standing. Just then the car turned a sharp curve and claims that both he and Fitzgerald wre thrown off and injured, and that they laid in the roadway until the next car came along and picked them up.

According to the evidence Conway was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital, where he remained for ten days. Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, a witness for the plaintiff testified that he attended Conway while in the hospital and since then. He found him suffering from a scalp wound, a dislocation of the right ankle and a bloody tumor at the base of the spine, and said that he now has traumatic neurasthenia. The case will probably be on all day. Mr. Fitzgerald, who also claims that he was injured at the same time Conway was, has brought suit for $10,000 and his case will be heard after the present one is finished.

Tableaux at Vincent Chapel.

Under the auspices of the Young Ladies' Missionary Society of the First M. E. church, "The Reveries of a Bachelor," by Ike Marvel, was given in tableaux in Vincent chapel, last night. It was so successful that it was decided to repeat it tonight, when the Epworth League will entertain the other chapters of the city and borough. Miss Mildred Vail read the story and the parts were taken as follows: "Bachelor," Arthur Humble; country girl, Miss Matilda Coddington; golf girl, Miss Helen M. Whitney; coquette, Miss Matthews; society girl, Miss Antoinette Aalholm; hunting girl, Miss Hope Miller; widow, Miss Kathryn Slade; college girl, Miss Alice Martin. During the evening Mrs. Joseph Dunham sang several solos. Miss Hall presided at the piano and Mr. Bender assisted in arranging the tableaux and lights. After the entertainment there was a sale of cake, lemonade and candy and the rest of the evening was spent in a social way.

Want to Build a Reservoir.

One of the important matters to be decided by the Union County Board of Freeholders at its next meeting is that in reference to a petition received from residents of Rahway to raise the bridge over the Rahway river so that a reservoir may be built. The committee has already inspected the grounds and considered the petition and will report at the next board meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Ryno Surprised.

Mr. and Mrs. Corra Ryno, of Codington avenue, were given a surprise party at their home, last evening, by a number of their friends. The surprise was complete in every respect. Progressive pinochle and instrumental music furnished the pleasures of the evening. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

PAYNE GIVES HIMSELF UP

Voluntarily Travels from the South to Face Consequences of Shooting.

IS TIRED OF "DODGING"

Friends Inform Him Johnson Is Out of Danger and He Decided to Be Free of Hunted Feeling.

Thaddeus Payne, colored, who shot Lee Johnson, also colored, in a pool-room on East Front street early in March, and escaped without leaving the slightest trace of his whereabouts, surrendered himself to Chief of Police Kiely this morning. He came from the South, where he has been in hiding, yesterday, to place himself in the hands of the authorities.

Payne's action was entirely voluntary. The police had no idea of where he was, and only suspected in a vague and general way, that he might be down South. Payne decided to give himself up, because the feeling that he was being hunted had worn on him until it became intolerable. He decided that he would rather face the consequences of his act than go on, as he told the Chief, "dodging officers."

Through friends in this city, Payne entered into negotiations for his self-surrender with the police early this week. He had kept track of Johnson's condition, and information that the injured man, whose life was in grave danger for a week after the shooting, had recovered and was out of the hospital, decided him to end the "dodging." He was told, through his friends, that his surrender and his willingness to save the county expense of search and trial, would doubtless be considered by the prosecutor and the court, and he made final arrangements to give himself up.

He reached New York yesterday afternoon, and came to this city. He went straight to his wife and spent the night with his family. Keeping an agreement made through friends, he met Chief Kiely at Park avenue and Front street shortly after 8 o'clock this morning, and walked quietly with the head sleuth to the station house.

Payne, of course, would make no statement as to the help he received in escaping. The police have been convinced all along that he received a lot of assistance from friends in this city, but they have no desire to go into that feature of the case. They are satisfied to get Payne. Next to his complete disappearance after the shooting, the thing that most amazed the officers was the number of good things said about Payne by people who know him. Not only did the colored people praise him, but all the whites who knew him, whether at work or in his home life, declared him to be one of the best colored men they ever knew.

Payne will be taken to Elizabeth today by Chief Kiely. He is under indictment.

ERWIN B. LELAND WEDS NEW YORK YOUNG WOMAN.

Marriage Ceremony Quietly Performed in the Metropolis Two Weeks Ago.

Announcement was made today of the marriage of Erwin B. Leland, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Leland, of Sandford avenue, and Miss Ethel S. Cooke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred S. Cooke, of New York, which took place quietly on Saturday, May 4, in New York, in the presence of a few friends. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. McMillan, of New York. For the present the couple will reside with the bride's parents.

Mr. Leland graduated from the Plainfield High School in 1902 standing at the head of his class. The following fall he entered Williams College, where he did especially fine work, particularly in the languages. He won a number of prizes at Williams and stood high as a student. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa fraternity. He was graduated from Williams in the Class '06 and soon afterward took a position in a large mercantile house in New York, where he has been very successful.

His Whiskey Confiscated.

John Williams, a laborer, was arrested last night by Policeman John Kelly, for helpless drunkenness. The cop found two quarts of whiskey in his hip pocket. Sentence was suspended on him in the city court this morning. He wanted the two quarts, but Chief Kiely shooed him away. "Come back for the booze in the fall," said the chief. John's sadness as he left the court was so great as to cast a gloom over the whole court.

NEW PROVIDENCE.

The controversy between the residents of Murray Hill, the Borough Council and the Commonwealth Water and Light Company, of Summit, over water pressure, erecting poles and other details, which has been going on for several months, was settled at Tuesday's meeting of the Borough Council, the residents of the "Hill" having granted permission to the company to erect the dual system of poles. The company agrees to erect a standpipe on the highest point and maintain a constant pressure of water on the higher elevations. The Council presented its olive branch in the form of a check long past due, which had been held up pending a settlement.

The New Providence Choral Society will give its third annual concert in the Methodist church this evening. An elaborate programme has been prepared, and a professional chorus has been engaged to assist the choral society. H. E. Dickinson, of this place, will be the conductor and Miss Florence Schwarzwaelder the accompanist.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The Inter-City Amateur League season opens tomorrow, the local team playing its old rivals, Clinton Avenue, while the Y. M. C. A. team meets Bound Brook at Crescent Oval. The home team should be a fine contestant. The Clinton Avenue team is playing fast ball and the locals have won all its practise games. This gives them confidence that will take a great deal of hard baseball luck to shake. The team is batting well and there is no reason why, with the right kind of encouragement from the fans, that the 'Plains should not have not only a winning team but a money-maker as well. Be sure and attend the game; give what encouragement you can. Game will be called promptly at 3:30.

Manager Frentz will have the local ball team out for final practise tonight. The team is in fine shape and will be able to start the league season tomorrow with as good prospects as any of the teams.

Mrs. Clifford Smith, of Plainfield, has been visiting her mother, Mrs. L. B. Coddington, of Park avenue.

Rev. T. Moore-Smith will lead the weekly prayer and praise meeting tonight at the Baptist church.

WESTFIELD.

Considerable anxiety is felt in Garwood over the future of the C. & C. Electric Works. It has been announced that the works have been sold to the Westinghouse Company, and that the shops will be closed when the work on hand is completed. Should the works close it will be a serious blow to Garwood; as it is one of the largest industries, employing several hundred men.

May devotions are being held at Holy Trinity church each Tuesday and Thursday evening.

George H. Birdsall is seriously ill at his home, on Mountain avenue, with pneumonia.

Union Council Loyal Association held a meeting last night at Arcanum Hall.

Summer Waists Prices Cut.

Several hundred of our handsome high-grade waists for Spring and Summer wear have been assembled in three lots for special selling Saturday at generously cut prices.

These are extremely beautiful and most of them in exclusive models. They are exquisitely trimmed with dainty laces and embroideries, all of the imported kinds and the waists come in all wanted sizes.

Waists that were $3.95 to $4.75 will sell at $2.75
Waist that were $5.00 to $6.50 will sell at $3.50.
Waists that were $7.50 to $9.50 will sell at $5.00.

Misses' Coats.

275 Coats have been taken from our regular stock and marked at greatly reduced prices for Saturday's selling.

These Misses' and Children's Coats are made in the newest and most liked styles. The fabrics are checks, stripes, mixtures, cheviots and covert cloths; sizes run from 4 to 18, and there are three big lots to choose from:

Coats worth $6.50 go for $3.75.
Coats worth $7.98 go for $5.00.
Coats worth $12.50 for $7.50.

There is what we think the greatest collection of Pictures seen in any store in the country. There are pictures for every purpose and a variety of subjects in colors and black and white that is most astonishing. Not only are they subjects of the kinds that find a place in the best furnished homes, but they are in sizes so large that a most remarkable showing can be made with the expenditure of only a few dollars.

Suppose you have a Summer cottage or a boarding-house to furnish. Here are pictures for every room—beautiful landscapes in gilt frames; all sorts of figures; large animal heads in sepia in brown frames; sporting and fruit pictures in black frames; some as large as 26x30—think of it!

These are pictures that readily sell at from $1.50 to $3, yet we give you choice of any of them at the astonishing price of $1

More 39c Hats.

There was a big lot of these Untrimmed Hats and though the selling has been spirited, there will be plenty left for another big day's selling, so if you come tomorrow you will doubtless find a large variety to choose from.

In this lot are plain and fancy braid hats, including maline, chip, nacre, Tuscan, hemp and other effects in this season's most popular shapes and most fashionable colorings as well as black and white.

They are hats that would naturally sell at $1, $1.50, $2, $2.50, but we are offering you your choice while this lot lasts at only, ea. .39

Wreaths—Very popular for trimming, 49c. to $2.95.

BIG CIRCUS COMES TO PLAINFIELD TOMORROW.

For the first time in nearly ten years, Plainfield will be visited tomorrow by one of the largest circuses in the country, the combined Adam Forepaugh-Sells Bros.' shows. The city has been given the "go-by" by all the big tented aggregations recently and the coming of this one has aroused no small degree of interest among the grown folks as well as the small boys and their sisters.

The circus will come to this city from Long Branch, where it is appearing today, and will pitch tents on the Clawson tract at Park avenue and Randolph road, directly opposite Muhlenberg Hospital and adjoining Crescent Oval. A big street parade will be given, commencing at 10 o'clock and from accounts it will be worth travelling miles to see. The show carries 1,000 men, 500 horses, three herds of elephants and an unusually large menagerie.

The aggregation was at New Brunswick yesterday and played to capacity crowds despite downpours of rain afternoon and night. The local weather man is dealing a little better with Plainfielders and forecasts partly cloudy weather but warmer for tomorrow.

ARCH MASONS ELECT.

Jacob Kirkner, of This City, Made Grand High Priest.

The annual session of the Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons, of New Jersey, took place Wednesday in Trenton. The principal business, aside from the presentation of reports, was the election of officers.

These officers were elected: Grand high priest, Jacob Kirkner, Plainfield; deputy grand high priest, James S. Ware, Bridgeton; grand king, Samuel J. Rudderhow, Camden; grand scribe, Daniel L. Campbell, Paterson; grand treasurer, Frederick G. Weiss, Bordentown; G. C., Ranloph L. Ecklen, Newark; G. S. C., L. L. Greer, Passaic; G. P. S., Charles Berg, Orange; G. R. A. C., Abram A. Reger, Somerville; grand trustees, L. L. Greer, Passaic, T. H. R. Redway, Trenton; James Mason, Paterson; P. C. Daniel Demarest, Montclair; grand lecturer, Henry S. Haines, Burlington; G. M. 3 veil, Samuel Bingaman, Plainfield; G. M. 2 veil, Henry Cassell, Atlantic City; G. M. 1 veil, L. D. Sanborn, Newark; grand tyler, Alfred T. Osmond, Trenton; grand chaplain, the Rev. George C. Maddock, Trenton.

Shot Police Chief.

Belleverton, Pa., May 17.—Thomas L. Guess, chief of police, and W. L. Cate, former chief of police, have been at odds since Guess succeeded Cate, last November. The trouble culminated yesterday in a revolver duel between the two men, in which Guess was mortally wounded. Cate then defied arrest and a pitched battle with officers and citizens followed, in which more than one hundred shots were fired. Cate was finally cornered, beaten unconscious, dragged and kicked through the streets and was about to be lynched by an infuriated mob when Sheriff Keeler arrived from Uniontown with a posse on a special train and rescued the prisoner.

Spooner's Successor.

Madison, Wis., May 17.—Isaac Stephenson, wealthiest man in Wisconsin, will fill out the unexpired term in the United States Senate left without an incumbent by the resignation of John C. Spooner. On the first ballot in the Republican caucus last night—the eighty-fifth since the struggle began—the seventy-eight year old son of the Badger State received enough votes to insure his election when the formal balloting is done today.

Mantz and Mr. Tallamy; a quartette number, Mrs. Counihan, Miss Yaeger, Mrs. Mantz and Judge Runyon; "I Am the Chief of the Police," Joseph C. Martin; trio, Mr. Hill, Mr. Stevens and Mrs. Mantz; a quartette, Messrs. Runyon, Tallamy, Stevens and Hill.

Another very effective number was a Japanese song and dance by Mrs. Counihan, Mr. Hill and Mr. Stevens, assisted by a number of women in Japanese costume. The drill by the guards under the leadership of Bradley Hall as captain, provoked great applause.

Other hits were made by Judge Runyon in his song, "I Am a Prince Because the People Tell Me So," and again a coon song, concluding with a cake walk by himself and Miss Yaeger. Mr. Geary made a fine king and his deep bass voice won his audience completely. Although he had but a small part in the final act, it was most effective. Another catchy song by Judge Runyon and the chorus, was "All Have the Grip Cachoo," and in conclusion there was a delightful duett by Mrs. Mantz and Mr. Tallamy. The song and dance of the breakfast food guards was original and funny and they were encored several times.

The opera was well staged, the costumes were pleasing and there was not a hitch in the production from beginning to end.

The chorus comprised the following:

The Misses Agnes Bailey, Annetta Beeching, Margaret Cramer, Florence Conroy, Mary E. Collier, Mary Chapman, Theresa Kahrman, Carrie Demler, Jennie De Mott, Ida Englehardt, Bertha Englehardt, Marion Englehardt, Helen Farland, Sue Farland, Blanche Gahagan, Hazel Grant, Madge Lewis, Edith Lacey, Emily Lacey, Harriet Randall, Anna Randall, C. Sorenson, Etta Trembley, Marie Viebrock, Marian Winant, Florence Yaeger, Emma Yaeger, and Mrs. Samuel Cunningham, Mrs. H. S. Guinn, Mrs. Bradley S. Hall, Mrs. Fred Letson and Mrs. C. S. Langdon, Harry Blimm, Harold A. Brownell, J. D. Grant, W. Barlow, Elmer D. Cutting, Paul R. Collier, Thomas De Meza, Ed. Daniels, Wm. Fisher, H. S. Guinn, E. L. Griggs, W. Glenny, W. B. Gilbert, Erwin Leland, Alfred Lacey, Willard M. Miner, Vincent Miner, R. H. McCready, Theodore Mantz, Cecil Pittis, I. S. Thomas, John Voorhees Todd, Arthur Wills, Harry Yaeger, Albert Yaeger.

SENATOR COLBY NIPS HIS BOOM FOR GOVERNOR.

Writes that His Wife's Health and His Duties as Senator Prevent His Running.

Former Assemblyman Henry Merelli, of Paterson, has received from Hot Springs, Va., a letter from Senator Everett Colby, of Essex county, declining to enter the Gubernatorial race. In his letter Mr. Colby says:

"I received your telegram notifying me of the action of the executive committee of the Passaic County Representative Government League indorsing my name as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor.

"That I very sincerely appreciate this honor it is quite needless for me to say, for you know how highly I have prized the loyal support your league has given me from the outset of our fight against those whose love of power and money have almost sapped the life from the Republican party in our State.

"It is, therefore, with no little regret that, both for personal and public reasons, I cannot accept the support your committee so willingly and kindly offers. Even were I convinced of the wisdom of having a new candidate for the nomination, it would be quite out of the question for me to make the fight, as my wife's ill health would prevent my giving the time during the summer months to the work such a candidacy would entail.

"Then, too, I have been elected by the people of Essex county to the State Senate for the term of three years, and it is not in line with my views of public duty and responsibility to seek higher honors before that term has expired, unless it is very evident that by so doing greater service might be rendered, which, in my opinion, is not the case in this instance."

NEW ROAD PLANNED FROM NEW BRUNSWICK TO HERE.

Middlesex Freeholders Go Over the Proposed Route to View Surroundings.

The Middlesex County Board of Freeholders may open a new county road from Highland Park to Plainfield. This road would run through the Watson Whittlesey property in Highland Park and would make a shorter route to Plainfield, via South Plainfield, and might open the way for a trolley line hereafter, according to the plans made public some few weeks ago.

The members of the Freeholders went over the proposed route yesterday, accompanied by Mr. Whittlesey, Lucius Janeway and a representative of John Waldron Co., of New Brunswick. They made the trip in two automobiles furnished by Mr. Whittlesey.

The matter was not decided yesterday, the Freeholders simply being informed of the surroundings so that they will be in a position to intelligently take up the matter later.

—Fresh peas are in season and Neuman Brothers have some of the finest quality. They are only one special in the big vegetable assortment for tomorrow.

The meeting of the Holy Cross Club set for tomorrow night has been postponed until a later date.

The Mathushek & Son Piano

Do Years of Experience in Piano Manufacturing Mean Anything to You?

The piano that you buy must appear to your ear by the perfection of its tone, to your eye by the beauty of its casing, and to your practical sense by its reputation for durability. The thousands of users are proof positive that the Mathushek & Son possesses all these; that in the purchase of this beautiful piano you will secure an instrument that has passed through all the experimental stages; a piano that is the result of years of study and experience, produced by creators and masters of the art of piano making. A piano known to the public for over half a century.

Before you purchase see these beautiful instruments. You will be convinced of their beauty. We ask no fancy price for reputation and expensive outlays, but just a fair price for an artistic piano.

We Will Be Pleased to Send You a Beautiful Catalog Upon Request.

Hearse Horses Run Away.

New York, May 17.—Passengers on trolley cars crossing the Williamsburg Bridge last night saw a team of horses attached to a hearse run from the Brooklyn side across the north roadway almost to the centre of the span. The team, in charge of Charles Hoffman, twenty-eight years old, of No. 615 Sixth street, Manhattan, was returning from Evergreen cemetery and just as it reached the bridge roadway it became frightened by a passing trolley car. Hoffman was thrown from his seat and stunned.

Wealthy Widow Weds Poor Man.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 17.—Mrs. Benjamin Douglass, widow of the founder of the R. G. Dun Commercial Agency, who, before her marriage to the wealthy financier was employed as his servant, was married Wednesday to William Pester, a gardener employed on an estate adjoining her own.

—Mrs. John Sinclair, who conducted a large private boarding inn at Bernardsville for many years, has moved to the borough and taken up her residence on Grove street, adjoining St. Peter's Lutheran church. She is to have the house placed in first-class shape and will conduct a high-class boarding place.

Havoc Follows a Blast.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 17.—Three men killed outright, three others fatally and two others badly injured in the crashing of a Southern Railway freight engine and eleven cars through a bridge into Chattanooga Creek and the destruction of three residences and a pile driver, nearby were the results of a premature explosion yesterday afternoon of a blast at the foot of Lookout Mountain, on the Stevenson extension. The bridge was crushed by tons of rock just as a Southern Railway freight train was going on the bridge. Other pieces of rock, hurled more than fourhundred yards, crashed through the pilot of a piledriver of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railroad, killing Clinton Shafer and William Hyder, and damaging residences on Lookout Mountain. Four Greeks who were working on the new line some distance from the blast, were struck by flying rock. Two of them are in a serious condition.

Corey Minister Apologizes.

New York, May 17.—Begging forgiveness of his congregation for wedding William Ellis Corey to Mabelle Gilman and announcing that he had returned the fee given to him by the president of the Steel Trust, the Rev. John L. Clark, pastor of the Bushwick Avenue Congregational church, Brooklyn, last night, surprised the members of the prudential committee and was assured of its forgiveness and charity. In a most remarkable letter to the committee Mr. Clark confessed that he had misused the office of the Christian minister and declared he had done so merely because he had not reflected as he should have done before deciding to officiate. In an equally remarkable resolution adojted by the members of the committee reference was made to "our abhorrence of the use of the Christian ministry in sanctioning such a wedding."

Ape Tries To Kill Keeper.

New York, May 17.—Old Nick, a big ape, lived up to his name yesterday when he tried to make a meal off Patrick Keenan, a keeper in the primate's house in Central Park. Keenan was cleaning Nick's cage when the latter objected to the removal of a sponge which he wanted to eat. Leaping upon the keeper, he sunk his teeth in his leg and then bit him on the right shoulder and the left hand. Robert Horton and Timothy Hoey went to the rescue and beat off the infuriated ape. Old Nick was presented to the city six weeks ago and had always been tractable.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The rain of the past few days has materially helped the course and greens on the local golf links, and it has been necessary to cut the grass.

Tomorrow afternoon the first tea of the season will be held at the Plainfield Country Club. An attraction will be the music by the Neapolitan Hungarian Orchestra, of New York.

There will be continuation play for the Golf Committee and Green Committee cups at the Plainfield Country Club, tomorrow.

The scheduled event at the Park Golf Club tomorrow will be the weekly competition for the President's cup, which was begun a week ago.

The competition at the Westfield Golf Club tomorrow will be qualifying round for the May cups, which was started last Saturday.

In addition to playing the game and looking after the caddies, "Marty" O'Loughlin finds time to coach members of the Plainfield Country Club in the ancient game. There are several members who owe their improvement in golf to points given them by the young "pro."

That New York golfers are against foursomes goes without saying almost, but Leighton Calkins in a recent interview in the New York Sun, gives emphasis to the fact in a characteristic breezy manner. Among other things he says: "The notion that the old St. Andrews argument should stand is denied. I think 'old fashioned' is the proper way to characterize the foursome. It was originally invented to meet conditions which seldom arise in this country. It is pre-eminently a lazy game for tired men after luncheon. The usual argument against the four ball match is that it is no test of team play. I am willing to concede that, but there is even less in the foursome. As a matter of fact there is never any team play in golf at all, for each shot, each play, must be executed from beginning to end by one man alone, not by two players, one assisting the other. Golf is fundamentally, and in essence, a Christian game. Its basis principle is that good work shall always be rewarded. In essence the foursome is a freak form of competition. It is akin to and only a little less objectionable than such competition as one club or two club competitions. It really is not golf at all."

DIAMOND DUST.

Clear, warm weather is the only thing needful for an auspicious opening of the baseball season at Crescent Oval, tomorrow afternoon, when the Y. M. C. A. team will clash with Bound Brook.

Minnehan, the former Orange boy, performed well for Cincinnati against the Giants on Wednesday. He allowed the heavy sluggers but four hits.

Dan McGann is back at his old position on first, and it is a sure thing that he will attend strictly to business.

If the Giants can maintain the present pace until they meet the Chicago Nationals, the chances are more than even that they will take the series from the Windy City aggregation.

The present work of the Giants only serves to show what a good team of players can do when they devote their energy to the game and leave the umpire alone.

Clinton Avenue at Scotch Plains tomorrow afternoon. The result will be watched with interest.

It is to be presumed that the officials of the Inter-City Amateur League have arranged to have Mayor Fisk open the season on Crescent Oval, tomorrow afternoon.

The Dunellen amateur league team looks particularly strong and will likely make the other aggregations hustle to win the pennant. Manager Penny is always on his job.

Charley Speer, who is pitching for the Newark Atlantic League team, is just as effective as ever and is holding his own with the best of them.

The local fans at the opening game on Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon can all root for the Y. M. C. A. Later on the cheering will be divided between the association and Clinton Avenue teams, each having its followers.

Kraft, the former Somerville pitcher, has signed with High Bridge for the season.

—The annual horse show will be held at Bernardsville tomorrow and it is expected that several Plainfield horses will be entered in the various events.

The members of Martha Washington Council, No. 23, D. of A., have postponed their visit to Grandview Council, Gallia (Mt. Bethel), on Tuesday, May 21, to Tuesday, June 4.

The Woman's Relief Corps will meet Friday night, May 24, to complete arrangements for assisting the observance of Memorial Day. The women will have charge of the children's chorus at Reform Hall and the collection and arrangements of the flowers.

—The plans for the new building to be erected on Park avenue by Boice, Runyon & Co., are nearly completed and Architect A. L. C. Marsh will soon have them ready for receiving bids. As soon as the firm can make arrangements to move its office building, Hersh Brothers will commence the work of erecting their building next to the railroad.

Miss Ida Swackhamer, of Whitehouse, who has been visiting relatives her, has returned home.

SHORT TALKS BY L. T. COOPER.

CHRONIC CRANKS.

MR. J. R. SMOCK.

We all have met people who are continually kicking. Life seems a terrible thing to them. They seldom smile. Something dreadful is going to happen, nothing is ever just right, and they worry and fret and complain from morning till night. Their trouble seems to be just a bad disposition but this is seldom so. In most cases there is one of two things the matter with them; either their nerves or their digestion is responsible. Both come from the same thing---stomach trouble. A man or woman whose nerves are tied in knots is bound to be mighty poor company. The same thing is true if what they eat don't digest properly. No wonder they grumble, I don't blame them.

I have seen Cooper's New Discovery change the whole disposition of people in a month's time simply by getting their stomach in shape again. Even the expression on their faces was altogether different. The worried, tired, fretful look changed to a peaceful happy expression, and the lines of care disappeared altogether. Many people tell me about this in letters. They seem to think it a miracle. It is'nt. It's just the stomach working again.

Here's a case of this kind:

"I suffered with my stomach for thirteen years. Nothing I ate seemed to digest. I also had chronic constipation, and was tired, dull, irritable and despondent all the time. I found it difficult to attend to my duties as traction agent at this place."

"Six different doctors treated me and all gave different opinions."

"I began taking Cooper's New Discovery, and to my surprise it helped me from the first. I have gained ten pounds in three weeks and am feeling fine. My work now is a pleasure, where before it was drudgery." J. R. Smock, Cicero, Indiana.

We sell the Cooper medicines.

Marshall & Ball Clothing
The Highest Type of Ready-to-Wear.

MEN'S FASHIONS
IN SPRING CLOTHING

All sorts of styles are shown in the clothing shops, but after all, only those which stand the test of public approval become "Fashions" in the real sense.

Marshall & Ball Clothes for Spring are so individual in character, so different from the common showings everywhere, that some of our patrons accuse us of having a monopoly of fashions this season.

Some of the finest products of the world's best looms are here, handsome, aristocratic fabrics, in rich, new gray tones, and with that expressive tailoring that characterizes M. & B. Ready-to-wear from the ordinary.

Don't forget that it's less than two weeks from Decoration Day. And if you're going to have a new suit this Spring you may as well get it now.

Spring Suits, Overcoats and Raincoats, $12 to $35.

SPRING CLOTHES FOR BOYS.

Marshall & Ball Clothing for Boys show the same strong feature as our garments for men. That's why they're so different from the ordinary. Our prices are as attractive as the garments themselves. Suits, $3 to $10.

SPECIAL—Boys' Sailor Suits, with bloomers, in gray mixtures, with brown silk ornaments. See them in our window. Worth $6.00, now $5.00

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Miss Ella Galvin who is the star in "A Little Outcast" booked for appearance at the New Plainfield theatre Monday and Tuesday nights, is one of the smallest women on the stage, a fact which often gives rise to amusing occurrences. At rehearsal last week a crowd of children were being drilled for the scenes on Government Pier and when their time was up they were told to leave the stage at once to make room for their elders. A stage hand coming on saw a small girl sitting on a soap box and evidently taking a good view of her surroundings. "Here you," said the man in his fiercest voice, "Clear out, youse kids and no hangin' 'round here, git," and his dismay was great and overwhelming when the small girl stood up and revealved herself as Miss Ella Galvin in her short walking skirt. Visions of managerial reprimands for impertinence to the star came to the man, but were speedily dissolved by one of Miss Galvin's merry laughs, for the diminitive lady is nothing if not good tempered.

This character gives Miss Ella an opportunity of displaying her real versatility, as there is pathos, comedy and intense dramatic power, intermingled in the part. Her interpretation of what constitutes one of nature's little heros proves that she is just fitted to the role. She is ably supported by a company of great strength and ability, and the play is one of thrilling interest from start to finish.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The choir of the First Baptist church has been augmented by several voices to take the places of those who have resigned during the past three weeks.

Miss Alice Brown will lead the union meeting of the Endeavor societies at the Park Avenue Baptist church, tomorrow night. There will be special music.

The Young People's Association of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, will meet tomorrow night and continue its study of the subject, "How We Got Our Bible."

The annual offering for the Baptist missions of the State will be received at the Park Avenue Baptist church on Sunday. The Baptist convention plans to spend $20,000 this year for this work.

The Boys' Athletic League will meet at the First Baptist church tomorrow at 7:30, when details regarding the coming Sunday-school Athletic meet will be arranged. It is expected that this school will have a large number of entries in the meet.

There will be an Epworth League rally and entertainment at Vincent chapel, tonight, when the chapter of the First M. E. church will entertain the other chapters of the city and borough. Miss Helen M. Whitney is chairman of the committee in charge.

S. S. Swackhamer has been elected a steward of the First M. E. church to succeed Samuel Bingaman and A. H. Stiles to succeed William Symond, who has moved from the city. Mrs. L. M French has been elected president of the Ladies' Aid Society. The elections have been approved by the official board of the church.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

There is no better hotel anywhere for comfort and convenience than the Kensington, North avenue. Rates reasonable.

When you need garden tools or farming implements stop at the Gayle Hardware store. A full line at low prices; also hardware, household goods, cutlery and builders' materials.

Charles Conover & Co., of Elmwood place, will paint, and paper your home in a way that will please you and the charges will be reasonable. Inspect the firm's handsome line of papers.

When you trade with Roth & Co., the East Front street butchers, you always get the best of everything, whether you buy chickens, fresh or salt meats or fish. The firm stands behind every sale. Prompt deliveries made to all parts of the city and borough.

For the safety of your silverware and valuables while you are away this summer, deposit them in the vaults of the City National Bank. They will be where you expect to find them when you return. There is an ever-present risk of robbery at your home.

Using the most up-to-date methods, the A. and P. Tea Co., West Front street buys so close and profitably that the selling prices are cheaper than other grocery dealers can figure on. That is why the housewife always gets bargains at the A. and P. store.

When you want to get clothing that will always look well, stand the most severe test and will cost you a reasonable price patronize the New York Clothing store on West Front street. You will find the stock large and complete; also men's furnishings of every description.

—J. L. Brownlee, of Newark, who is interested in wood block for paving purposes, has been spending a couple of days in town, during the recent discussion of the subject by the Common Council.

The attention of renters of Safe Deposit boxes in New York is called to the fact that New York State levies a tax on the contents of the Safe Deposit box of a non-resident at his or her death, which tax may, of course, be avoided by keeping one's valuables in the same state in which one resides. It is, therefore, greatly to the advantage of a resident of New Jersey to keep personal property in a Safe Deposit box within the state.

Keene Colors Successful.

New York, May 17.—James R. Keene was greatly pleased at the results of the fifth and sixth races at Belmont Park yesterday. Both winners were bred by him. In the fifth race his filly, Suffrage, won the Crotona Handicap, in the fast time of 1:12 4-5, defeating among others the champion sprinter, Roseben, which carried 140 pounds, and, though heavily backed by D. C. Johnson, ran unplaced. Suffrage, a daughter of Voter and of Queenston, which is a sister of Kingston, displayed no little temper at the post, but gamely came from behind the speedy pacemaker, Jack Atkin, and beat him out. Mr. Keene's Wild Mint won the same stake in 1905. "Dave" Johnson is said to have wagered $12,000 on Roseben with three club house commissioners. Suffrage was well backed at 3½ to 1.

C. & C. Not to Leave Garwood.

Rumors to the effect that the C. & C. factory, at Garwood, where a number of Plainfield men are employed, has been sold to the Westinghouse company, and that it will be closed and that the business taken elsewhere is denied by the officers of the company. They declare that the rumors have no foundation whatever. The company has about completed arrangements to build machines which will operate the self-equipped trolley cars as are in use in Kansas City. When this work begins a full force of men will be employed.

NEW SYSTEM OF BUILDING.

A MARVEL IN THE SCIENCE OF CONSTRUCTION.

A method far in advance of anything formerly used in the preparation of the different parts of a house when erected in sections, making it easy to construct any design of a house, and a very superior house for all seasons, countries and climates at a great reduction in cost.

These houses are constructed principally from the best kiln dried lumber in a factory entirely protected from weather, where best high speed woodworking machines are used for cutting and shaping of every piece, reducing cost for mechanics fully one-half, making a superior house when finished.

Houses or other structures erected under this system make the warmest houses in winter, and the strongest building that can be constructed with any material, the fiercest storm fails to cause any vibration whatever. They are adapted to receive all improvements, plumbing, lighting, heating, etc., when desired.

A new method of lath and plaster is used for interior finish, making a perfect indestructable wall superior to anything ever before used.

MERGER IS COMPLETED

Officers of New Charity Organziation Society Meet and Arrange All Details.

COMMITTEES NAMED

Miss Margaret C. Holly Appointed Agent and Mrs. S. R. Struthers Superintendent.

The officers of the Charity Organized Society, of Plainfield and North Plainfield met last night at the home of Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, on East Seventh street, and completed the details of the organization in relation to the merger of the two charity associations. Committees were appointed and other matters considered.

On motion of Miss Margaret C. Holly was appointed agent and Mrs. Steven R. Struthers superintendent of the society's premises until the next annual meeting. Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers was elected chairman of the relief committee, and she in turn announced the other members of that committee as follows: Miss Mary E. Tweedy, Mrs. Samuel Huntington, Mrs. Leander N. Lovell, Mrs. Henry M. Maxson, Mrs. D. H. Rowland, Mrs. Charles W. Mc Cutchen, Miss Mabel E. Pierson, Miss Lillie E. Moore, Mrs. Charles E. Ryder. Mrs. Myers announced that Miss Mabel E. Pierson had been appointed secretary, and Miss Lillie E. Moore, treasurer, of the relief committee. On motion the funds in the bank were ordered transferred to the newly-organized association.

The other committees appointed follow:

Co-operation, Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, Mrs. Charles A. Reed, Henry L. Hall, Dr. Norman H. Probasco, Mrs. John Gray Foster, Mrs. Martin I. Cooley, Mrs. J. B. Dumont, Dr. Frederick J. Hughes, David T. Kenney, Leon R. Thurlow. By these appointments it will be noticed that the society has allied itself closely with other charitable work of the city, including the King's Daughters, Muhlenberg Hospital, Tuberculosis Association, Children's Home, Needlework Guild and city health department.

Finance and Membership, Alexander Gilbert, Mrs. Dexter Tiffany, S. D. Lounsbury, Mrs. John M. Whiton, Mrs. George P. Mellick, Mrs. Elliot T. Barrows, Charles W. McCutchen, Mrs. William A. Woodruff, Harry C. Munger, William L. Saunders, Mrs. Rufus P. Lincoln, Duncan W. Taylor. Legal Questions, Henry L. DeForest, Thomas M. Day, William S. Tyler, Charles A. Reed, William M. Wherry, Jr., J. A. Lane, Eugene H. Hatch, William N. Runyon, J. Brognard Betts and William M. Stillman.

BOROUGH SCHOOL EXHIBIT.

Work Will Be Shown to Public Two Days Next Week.

An exhibit of school work has been arranged for Wednesday and Thursday of next week, from 3.30 to 6 o'clock at the borough public schools to which the public is invited. The hours have been fixed so that those who go to New York can, by taking an earlier train than usual, see the work before 6 o'clock.

The exhibit includes the work in the common branches, drawing, manual training, (woodwork and sewing), of all classes below the High School, in both the Watchung and the Somerset schools. It consists of the regular class work done during the year by all the pupils, not only that accomplished by the best pupils. The work of every pupil in the school will be represented. Prof. Krebs hopes that the parents and other taxpayers will give their attention to this exhibit, so as to form an idea of the kind of work done in the school.

Vamps Get New Members.

The promoters in the organization of a volunteer fire department at South Plainfield met in Temperance Hall, last night, and received thirty new members. Patrick Kane acted as chairman of the meeting and ways and means were discussed for completing the organization and securing suitable apparatus. It is the intention of the department to adopt methods for raising funds from among the residents of the place, and judging from the enthusiasm thus far displayed there should be no trouble in getting the desired amount. At the next meeting it is expected that the organization will be completed by the election of all the officers and appointment of committees. William Newcorn, judge of the district court, has been secured as counsel for the department.

LEAGUE OPENING TODAY

Inter-City Series Starts Locally With Y.M.C.A.-Laurel Game at Crescent Oval.

REVIVE AMATEUR BALL

Fans Appear Interested and the New Venture Promises to Meet With Success.

Big and little baseball leagues throughout Uncle Sam's domain have had their opening days and this afternoon at the Crescent Oval local fans will witness the season of 1907 ushered in by the initial clash in the Inter-City League series, between the Y. M. C. A. team of this city and the Laurels of Bound Brook. At Scotch Plains the season will be inaugurated by a game between the Clinton Avenue aggregation of this city and the Plainers. The occasion will make the rehabilitation of amateur baseball after four years of the ups and downs of semi-professionalism. The fans all appear interested in the new venture and indications point to a successful season for the simon pures. The Y. M. C. A.-Laurel contest is billed to start at 3.30 o'clock. Mayor Charles J. Fisk will grace the occasion, and will start the ball a-rolling by tossing the first ball across the plate.

Judging from the lists of players registered by the different managers with Secretary Listman the games should arise oldtime interest. All of the players are local boys who have been making star records for the past few years or starred in the City Amateur League four years ago. Since that time numerous other stars have developed and the chances are that the games will be fast and furnish excitement enough for the most ardent fan.

It has been impossible to dope out the relative strength of the teams but the chances for the championship coming to Plainfield are extremely bright. The Y. M. C. A. has a husky bunch of athletes who will make the other teams hustle to beat them; the Clinton Avenue aggregation under the management of Ernest Derflinger also looks speedy, and will have to be reckoned with; Scotch Plains is strong, and it is pretty certain that the live little village will live up to its reputations of the past seasons; then there is Jimmy Penny's Suburbans who will represent Dunellen in the circuit. This team is made up of West End boys who have a strong following, and if the players perform up to their records, Jimmy Penny may land the pennant. Bound Brook is an uncertain quantity but reports from down the road declare that pennant bees are buzzing in the hats of all the fans along the Raritan. If this be true there is little doubt that the Somerset county nine will make matters hum for the other teams.

THEIR PARSONAGE FREE.

Death of Mrs. Saunders Gives Park Avenue Church Full Possession.

Mrs. Frances E. Saunders, a former resident of this city, died at the home of her niece, in Elmira, N. Y., yesterday morning. Word of her death was brought to this city yesterday afternoon.

Through the death of Mrs. Saunders the Park Avenue Baptist church comes into full possession of its parsonage. Mrs. Saunders recently gave the house at 111 East Ninth street, where she lived while in this city, to the church for a parsonage. The gift was not outright, but the only interest she retained in it was a nominal rental to be paid to her during her life. The gift was made very recently, and hardly anything is due the estate. None of the monthly payments have been made yet.

Honeymoon in Europe.

City Editor Ralph L. Morrow, of the Daily Press, and Mrs. Morrow, who were married Wednesday night, sailed this morning on the Steamship St. Louis for Southampton. They will visit London, Paris, and Berlin before returning home the latter part of June.

An Approaching Wedding.

The marriage of Miss Bertha H. Frazee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frazee, of Elmwood place, to Lawrence Fahn, Jr., of the borough, has been announced to take place at the home of the bride's parents on Thursday afternoon, June 6.

—This afternoon and tonight Neuman Brothers will have on sale a fine display of vegetables of all kinds, including fresh spinach, asparagus and green peas. They will also have a fine lot of strawberries.

Mrs. J. Kirtland Myers, of East Seventh street, is planning to spend the summer abroad with friends.

CITY UNION CLOSES YEAR

All Local King's Daughter's Circles Represented at Annual Meeting Yesterday.

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Encouraging reports for the past year and a discussion of plans for the summer, together with election of officers, were the features of the annual meeting of the City Union, of the King's Daughters, held yesterday afternoon in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church. All the circles were well represented and took a lively interest in the meeting. Mrs. Charles A. Reed, the president, was in the chair, and after the opening devotional exercises by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, reports were presented.

Mrs. Anna Most, treasurer, reported the total receipts for the year for the Day Nursery to be $3,507.45, which includes $2,087 received from the Floral Fete. The disbursements were $1,292.29, leaving a balance of $2,285.16. The union will pay off $1,000 of the mortgage on the Day Nursery property, leaving a substantial balance with which to carry on the summer's work. It was also reported that since the Day Nursery was opened over a year ago, 4,396 children have been cared for and 2,100 during the past six months.

Mrs. W. L. C. Glenney expressed the opinion that inasmuch as so many people contributed toward the work at the Floral Fete, the union could not hope to see further help from them this summer, but Mrs. H. L. Hall, explained that it was distinctly understood that the fete was for the benefit of the nursery and it should not interfere to any great extent. She hoped that before another year rolls around a circle of colored women will be organized so that their help can be secured when another fete or similar affair is helped. She made the statement for the reason as she explained that during the past few weeks many colored children have been cared for at the nursery.

The reports of the various circles showed that all the pledges were paid toward the support of the Day Nursery and the baby camp, and that a great deal of individual work has been accomplished in helping worthy families. When the roll was called the following amounts were pledged for the coming year:

Benevolent Band, $300; Charity Circle, $200; Cheerful Workers, $75; Daughters of the Cross, $250; Brightside, $25; Whatsoever, $30; Golden Rule, $25; Cup Bearers, $25; Silver Cross, $100; Loyal Daughters, $200; Emanuel, $10.

At the suggestion of Mrs. Reed, a motion was offered and adopted, that an annual report or statement of finances be published. This action was thought best because of the constant growth of the work.

Mrs. Bird, matron of the Day Nursery, was present and she made a brief report concerning her work. A similar report was made by Miss Olive Delaney, the city nurse, who told of her work at the camp and the nursery.

After the meeting the trustees, representing the various circles, met and elected the following officers:

President, Mrs. Charles A. Reed; vice-president, Mrs. Frank W. Jones; recording secretary, Mrs. L. A. Laggren; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Henry M. Lapsley; treasurer, Mrs. Anna Most.

P. H. S. WINS.

Leals Play Strong at Start But Are Short in Third Inning.

The Plainfield High School nine defeated Leals, yesterday, on Crescent Oval, by the score of 5to 2. Howard and Brokaw made the runs for Leals in the third inning. P. H. S. failed to do much at the bat until the fourth and fifth innings when the five runs were made; two by Douglas, two by Rubenstein, and one by Murphy. Brown, Leals' heavy weight catcher, made the only two bagger in the game. Five safe hits were made by Leals, four by P. H. S. Leals are credited with seven errors while P. H. S. have three. Howard pitched a good game for the private school, striking out six men. Van Zandt pitched the first part of the game for P. H. S.; struck out five men and let one walk. Murphy pitched the remaining innings and fanned eleven men. A Leal's rally was nipped in the ninth inning by a very close decision at the plate.

The score by innings:

P. H. S.	0	0	0	2	3	0	0	0	x	—5

Mrs. Cram and daughter, of the West End, sail today on the Caledonia, of the Anchor Line, for Glasgo, where they will spend the summer.

BIG SHOW IN TOWN; CROWDS VIEW PARADE

FOREPAUGH & SELLS "CIRCUS CITY" ARRIVED ON SCHEDULE.

Plainfield's population was increased early this morning by the arrival of a city of a thousand souls. Before dawn the first section of the great Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' circus rolled into town. This was before the sun gave notice of the fine day which was to follow the "flying squadron," as the hotel section is called, was ready to serve breakfast to the circus city. For two hours the trains continued to come and soon vacant lots at Park avenue and Randolph road were transformed into a busy hustling community of noise and bustle.

But everything was orderly. Every stentorian order meant something. The leather lunged circus men talked business and business and business alone. When the great zoo arrived the animal tent was ready to receive it. Then the heavy workers turned their attention to erecting the show tent, a monster six centre pole affair, within which the deeds of daring and the performances of the world's best in their respective lines will entertain Plainfield this afternoon and tonight.

Like all circuses the Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' institution has its great spectacular, as also great feature act. The spectacle with this show is the fire scene. Four full companies of firemen, assisted by five hundred circus folk, present a big city fire with its thrilling rescues from high windows. They also work the life nets. This feature is studied by all fire departments. In the circus the act is rehearsed so thoroughly that the firemen in the cities study the display, preparing themselves for any emergency likely to arise long after the circus is gone.

The great somersaulting automobile act is the most daring of all daring acts ever produced. It is seen now for the first time in America. The automobile which tips the scales at something more than twelve hundred pounds, is hauled to the tent top. There it is released to run down a speedway set at an angle of 45 degrees.

At the end of the incline the auto shoots heavenward. Like a rocket it goes forty feet into the air, stops for an instant, and then plunges headfirst into a perfect somersault. The machine falls with a deafening crash to a platform. The young woman, Mlle Larocq, climbs out, her hair down, jarred loose from its forty pins by the awful impact of the fall.

Promptly at twelve o'clock the giant circus parade left the grounds. It moved through Plainfield's principal streets. Six bands made music for the youngsters. Those able to walk along followed the many open cages of wild beasts, while the youngster, too small to be trusted alone, was held on somebody's shoulders, from which point of vantage he could see it all. Then under the guise of a father interest in the youngster, "somebody" found it necessary to go to the show.

POLICE ON THE ALERT TO PROTECT THE CROWDS

SPOTTED FIVE PICKPOCKETS AND CHASED THEM OUT OF TOWN.

Five light-fingered chevaliers of industry were gently separated from the circus crowd by two of Chief Kiely's polite young men this morning. They were shooed away from town.

Detective-Sergeant John Flynn and his side partner, Plain-clotdes man Florence McCarthy, did the separating. They sifted through the crowds lined up to see the parade, with their eyes open for pickpockets. On Front street, where the crowd was thickest, they spotted the five, who were recognized as pickpockets. The men were going through the motions of "dips" on verge of operation, and the detectives lost no time in rounding them up. There was no eviednce that they had gone to work on thhem, and they were pointed toward an outgoing trolley car with instructions to leave town as quickly as they could travel. Two of the men were from New Brunswick and three from Newark. They are supposed to have come here to work together. No pocket-picking was reported.

Speaking of the crooks drawn out by the presence of the circus, Chhief Kiely gave out a warning to householders to guard against robbery tonight. He advises families to leave someone at home all evening, or, failing that, to lock up the house carefully, and to tell the offiffcer on the post, if possible, that the house will be empty until they return.

P. & R. EXPRESS WRECKED

Engine and Cars Thrown from Track at West End of Newark Bay Bridge.

PASSENGERS ESCAPE

Two Minor Accidents on the Newark Meadows Help to Tie Up Commutors' Train.

One of the Philadelphia and Reading 2-hour trains between New York and Philadelphia, which left Jersey City at 3.11 o'clock yesterday afternoon, was wrecked at the western end of the bridge over Newark Bay. No one was seriously hurt, but it was a matter of luck that all escaped with their lives.

The train, which was No. 615 and was scheduled to run to Wayne Junction without stopping, was gathering speed for the straight run after leaving the bridge, when something happened that apparently caused the tender to jump the tracks. It was followed by the combination baggage car and smoker, a day coach and a Pullman, which made up the train.

The coupling between the combination car and the tender broke and the locomotive, which remained on the tracks, sped along with its tenderbobbing over the ties and was not stopped till it had covered a hundred yards. The combination car was in such a position that it looked as though a small breeze would blow it over on its side. The other two cars also were tilted. All were dangerously near the edge of the embankment, the foot of which is washed at high tide by the waters of Newark Bay.

There were twenty-five passengers in the Pullman, some of them women, bnt all were cool. In the smoker, where the shock was severe, a hasty scramble to get out followed as the passengers realized they were in a wreck. There several men received cuts and bruises. Those who were in the wreck were taken to Elizabeth and boarded another train.

Westbound traffic on that line was blocked till a late hour last night, and all Plainfield commuters reached home by way of Newark.

General Superintendent G. W. Huntington, of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, who was on the scene said that he couldn't say what had caused the derailment. The wreck occurred on a rock ballasted roadbed and on a straight track. Apparently the tracks were in perfect condition, he said, and the train had been inspected before leaving Jersey City. Personally he was at a loss to account for the accident.

The bursting of a steampipe in the locomotive bearing the 3.35 train from Newark over the Newark meadows shortly after the Reading express was derailed, and the narrow escape of the 4.30 way train from New York from jumping the track while on the way to take up the passengers from the stalled Newark train caused unusual excitement on the meadows yesterday afternoon.

The Newark train, shortly after it had crossed the Lehigh Valley tracks on the meadows, came to a sudden stop owing to the bursting of the steampipe. The cab rapidly filled with steam and after being scalded about the arms the engineer leaped from the compartment. All efforts to repair the break were in vain. As the nearest telegraph station was at Elizabethport the conductor and engineer walked the distance and wired to Jersey City for assistance. To relieve the Newark train the Newark authorities ordered the 4.30 train from New York to go around the loop and pick up the passengers from Newark. While crossing the Lehigh tracks on its way to the Newark train the tire from one of the wheels of the locomotive became separated from the wheel. The train was going at a fair rate of speed when a series of jerks and bumps made known that something had happened. After coming to a standstill a new tire was slipped on the damaged wheel and the journey resumed. Had the train been going at its usual rate of speed the train would have probably jumped the track and serious consequences followed. The fact of the train goin along slow alone averted an accident. The Newark passengers were taken aboard and arrived in town about 5.30 o'clock or just one hour late.

PIN SURPRISES DOCTOR

Operation on Child's Throat for Tonsil Swelling Discloses It.

GIRL'S EXPERIENCE

She Swallowed Two Safety Pins, One of Which Was Noted; the Other Discovered Very Unexpectedly.

Operating on the throat of Mildred Jeffery, three years old, daughter of William Jeffery, the real estate man, for a supposed ailment of the tonsils, Dr. Albert Pittis, yesterday, was amazed when a big safety pin was exposed to view. Unknown to the child's parents, the pin had remained in the throat for three weeks. It was the second pin Mildred's system yielded to medical treatment. About three weeks ago the child started playing with two safety pins, picked from her mother's dresser in the Jeffery home at Berkeley Heights. A choking gurgle apprised her mother that something was wrong, and Mrs. Jeffery saw a pin disappearing down the child's throat. Another lay on the floor, and Mrs. Jeffery, who had seen only two pins in the child's hands, assumed that but one went down Mildred's throat.

Mildred was hurried to Dr. Pittis in Mr. Jeffery's automobile. The doctor prescribed dietary treatment, and in the course of a day or two a pin traversed the child's system. Mr. and Mrs. Jeffery breathed a sigh of relief and thought Mildred was free of her pin troubles.

A week ago the child complained of pains in her throat, and symptoms of tonsil trouble appeared. It was decided, after visits to the doctor, that an operation was necessary to relieve the swelling. Dr. Pittis performed it yesterday, and the surprising appearance of the second pin followed. Both pins were closed, and nickel-plated. The child rallied from the operation and is apparently none the worse, excepting the slit in her throat, for the experience.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS DELIGHTFULLY ENTERTAINED.

Chapters of the City Guests at Enjoyable Social in Vincent Chapel.

The reception and entertainment given by the Epworth League of the First M. E. church in Vincent chapel, last night, to the chapters from the Monroe Avenue M.E. and Grace M.E. churches, was largely attended and proved to be a delightful affair. The programme was one of exceptional merit.

The first part was devoted to repetition of "The Reveries of a Bachelor," given Thursday night by the Young Ladies' Mission Circle. The following persons impersonated the characters: Bachelor, Arthur Humble; military girl, Miss Edna Mc Donald; golf girl, Miss Helen M. Meeker; hunting girl, Miss Irene Miller; coquette girl, Miss Mary Matthews; nun, Miss Alice Martin; widow, Miss Katharyn Slade; country girl, Miss Matilda Coddington; society girl, Miss Antoinette Aaholm. During the presentation of the tableaux, Miss Mildred Spicer read the story; Mrs. Joseph Dunham sang and Miss Miriam Hall presided at the piano. Each tableaux was enthusiastically applauded.

Other excellent numbers on the programme included soprano solos by Miss Hope, Irene Miller, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Nelson A. Miller; cornet solos by Percy Mygrant; recitations by Miss Helen M. Whitney and Rev. Ora J. Shoop, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. church, Cranford, who was present by invitation. Mr. Shoop proved himself a master in the art and won great applause. He recited, "A Similar Case," "A Hindoo Tale," and "How Ruby Played." There were also piano solos by Miss Clara Van Fleet. Harry Gee extended a hearty welcome to the visiting Epworthians, after which refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed.

Miss Helen M. Whitney was chairman of the social committee and Miss Mattie Humble chairman of the refreshment committee, and both were assisted by the members of the league.

Teachers Visit Borough Schools.

The Misses Long, Wark and DeHart, of the Milltown Public Schools, spent yesterday visiting the third, fourth and fifth grades of the North Plainfield Public Schools. Miss Young, supervisor of art and manual training in the Westfield Schools, also visited the borough schools yesterday, examining the work along these lines.

Elected Chairman.

At a meeting of the group No. 8 of the New York State Bankers, Alexander Gilbert, of West Eighth street, president of the Market and Fulton Bank, New York, was elected chairman.

KILLED BY TROLLEY CAR

John Kiely Run Down and Fatally Hurt on West Front Street.

FRANTIC DRIVE FUTILE

Chief of Police Kiely Makes Vain Attempt to Get Dying Man to Hospital Before His Life Ends.

John Kiely, 56 years old, of 512 West Third street, caretaker of the city dump, was struck and fatally injjured by an eastbound main line trolley car on West Front street, between Grant and Compton avenues, yesterday afternoon at 4:50 o'clock. His skull was crushed in and he died as he was deing taken to the hospital.

According to the stories told by Charles B. Brant, of Dunellen, the motorman, and by two other eyewitnesses, Kiely ran directly in front of the car, in an apparent effort to cross to the other side of the track, to board the conveyance. He miscalculated the speed of the car.

Brant says he saw Kiely standing on the north side of the street as the car rolled down the block. The car was going at full speed. As it drew near Kiely ran out from the walk and across the road in front of the car. Brant saw that an accident was impending, and shut off power. He reversed his power and did every thing else he could think of to stop the car, but it was too close to the old man. Just as Kiely reached the far rail, and another step would have put him beyond danger, the side of the vestibule struck him on the head. Clyde G. Walling, of Schaeffer's hotel, Westfield, and William Stucky, of 441 South Ninth street, Newark, who sat on front seats in the car, corroborated the motorman's story of the accident in signed statements to the police.

Brant brought his car to a stop within its own length, and ran to where Kiely lay unconscious in the road, almost beside the rear platform. Washington and Stucky helped him lift Kiely to the car. Brant run the car, with the injured man to police headquarters at full speed. Chief Kiely saw that Kiely was badly injured at a glance and lost no time in calling out the patrol wagon. Taking the reins himself, the chief drove at frantic speed to the hospital, but the run was futile. Just as the old man was being lifted from the wagon he died. The body was left at the hospital.

The dead man is survived by a second wife and several children. His only son, William Kiely, is manager of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company branch at Long Branch. The daughters, three in number, are all married. Two live in Newark, and the third, Mrs. Elmer Mills, lives on West Front street.

Mr. Kiely was well known about the city. He was one of the first, if not the very first, flag and walklayer in Plainfield. Flagging laid by him more than thirty years ago may still be seen in service. He was a prominent member of the old volunteer fire department.

The funeral will be held from the Kiely home at 8.30 o'clock Monday morning. There will be a service at St. Mary's Roman Catholic church, where a requiem mass will be said, at 9 o'clock.

The burial will be in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Brant, the motorman, was arrested after he ran his car to the Watchung avenue station, and held until the police had been convinced that he was not to blame. He was released by order of Judge Runyon at 8.30 o'clock, in the custody of Claim Agent Church, of the P. R. S. C., who agreed to surrender him if he was wanted.

May Give Opera for Charity.

The chances are that "The Peasant Prince," given for the first time at the New Plainfield Theatre, Thursday night, will be repeated for some local charity. A number of persons interested in the opera are quite anxious that this should be done and Mr. MacClymont will probably arrange the details in a few days.

Praises Borough School Work.

Prof. Louis Bevier, Jr., State Inspector of High Schools, who recently visited the Borough Highhschool, in a letter says: "Some of the work I saw was of an exceptionally high character and none below the grade."

John Auten Resigns.

John Auten, who has been clerk at the Hotel Kensington, for several years, has resigned the position to take effect on Wednesday. He has made no definite plans for the future.

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

That play of heart interest, thrilling climaxes, and genuine comedy, "A Little Outcast," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre, next Monday and Tuesday nights, is one made up of the real bonds of humanity that makes the whole world akin. Startling realism, vivid situations and intense dramatic power are interwoven into a story of love, heroism and genuine American grit. And as portrayed by winsome Ella Galvin in the character of "Bob," the Newsboy, with a pure honest heart, becomes most effective. Miss Galvin is adapted to the part both as to capability and stature and her interpretation is one that moves one to tears, laughs and excitement, which follow each other in rapid succession. Johnny Galvin, in the part of Paul Weston, the wrongly accused, is an ably second to the star, and James Harris as the gentlemanly villian, George DeVoe, usually earns the hisses which comes from every audience. Jas. Grady, as a second villian, who hates honest people, is about as rascally as they come. The parts of Madeline Harcourt, as played by Irene Drew, Ethel Byron, a society butterfly, by Lillie Steele, and Teddy Forrest, by J. H. Miner, are cleverly handled. Anger and Hanly, the Bowery boys, Due and Little Tootsie, by herself, are interesting and entertaining.

The Annual Rest.

Now is the time to put work aside and prepare for the annual rest. A trip abroad will be time well spent, and the best health insurance. The comparatively slight expense of a trip to Europe by the Anchor Line route makes it one of the most practicable and beneficial ways of spending a vacation. Everything for the safety, pleasure and enjoyment of the tourist is provided in the fleet of Anchor Line steamships. CURRENT VERSE.

Back Yonder.

When the time of toil is ended and the stars begin to show
And the firelight fades and flickers and the shadows come and go;
When the present day is fading through the portals of the past
To join the other days that made the journey all too fast;
You can't help going with it far enough to say good-by,"
And maybe it will take your hand and lead you; and you try
To laugh and hope, just as you did when everything was new
And you were living in the land of things you meant to do.
It takes you to the rainbow which showed treasure's hiding place,
It shows youth's starting point, where all were equal in the race.
The winter's fierceness there was all forgotten in a day,
For nothing was so real as the blossoming of May.
The stars that shine afar then seemed so radiantly near
That one might pluck them from the sky, should he but persevere.
Life's fairest, truest joys are those too fair e'er to be true,
They dwell back yonder in the land of things we meant to do.
—Washington Star.

Our Lady's Garden.

Lilies are chapels fair, whiter than snow;
Up to their altars the butterflies go—
Hark, then, confessionals whispered and low.

The rose bush's convent has emeralds for stairs,
The Little Red Sisters are all at their prayers,
Starlight will kiss their cheeks unawares.

Lilacs are vesper bells, purple and white,
Swung by the nightingale's song of delight,
Calling the faithful ones out of the night.

Stars are the choristers, silver and blue,
Cassocked in ebony, surpliced in dew,
For night's dark vestry wandered through.

Hear the moon chanting behind the night's screen;
Golden her voice in the cypress trees green—
"All hail to Mary—Mary the Queen."
—Archibald Sullivan in Smart Set.

Take Warning.

Now as to weddings, let me speak;
Avoid the kind described as freak,
When you're in love.
You're apt to find the deuce to pay
If married in outlandish way,
As I will prove.

I knew a man named Abner Boone,
This chap got spliced in a balloon,
The reckless lout!
But one result could come, I wis,
Of such an episode as this—
They soon fell out!

Another fond but foolish swain
Got married on a railroad train,
O, being rash!
Of course he got it in the neck,
Affairs with him soon went to wreck
And total smash.

Avoid freak weddings when you go
To take a wife. They bring but woe
To serf or prince.
One chap I knew wed in a mine,
And he has ne'er, his friends opine,
Seen daylight since.
—Louisville Courier-Journal.

If I Were King.

If I were king—ah, love—if I were king—
What tributary nations would I bring
To stoop before your scepter and to swear
Allegiance to your lips and eyes and hair;
Beneath your feet what treasures I would fling;—
The stars would be your pearls upon a string,
The world a ruby for your finger ring,
And you should have the sun and moon to wear
If I were king.

Let these wild dreams and wilder words take wing,
Deep in the woods I hear a shepherd sing
A simple ballad, to a sylvan air,
Of love that ever finds your face more fair;
I could not give you any goodlier thing
If I were king.

Night.

Night—and the mystic beauty of the lake,
The low long stretch of rippling blue;
The hazy outline of the distant hills,
The meadows sprinkled o'er with glistening dew.

Night—and the silence of the stars;
The cold, calm beauty of the moon;
The wavelets lapping on the silvery strand;
The distant, plaintive calling of the loon.

Night—and the quiet rustle of the pines,
Silent, lone, guardians of the shores,
Stirred by the gentle southwest wind,
'Tis night in God's own out of doors.
—J. E. Rockwell in The Outer's Book.

Night.

When I am dead, my dearest,
Sing no sad songs for me;
Plant thou no crosses at my head,
Nor shady cypress tree;
Be the green grass above me
With showers and dewdrops wet;
And if thou wilt, remember,
And if thou wilt, forget.

I shall not see the shadows,
I shall not feel the rain;
I shall not hear the nightingale
Sing on, as if in pain;
And dreaming through the twilight
That doth not rise nor set,
Haply I may remember,
And haply may forget.
—Christina Georgina Rossetti.

To a Young Girl.

Ring clear, O girlish laughter,
And maiden heart, be gay,
For tears must follow after,
As evening follows day;
The heart of youth is filled with joy,
The heart of age with grief—
So be thy mirth without alloy,
The sweeter that 'tis brief.

The fairest days of all the year
Bring clouds from out the West,
And, hark! the robin's song, how clear,
Before he builds his nest.
I would not have thy smiles depart,
Nor wish thy joy less deep—
And so, lest I should grieve thy heart,
I turn away to weep.
—William Wallace Whitelock in N. Y. Herald.

Good-Night, Good-By.

Say not good-by! Dear friend, from thee
A word too sad that word would be.
Say not good-by! Say but good-night,
And say it with thy tender, light,
Caressing voice, that links the bliss
Of yet another day with this.
Say but good-night!

Say not good-by! Say but good-night;
A word that blesses in its flight,
In leaving hope of many a kind
Sweet day, like this we leave behind.
Say but good-night! Oh, never say
A word that taketh thee away!
Say but good-night! 'Good-night!
—Dora Greenwell.

AN ORDINANCE

For the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with Permanent and Durable Macadam Pavement, and to Provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for benefits.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the following streets and parts of streets of the City of Plainfield, shall be permanently improved with durable macadam pavement to be completely laid and constructed on or before the thirtieth day of September, A. D. 1907, said macadam pavement to be of the depth and width hereinafter specified, and to be in every respect equal to the macadamizing on Carlton Avenue, between Watchung and Putnam Avenues, in said city, and all work to be given out upon contract to the lowest responsible bidder, and only after bids therefor shall have been solicited and received according to law, all bids to specify prices for each of said streets or parts of streets separately:

All to be of a depth running from six inches in the center to four inches at the sides, except West Second Street, which shall be three inches in depth on present foundation, and Denmark Road which shall have a ballast foundation six inches in depth and a wearing surface of trap rock, four inches in depth. On Hillside Avenue, Denmark Road and West End Avenue the gutters shall be paved with rough stone or slag for a width of four feet on each side of said streets.

Sec. 3. That for the purpose of obtaining money by the sale of bonds hereinafter specified for the permanent improvement of said streets and parts of streets as aforesaid, in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits, the Common Council of the City do hereby, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, authorize the issuing of nine registered municipal bonds of the City of Plainfield, of One Thousand Dollars each, amounting in all to Nine Thousand Dollars, which bonds shall bear interest at the rate of five per centum per annum, payable semi-annually and be payable three years from said date of issue with the option of the city to redeem or pay off the said bonds, or any one or more of them at any time after one year from date of issue, and before three years from said date of issue, on giving personal notice to the said holders of said bonds or thirty days' notice by advertisement in the official newspapers of the City, of the intention to make such redemption or payment, which bonds may severally or collectively be sold for an amount not less than par value, and the interest on said bonds shall be raised annually by taxation and the principal be paid by the City at maturity, and the money derived from the assessments upon the property benefited, shall, when collected, be held as a fund toward the payment of said bonds.

Sec. 4. That after said improvements shall have been completed, the Common Council shall, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, apply to the Court of Common Pleas of the County of Union for the appointment of Commissioners to estimate and assess benefits upon the owners of the lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, in proportion, as near as may be, to an amount equal to the amount of benefits actually acquired by the lands and real estate bordering on said streets or portions thereof respectively, by reason of such improvements respectively; and in case the costs and expenses aforesaid shall exceed the amount of said benefits, the excess thereof shall be paid by the City at large and raised by general tax; no property or owner thereof to be in any case assessed beyond the amount of benefit actually derived from said improvements.

Adopted by the Common Council May 15, 1907; approved by the Mayor May 16, 1907.

CHARLES J. FISK, Mayor.
Attest: J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

AN ORDINANCE

To Provide for the Further Issue of Sewer Bonds Under Chapter CXXXI of the Laws of 1890 and Acts Amendatory Thereof and Supplemental Thereto:

Whereas the difference between the costs and expenses of the construction of that portion of the system of sewerage in the City of Plainfield not covered by sewer bonds heretofore issued, and not including improvements concerning which there was no assessment for benefits or the sum of Two Thousand Seventy Dollars and Seventy-three Cents ($2,070.73) of interest paid by general tax, under and by virtue of the Act of the Legislature entitled "An Act to provide for drainage and sewerage in cities of this State," Approved April 7, 1890, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, including all incidental expenses, and the amount of the assessment for benefits has been ascertained and determined by the Common Council, and the Common Council doth hereby ascertain and determine the same to be the sum of Nine Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($9,500); and

Whereas the Common Council hath ascertained and determined, and doth hereby ascertain and determine that the whole amount of the costs, damages and expenses of making and constructing the improvement of sewage disposal works, beds and appurtenances under and by virtue of said Acts of the Legislature and the Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the improvement of sewage disposal works, beds and appurtenances of the City of Plainfield," approved August 8, 1905, including all incidental expenses, to be the sum of Fifty-eight Thousand Five Hundred Dollars, and the said improvement is such that under the statute in such case made and provided there can be no assessment for benefits to pay the cost thereof, but the whole cost thereof is required to be paid by the City, and the said statute further provides that to defray the costs and expenses thereof; the registered or coupon bonds of the City may be issued; and

Whereas the Common Council desires to issue the coupon bonds of the City to the amount of said sum of Nine Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($9,500) to provide for the said difference between the cost and expenses of said improvement, including all incidental expenses and the amount of the assessment for benefits as aforesaid, the said bonds to be used (1) to discharge the notes or temporary obligations of the City issued under said acts of the Legislature so far as they exceed in amount the assessments for benefits, and (2) to satisfy and discharge whatever may remain due on the cost and expenses of the work; and to issue the coupon bonds of the city to the amount of Fifty-eight Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($58,500) to defray the costs and expenses of the improvement concerning which there was no assessment for benefits as aforesaid, the whole amount of the coupon bonds which it desires to issue as aforesaid, being the sum of Sixty-eight Thousand Dollars, all as provided in said Acts of the Legislature; and,

Whereas the Common Council by resolution adopted April 9th, 1907, did authorize the issue of bonds and coupons in the premises in the form annexed to said resolution, which said resolution together with the forms therein referred to are on file in the office of the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield and are hereby referred to for greater certainty.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That pursuant to the statutes in such case made and provided, and in accordance with said resolution of the Common Council adopted April 9th, 1907, there be issued in the form annexed to said resolution on file in the City Clerk's Office coupon bonds of the city to the said amount of Sixty-eight Thousand Dollars ($68,000), the said bonds to be used for the purposes aforesaid, and the said bonds to be in denominations of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000) each, to bear date the first day of May, nineteen hundred and seven, and to be payable as follows: May first, nineteen hundred and eight, two bonds of one thousand dollars each, and on the first days of May in each and every year thereafter, down to and incuding May first, nineteen hundred and forty-one, two bonds of one thousand dollars each, said bonds to bear interest at the rate of four and one-half per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, and the semi-annual coupons to be annexed to said bonds to be for the sum of Twenty-two Dollars and Fifty Cents ($22.50) each, and said bonds and coupons respectively to be in the form annexed to said resolution, the said bonds all to be impressed with the corporate seal of the City, and to be signed by the Mayor and attested by the City Clerk, and the coupons to bear the engraved or lithographed fac-simile of the signature of the City Clerk.

Adopted by the Common Council May 15, 1907; approved by the Mayor May 16, 1907.

AN ORDINANCE

To Provide Separate Sewers Or Drains To Carry Off the Surface Water In a Portion of Plainfield Avenue.

WHEREAS, The city finds it necessary, and the Common Council hereby so determines, to provide separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in a portion of Plainfield Avenue hereinafter specified, and the water flowing into the brook near the city line, through said portion of said street, and the Common Council has determined, and doth hereby determine that the public good requires the construction of the sewers or drains hereinafter specified.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in said portion of Plainfield Avenue and the water flowing into the brook near the city line, as aforesaid, be constructed in and for said City of Plainfield in Plainfield Avenue from Randolph Road to the brook near the city line, as shown for said portion of Plainfield Avenue on a map on file with the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield, entitled "Map for Separate Sewers or Drains to Carry Off the Surface Water in a Portion of Plainfield Avenue, City of Plainfield, N. J., March, 1907," made by Andrew J. Gavett, City Surveyor (to which map reference is hereby made and the same made a part hereof) said separate sewers or drains to be constructed on said portion of Plainfield Avenue between the above mentioned points, as shown on said map, with the necessary manholes and appurtenances to complete the same, and to be of the dimensions and materials, and to be laid along such lines and at such grades and in such manner as indicated and specified on said map.

Sec. 2. That the costs and expenses to be incurred under this ordinance shall be paid with money to be raised by taxation (by general tax for street improvements) pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, as other moneys are raised in said city.

Adopted by the Common Council May 15, 1907; approved by the Mayor May 16, 1907.

CHARLES J. FISK, Mayor.
Attest: J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that an Ordinance, entitled "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield with Permanent and Durable Brick Pavement, and to Provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," a copy of which is subjoined to this notice, has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt such ordinance at the regular meeting of the Common Council to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at eight o'clock p. m., on Monday, the third day of June A. D. Nineteen Hundred and Seven, at which time and place prior to the adoption of said ordinance, said ordinance will be considered by the Common Council with reference to the proposed ordinance.

By order of the Common Council.
J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., May 15, 1907.

AN ORDINANCE

For the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield with Permanent and Durable Brick Pavement, and to Provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the following streets and parts of streets of the City of Plainfield, shall be permanently improved with durable vitrified brick pavement on concrete foundation with sand cushion and with necessary surface drains and underdrains, to be completely laid and constructed on or before the thirtieth day of November, A. D. 1907, said brick pavement and foundation and sand cushion respectively to be of the depth and width hereinafter specified and to be in every respect equal to the brick pavement on Watchung Avenue in said city, and all work to be given out upon contract to the lowest responsible bidder, and only after bids therefor shall have been solicited and received according to law, all bids to specify prices for each of said streets or parts of streets separately and to offer to contract to perform all the work and furnish all the materials for the paving of one or more or all of said streets or parts of streets:

Watchung Avenue, from the southerly side line of East Front Street to the southerly side line of East Fourth Street, exclusive of the portion of said Watchung Avenue already provided with brick pavement;

Sec. 2. That said streets and portions of streets described in Section 1 shall be paved for the entire width between the curb lines of said streets respectively for a depth of not less than 10½ inches, that is to say, 5 inches concrete, 1½ inches sand and not less than 3¾ inches brick, said pavement to be extended to the sidelines of said streets at each intersecting street, and shall be laid down to the grades already established by ordinance for said streets or portions of streets respectively.

Sec. 3. That for the purpose of obtaining money by the sale of bonds hereinafter specified for the permanent improvement of said streets and parts of streets as aforesaid, in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits, the Common Council of the city do hereby, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, authorize the issuing of forty-seven coupon municipal bonds of the City of Plainfield, of One Thousand Dollars each, amounting in all to Forty-seven Thousand Dollars, which bonds shall bear interest at the rate of four and one-half per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, and be payable as follows, that is to say, on the first day of September of the year 1910, two bonds of $1,000 each and on the first day of September of each and every year from 1911 to 1925 both inclusive, three bonds of $1,000 each, which bonds may severally or collectively be sold for an amount not less than par value, and there shall be raised by tax in each year hereafter such sum of money as may be necessary to pay the interest on all outstanding bonds, and the principal of such bonds as may mature during that year, and the money derived from the assessments upon the property benefited shall, when collected, be held as a fund toward the payment of said bonds.

Sec. 4. That after said improvements shall have been completed, the Common Council shall, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, apply to the Court of Common Pleas of the County of Union for the appointment of Commissioners to estimate and assess benefits upon the owners of the lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, in proportion, as near as may be, to an amount equal to the amount of benefits actually acquired by the lands and real estate bordering on said streets or portions thereof respectively, by reason of such improvements respectively; and in case the costs and expenses aforesaid shall exceed the amount of said benefits, the excess thereof shall be paid by the City at large and raised by general tax; no property or owner thereof to be in any case assessed beyond the amount of benefit actually derived from said improvements.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

GEO. B. WEAN, City Clerk pro tem.
Plainfield, N. J., May 6, 1907.

AN ORDINANCE

To Amend An Ordinance Entitled "An Ordinance Relating to the Morals, Peace and Good Order of the City of Plainfield," Approved April 23, 1874, as Amended.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That Sec. 3 of the Ordinance to which this is an amendment be and the same is hereby amended by adding to said Sec. 3 the following:

For distributing, strewing about or placing in any street or public place, area way or yard, or upon the steps or porch of any building, or causing to be distributed, strewed about or placed, any papers, circulars, cards or pamphlets, except such papers or other matter as may be ordered or subscribed for by the occupants of the premises, any sum not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

For sweeping, casting, throwing or depositing, or causing to be swept, cast, thrown or deposited, upon any public street, sidewalk, gutter, alley of other public place within the City of Plainfield, any paper, rags, straw, wood, boxes or other rubbish, any sum not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

For depositing upon the surface of any lot bordering upon any street, lane or alley of said city, any rubbish or matter likely to decompose or be blown about by the wind or using any such substances to fill in or raise the surface or level of any ground in the city, unless a written permit is first obtained therefor from the Board of Health, any sum not exceeding twenty dollars for each offense.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., May 15, 1907.

AN ORDINANCE

To Provide for the Construction of a Further Addition to the System of Sewerage Already Constructed in the City of Plainfield.

WHEREAS, There has been constructed in said city a system of sewerage and such action in relation thereto has from time to time been taken as is set forth in the preamble to the ordinance of said city entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the construction of an addition to the system of sewerage already constructed in the city of Plainfield," approved November 6, 1897, to which preamble reference is hereby made for greater certainty; and

WHEREAS, In the opinion of the Common Council the public good requires that a further addition, as herein described, to the system of sewerage already constructed, should be now constructed in and for said city under the provisions of the Act in said preamble referred to, and the Common Council has so determined and does hereby so determine; therefore,

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that a further addition to the system of sewerage already constructed under said Act and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, be constructed in and for said city under the provisions of the Act of the Legislature above referred to, with all the appurtenances necessary to complete the same, and of such dimensions and material and according to such plan as the said Common Council may hereafter direct, in and through the following described streets, avenues, property, lands and rights of way described, mentioned and referred to in this ordinance, to wit:

DIAMOND DUST.

The weather man is working these days in favor of the Chicago Nationals, by preventing the Giants from playing its scheduled games. Jupiter Pluvius should at least be fair.

Speaking of Keeler, Lajoie and others who seldom strike out, Kid Elberfield is now in the same class. His bat seldom fails to get at least a piece of the leather.

McGraw has not been on the coaching lines this season in a championship game—not at home at least. But the position of his team shows his able direction.

Clark Griffith offered to trade Clarkson and Delehanty for Bill Dineen, but nothing happened. Too late now to think of getting tried and true pitchers for this season. That should have been done last winter.

Tad Jones, who is playing such a fast game for Yale this season, is considered major league material, but it is very doubtful whether he would play professional ball. Recently he made a triple and a single off Tift, of Brown, one of the strongest college pitchers.

"It is ridiculous to say that the players of today are not in advance of those of twenty-five years ago," says fielder Jones, of Chicago. "The game has improved in every department. In the old days there were about fifteen or twenty good players and those few showed the others up. Nowadays every man must be a star or he doesn't play ball."

"Lou" Wiltse pitched for Johnstown, of the Tri-State League, on Thursday, against Lancaster, and it was a most remarkable contest. The game went twelve innings, the score being 15 to 12 in favor of Johnstown. Lancaster used four or five pitchers, while Wiltse lasted the whole game.

"Warry" MacLaughlin, pitching for Springfield, of the Connecticut State League, against Bridgeport, on Tuesday, won his game by a score of 2 to 1. "Red" Waller opposed him and it was his first league game defeat this season.

The Y. M. C. A. will play Bound Brook at Crescent Oval this afternoon, opening the amateur league season, and Clinton Avenue plays at Scotch Plains.

A CONFESSION.

I've nothing to tell, so I put it in rhyme,
'Tis easy to do and it fills up the time,
To scribble a sonnet confessing my crime—
I've nothing to tell.

I've nothing to tell, so I string into verse
A jingle of words, and I might do much worse,
For in filling my paper I'm filling my purse—
Tho' I've nothing to tell.

Announcing the fact—call it bold an' thou wilt.
I boldly proclaim and acknowledge my guilt—
I've nothing to tell.

The Mathushek & Son Piano

Do Years of Experience in Piano Manufacturing Mean Anything to You?

The piano that you buy must appear to your ear by the perfection of its tone, to your eye by the beauty of its casing, and to your practical sense by its reputation for durability. The thousands of users are proof positive that the Mathushek & Son possesses all these; that in the purchase of this beautiful piano you will secure an instrument that has passed through all the experimental stages; a piano that is the result of years of study and experience, produced by creators and masters of the art of piano making. A piano known to the public for over half a century.

Before you purchase see these beautiful instruments. You will be convinced of their beauty. We ask no fancy price for reputation and expensive outlays, but just a fair price for an artistic piano.

We Will Be Pleased to Send You a Beautiful Catalog Upon Request.

NOT JUST AT THAT TIME.

Editor Thought He Could Get Along Without Article.

The story is told of a writer who, through boldness in attacking the established order of things, had considerable vogue for a short time. In the midst of his notoriety he decided that he would contribute to a certain well-known magazine, in whose pages he had not yet been represented. He waited on the editor, and found him immersed in some hurried writing. "Ah, Mr. Blank," said the author, with that immunity from modesty which distinguished him, "you want an article from me." "Indeed?" queried the editor, going on with his writing. "Indeed?" "One article to begin with," pursued the author. "And I am willing to do it for you in spite of much work." "Indeed?" said the editor, as before. "I should say," followed up the author, "that for such an article as I have in mind, startling and original, I will close with you for $1,000." The editor's pen drove on. "Close with me!" he murmured. "Close! Will you kindly close the door as you go out?"

YANKEE INGENUITY NOT DEAD.

Ample Proof of Its Possession in State of Connecticut.

William G. Ward, a merchant, recently had a stove, in which a coal fire was burning, moved with other goods from his old home, on Platt's Hill, to his present apartment. He did not want the trouble of making a new fire, thereby further exemplifying his Yankee ingenuity. While driving through North Hartland, a farming village 13 miles distant from here, he stopped at the home of E. J. Barnes to get warm. He said he sold pianos, and Mr. Barnes became interested. Finally Mr. Barnes said he wanted to hear the tone of the instrument before he made a bargain. Stepping to the telephone, Ward called up his store here, had a $350 instrument rolled up close to the telephone transmitter and then ordered a saleswoman, Miss Elizabeth Harnett, to play a few selections, which she did. The music over the wire enthralled the family, the deal was closed and the piano was shipped to the Barnes farm.—Winsted (Conn.) Cor. New York World.

We're All Leather Eaters.

"And then," said the Arctic explorer, "I ate my leather belt." "Pooh! What of that? Every mother's son of us eats a pair of shoes a year." The explorer frowned. "This," he began, "is no laughing—" But the scientist interrupted him. "I am not jesting, sir. I speak the solemn truth. What is leather? Is it not albumen and tannin? Well, when you add milk to your tea or coffee the tannin of the one and the albumen of the other unite, and leather results. The leather is in minute particles. Nevertheless it is there. And down it goes. All who drink tea or coffee daily," the scientist concluded, "consume in a year enough leather to make a pair of shoes." The explorer sneered. "To resume," he said, "I then ate the lining of," etc.

Dog Checked at Theater.

For the first time in history, so said the wiseacres, a dog was checked in the coat-room of a New York Theater the other night. It happened at the Herald Square. Two women entered the theater and went immediately to the retiring room near the lobby. One of them had carried in a bulldog under her opera cloak. She asked whether she could have him checked, and checked he was, like a cane or umbrella, until the end of the performance.—N. Y. Times.

When He Really Begins.

A touring company had arrived at a town and were due to open that night, when it was discovered that the trombone was ill. A local substitute was provided and the performance was given. At the conclusion the conductor summoned the newcomer to him. "Look here," he said, "you must work, you know. I didn't hear much of that trombone of yours to-night." "To-night," replied the man, loftily, "I was out of form. But you wait till to-morrow, when I really begin to play. You won't be able to hear any of the other fellows then."

Very Appropriate.

A certain officer who had by no means distinguished himself in the South African war retired from the service and built himself a villa in a remote spot on the coast of Devonshire. He was showing it to a friend one day, and remarked: "The one difficulty I have is about a name for the house. I should like to hit upon something suitable—something appropriate to my military career, you know." "I see," replied his friend; "then why not call it 'The Retreat?'"—London, Tit-Bits.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

The commission having in charge the unveiling of the monument to Brigadier-General Henry W. Lawton at Indianapolis on Memorial Day will have as its guest the daughter of the dead soldier.

Congressman Bourke Cochran is due home from his honeymoon this week. He intended but a short trip, but was obliged to take his wife to Egypt on account of illness.

Emmett, Idaho, has a woman baseball manager. She is Mrs. August Thommen, wife of the manager of Hotel Emmett. Her team is called the Junior League, and when it plays out of town she acts as chaperon.

The capacity of dogs to distinguish musical tones has been the subject of elaborate experiments by Dr. Otto Kalisher, of Berlin. He has trained his dogs to distinguish musical tones—to pick up and eat morsels of meat set before them only when a certain note is sounded.

New York women are showing a strong inclination to revive the Panama hat craze. When Mrs. Roosevelt returned from the isthmus last summer she brought a genuine Panama.

As Mrs. Hetty Green grows older she dresses with more care, and is said to be less careful about her expenditures. Her income is said to be between $20,000,000 and $50,000,000. She has herself and her daughter to support.

Margaret L. Woods, author of that remarkable story, "The Invaders," is the wife of the Rev. H. G. Woods, who was made president of Trinity College, Oxford.

The promptness with which the Susan B. Anthony memorial fund was completed is significant of the lasting character of her influence in the movement for woman suffrage.

A. Conan Doyle has been once more vindicated in his detective work through the granting of a pardon to George Edalji, a young Birmingham lawyer, convicted four years ago of mutilating horses and cattle and sentenced to seven years' imprisonment. A pardon has been granted.

Miss Nellie Wicks, world's champion "lady shaver," has recently died in London. There are only two "lady barber shops" in modern Babylon. Miss Wicks was the daughter of a barber.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

A high school principal, Miss Cynthia Green, of Charlotte, has been elected school commissioner of Eaton county, Mich.

Miss Ella Marion Young, a direct descendant of Ethan Allen, the Revolutionary hero, will be a professional guide in the Adirondacks this season.

Miss Ida Moyers, who has been authorized to practice before the United States supreme court, is a southerner by birth, having been born in Memphis, Tenn., where she spent her childhood and early girlhood.

The widaw of T. DeWitt Talmadge has become a great social and literary favorite in Washington, where she is making her residence. The daughter of her first marriage, Miss Rebecca Collier, is her constant companion.

Mrs. Clara Gottschalk Peterson of Asbury Park, N. J., a sister of the noted pianist and composer, Louis Gottschalk, has presented to New Orleans a splendid marble bust of the great composer as well as one of his most valuable decorations and other priceless mementoes.

Mrs. William Starling Burgess, a shining light in Boston society, has passed the regulation examination undergone by pilots sailing from that port and has been granted a certificate as sailing "master." Mrs. Burgess is an enthusiastic yachtswoman and in the coming season means to command her own pleasure craft.

THE ROYAL BOX.

Queen Alexandria is very proud of the white silk robes, lined and faced with rose colored satin, which she wears as musical doctor of the Royal University of Ireland, a degree which has also been conferred on the Duchess of Connaught.

King Leopold, of Belgium, whose health is becoming precarious, is extremely fastidious as to his toilet. Though an old man, he takes as much trouble to have his long gray beard trimmed perfectly as a society butterfly takes over her complexion.

Princess Clementine of Belgium, King Leopold's youngest and only maiden daughter, owns a remarkable collection of dolls, which was lately put on exhibition at Brussels for the benefit of the Calvary Guild For Poor Tuberculosis Patients. It is said to be the most extensive collection of this kind in the world.

INDUSTRIAL ITEMS.

The process of manufacturing silk made from wood pulp is one which in Europe is jealously guarded from

Until the new ten hour law went into effect a few months ago the laboring men of France worked twelve hours a day. They began at 6 a. m. and quit at 7 p. m., with one hour at noon. Women are not allowed to work at night, and child labor under fourteen years of age is prohibited.

The sisal industry is becoming an important one, about 1,000 acres having already been planted in Hawaii. Experiments indicate that it can be successfully cultivated from sea level up to 2,500 feet and with a rainfall as high as sixty inches. Hawaiian sisal is pronounced by fiber experts to be equal to that produced in Yucatan.

WITS OF THE PRESS.

"There's nothing slow about him, is there?"

"Oh, I don't know. Did he ever owe you any money?"—Cleveland Leader.

"Yes," answered young Mrs. Torkins, "vocal exercise."—Washington Star.

"I hear Tompkins had to be taken to a hospital?"

"Yes. He got terribly run down."

"Overwork?"

"No, auto."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Ascum—Do you really keep a cat?

Subbubs—Yes, and I can tell you the best way to do it.

Ascum—How?

Subbubs—Try to chase it away.—Philadelphia Press.

"Who brought us little brother, papa?"

"The doctor, dear."

"Mrs. Jones said it was the stork?"

"Well, there's some resemblance; he presents a bill like a stork."—Houston Post.

THINGS THEATRICAL.

Edmund Breese, who has the role of Ryder in "The Lion and the Mouse," is to be starred next season by Henry B. Harris.

Hattie Williams, the star of the "Little Cherub" company, will probably appear next season in a new play by Clyde Fitch.

John Martin, the only surviving member of General Custer's detachment in the battle of Little Bib Horn, was the guest of honor of the American Theatre, New York, one evening recently at one of the performances of "Custer's Last Fight."

The performance of "The Mikado" has been forbidden in London, and the question as to this prohibition lately came up in parliament. It was denied that Japan had made any request in the matter, the prohibition being explained on the ground that the relations between Great Britain and Japan were particularly cordial just now.

TALES OF CITIES.

Bloemfontein, the capital of the Orange River Colony, has now a population of about 34,000.

London has already found an abbreviation for the taximeter cabs. They are called "taxicabs." Sixteen cents a mile is the tariff.

Tulse Hill, at Ventnor, is said to hold the curious record of being the steepest street in any British town. The gradient is one in four and a half.

One of the features of Constantinople is the great numbers of dogs that roam its streets. They are the common property of the city and are valuable as scavengers.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR.

A woman does a lot of worrying just to satisfy herself that she is a good mother.

A man doesn't care whether you call it income or just plain pay, if there is plenty of it.

Some women are so conscientious they won't spend any more money on clothes than they can get hold of.

A man imagines he is having a fine time if he can sit on the piazza in his shirt sleeves even when he is cold.

There are lots of women that the others would never speak to if they weren't afraid they'd miss the things they say about people.—New York Press.

SCIENCE SIFTINGS.

The earth is five and a half times heavier than a globe of water of the same size would be.

Within the last fifty years more than 260,000 miles of cable have been laid on the bottom of the sea.

Thorium, one of the rare metals, was discovered by Berzelius in 1828 in a Norwegian mineral called thorite, from the Scandinavian god Thor. Water does not act upon it, and nitric and sulphuric acids act on it with difficulty.

The Mystery of Carneycroft

BY JOSEPH BROWN COOKE. COPYRIGHT 1907 BY STORY-PRESS CORPORATION

"You bet they did, an' they come a-runnin', too," said the man. "I never seen a scarder lot o' men in my life."

"Made pretty good business for Hoskins that night, eh?" I ventured.

"Wal, I guess it did!" he rejoined, with a grin. "An' it'll keep right on makin' good business fur him, too! Them fellers won't git over talkin' o' that fur a month o' Sundays!"

"How did they get home that night?" I continued persuasively.

His grin broadened as he chuckled. "Them as couldn't walk had to ride home in this 'ere rig. Haow I ever piled so many in is more'n I kin tell!" and he laughed immoderately at the thought.

"So when business is good with Hoskins it's likely to be good with you, too, eh?" I went on.

"Most ginerally," he replied. "Most ginerally; 'less Hoskins gits all their money 'fore they're ready fur me an' their credit ain't no good."

"And when the men aren't working at Carney's they spend a good deal of time at Hoskins', don't they?" I asked.

"Yes, an' a good deal o' money, too," he rejoined. "Ole Carney allus paid 'em well; nobody can't deny that."

"So it's a good thing for Hoskins and a good thing for you, to get them away from the place every little while," I suggested warily.

"I s'pose it is, an' I s'pose we can't neither of us help it if they want to leave," he returned sullenly and with sudden suspicion as he pulled his horse up sharply at the station platform.

My train arrived in a few moments, and as I was about to step aboard I drew the fellow toward me and said to him in a low tone, that others might not hear:

"The men were quite right about the ghosts. I saw them myself, from my window, perfectly distinctly and exactly as you have described them."

The car was already moving and I swung up on the step and left him standing bewildered.

CHAPTER II.
Two Letters.

My Dear Mr. Ware:

My apologies for not replying to your letter of nearly two weeks ago are weakened by the fact that I am now writing to you in great distress.

My brother will be here day after to-morrow, and it has just occurred to me that I have made a most dreadful blunder and I need your advice more than ever before.

You know, I asked Miss Weston, my old school friend, to come here and stay with me for a time at least, and she did so, understanding, as I have since learned, that Jack was away and not to return.

She is here now and seems to me to be quite ill again, but the embarrassing part of it is that she and Jack was once great sweethearts, and his going away to Honolulu was really due to some disagreement that they had nearly three years ago. I never knew just what the trouble was. As Annie was my dearest friend in school and afterwards, too, I quite overlooked the whole matter in my anxiety to have someone with me when I was so awfully alone. You remember I merely telegraphed her to come, and she did not even know of father's death and supposed, of course, that Jack was away.

Now she is too ill to go home again, and Jack is coming so soon that I don't know what to do. It is a frightfully embarrassing position to be placed in, especially as there was so much mystery over their separation.

You see, under the circumstances, I cannot possibly adopt your suggestion to close the house and come to town for the present, and, anyway, I feel that I ought to stay here till Jack comes to keep an eye on father's things.

Miss Weston is, I am sure, quite too ill to be moved, and with Mrs. Remsen, our old housekeeper, I feel perfectly safe.

Please write me at once and advise me in my present predicament.

Very truly yours,
FLORENCE CARNEY.

P. S. There is a rumor that Carney-Croft is haunted, and some of the village people even go so far as to say that you saw a ghost when you were here. Have you heard anything of this sort? It is ridiculous, of course, but it makes me nervous. F. C.

My Dear Miss Carney:

Your letter of yesterday is at hand. I would not worry, if I were you, about your brother and Miss Weston. It was probably some childish affair that they have both forgotten by this time.

I am sorry to hear that Miss Weston is ill again, for it must add to your cares materially, but as you have told me that all your house servants are reliable and trustworthy I suppose you are managing fairly well.

I expect your brother in town to-day or to-morrow and he will probably stay here over night and go on to Carney-Croft the next day. Either he or I will telegraph you as soon as he arrives.

I thought you knew about the ghosts or I should have written you before. There were two large pieces of mosquito netting in my room which were apparently intended for covering portraits. I threw them over a chair-back near the window and they blew out during the night and caught in the branches of the trees in front of the house. I knew that some of the men from the village had seen them and taken them for ghosts, but as I myself saw your butler pulling them down early the next morning I supposed the whole story had been explained to the satisfaction of everybody.

Very sincerely yours,
FREDERICK WARE.

CHAPTER III.
John Carney.

As Mr. Carney was ushered into my private office I rose to greet him, and stepped from behind my desk with outstretched hand; but as he raised his face to mine I drew back in amazement and disgust and motioned him to a chair with scant ceremony.

"Drunk! the beast!" I muttered to myself, as he shambled drowsily to the seat I had indicated and dropped into it with a thickly uttered "Thank you."

He seemed to fall asleep for a moment, and I eyed him steadily for some time before I could bring myself to speak. And so the handsome, straightforward, manly fellow of three years ago had sunk to this! A sodden, degraded wretch, unfit to associate with pigs in a sty, and yet the heir to a vast estate and the sole legitimate protector of the sweet-faced orphan at Carney-Croft who awaited his coming with the impatience born of love and hope and confiding trust! God help the poor girl now, and God help the accursed wreck that sat opposite me!

His heavy breathing wheezing in and out of his throat; his listless, stupid face, flushed and mottled from the effects of his excesses; his body, dripping with perspiration which stood out in beads on his forehead and glistened on his hand as it lay in the sunlight; and his drooping, blood-shot eyes, now half closed and again wandering aimlessly about the room; all combined to make a disgusting picture. It was with the utmost difficulty that I could restrain my feelings sufficiently to address him with ordinary civility. Finally, my judgment prevailed over my indignation, and I remembered that I was the legal adviser, only, of the house of Carney, and not in any way concerned with the moral conduct of its head.

"You had a comfortable journey, I hope," I remarked icily.

"As comfortable as such a journey can be," he wheezed, turning his bleary eyes toward me as he spoke. "The conditions which made my homecoming necessary did not make my trip enjoyable, and I traveled with the greatest possible haste, as there are certain matters that I want you to arrange for me at once."

He spoke his words with a force and precision unusual in a man in his condition, but he was evidently controling himself to the utmost degree and, as he talked, his face flushed in great blotches, his blood-shot eyes seemed almost bursting from his head, and the perspiration oozed from his body and trickled in little streams down his cheeks and neck.

"THE PERFECT WAY."

Scores of Plainfield Citizens Have Learned It.

If you suffer from backache,

A bad back means sick kidneys.

Neglect it, troubles follow.

Doan's Kidney Pills are made for kidneys only.

Are endorsed by Plainfield people.

Mrs. Martha Snedeker, of 244 East Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Some six weeks ago I began using Doan's Kidney Pills for an attack of kidney trouble that had been annoying me for a long time, procuring the remedy at Randolph's drug store. My main symptoms were severe back aches and pains in the top and back of my head; a stiffness in the limbs—especially my arms. I had a languid feeling of weakness and depression and physicians did not help me. Doan's Kidney Pills reached the cause of my trouble, however, and that very quickly and now all those aches and pains I have described, have disappeared and the kidneys are perfectly normal, all of which is due to the healing virtues of Doan's Kidney Pills and their direct action on the kidneys."

The Judge Uses Forceful Language.

Judge W. B. Simmons, of Fincastle, Va., told the reporter that L. & M. Paint was used on his residence in 1882, and held its color well for 21 years; he furthermore said that 3 years ago he was induced to use another paint and is sorry he did, because the other paint didn't make good. The Judge will now always use L. & M., because he knows if any defect exists in L. & M. Paint the house will be repainted for nothing.

The L. & M. Zinc hardens the L. & M. White Lead and makes L. & M. Paint wear like iron for 10 to 15 years.

Actual cost of L. & M. about $1.20 per gallon.

GOTHAM'S AMUSEMENTS

When the new and great dreamland is opened today, the world's amusements will be assembled within the enclosure which Senator Reynolds presents to Coney's visitors for the fourth year. The magnitude of improvements can be estimated when their cost exceeded $1,500,000. Every nail and board from the apex of the lofty electric tower to the promenade has benn replaced in the renovation of the resort. The tower will stand out against the skyline, a great wall of white and green. Below the tower is the sylvan retreat which is called the "Tropics," because of its Bermudean similarity. Above the garden swing the airships.

Toward the ocean is the "Shoot the Chutes" and the lagoon with its Hippodrome Circus Ring. Fronting the promenades are the new and magnificent buildings where the new productions can be seen. The allegorical figure of Creation spreads above the Surf avenue entrance. Immediately inside is the production, which is enlarged by the additional masterpiece, "The Awakening." Then seven heads with lifelike expressions beckon to the visitor to enter the building, where the septet of illusions, allegorical of the days of the week, are gathered under the name of the "Arabian Nights Up to Date." Further along is the "Bay of Naples" and the snow covered Switzerland ride. In vivid contrast, towers the Yellowstone Mountain, more than a hundred feet above sea level. Motor cars whirl about the heights, which are produced in all their natural realism. The Panodrome is another feature of the Yellowstone ride. The latter trip is made in a Pullman parlor car, and carries with it the same sensation as travelling across the continent.

"Mrs. Warren's Profession" will be presented at the Grand Opera House, next week. This Shaw play has provoked more comment than any other literary or theatrical event in recent years. The reading public has been familiar for many years with "Mrs. Warren's Profession" in book form, but because of a strong puritanical opposition the play was not presented on the stage until its well favored production this season in New York City. "Mrs. Warren's Profession" is composed of live-wire material which not other playwright has had the courage to handle in dramatic form. It deals with a social problem of tremendous force, but oers no preachments or sermons. George Bernard Shaw has had the courage to strike at the rotton heart of modern interwoven moneyed interests. He has shown that from 35 per cent to 5 per cent has tempted our biggest and mightiest men of the day to rub dollar on dollar with the woman who has the courage to pose in the open as a purveyor of luxurious demands. It is not the restriction of a lot of ruffianly New York policemen, but the support of every clergyman in the land and women who stand for right and law of order in our great social system that Mrs. Warren needs. Why keep the growing boy or girl in ignorance of the very fundamental unprincipled principles which will surround their future footsteps? "Mrs. Warren's Profession" indeed has a mission. The world is as it is—let us behold it painted in the master colors of George Bernard Shaw, the Irishman who is not afraid to speak the truth. Miss Mary Shaw, who needs no introduction to the American public, will appear as Mrs. Warren, and a company that is adequate in every detail will support her.

Ruef to Help Prosecutor.

San Francisco, Cal., May 18.—Abraham Ruef, who yesterday pleaded guilty to extortion in the French restaurant cases, went before the Grand Jury yesterday afternoon. On his testimony it was reported late last night that indictments against Mayor Schmitz and many dealing officials and heads of corporations dealing with the city had been found in connection with the trolley privileges. It is announced that Ruef has been promised practical immunity for his aid to the prosecution. One report has it that he will be let o with a one year sentence on the extortion charge, and will be immediately patroled that he may act as assistant counsel to Assistant District Attorney Heney in prosecuting the men against whom he testified in the Grand Jury room today.

"Never did a check come in more timely nor in a greater hour of need. And probably never was a settlement more promptly made--only four days having elapsed between the time I filed the papers with you, in Springfield, and the return of the Company's check from New Jersey."

—W. D. W., Mechanicsburg, Ill.

The attention of renters of Safe Deposit boxes in New York is called to the fact that New York State levies a tax on the contents of the Safe Deposit box of a non-resident at his or her death, which tax may, of course, be avoided by keeping one's valuables in the same state in which one resides. It is, therefore, greatly to the advantage of a resident of New Jersey to keep personal property in a Safe Deposit box within the state.

"CENTRAL PARK"

Was—Is—Will Be

IT WAS, only about a year ago, just a pretty farm.

IT IS to day the finest building site in Plainfield, with broad avenues macadamized their entire width, concrete curb, sidewalks, trees, gas, electric light, in fact all improvements. Nearly $100,000 expended in new and handsome dwellings, now ready for the market.

WHAT IT WILL BE we hardly dare predict, with contracts out for even more extensive improvements and twelve more handsome residences.

Central Park is that beautifully situated tract bounded by Park, Prospect, Hillside and Thornton Avenues.

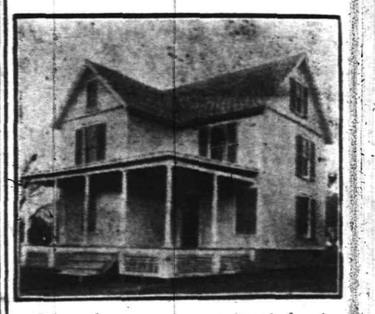
NEW SYSTEM OF BUILDING.

A MARVEL IN THE SCIENCE OF CONSTRUCTION.

A method far in advance of anything formerly used in the preparation of the different parts of a house when erected in sections, making it easy to construct any design of a house, and a very superior house for all seasons, countries and climates at a great reduction in cost.



These houses are constructed principally from the best kiln dried lumber in a factory entirely protected from weather, where best high speed woodworking machines are used for cutting and shaping of every piece, reducing cost for mechanics fully one-half, making a superior house when finished.

Houses or other structures erected under this system make the warmest houses in winter, and the strongest building that can be constructed with any material, the fiercest storm fails to cause any vibration whatever. They are adapted to receive all improvements, plumbing, lighting, heating, etc., when desired.

A new method of lath and plaster is used for interior finish, making a perfect indestructable wall superior to anything ever before used.

CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY

St. Mary's T. A. B. Society Observes Its Thirty-Fifth Birthday.

A VESPER SERVICE

Address by Rev. Patrick Cody, Who Administered the pledge to Founders of Society—Entertainment Tonight.

St. Mary's T. A. B. Society celebrated its thirty-fifth anniversary yesterday, and to mark the occasion a solemn vesper service was held last night in St. Mary's church. It was largely attended. Delegates were present from the Knights of Columbus, Holy Name Society, Ancient Order of Hibernians, Elizabeth and Bound Brook societies, and from the Holy Name Society of Dunellen.

The sermon was preached by Rev. Patrick Cody, the venerable rector of St. James' church, Newark, who, thirty-five years ago, administered the pledge to the founders of the organization. Father Delehanty was the celebrant, Father Charles Smith, of Westfield, was deacon, and Father Vincent Sciolla was sub-deacon.

The music was noteworthy. The programme included solos by Miss Elizabeth Day, Edward Walsh and Miss Anna Daly, and quartette work by Albert Mathews, Miss Daly, Miss Day and Mr. Walsh. The church and chancel choirs sang together.

Father Cody, after congratulating the society on the completion of its thirty-fifth year, preached on total abstinence. The virtue was of apostolic origin in the church, he said, and was the cornerstone of religious life. Total abstinence was necessary for salvation with most men, because the neglect of the virtue would lead them into sin and into forgetfulness of their religious duties. So the society was to be congratulated on being the coadjutors of the clergy in the work of the church.

The T. A. B. Society will hold further celebration of the anniversary tonight, when an entertainment will be given in its hall, Fourth and Liberty streets. Father Bogan, rector of St. Mary's church, will deliver an address.

The society was organized here May 19, 1872, with a charter membership of nineteen. Of the charter members three survive: Peter Flynn, Sr., John Walsh and John Barry. During its existence the society has paid out nearly $20,000 in benefits. It owns its own building, with adjoining property, valued at $8,000 in all. The membership is nearly one hundred, and the treasury is in good condition.

The officers of the society are as follows: President, M. D. O'Keefe; vice-president, E. T. Lynch; financial secretary, C. H. Walden; recording secretary, R. J. Birmingham; treasurer, J. C. Carney; executive committee, T. F. Carty, George McClusker, John Walsh.

The celebration committee is made up of M. D. O'Keeffe, chairman, John Walsh, J. C. Carney, E. T. Lynch, R. J. Birmingham, D. B. Doyle, T. J. Carney, J. P. O'Keeffe, J. C. Callahan, J. M. Conway, J. T. McCue C. H. Walden, George McClusker.

INSTRUMENT MAKERS STRIKE.

Force at Surgical Works Goes Out for Extra Hour of Leisure.

Because of their request for a reduction of working time from fifty-eight and a half hours to fifty-seven and a half hours in a week was refused, the force at the Baird Surgical Works, East Fourth street, went out on strike this morning. Thirty-five of the forty employees quit.

The men presented their demand a week ago. They wanted the hours reduction to enable them to quit work Saturdays at 12 o'clock instead of 1 o'clock. They asked for an answer Saturday. Burton G. Baird, head of the works, told them Saturday afternoon that the demand would not be granted. The strike followed.

Will Bless Corner Stone.

The corner stone of Mount Saint Mary's College will be blessed by Rt. Rev. James A. McFaul, DD., LL D., Bishop of the Trenton Diocese, Sunday afternoon, May 26, at 3:30 o'clock, at which time a large number of distinguished clergymen of the church and others will be present. Invitations to the ceremonies have been issued by the Sisters of Mercy.

Dr. George Herring Weds.

Dr. George D. Herring, of this city, and Miss Rhoda Culbertson, formerly of Plainfield, were married today at the home of Miss Culbertson's uncle in Great Meadows, N. J. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John P. Crane. On returning from their honeymoon, they will reside at Truell Court.

HIRED AN AUTOMOBILE; MUST PAY $40 DAMAGES

HENRY SWOODY FINDS IT RATHER EXPENSIVE TO TRAVEL IN STYLE.

The case of William Jeroloman, of the borough, against Henry Swoody, in which the plaintiff sought to recover for damages to his automobile, was heard before Justice Snape, in the borough, this morning. S. S. Swackhame represented the plaintiff and secured judgment for $40 and costs.

Two weeks ago Swoody hired Jeroloman's automobile for a couple of hours, with the understanding that he was not to leave Plainfield or North Plainfield. He claimed that Swoody kept the auto four hours, that he went to Bound Brook and that he damaged his machine to the extent of $23 and $10 additional for having it towed home. Mr. Swackhamer called several witnesses, machinists employed in a local garage to prove his claim for damages. Justice Snape promptly gave the plaintiff judgment for $40 and costs.

TWO BIG CROWDS ENJOY FOREPAUGH-SELLS CIRCUS

AT LEAST 12,000 PEOPLE IN TWO AUDIENCES—FRONT STREET DESERTED.

Circus-goers packed the big tent of the Forepaugh-Sells' show at both afternoon and night performances Saturday. The tent's seating capacity is 6,000, and it was filled at each performance. Front street had nothing of the usual Saturday night air after dark. Every body, apparently, was at the circus.

The crowds were handled well by the trolley company. The delays were not unduly extended, and there were no accidents. The police had no trouble, and no robberies were reported.

The show was an exceptionally good one, so both public and show people were pleased. One of the circus staff said Saturday night that Plainfield had had a black eye in the show business, but they were thoroughly pleased with the reception accorded them on this trip.

The circus made business good. Some of the smaller stores on the outskirts of the city probably suffered a bit, but the great majority of the merchants did extra business with the people drawn in from out of town. Some of the circus money stayed in the city. Percy Dayton had the contract for animal feed, and W. W. Warnock furnished 900 loaves of bread for the huge force. The show paid $100 into the city treasury for a license.

The circus city disappeared soon after the close of the performance. It went on to Newark. Early rising Plainfielders may have another glimpse of it Wednesday morning. It will pass through here on the way to Easton from Elizabeth.

DUNELLEN'S LOSE TO RARITAN INVINCIBLES.

Defeated Team Put Up a Strong Game and Showed Great Possibilities.

The Dunellen amateur league team, lost a hard-fought contest to the Invincibles, of Raritan, at Dunellen, Saturday afternoon, the score being 3to 2. The visitors had Kraft and Johnson in the points and the former West End twirler had the goods with him. He allowed Dunellen but five hits, while Sanford, pitching for the home team was touched for only six hits. The latter showed up strong in the box and with a little better support would have won the game. Kraft had a total of twelve strike outs, while Sandford was credited with seven.

A big improvement was noticed in the Dunellen team, under the management of James Penny and it is believed that his aggregation will make a strong fight in the league series for the pennant. Next Saturday the team will play its first league game with Bound Brook at Dunellen. The score of Saturday's game by innings follows:

Batteries—Kraft and Johnson, Sandford and Romand. Umpire—Jesse Ayers.

Rev. George Mooney, formerly pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, and now with the South Orange M. E. church, has been quite ill, threatened with pneumonia. His son is also ill, suffering from an attack of diphtheria.

—Delicious strawberries are a feature of the big fruit and vegetable display at Neuman Brothers. The fruit is extra fine at present and prices low.

PASTOR'S ANNIVERSARY

Rev. M. A. Alexander and Mt. Olive Congregation Conclude Week's Celebration.

A YEAR'S GOOD WORK

Church Has Prospered Since He Assumed Charge and Outlook is Bright.

The first anniversary of Rev. M. A. Alexander's pastorate of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, which was celebrated last week, was concluded at the church last night. The services were well attended throughout the week and pastor and people were encouraged and inspired to do even greater things the coming year.

Sunday, May 12, Rev. Dr. Sutton E. Griggs preached a sermon in the morning, subject "Man as a Master." In the afternoon G. W. Wright and A. J. Cary made addresses, subject "The relation of the Sunday-school to the Church," and in the evening Rev. H. C. Ashley preached the sermon to Odd Fellows. Monday night Rev. Dr. Griggs lectured, subject "How We May Solve Our Problem as a Race," and Tuesday night Rev. T. J. King preached an able sermon to the young people. Rev. G. W. Bailey of the Calvary Baptist church, preached Wednesday night, and the chhoir from his church sang. Rev. E. Flowers, of Cranford, preached Thursday night and Rev. T. J. King delivered the sermon Friday night in the absence of Rev. W. B. Reed. After the sermon the annual report was read by Pastor Alexander.

Yesterday morning Rev. Dr. J. C. Love, of Montclair, preached the anniversary sermon, subject "A Good Soldier." In the afternoon Rev. Mr. Diggs, of the Mt. Zion A.M.E.church, preached to the Sunday-school, and last night the pastor, Mr. Alexander, delivered the closing sermon, subject "I Will Guide Thee With Mine Eye." The total amount collected during the anniversary was $91.93.

Pastor Alexander's report showed much progress during the first twelve months, which began shortly after a successful revival whichh resulted in 109 accessions to the membership. The total accessions, including the revival during the year, were fifty-nine by baptism, an aggregate of 153; revivals conducted at home and in other churches, four; conversions, 134; sermons preached, 140; lectures delivered, 10; funerals attended, 9; marriages, 6; conventions attended during the year, 6; money collected by the church and other societies, $2,078.89; by the Sunday-school, $222.07; by the B. Y. P. U., $95.46; by the Women's Home Missionary Society, $41.04; by the Organ Club, $616.27; grand total, $3,053.73. The church has given to foreign missions $104, for education, $22.50; for other charitable purposes and travelling ministers, $90.

The amount in the bank through the efforts of the Organ Club is $268. The church has organized a building fund and a banking committee to deposit money for the ultimate purpose of building a new house of worship. The report showed that all departments of the church are doing good work.

Student Strike-Breaker.

Chief of Police Hayes, of Hoboken, telephoned to Chief Kiely Saturday, asking him to look up the parents of a young man giving his name as G. L. Thompson, who has been working as a strike-breaker on the Holland-American line pier for a week. Thompson, who is supposed to be a graduate of Stevens Institute, and a student at a college in New York, alleges he is working as a strike-breaker for sociological experience. He told Chief Hayes he was the son of a wealthy Plainfielder. Chief Kiely has been unable to find his parents.

JURY AWARDS CONWAY VERDICT FOR $1,625

JUDGE VAIL REFUSES TO ALLOW FITZGERALD CASE TO COME UP THIS TERM.

The jury in the case of James Conway, of this city, against the Public Service Corporation, returned a verdict of $1,625 for the plaintiff, this afternoon, after a few hours' deliberation.

Mr. Conway, in company with Stephen Fitzgerald and two women were returning home from Scotch Plains one night in October last, when both he and Fitzgerald were thrown from the trolley car as it rounded a curve. The men claimed that they were both severely injured, Conway being a patient at the hospital for two weeks, during which time and since he has been under the care of Dr. Ellis W. Hedges.

The physician was one of his principal witnesses and substantiated his statements. Conway was represented by J. J. Kiernan, of Elizabeth, who also brought suit against the company for Fitzgerald for a similar amount of damages, $10,000. Judge Vail stated after the return of the jury today that he would refuse to try Fitzgerald's case at this term of court as the verdict in the first case might influence the jury.

Y. M. C. A. WHITEWASHES BOUND BROOK LAURELS

MINFORD'S CURVES RESPONSIBLE FOR A 3 TO 0 SCORE.

Inability to connect with Minford's deceptive curves and twists caused Bound Brook's defeat in the opening game with the Y. M. C. A. on Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon. It was the first local contest in the Inter-City Amateur League, and although the circus which encamped on grounds adjoining the oval, kept many away, a good sized crowd witnessed the game.

The contest was marked by a few brilliant plays, in which Captain Craig took part. He also led in the stick work, securing two hits. Harney, for the visiting team, pitched a good game, but the home team touched him for seven singles, while Minford allowed but two. Tracey Howard caught an excellent game for the locals, but can hardly be considered heavy enough for backstop work at present. The Y .M. C. A. team scored one run in the first inning and one run each in the fifth and eight innings. Several times Bound Brook had a man on third, but the necessary hit was not forthcoming. The score:

Two base hits—Payne. First base on balls—Off Harney, 2. Struck out—By Minford 16, by Harney 11. Left on bases—Bound Brook 3, Y. M. C. A. 4. First base on errors—Bound Brook 4, Y. M. C. A. 1. Stolen bases—Craig, Banks, Pond, Rugen, Hawk, Hayles. Sacrifice hits—H. Moynihan. Time of game—1.55. Umpire—Brown.

SCOTCH PLAINS WINS FROM CLINTON AVENUE

THE OPENING OF INTER-CITY LEAGUE MARKED BY A FINE GAME.

A fine contest marked the opening of the Inter-City Amateur League season at Scotch Plains Saturday, when Clinton Avenue crossed bats with the local aggregation, the latter winning by a 2 to 1 score. Both teams put up a good article of ball and from start to finish it was a pitchers' battle between Randolph and Gus Frentz. The former fanned nine men, while Frentz struck out four batsmen, and allowed but one clean hit. The home team found Randolph for four hits and a scratch. Neither side earned a run. Jim Scot tallied the only run for the Plainfield boys on a wild throw.

Several time the fielders on the home team robbed the visitors of runs, and it was impossible for them to get beyond third base. Mehaffey, of this city, playing third for the 'Plains, distinguished himself several times. The same teams will meet again at Crescent Oval on Saturday. The score:

Base on balls—Off Frentz, 1. Left on bases—Clinton Avenue 3, Scotch Plains 6. Double plays—Mehaffey to J. Jacot. Struck out—By Randolph 9, by Frentz 5. Stolen bases—G. Frentz, A. Jacot, Mehaffey. Passed balls—O'Loughlin. Umpire—Dalley.

IDEAL GOLFING SATUTDAY

Delightful Weather Brought Out Large Fields on Both Local Courses.

MANY GOOD SCORES

Frank C. Talmadge and R. Story Rowland Tie for Honors at the Country Club.

The delightful weather on Saturday attracted a large field of golfers to the Plainfield Country Club. The conditions were ideal for the game and there was a noticeable improvement in many of the scores. Beside the several events on the course, a decided feature of the social life was the first open tea of the season at the clubhouse. The attractive place was thronged with members of the club and their friends and all enjoyed the delightful programme by the Neapolitan Hungarian Orchestra from New York. This marked the commencement of social activities and from now on they will be features at the club.

In the weekly play for the golf committee cup Frank C. Talmadge and R. Story Rowland were tied for first honors with a net score of 79, while W. Lester Glenney, F. O. Reinhart, and W. D. Riggs, divided the remaining points. The scores:

These scores were returned for the Green committee cup:

C. C. Burke, Sr., 98, 15-83; George E. Cathcart, 100, 17-83; A. G. Henderson, 104, 20-84; H. S. Rogers, 102, 16-86; Hugh R. Fox, 111, 17-94.

For the May cup, Class A, three players qualified and Dudley H. Barrows and R. Story Rowland returned a tie score. The winner of that match will make the fourth one to qualify for match play for the cup, while the defeated player will play for the consolation May cup. Those who qualified for the match play for the Class A cup were the following:

Frank C. Talmadge, 79; W. Lester Glenney, 80; Frank O. Reinhart, 82. Dudley H. Barrows and R. Story Rowland each returned a score of 84. Those who qualified for the consolation cup were C. B. Morgan, 86; E. B. Shoemaker, 88, and W. D. Riggs, 92.

R. H. Cox defeated C. C. Burke, Jr., 6 up and 4 to play; Herbert S. Rogers defeated George E. Cathcart, by default; C. C. Burke, Sr., defeated Hugh F. Fox, by 4 up and 3 to play and A. G. Henderson defeated George F. Earl, by default.

There was also a large field out at Park Golf Club on Saturday, when the play for the President's cup, was continued. By finiishing in second place with a net score of 91, Charles B. Morse now leads for this trophy with a total of five points. Rev. Charles L. Goodrich won first honors with a net score of 90, while Samuel St. John McCutchen came in third receiving one point. The course in in much better condition and the greens are very fast. The scores:

Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, 104, 14-90; Charles B. Morse, 108, 17-91; Samuel St. John Mc Cutchen, 109, 11-98; Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll, 116, 16-100; Reuben Knox, 119, 13-106; Charles A. Reed, 116, 8-108; Rev. L. R. Howard, 137, 27-110.

At the Westfield Golf Club on Saturday the event was the qualifying round for the June cup, and those who qualified were the following:

R. L. VanDyke, 104, 12-92; W. M. Townley, 94, 0-94; George E. Cruse, 95, 0-95; A. E. Keller, 104, 8-96.

Gathered Up Eight "Dips."

Eight pickpockets were caught in the police dragnet Saturday. Three were added to the catch in the afternoon. They were George J. Mackey, Michael Ryan and Michael Donovan, all arrested by Plain Clothes Man Florence McCarthy. They were held longer than the five picked up in the morning, because one or two "touches" were said to have been made. Nobody appeared to file complaints against the trio, and they were released yesterday afternoon.

Who Lost This Check?

The police hold a check for $2, signed by the Somerset county collector, which was found on Saturday. It is endorsed. The owner may have it by identifying it at police headquarters.

Mrs. J. S. Harden, South Branch, has returned home after a visit with her son, Charles Harden, of this city.

Tomorrow evening, at the Casino.

CITY ASSESSORS START OUT IN AN AUTOMOBILE

WILL MAKE THEIR ANNUAL ROUNDS WITHIN TWO DAYS.

Joseph A. Hubbard, Charles H. Hand, H. C. Van Emburgh and Harry C. Runyon, comprising the Board of Assessors for Plainfield, started out this morning in an automobile on their annual rounds assessing property. All of the First Ward and part of the Second Ward was finished today, and the balance will be completed tomorrow.

It being impossible for the assessors to cover the city within the prescribed time on foot or in carriages, the Common Council made provision for an automobile to be used by the board and in this way much time and labor is saved. It is approximately estimated that there are about 300 new buildings in the city this year to be assessed for the first time and this adds considerable to the work of the board.

NURSES' GRADUATION AT CASINO THURSDAY NIGHT

SEVEN YOUNG WOMEN WILL BE PRESENTED WITH DIPLOMAS.

The Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital has issued invitations to the twelfth anniversary graduation exercises of the Training School for Nurses to be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock at the Casino. Already there have been graduated from this training school thirty young women, while this year's class has seven members, but their three year's terms of service at the hospital expire at various times from December, 1906, to November, 1907, according to the date on which each entered the school.

William R. Cock will preside at the exercises and present the certificates to the graduates. Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, will open the exercises with prayer. The address will be delivered by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church and Dr. Ellis W. Hedges will speak to the graduates on behalf of the medical board.

The Muhlenberg Hospital Training School Alumnae has arranged to hold a dance after the exercises, for the entertainment of the pupil nurses and their friends. This innovation is popular with the pupils. The music during the programme and for the dancing will be instrumental only and will be furnished by Suhr's Imperial Orchestra. All persons who are interested in the training school or the hospital are cordially invited to attend.

FINISHING TOUCHES TO HOME OF Y. W. C. A.

Building Rapidly Being Placed in Shape for Occupancy.

Many are watching with interest the repairs that are being made in order to get the house recently purchased by the Young Women's Christian Association at 212 East Front street ready for occupancy. Through the kindness of several local paperhangers, the offices, library, parlor and several bed rooms are being repapered and so adding greatly to the attractiveness of the house.

A few changes have been made in the time of the educational classes, for the convenience of those desiring the work. This evening the embroidery class will meet; Tuesday, the dressmaking; Thursday, the German, Bible and millinery. The Bible class this week will have a most interesting talk by Miss Elizabeth Chadbourne.

The secretary, Miss Tapping, will be in the office every day this week, except Wednesday, from 11.30 to 12.30 and during the evening. The Association telephone number is 44.

Announce Approaching Marriage.

Mrs. Hannah Cairns, of West Fifth street, has issued invitations to the marriage of her daughter, Miss Edith Cairns, and Lucius Wightman, of this city. The ceremony will take place Saturday, June 8, at the home of the bride's mother.

Drunks Gently Treated.

Howard Hill, Theodore Walker, Fred Gabvel and Pasquale Astelengo, all charged with drunkenness, were arraigned before City Judge Runyon this morning. They were released under suspended sentence.

Rev. Frank McDaniels, formerly pastor of the South Orange M. E. church, now of Hackensack, has been obliged to give up his pastoral work for the present, owing to a nervous breakdown.

ELOPERS HAD REVOLVER

WIFE ON THEIR TRAIL

Police Here Traced the Pair to Westfield, Where Chief O'Neil Nabbed Them Through Photograph.

Acting for the police of this city, Chief of Police O' Neil, of Westfield, arrested Pasquale Meno and Laura Benadetto, alleged elopers, in Westfield, Saturday afternoon. They were taken into custody as they were about to board a car for Plainfield.

Meno lives at 80 Catherine street, New York. His wife came to police headquarters in this city Friday evening, and asked Chief Kiely to help her find him. She said he had gone to New Haven, where her sister, the Bernadetto woman, lived, to elope. She said Meno and her sister were likely to be at the house of a relative on Cottage place.

Chief Kiely sent for Amerigo Brancati, his Italian detective, and detailed him on the case. Mrs. Meno looked doubtfully at Brancati, who is a little bit under medium height, and said she was afraid he might be hurt by her husband. She said Meno had a big revolver and a knife, and might use them. The chief told her she could trust Brancati to take care of himself, and the detective went out with her.

At the Cottage place house the officer learned that Meno and his companion had been there. They were not in sight, and Brancati was told they had left the city. Chief Kiely guessed they would go to Westfield and telephoned Chief O'Neil to look for them. He sent a photograph of Meno, brought out by the wife, to the Westfield chief.

With the photograph in hand, O'Neil had no trouble in recognizing Meno when he saw him, with the Brandetto woman, waiting for a Plainfield car. When O'Neil called up Plainfield headquarters to apprise Chief Kiely of the arrest, the latter asked if Meno had been searched. Chief O'Neil told Chief Kiely, in answer to the latter's query, that Meno had not been searched. He was told of the gun and the knife, and he hustled back to look for them. He reported that no weapon was to be found on the Italian.

"Have you searched the woman?" asked Chief Kiely. O'Neil hadn't "You had better do it," counselled Chief Kiely. O'Neil did, and found a loaded revolver pocketed in the woman's corset. There was no knife.

The couple were left in the charge of the Westfield authorities. They will make the formal complaints against them.

DAVID SHAY, R. S.

Which Means Runaway-Stopper, the Same Being Earned on Park Ave.

David Shay, clerk of the Country Club, distinguished himself in a runaway on Park avenue this morning. A big horse attached to a United States Express Company wagon started off from the North avenue corner, down Park avenue, while its driver was in a store. The animal was going at a hard gallop by the time the railroad bridge was reached at which point Mr. Shay got into action. He was with Chief of Police Kieley, and the latter started for the animal's head. Shay caught hold of the chief's arm.

"Hold on," he said, "I can stop him another way."

He ran into the road, caught hold of the tailboard of the wagon and swung himself in. The reins were hanging on a hook over the seat, and Mr. Shay caught hold of them. Before the corner was reached he had the runaway at a standstill. Then he climbed down, turned the wagon over to the excited driver, dusted off his gloves and hat, and continued his walk with the chief, modestly refusing to meet the admiring eyes of the crowd lined up on both sides of the street.

TROLLEY VICTIM'S FUNERAL.

Requiem Mass Over John Kiely at St. Mary's Church This Morning.

The funeral services of John Kiely of West Third street, who died on Friday as the result of injuries received in being run down by a trolley car on West Front street, was held this morning at 9 o'clock from St. Mary's church. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends, and many floral tributes.

Father Delehanty conducted the requiem mass. The interment was in St. Mary's cemetery, and the pallbearers were James Muldowney, John Conway, Michael Higgins, Frank Burke, Timothy Murphy and Patrick Carroll.

NEWS OF THE

RECEIVER'S SALE

—OF—

FINE PIANOS

—AT—

81-83 MARKET STREET
NEWARK

(Now Going On—Both Day and Evening)

To the People of Essex County:

I wish to announce that another carload of used pianos has just been received this morning from the Fisher warerooms in Philadelphia. Among them are the following makes: Reed & Son, Steinway, Hardman, Kranich & Bach, Chickering, Groverstein & Fuller, Krakauer, Chas. H. Fisher & Co., Steger & Son, Sohmer, Ludke, etc., etc.

The prices of parlor uprights are from $25 up. For $75 you can purchase an upright that is fully worth $150. For $110 a brand new full size 5-year guarantee piano, the same as sold in one of the largest local stores under a different name for $225. For $325 I offer a regular $600 inside Player Piano. These are only a few of the extraordinary bargains offered here. Over 200 pianos have been sold since the opening of the sale last Saturday.

Whether you want a used piano or a new one, this Receiver's Sale is the greatest opportunity you will probably ever have to save a big proportion of the cost—50c on the Dollar. My advice to you is, therefore, to come at once and examine the large number of pianos now on the floor. They are selling rapidly, so if you want to profit by this sale there is no time to lose.

Respectfully,

J. V. STEGER,
Receiver,
81-83 Market St., Newark

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

Six hits in twenty-one innings is all that the St. Louis team could collect from the Giants' pitchers. In the games that Mathewson has twirled this season he has showed exceptional form.

According to many fans who have watched baseball affairs closely, it is predicted that the days of the Elizabeth Atlantic League team are numbered. On Friday the aggregation made ten errors in a game against Allentown, and it is not even making a fair showing.

Clark Griffith has finally succeeded in securing another pitcher for the Highlanders. The man he has signed is Earl Moore, who has been with the Clevelands for several seasons, and who, in shape, is a first-class twirler. Frank Delehanty and Walter Clarkson were traded to Cleveland for Moore.

Drew and Heyniger are dividing the pitching honors for Princeton this season and they give promise of being the star twirlers among the college nines.

Badgley, formerly of the Plainfield team, but now pitching for Trinity College, won agame from Union College Friday, 5 to 4. It is his first victory in many days.

The Newark Eastern League Club is trailing in the dust this season, occupying next to last position. The team has won six and lost ten games, and at the present pace will not get out of the second division.

Harry Burchell, of the Baltimore pitching staff, is doing fine work this year. He is steady and very effective at all times.

Burch, the former Westfield player, now with the St. Louis Nationals, is putting up a fast article of ball as a fielder and he gets a hit in nearly every game.

"Doc" Newton, formerly of the New York Americans, now with Montreal, is considered one of the best slab artists in the Eastern League.

Fair exchange is no robbery. Many former big league stars who were obtained from the minor leagues, are now stars in the latter organization, being too slow for the big clubs.

GOLF.

In the first of the interclub golf matches played at the Knollwood Country Club on Friday, the team captained by Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers was defeated by Miss Bishop's team by a score of 19 to 4. Miss Bishop defeated Mrs. Rogers 2 up.

The disagreeable weather this spring has given the Westfield Golf Club a set-back. The club was not able to open its active season until Saturday with qualifying rounds for the May cup.

Clarence Lyons, of this city, one of the active members of the Westfield Golf Club, expects to follow the game this season. When in form he is a strong player.

Rev. J. O. McKelvey is among the players missed at the Park GolfClub, this season. As yet he has not returned to the course and may not play as frequently as he did last year.

Dudley H. Barrows continues to play good golf at Princeton and is now afactor on the college team.

The Plainfield Country Club is fortunate in having such a man as Leighton Calkins as an officer and chairman of the Green committee. He devotes a great deal of time to the work in an effort to make the club one of the foremost in the Metropolitan district.

E. T. Barrows, president of the Plainfield Country Club, makes a most efficient head. He is progressive and his exceptional executive ability is valuable to the club.

During June and July the dinner-dances will be a great feature of the social life at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturdays. These were very enjoyable last season and proved a success.

The Park Golf Club continues to grow and many new members are being added to the club roll. The game promises to be more popular than ever on the sporty nine-hole course in the borough.

The Park Golf Club enjoys the distinction of having among its membership several ministers, who can be found on the course every Saturday and they fully enjoy the exercise.

Japanese Silks

WOVEN ON HAND LOOMS

At Generously Cut Prices.

A more genuine treat than this could not have been provided at this time of year--a sale of charming Hand Woven Japanese Silks, mostly white, therefore particularly timely for confirmation and bridal gowns.

These Jap Silks are notable for their evenness and fineness of weave, and tho extremely light and summery weight, have nothing in common with the sleazy kinds so often offered at low prices. These are the nicest kinds of launderable silks that come from Japan, and, notwithstanding pronounced advances in cost, we will sell them at prices in many instances as low as present wholesale cost.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Junior Society, of the Congregational church, will give a May-pole exercise on the church lawn Tuesday afternoon, May 28.

The annual meeting of the Women's Association, of the Congregational church, with reports for the year, important changes in the constitution and election of officers, will be held at the church tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The young people of the Congregational church, Sunday-school and Endeavor Society, will meet socially at the home of Miss Bessie Miller, 718 Madison avenue, Friday night, at 7:45 o'clock. An attractive programme will be presented.

The Women's Home Mission Circle, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will meet at the home of Mrs. Adelbert von Brakle, 1144 Thornton avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The members are requested to come prepared to sew.

A parlor meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. W. McCutchen, on Rockview avenue, Thursday afternoon, in the interest of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home. Another similar meeting will be held Monday afternoon, June 3, at the home of Mrs. M. S. Ackerman, Park and Crescent avenues.

The Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union will meet at the Y. M. C. A. tonight. Mrs. W. S. Lowry will have charge of the devotional exercises and W. D. Murray will teach the lesson for next Sunday, the topic being "Childhood and Education of Moses." The topic "Summer Schools" will be in charge of Mrs. J. A. Powlison.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Charles E. Vail, the Park avenue jeweler, sells the kind of watches that keeps accurate time. Let him show you his stock.

Save your earnings by placing them in the Plainfield Savings Bank, a modern, progressive and conservative institution. Liberal interest is paid.

TenEyck & Harris, the coal dealers, advise you to place your orders early for next winter's supply of coal. The firm handles only the best at lowest prices.

Dudley S. Miller, the Park avenue druggist, keeps a strictly up-to-date pharmacy, where the best medicines, toilet articles, confectionery and cigars and soda water are always to be found.

Groceries and meats are two of the most staple articles of food, and if you patronize S. Scheuer & Co., of West Front street, you will get the best at the lowest market prices. This firm is noted for the quality of goods sold and you only have to try them to appreciate this fact. Prompt deliveries are made.

GOTHAM'S AMUSEMENTS

The Hippodrome will close its doors for the season on next Saturday evening, May 25. This, the most novel and pretentious of all New York playhouses, has had a marvelously successful season under the direction of its new managers, Shubert & Anderson, who took possession of the house last July. It was reopened by them on September 1 with "A Society Circus," which had been the attraction the previous season. There seemed no lack of novelty in this operatic extravaganza, for it continued to draw crowded houses for twelve weeks, when it was superseded by two new spectacles, "Pioneer Days" and "Neptune's Daughter." If the early Hippodrome productions are to be called successes, the new show would have to be designated as a miracle of theatrical wonders. The three important features that went to make up the success of these pieces were the band of Sioux Indians in the ghost dance in "Pioneer Days," the disappearing mermaids who are seen in the great tank and the great ballet, "Under the Sea," which closes the performance. In the way of an astonishing novelty the mermaids would be given first place. Another feature of the big show during the season was the congress of European circus acts introduced at each performance. The three greatest hits among the circus acts, not forgeting the immortal Marceline, were the Curzon sisters, in their remarkable whirl through the air, hanging by their teeth; the Holloway troupe of tightwire artists; and Hassan Ben Ali's troupe of Bedouin Arabs.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Granlin Neighbor, of Orange, have moved to Dunellen. Mr. Neighbor, who holds a responsible position with the White Sewing Machine Company, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Neighbor, of East Front street.

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson A. Miller, of Washington avenue, have been receiving congratulations upon the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage, which was observed quietly on Friday. Yesterday occurred the birthday anniversary of their son, Eldon Miller.

ALL AT ONCE.

Against his manly collar-bone
Her blushing face she hid;
She asked him if he loved her, and
He said of course he did.

But that did not content the girl,
She murmured in his ear,
"Oh, tell me truly, really, if
I was your first love, dear?"

That was the moment when he scorned
To tamper with the truth;
You see, he was a blunt and most Outspoken sort of youth.

"I can't quite say you were my first,
For that would be a crime;
There was no actual first—I love
So many at a time!"

Good for the Health.

Jenks (who has taken to horseback-riding, and bounces about ten inches at every step)—Ah! How-dy-do, Blinks? I think horseback-riding is good for the health, don't you?

Blinks—Yes, indeed. All who see you will be benefited. "Laugh and grow fat," you know.—N. Y. Weekly.

MADE IN PARIS.

"They say Mazie's newly acquired wealth has gone to her head."

"Yes, she's wearing nothing but imported millinery!"—Chicago Journal.

Poor Tommy.

When Tommy tattooed baby's skin
To christen him a sailor,
His pa began to rant and rave
About the briny ocean wave,
And getting out a barrel stave
He quickly turned a whaler.

Silas—What in the world is Hiram Hardapple doing running around with that old musket?

Cyrus—By heck! He says he is going to shoot the village editor on account of an article he printed about his son.

Cyrus—No, by gum! He said the son was "a chip of the old blockhead."—Chicago Daily News.

Hardly.

Mrs. Subbubs—There's the cart with the piano we bought to-day. You can just send it back.

Mr. Subbubs—Why?

Mrs. Subbubs—Do you suppose that we are going to pay 50 guineas for a piano and have it brought home at night, when the neighbors can't see it. Eh?—Royal Magazine.

Strange, but True.

"Who is happier?" asked a young man of a father, "a millionaire, or a man who has seven daughters?"

"The man who has seven daughters."

RAFFLES COW TO BUY LEG.

Ingenious Scheme of a Man Disabled by a Train.

If there is more than one way to skin a cat, there is certainly more than one way in which to acquire a cork leg. The usual way is to earn money and buy it, says the New York World. The way adopted by Julius Thorne, who lives at Glens Falls, is to let a cow raise herself and then raffle her off for a leg. Thorne was hit by a railroad train about a year ago, and when the doctors cut off his left leg, a disease of the bone set in. The injured man was taken home, where, while he lay on his back waiting for the bone to heal, he cast about for some means whereby he could procure a cork leg. Being supplied with little in the way of the world's goods, Thorn was forced to use his ingenuity. From a neighbor he bought for a couple of dollars a sickly calf less than a month old. This he raised on skimmed milk provided by another neighbor who made his own butter, and in time the calf got strong enough to be turned out to pasture. Grazing around cost little, and while the calf was growing and fattening Thorne made baskets that he might have enough cash to winter the ainmal. By fall he had earned enough to more than do this, and recently he started a raffle. All his friends took tickets, and when the drawing takes place Thorne will celebrate by wearing his new cork leg.

AROUSED THE COURT'S IRE.

Young Man Glad to Be Victim of the Judicial Wrath.

A certain squire of a small city in Connecticut, who betrays his patriotism by presiding in a small office painted red, white and blue, had a case before him which attracted an unusual crowd to the temple of justice. A young man was up before him on a charge of stealing brass, and the prisoner's friends were out in attendance to see that he got a fair show. Before the case opened the noise and confusion became so great that his honor declared that the next man to indulge in any unusual outbreak would be ejected from the room. He had hardly ceased speaking when a young man shouted, at the eame time waving his hat above his head: "Hooray for Squire Hooligan!" "Put him out," roared the court, and in another instant the interrupter was rushed to the door. His honor ordered that the prisoner be brought before the bar for trial. The court officer hurriedly glanced about through the crowd, and then a great light suddenly fell upon him. "Can't do it, your honor," he replied. "The young fellow you just put out was the prisoner."

Bells Led to Burglar's Capture.

Nocturnal clock striking and too much of it has enabled the Paris police to lay their hands upon a gang of burglars and their very valuable booty.

The inhabitants of a house in the Fanbourg du Temple quarter, complaining to the police that for some time past they had heard an extraordinary amount of what sounded like electric bell ringing in the night time, that seemed to come from rooms in a certain direction, the police first verified the fact for themselves and then raided the rooms. Here they found two men busily engaged in testing a number of timepieces, of which they had stolen 200 from a manufacturer's warehouse, and were selling as tested.

O, Pickles!

A woman writer says: "Marry a man with a good digestion and no nerves if you want a pearl of a husband. All of the seven deadly sins do not make a man as hard to live with as a genuine, well-developed case of liver. Choose, therefore, as a husband a man who is hearty and husky and who can eat three square meals a day. A preferred type of this man is the one who is frankly fond of good eating and who has a welsh rarebit recipe and a special way of making salad dressing. Grab a man like that the very first opportunity you get, for as a husband he is lovely."—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Derived from the French.

Persia's ruler is the "shah," which word entered the English language long ago by way of the Arabic and old French, arriving in the form of "check." "Chess" is really "checks," kings; and the cry of "Check!" means one's king is in danger. Hence the verb and substantiative "check" in all their English meanings; "check," or "cheque," which was originally the counterfoil of a bill that served to "check" fraud; "checkered," from the aspect of the chessboard, and "exchequer," from the checkered pattern of the tablecloth on which the king's accounts were kept with counters.

Of Arabic Derivation.

"Zephyr" and "cipher" and "zero" are words that come to the English from the Arabic "sifr," which meant literally "empty," and so "nothing" and the figure that represents nothing. In medieval Latin this figure was called both "ciphra" and also "zephyrum," the latter probably from association with "zephyrus," or something even lighter than air. Hence, through the Italian "zefiro," there is the word "zero" as a doublet with "cipher."

Belief.

"He believes thoroughly in himself," said the admiring friend. "Yes," answered Miss Cayenne. "Some people are so credulous."

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The circus, as a counter attraction, hurt the attendance at the ball game Saturday afternoon by at least several hundred people. The home team won out after a pretty contest, and start the season a tie with Y. M. C. A. for first place. The game put up should command the support of every lover of the National game, clean, snappy, strictly amateur baseball, dealt out in major league style, and not a kick from either team. If this continues the enthusiasm of four years ago, during the old City League, will be revived, and when the season closes the race will have been a pretty one, and Scotch Plains will be near that flag.

Just a few points of local interest regarding Saturday's game: Mahhaffey, on third, was in the game all the time; two errors were charged against him, but he goes after everything, and that is what counts; Gus Frentz never pitched a better game, and from present outlook will do great work this season; that was a great catch of Reick's in the 8th, when he robbed O'Loughlin of a two-base hit; everyone played good ball and it was a great game.

An out-of-town drunk made life miserable for the residents on Park avenue just as the ball game was out Saturday afternoon. A police officer on duty would have meant either $10 for the township treasury or 30 days for the drunk at Elizabeth.

Next Saturday the local team will meet Clinton Avenue again, the game being played on Crescent Oval. Well, we did it once and we should be able to do it again, although a 2 to 1 score is nothing to crow over.

Miss Nancy Wade, of Milburn, spent Saturday and Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Abram Wade, of Stanbery avenue.

Frank Putnam, of East Second street, Plainfield, has been visiting his aunt, Miss Jennie Frentz, of Westfield avenue.

From the looks of the town Saturday afternoon and night, nearly all the residents were at the circus.

The weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was held last night in the church parlors.

Mrs. George Stillger was the guest over Sunday of relatives in Dunellen.

"There's Many a Slip."

This phrase originated with a poor slave. It was prophesied of a king, and the prophesy was fulfilled. When Ancaeus was king of Samos in the Grecian archipelago, he planted an extensive vineyard, and oppressed his slaves so heavily in its cultivation that one of the bolder ones prophesied that he would never live to taste any of the wine.

The king laughed and had the slave beaten. Then at last when the wine was made he sent for the slave to witness him drink the first glass in order to show him that the prophesy was false. When the servant appeared, the king, raising the glass of liquor, said: "What do you think of your prophecy now?" "There is many a slip 'twixt cup and lip," was the answer. The words were scarcely uttered when Ancaeus was informed that a wild boar had broken into the vineyard and was ruining it. Dropping the wine untasted, the king hastened to the scene to drive out the boar, but he was killed in the encounter, and the slave's prophecy was fulfilled.—The Sunday Magazine.

Different.

"Young Dr. Walker always impressed me as having nerves of iron, judging by the way he performed his most serious operations," remarked his friend, "but yesterday when I met him in consultation he was the most excited man I have seen for a long time."

It must have been a most unusual and extraordinary case."

"No, one of the doctor's own children had a mild attack of the measles."

LINES TO LITERARY MAN IN LOVE

Lover, if you would Landor now,
And my advice will Borrow,
Raleigh your courage, storm her Harte—
In other words, be Thoreau.

You'll have to Stowe away some Sand,
For doubtless you'll find later
That to secure a Maiden's hand
Hug and tackle Pater.

Then Hunt a Church to Marryatt,
An Abbott for the splice;
And as you Rideout afterWard,
You both must Dodge the Rice.

Next on Heaven-Gissing Hill
A Grant of Land go buy,
Whence will be seen far Fields of Green,
All Hay and Romany Rye.

Here a two-Story House-man builds;
The best of Holmes is it.
You make sure on its Sill
The dove of peace Hazlitt.

Hough does one Wright this Motley Verse,
This airy persiflage?
Marvel no Morris to Howitt's Dunne,
Just Reade Watson this Page!
—Elizabeth Dickson, in Putnam's Magazine.

WAS EXCUSABLE.

Gent in Light Overcoat—By the way, please apologize to your wife for me. Passed her last night without speaking.

Gent in Frock Coat—Oh! that's all right, old chap. I often do so myself!

Confusion.

In topsy-turvydown we bow
Our heads, quite at a loss!
To be a real reformer now,
You've got to be a boss!
—Washington Star.

"What Shall We Say?"

"What is the delay?" asked the prosecuting attorney of the foreman of the grand jury. "Haven't you indicted the corporation men?"

"Yes; we indicted them an hour and a half ago," responded the foreman. "But the jurymen are in a deadlock over the wording of the apology that must go along with the indictment."—Judge.

Not Justified.

Mrs. Uppson—Your former nurse girl applied to me for a position to-day. Why did she leave your employ?

Mrs. DeStyle—She whipped darling Fido unmercifully for almost nothing.

Mrs. Uppson—Indeed!

Mrs. DeStyle—Yes; he hadn't done a thing but bite the baby.—Chicago Daily News.

Appreciation.

"Do you think members of congress fully appreciate the value of time?"

"I should say we do," answered Senator Sorghum. "Don't you remember how convenient the hour of adjournment proved as a subject for filibustering?"—Washington Star.

As to the Prima Donna.

Stubb—Did you notice the pitch of her voice?

Penn—Has she pitch in her voice? I should think she would need axle grease.

Stubb—Axle grease?

Penn—Yes; then perhaps she would stop screeching.—Chicago Daily News.

Joshing Her.

Mr. A—Going down town to select your spring hat, eh? Well, you better wait until night.

Mrs. A. (in surprise)—Night, George? Why?

Mr. A.—Didn't you say it was going to be a dream?—Chicago Daily News.

Probably.

First Passenger—I wonder why we are making such a long stop at this station?

Second (a traveler of experience)—I presume it is because no one happens to be trying to catch the train.—Royal Magazine.

Accumulating Them.

"Did your friend who travels so much get the grip this winter?"

"Very much so; he got two of mine and one of my brother's."—Baltimore American.

A Simple Process.

"How did you smooth over that prison insurrection?" asked the reporter.

"Easily," replied the experienced warden; "I just ironed the leaders."—Baltimore American.

It Depends.

Farmer—Do you believe in irrigation systems?

Financier—I certainly do, when it comes to watering stocks.—Baltimore American.

WHAT GOOD ROADS COST.

Interesting facts as to the cost of main road maintenance in the county of Yorkshire, England, are sent by Consul Walter C. Hamm of Hull. The roads were well constructed originally and are well cared for now. It is a rare sight to see a rutty or muddy country road in the neighborhood. Most all of them are macadamized, well drained and kept in good repair. As a consequence one horse can draw a load which would require two or three horses over the usual country road in America. There are about 1,100 miles of road in the county, and the cost of the roads has increased from $734,000 in 1895 to $910,000 in 1906, and the cost per mile from $654 to $832 in the same period. There is a constant tendency to increase in the cost of maintenance, but this increase is, in part, accounted for by the construction of footpaths and the placing of granite "setts" to protect the roads from injury by trolley lines.

HAD LARGE JOB ON HAND.

Stork Almost Ready to Go Out of Business on One Job.

Entering his humble home, the man was vastly startled to meet the stork coming out; and when he observed that the fabled fowl was sweating at every pore, as being under great stress, a consternation seized him. For he was a poor man, who had already much ado to make both ends meet. Indeed, his hair rose on end and his voice all but stuck in his jaws. "What are you doing here?" he made shift to gasp, by dint of great effort. "There's a pair of microbes in that pint of milk you bought last night, and I'm having to bring them 14,000,000,000 little ones every two hours," quoth the stork, not in the best of humor. "I declare I don't know what I should do if race suicide had not come in coincidently with the germ theory." And he hurried on, muttering under his breath, leaving the man much relieved, albeit not a little astonished.

Unabashed Peterson.

Although blamed for epidemics and sundry other evils, milkmen sometimes have a redeeming sense of humor. At least a story told by Prof. John C. Scott of Northwestern university would indicate it. Professor Scott's milkman also furnishes his family with eggs. One morning this man, whom the professor in telling the story called Peterson, brought half a dozen eggs to the house. When Mrs. Scott had occasion to use them she broke one after another, but each proved to have outlived its usefulness. Mrs. Scott's just indignation arose until by the next morning it had reached a high pitch. Incensed further by the fact that there were no eggs to prepare for her husband's breakfast, she was ready to give vent to her wrath when the offending milkman arrived. "Peterson," she said, transfixing him with a stern glare, "all of the eggs you brought yesterday were rotten." "Yes, ma'am," the philosophical Peterson replied, "but were they satisfactory in other respects?" The professor's wife fled.

Off Came the Hats.

It isn't hard to persuade women to remove their hats "in meetin'" when you know how to go about it, says the Kansas City Star. Harry K. Shields, the singer who assists Rev. R. H. Crossfield, the exangelist, in his revival meetings, knows how. This is the way he did it recently at the First Christian church, Eleventh and Locust streets. "We want a good song service this afternoon," he said, "but before beginning I want to ask the women in the audience to join with me in a breathing exercise. You know to sing well you must breathe well. First I'll ask you to raise your hands to the back of your hat, and—remove one hat pin, then the second. Ah, I see you're taking them off. Now let's sing the first verse of No. ——" And the women didn't mind it a bit.

Training Children.

When people learn the importance of properly training the children for whom they are responsible, there will be a new era on earth. The generation that devotes itself successfully to this task can afford to neglect most of the other problems that keep men too busy to know what their boys are doing, and when the children are trained as they should be, most of the other things will not need to be done. It is also quite possible that the people who successfully sacrifice themselves for their children will not lose anything themselves.

Our Needs for To-Day.

How significant, how exhilarating are these words! Not the life when we have passed the gate of pearl, but the life that is not; not our life when we stand on the brow of the transfiguration mount, but the life at home, or in the daily walks and common places of existence. It is possible that there is a life to be lived in the common round and the daily task, so royal, so radiant, so blessed, that those who live it may be said to reign in life.—Rev. F. B. Meyer.

Assistance Desired.

"I suppose you sent your boy to college in the hope he would make his mark?" "Partly that," answered Farmer Corntossel. "An', besides, I thought it 'ud be a good idea to hire some professors to help me do the worrying about his future."

HUMAN BRAIN A PHONOGRAPH.

Takes Records of Environments for Reproduction.

Briefly, the procedure is this. The operator being given the attention of the subject, places in his mind the idea of sleep—which state the object passes into at the moment of the complete absorption of his attention by the operator. In other words, the operator has completely absorbed the environment of the subject, or at least his power of registration—normal sleep being a nonregistering state of mind. The part of the brain capable of receiving impression being no longer active, what is left? The accumulated records of the previous environments of the individual. As the original record was made by the impression of the combined report of an environment made by the senses, a recall of a cylinder may be made by a word picture appealing to as many of them as possible. To the suggested environment the brain reacts with whatever record it has on its cylinders. The subject is not thinking what the operator is "willing" him to do, as is popularly supposed, nor is there new mental action on his part; he is simply reemploying old records put in place by a recall of the environment which gave rise to them. Under hypnosis nothing not already in the brain can be taken out, nor can anything new be put into the brain.—T. Gilbert White, in the Metropolitan Magazine.

MAKE FAST TIME ON SKIES.

Remarkable Performance at Annual Norwegian Contest.

As a test of skill, strength and endurance, it would be difficult to beat the long distance ski races in Norway and Sweden. Of these contests the most severe is undoubtedly the 12-mile race over the mountains which opens the great annual "Snow Derby" at Holmenkollen, about four miles from Christiania. In this race, which begins with a steep ascent of 400 to 500 feet, the ski-lobner has to jump clefts and ravines, to hop over fallen tree trunks, and overcome every kind of obstacle that man can devise; to run down steep declivities, and to make his devions way through mountain forests, until he reaches the goal, triumphant, but utterly exhausted. Considering the arduous nature of these contests, some of the performances are remarkable. Thus, the winner of a recent international speed competition held at Stockholm covered the course of 40 miles at an average speed of eight and one-half miles an hour.

To Measure Natural Gas.

When natural gas was first brought into use in America there seemed to be a general idea that the supply was inexhaustible. It was sold at low rates and usually without measurement. This method encouraged waste in the consumption of gas, and was shortly abandoned by the larger companies. To-day nearly all consumption is sold by measurement. It is believed that the time has now come when it is possible to procure statistics of the quantity of gas consumed, and next year this will be undertaken. The method will give such figures in the future that a more direct knowledge will be obtained of the capacity of gas areas to maintain a commercial supply of gas for a certain number of years.—Iron Age.

Our Most Humiliating War.

As we have said, but for Osceola there would never have been any Seminole war at all, and all things considered, his career marks the most humiliating war the United States ever engaged in, says a writer in the Outing Magazine. There were less than 6,000 Seminoles, men, women and children in all Florida, when hostilities began with the murder of Gen. Thompson by Osceola. That great chief's cunning, capacity and courage had cost the nation no less than $30,000,000 and the lives of three soldiers for every Indian brave that he led. Such an appalling record of destruction stands against no other fighter on all our frontiers.

The Sympathetic Typewriter.

"Do you know," remarked the man with a cold in his head who was pounding away on his typewriting machine, "I have come to the conclusion that this keyboard of mine is genuinely sympathetic. Every time I've started to write a word that, if I was talking, would show how bad my cold was the blamed old machine would spell it just the way I would pronounce it. The keys spelled 'mordidg,' 'brilliadt' and 'chestdut' before I could catch it, so that now I have to stop and think out just how each word is spelled before I sed—there it goes agaid—down."

Not to Be Bossed.

An Alabama politician, who was formerly a magistrate in the town of Montgomery, tells of a marriage ceremony he once performed for a negro couple.

At the proper point the magistrate put the usual question:

"Will you take this man to be your lawful husband; love, honor and obey him?"

"Look heah, jedge!" suddenly exclaimed the woman, "Ise promised to wash an' iron for dis nigger, but I will be derned ef Ise goin' to let him boss me!"

A Failure.

"I hate him! He tried to kiss me!" "But I tried to kiss you and you do not hate me?" "I know, but you succeeded."

The Mystery of Carneycroft

BY JOSEPH BROWN COOKE. COPYRIGHT 1907 BY STORY-PRESS CORPORATION

"Do you wish to hear any of the details of your father's death?" I asked in a most matter of fact tone.

"No, thank you," he said, with some effort. "I found a long letter from Florence at my hotel this morning and she has told me everything. I wish merely to arrange some money affairs with you and make my will, and I wish to do so at once."

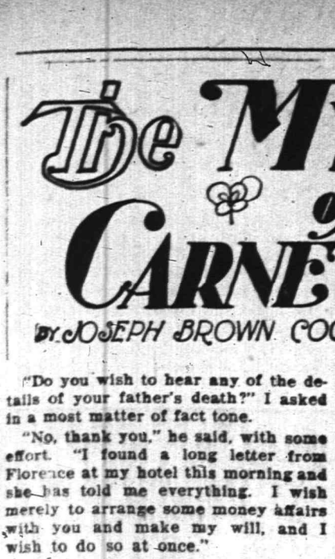
"How much money do you need for the present?" I asked, sarcastically.

"How much money do I need?" he repeated, in a bewildered tone. "Why, I don't need any. I have all the ready cash that I want. I only want to arrange for the future, you know."

"Very glad to hear it," I observed dryly. "Now, as to your will. Do you think, Mr. Carney, that your state of mind to-day is such that you are quite ready to make a will? Would it not be better for you to wait a day or so until—er—until you have had an opportunity to rest from your journey and your—ahem—your health has improved somewhat?"

I regretted my words on the instant. In spite of the man's condition, they seemed to have cut him to the quick. An expression of anguish, pitiful to see, passed over his face and his whole body trembled. After a moment he said slowly with the same wonderful self-control:

"My health, as you choose to call it, Mr. Ware, will not improve to any appreciable degree, and my mind is, at this moment, as clear as it will ever be. I wish you to draw up a will leaving everything I possess to my sister,



"I Am Going to Carney-Croft To-Night."

Florence Carney, and I wish, also, to give you power of attorney so that from this time on, you can conduct the estate in my stead and supply her with such funds as she may need. I do not expect to spend much time at Carney-Croft and I want these matters attended to now, before I go there at all."

His ideas were so thoroughly in accord with his duty to his sister that I was now anxious to carry them out at once as he requested, lest another opportunity might never occur. It took but a short time to arrange the details of the will, and then it and the power of attorney were signed by him in a trembling hand and witnessed by members of my office staff.

When these formalities were over and we were alone again, Mr. Carney said abruptly:

"I am going to Carney-Croft to-night and have wired Florence to have a carriage for me at the midnight train and not to sit up. I don't expect to stay there long, and I should think it would be better to close the place and have her take a house here in town where she would be more comfortable."

"I made the same suggestion myself," I replied, "but she wrote that she felt perfectly safe at home, and that she wanted to remain until you came to take charge of things. As you have turned all such responsibility over to me, as your attorney, there is but one thing now to prevent her leaving."

"What else can there be?" he muttered thickly.

I watched him closely as I answered.

"Do you not know that her friend, Miss Weston, is with her?"

"What! Annie Weston there!" he exclaimed. "Is she well?"

"No," I replied, studying him. "She is not at all well. In fact, she is too ill to be moved, and that is why Miss Carney cannot close the house at present."

"I never dreamed that Annie Weston would be in my house," he whispered, as if to himself. "Poor girl! Poor girl!"

"When Miss Carney asked her to come, Miss Weston did not know that you were to return, and even now she has not been told that you are on your way home," I continued. "Your sister was quite upset over the fact that, in asking Miss Weston to visit her when she was in such need of a companion she entirely forgot the disagreement between you a few years ago."

"Disagreement!" he almost shouted, pulling himself up in his chair. "Why, what on earth are you talking about, man? We had no disagreement, I tell you! Nothing of the sort. I suppose Florence told you that, but she knew nothing about it at all. I went away because Annie thought I ought to; but she was mistaken, poor girl! If I had stayed at home I shouldn't be in this condition now, but she thought it was for the best. Poor little woman, she tried so hard to do the best thing for me and—look at me now! Look at me, Ware! But she must not be disturbed under any circumstances. You say she does not know I am coming home. She must not be allowed to know it. As I told you, I shall not stay there long, and there is no need of her knowing that I am in the house. I shall not see her, Ware," he almost sobbed. "I'm not fit to see her! I'm not fit to see her, man!"

The poor fellow's distress was so great that, a moment later, as I stood by his side at the door, I could not resist laying my hand on his shoulder and saying gently:

"Why don't you brace up, Mr. Carney? It isn't too late by any means. Just think of all that life has to offer you. You are a man of great wealth, the head of one of the best known families in the country, and everything that heart could wish for lies before you. Think it over, old man, think it over! Think of your sister, and—and—Miss Weston, and yourself, Carney; yourself, above all else, and leave the confounded stuff alone!"

As I uttered the last words he recoiled from me as if I had been the plague and muttered hoarsely, "My God, Ware, you don't think I am drunk, do you?"

Before I could reply he had hurried through the door, down the stairs and into the street.

CHAPTER IV.

Little Bobbs.

I followed him as rapidly as possible, hoping to overtake him and, at least, persuade him to return to my office until his excitement had cooled somewhat, but I reached the street only in time to see him turn the corner and mingle with the bustling crowd.

At the same instant a little man, not over five feet in height, and dressed in coarse drab, Norfolk jacket and tightly fitting trousers, turned in hurriedly from the opposite direction and collided with me with some violence.

"Beg pardon, sir," he panted, recovering himself with an effort and pulling off his cap respectfully. "Beg pardon, sir. I'm looking for Mr. Ware's offices, sir. Mr. Frederick Ware, sir. Is this the place, sir?" and he placed his hand on his chest and gasped noisily in his endeavor to catch his breath.

"Mr. Ware's office is upstairs," I replied, "and I am Mr. Ware. Who are you?"

"Thank ye, sir," he said gratefully, an expression of relief lighting up his face. "I'm Bobbs, sir. Little Bobbs, they calls me, sir." Still holding his cap in his hand he pulled his forelock and bowed with the grace of an east-side dancing master.

"Very well, Bobbs," I said, completely puzzled. "Now what do you want?"

"Why, I want Mr. Carney, of course, sir," he replied. "I'm his man, you know, sir, and he told me to meet him here in half an hour."

"So you are Mr. Carney's servant, eh?" I queried.

He nodded respectfully and touched his forelock again.

"Well," I continued, "Mr. Carney has gone and you won't be able to overtake him, so there is no use in your trying. Moreover, I want to see you myself in the office for a few minutes."

He followed me upstairs and sat down gingerly on the edge of a chair, twirling his cap between his hands and twiddling his thumbs nervously. I watched him for a moment in silence and then, an idea striking me, I unlocked the small cupboard in my desk, took out a bottle and a glass and, placing them before him, said solicitously: "You are completely exhausted, Bobbs; better take a little of this."

His face was perfectly frank and honest as he said, politely, "Thank ye kindly, sir, but I never touch it. I'll be all right in a minute, sir."

I returned the bottle and glass to their places, fully satisfied with the result of my little experiment and convinced that the fellow had spoken the truth and could be relied upon in every way.

"How long have you been in Mr. Carney's employ?" I asked, as I turned the key in the lock.

"Three years, come next autumn," he replied promptly.

"And did you never drink anything in your life, Bobbs?" I continued, for I was working out a definite line of questions.

"Well, sir," he rejoined, rather uncomfortably I thought, "I can't say as I've always been teetotal, sir, an' I used to take a drop now and then and again, sir. But since Mr. Carney got this way, sir, I gave it up entirely. It wouldn't do for me to be drinkin' now, you know, sir."

"No, it wouldn't," I said emphatically. "You are quite right, Bobbs, and you are a faithful fellow to give it up as you have."

"Thank ye, sir," said Bobbs.

"How long has Mr. Carney been in this condition?" I asked.

Bobbs looked at me in an undecided fashion for a moment and then blurted out, "Why, I don't know, sir, as I ought to be talkin' of his affairs so much, sir. It don't seem to me as it's quite right, sir."

I appreciated the fellow's devotion and loyalty to his master's interests and hastened to reassure him.

"It's all right, Bobbs," I said. "You may talk to me perfectly freely for I understand everything. You know, Mr. Carney himself was here for some time this morning."

Bobbs looked relieved and proceeded without further diffidence.

"Why, I should say, sir, it's goin' on about two years now. Ye know he had some trouble or other on his mind when he went away, sir, an' it seemed to prey on him more an' more all the time. After a while he began gettin' in with those people, which I suppose was a relief to him and kept his thoughts off the other thing. At first it was only occasionally when he got to feelin' specially downhearted, but it wasn't long before he was with 'em all the time, sir. I begged and begged him to keep away from 'em, for you know as well as I do, sir, that only one thing could come of it, but he wouldn't listen to me and things kept goin' from bad to worse.

"At the beginning he kept up his interest in the business pretty well, but finally he lost all track of that, and then it wasn't many months before he couldn't attend to it whether he wanted to or not. That was the time I quit drinkin', sir, for I saw that he needed every minute of my time, day and night, or at least that he might need it.

"His neglectin' the business as he did wasn't any harm, you know, sir, for it's so well managed that it could almost run itself, but I did wish that he had worked off his bad feelin's in the office, 'stead of the way he did. My heart aches for him all the time, sir," continued the faithful fellow, brushing away a tear with his knuckle, "but he got so obstinate that nobody could do a thing with him an', anyway, I could have managed him myself if anyone living could."

"You think there is no chance for him now, Bobbs?" I inquired anxiously.

"Not one in a million, sir," answered Bobbs, sadly. "He's too far gone now, sir. He was takin' the cure for a time an' we began to have some hopes of him, but it wasn't any use, an' the first thing we knew he was as bad as ever."

"I wonder he came back at all," I remarked. "I shouldn't have thought he would have felt inclined to."

"I didn't think he'd come, myself," said Bobbs, "but he insisted upon it, and, as I told you a minute ago, there's no changing him now when he once gets an idea in his head, so we packed up and came. He said he had some matters to attend to with you that he must see about at once, sir."

"Yes," I replied, "he arranged certain affairs with me this morning."

"Well," said Bobbs, "I'm glad that's done, for it will be a great load off his mind."

"Where do you suppose he has gone now?" I asked. "He left here very hurriedly and I wonder if he will get into trouble." My calmness of mind was due to the fact that, under the circumstances, I should not have cared if he had broken his neck.

"Oh! he'll get back to the hotel, sir," returned Bobbs confidently. "He told me to get the tickets for to-night and a few other things he needed and then meet him here, or at the hotel if he had left here. You know he is going home to-night, sir."

"Yes," I said, "but he tells me he does not expect to stay there long. Do you know what his plans are?"

"I haven't the slightest idea, sir," said Bobbs. "He never tells anyone what he is going to do and he's in such a bad way now that I fancy he's as likely to go one way as another, sir. But I'll stick to him, sir; you may be sure of that. I must be going now for he may need me. You know, sir, he's not always as bad as you've seen him to-day. It's only at times, sir, that he gets like this."

"I should hope so," I returned. "And you think he will reach the hotel safely?"

"No doubt about that, sir," said Bobbs. "If he has any trouble or should get—er—dizzy or anything, he'll take a cab, sir. The way he can keep his head is wonderful, sir."

He had risen to go as I asked my last question.

"Bobbs," I said, earnestly, "I want you to tell me something. What, in heaven's name, does Mr. Carney drink, to keep him in this condition?"

"What does he drink, sir?" exclaimed Bobbs in a half frightened tone and viewing me with evident and sudden suspicion. "Why, I thought you knew, sir! I thought you knew!" and before I could stop him, he, like his master, had rushed out of the office into the street.

OBITUARY.

William Baynon.

William Baynon, a brother of C. Arthur Baynon, the latter a former resident of this city, was found dead in the room of a New York hotel, Saturday night, death being due to accidental asphixiation. Mr. Baynon was about fifty years of age and spent most of his time travelling. He was unmarried. The body was brought to Plainfield and the funeral service was held from the parlors of A. M. Runyon & Son this afternoon. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church officiated. Interment was in Hillside Cemetery.

Charles L. Sparks, Jr.

Charles L. Sparks, Jr., the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles L.Sparks of Duer street, died Saturday night from diphtheria. The funeral was held this morning and the body was sent to Freehold for interment.

Arita Octavia Cruse.

Arita Octavia Cruse, the nine-months' old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Cruse, of 649 West Third street, died this morning after a brief illness. The funeral service will be held from the residence of the parents tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. The child is a granddaughter of Rev. J. W. Mitchell and marks the third death in that family within the past two weeks.

Mrs. Charles Peterson.

Mrs. Laura Peterson, wife of Chas. Peterson, of Dunellen avenue, died Saturday after a brief illness with pneumonia. She was in her thirty-ninth year and leaves two daughters and a son. The funeral will be held at her late home tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

Miss Venner Resigns.

Miss Venner, who has been the assistant matron at Muhlenberg Hospital for several years, has tendered her resignation, the same to take effect June 1. As yet she has made no announcement of her plans for the future.

Dr. Schenck About Town.

Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, appeared on the streets today for the first time since his illness last December. He called on several merchants and was warmly greeted by them. He is looking and feeling much improved in health.

His Calculation.

"I see the California prune crop in 1906 was 185,000,000 pounds, against 62,500,000 in 1905," remarked the fat boarder.

"Well," replied the thin one across the table, "those figures would seem to indicate that we will be served with prunes three times as often this year as last."—Yonkers Statesman.

TOOK AWAY THE EVIDENCE.

Bridegroom's Proof That He Had Been a "Real Sport."

A Denver hotel man tells the following story and says it's true: A few days ago a bride and groom from the country registered at the hotel. "What are your rates for room and board for two?" asked the groom. "Six dollars," was the reply. That was satisfactory, and the two were given a room. When they decided to leave the groom asked for his bill. It was $24. He was staggered. "What!" he ejaculated. "Twenty-four dollars! That's an outrage. You said six dollars." "Six dollars a day," came from the clerk. "Six dollars a day." "Six dollars a day!" the groom almost shouted. "I thought you meant six dollars a week." The clerk simply smiled. Finally the groom paid over the money. "Now," he said, calming down somewhat, "wait a minute. I want to go upstairs. Keep that money in your hand." The clerk didn't understand, but he decided to humor the man. The latter soon returned with a camera. Aiming it at the clerk he took a picture. "This is the highest-priced place I ever stopped at," he explained. "I just wanted a picture to show my friends that I was a real sport here in Denver." Then he and his bride gathered up their telescopes and went out.

HAD HIM DEAD TO RIGHTS.

Circumstantial Evidence Certainly Was Strong in This Case.

"Yes, they call it circumstantial evidence. But she won all right." So said the old gentleman reminiscently to his companion, a younger and much less experienced man. The two men were discussing life in double harness. The younger one was anxious. He felt half afraid. So he consulted his friend, older and far more experienced than he in the matrimonial field. "But how did they prove it?" queried the young man. The older man had been telling him of his own peculiar experience. And he told it in a sad, way. "Well," replied the experienced one, "Nell, she stuck a needle in her waist about a year before I got so strong. And that blamed needle kept working around there all the time. I got kinder strong and kept on going. I was there to see her most every night. Finally that blamed needle worked out of my arm and she had me dead to rights. It doesn't pay to get too close to a good thing sometimes."

Why He Sought the Mourners' Bench.

"Once we had a revival, and I attended it with my girl. She got quite excited, and before I knew what was happening she started for the mourners' bench. She didn't ask me if I'd go. She just got up and went all by herself. Well, she kneeled down there, and I see that right next to her was kneelin' a feller she'd been goin' with some and who was a rival o' mine. I said: 'By gosh! I can't stand that! Maybe he'll be ketchin' her.' There was just a little room between her and him, and I stepped up and kneeled so as to separate 'em. I cut him out that time, and he didn't marry that girl. As far as that goes, neither did I. Oh, well, you can't be young but once!"

Jewels of English Women.

Many English society women are the owners of jewels worth the proverbial king's ransom. Perhaps the largest collections belong to the duchess of Portland and the duchess of Marlborough, but Viscountess Iveagh is the possessor of one of the most valuable necklaces in England. Her pearls are worth over $350,000, and took Lord Iveagh a long time to collect. Lady Rothschild, the countess of Dudley, the countess of Annesley and Lady Denman all own most beautiful pearls. The duchess of Roxburghe and the Marchioness of Dufferin both have a large number of turquoises.

Plants for the Garden.

As a bed of solid color phlox drummondi is very effective. Cannas entail considerable labor in the planting in the spring and removal to the house for protection in the autumn, but the phlox, being perfectly hardy, makes a permanent bed. Gardeners are now substituting them for the tender plants. After the tops are cut off in the fall a two or three-inch coating of stable manure insures strong growth the following season. If one happens to see a desirable shade all that is necessary is to make cuttings three inches long, plant in the open ground in a moist situation and in three or four weeks rooted plants will be procured.

KIBOSH ON POLAR EXPLORER.

"Ah!" said the emaciated man, "it was arctic exploration that put the kibosh forever upon my salubrity."

"Yes," said the sympathetic individual; "the long, dreary marches, the wretched food, the awful cold, the loneliness—"

"No, no—"

"Do not deny me, modesty personified—do not deny me! I know the dreadfulness of the exposure you underwent—days after countless days with no food but refuse, scraps of leather, tallow candles—"

"The horrible suspense lest the rescuing party might not be led to follow the same direction and thus miss you, the—"

"I say no—"

"And then, when at last the relief expedition hove in sight and you were compelled to eat sparingly of the things that so tempted you that your days and nights were agony again until your system reached once more its normal condition."

"I tell you, your sympathy is entirely misdirected. All those things you mention were sure pretty tough, and seemed at times unbearable. But they were peaches and cream, porterhouse and mushrooms, parlor A, with both and other luxuries, compared with the small village hotels I had to hang up at when I began my lecture tour just after the rescue."—Strickland W. Dead Easy.

Woman juries had come to stay and the cold, bad prisoner stood before one. But he did not look them in the eyes. Oh, no. He cast admiring glances at their attire.

"Gracious!" thought one. "I just know he is admiring my new hat."

"And I bet he is admiring my peek-aboo waist," soliloquized another.

"And my long white gloves."

And then in unison:

"Acquitted."

And the bold, bad man hurried away and said he wished all jurors were of the gentler sex.—Chicago Daily News.

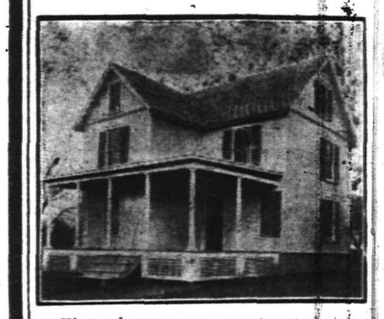
NEW SYSTEM OF BUILDING.

A MARVEL IN THE SCIENCE OF CONSTRUCTION.

A method far in advance of anything formerly used in the preparation of the different parts of a house when erected in sections, making it easy to construct any design of a house, and a very superior house for all seasons, countries and climates at a great reduction in cost.



These houses are constructed principally from the best kiln dried lumber in a factory entirely protected from weather, where best high-speed woodworking machines are used for cutting and shaping of every piece, reducing cost for mechanics' fully one-half, making a superior house when finished.

Houses or other structures erected under this system make the warmest houses in winter, and the strongest building that can be constructed with any material, the fiercest storm fails to cause any vibration whatever. They are adapted to receive all improvements, plumbing, lighting, heating, etc., when desired.

A new method of lath and plaster is used for interior finish, making a perfect indestructable wall superior to anything ever before used.

END THEIR CELEBRATION

Members of T.A.B. Society Rejoice at a Reception and Dance.

ADDRESS BY FR. BOGAN

Tells Members of the Society They Have Been of Great Benefit to Community—Three Founders Present.

St. Mary's T. A. B. Society ended its celebration of the thirty-fifth anniversaryof its founding, last night, with a reception and dance at T. A. B. Hall. It was largely attended. The stage was handsomely decorated, a special feature being a large banner, painted by Clarence Waldron.

A programme of music, dramatics, and speechmaking was presented. The music included songs by Miss Anna Daly, Edward Walsh, and the Minion brothers, of Newark, and selections by Heinemeyer's orchestra, of Elizabeth. Miss Mary Smith was accompanist.

Father Bogan, rector of St. Mary's church, delivered the chief address. He congratulated the society, and said there were but few others with a record as creditable. It had the highest character of record in the memory of the community and in Heaven. The organization was too modest to realize all it had done for the city. The society's example meant much to young men, and it was worthy of being held up to the entire city. The speaker closed with a tribute to the practical patriotism of the society; its members kept themselves in trim, mentally and physically, to answer to the country's call for defenders and for workers in advancing her.

Andrew J. Kenney, P. J. Revelle and Father Delahanty also spoke. President M. D. O'Keeffe presided over the meeting. Peter Flynn, Sr., John Barry and John Walsh, the three surviving founders, sat on the platform with the president, the former officers and the speakers. Reference to them evoked sustained applause.

A feature of the programme was the presentation again of the dramatic sketch given by the boys of St. Mary's school last Friday afternoon. Walter Sherwin recited.

The dance that followed the reception lasted until a late hour. The committee was made up of M. D. O'Keeffe, chairman, John Walsh, J. C. Carney, E. T. Lynch, R. J. Birmingham, D. B. Doyle, T. J. Carney, J. P. O'Keeffe, J. C. Callahan, J. M. J. T. McCue, C. H. Walden, George McClusker.

Heffernan Property Sold

The public sale of the real estate belonging to the late Michael Heffernan, comprising three parcels of property on East Third street, was sold yesterday by the executor, Joseph Harrigan. Two parcels were purchased by John Motley, the prices being $480 and $715, and the third parcel was purchased by Michael Pedolinski, of Jackson avenue, for $1,520. There was a large crowd attending the sale and the bidding was spirited. Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., was the attorney for the executor and Hezekiah Hand was the auctioneer.

Will Present Amateur Comedy.

The Crescent Athletic Club will give an entertainment Friday night, at 242 Somerset street, corner Mountain avenue. A comedy entitled "Happy and Mrs. Hooligan," together with a magic lantern show, will be presented. The entertainment will commence at 7:30 o'clock.

"Mrs. Prattelton Primrose."

The Junior Class, of the North Plainfield High School, will present "Mrs. Prattleton Primrose," at the Park Club on Friday night, June 7. The play will be followed by a dance.

"AUTO SPECIALS" TAKE THE OATH OF OFFICE

WILL ASSIST THE POLICE IN STOPPING RECKLESS SPEEDING.

The, special policemen appointed from among Plainfield automobile owners by Mayor Charles J. Fisk, appeared in the office of the Mayor, last night, to take the oath of office. Seven of the eight appointees were present, the eighth, J. B. Stevens being unable to present himself. Those sworn in are Dr. Frank C. Ard, Benjamin Wood, Simeon A. Cruikshank, Willard Wadsworth, Albert A. Tilney, M. B. Mellor and William A. Coddington.

After the oath of office was given by the Mayor, the specials were given instructions as to what will be expected of them. Mr. Fisk has decided upon a policy for regulating the operation of automobiles by putting the drivers on their good behaviour. Instead of sending out plain clothes men to watch for reckless drivers, the policemen are put on duty in full uniform and have been instructed to place themselves where auto riders may see them. This is intended to serve as a warning and if drivers persist in speeding or running in a reckless manner then they will be arrested and dealt with according to the law.

For the purpose of assisting the regular police department, Mayor Fisk appointed the eight "auto" specials and they will be expected to use their influence in securing an observance of the law. If they see violations of it they will report the matter to the proper authorities. It is believed that this method will have a wholesome effect on auto drivers in general and those sworn in last night assured the Mayor that they would do all in their power to assist in the observance of the law.

PARK CLUB DRAMATICS.

Dress Rehearsal Will Be Held Tomorrow Night.

The dress rehearsal for the annual public performance of the Park Comedy Club will be held at the Park Club tomorrow night. Only relatives of members of the cast will be allowed this preliminary view and admission will be strictly by ticket. The public performance comes Thursday night and from the sale of seats at Schreiner's pharmacy and the Park Club there promises to be a large audience.

A slight change has been made in the order of the plays,which has been found necessary on account of the stage settings and the make-up. "The Old Master" will be given first and "Miss Civilization" last.

Those who have seen the plays say that Henry C. White's impersonation of the title role in "The Old Master" is his best effort, although he has scored many successes in previous productions of the Comedy Club. If the performance on Thursday evening is a success, and there seems no doubt of it, a lot of the credit is due to Mr. White. He has been, and is now, working hard and withh great enthhusiasm for the success of the club. Mrs. White has an important part in "The Old Master" and in "Our Aunt From California," and is equally clever in both.

Suicide Bureau Head to Speak.

Mrs. E. M. Whittemore, founder of "The Door of Hope," New York, and who is now in charge of the Anti Suicide Bureau of the Salvation Army, in that city, will speak in the Salvation Army Hall, on East Second street, Thursday night at 8 o'clock. Her subject will be "Out of the Depths." For many years Mrs. Whittemore has been a conspicuous figure in Christian work among the poorer classes of New York, and she has accomplished much good. It was only recently that she was induced to enter the ranks of the Salvation Army, and much success has attended her efforts. Every attempt is made to rescue those who, through adverse circumstances and great despondency, have momentarily forgotten that they are the rightful proprietors of their body.

Will Close Charter List.

Those who have signed the muster roll of John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, or those who are eligible for membership are urged to attend the meeting of the camp to be held tonight in G. A. R. Hall. It is expected that some of the division officers will be present and the charter list will be closed at this meeting.

P. P. A. Didn't Meet.

A meeting of the executive committee of the Plainfield Protective Association was called for the Casino last night, but R. Henry Depew, the president, was the only member to put in an appearance. He waited for nearly an hour and no one else showing up, went home. Another date will be set for a meeting.

ATTRACTIVE COTILLION GIVEN AT THE PARK CLUB

CONDUCTED FOR BENEFIT OF THE HOLY CROSS LADIES' GUILD.

One of the most attractive cotillons ever given at the Park Club,was that of last evening, arranged by Mrrs. Samuel Townsend, Mrs. John L. Watson and a number of young women for the benfit of the Ladies' Guild, of the Churchh of the Holy Cross. The clubhouse was prettily decorated, especially the stage,where there was a profusion of palms and lilacs.

There were almost one hundred guests present to enjoy the fine programme of dances arranged by Westervelt,s orchestra. The hit of the evening was made by two pages,Percy Watson and Fred Gray, who led the way for the guests to the hall, and then executed several original steps. Theywere applauded generously.

The cotillion was led byMiss Sarah Mae Howell and Harry L. McGee,and they introduced many novel figures. Following the special figures general dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. During the evening refreshments were served under the direction of the women in charge. It is expected thet a gratifying snm will be realized as profit for the Ladies Guild. Mrs. Townsend and her assistants were highly complimented for the very enjoyable time arranged by them. Those at the favor table were Mrs. Frank Clark, Mrs. Irene Murray, Mrs. George T. Rogers,Miss Burt, Mrs. J. O. Stevens, Mrs. Emil Larsson.

MISS GALVIN "STARS" IN "A LITTLE OUTCAST."

Young Actress and Her Brother Greeted by Large Audience at Local Playhouse.

Miss Ella Galvin, Plainfield's well known young actress, supported by her brother, "Johnny" Galvin, and a superior company, appeared at the New Plainfield theatre last night in,the popular drama, "A Little Outcast." They were received by a large and enthusiastic audience because of the fact that the Galvin family are local residents and the performance was for the benefit of Fred Bennett and David Bush, of the house staff.

Miss Ella has developed into an accomplished "star" since her last appearance in the city and her work in "A Little Outcast" is very pleasing. John Galvin departs from comedy in the production and is seen in a straight role but shows his versatility by interpreting it as cleverly as he does characters. He received a royal welcome when he made his first entrance before the audience.

The drama is in four acts and has been given a heavy scenic mounting by Manager James A. Galvin. The performance will be repeated tonight and at the close local amateur numbers will be given in contest for a prize of $5.

Clergyman Threatens Suicide.

Rev. Dr. Frank McDaniels, pastor of the First M. E. church, at Passaic, formerly stationed at Orange, was taken from his summer home at Asbury Park on Saturday to a sanitarium at Clifton Springs, N. Y. His physician, Dr. Wilbur, says that Dr. McDaniels is suffering from incipient suicidal insanity. On Friday last he asked his wife to suggest an easy method of suicide. While pastor of the M. E. church at Orange, Dr. McDaniels was instrumental in raising $85,000 for a new church and his present condition is attributed to overwork and worry. He is well known in this city, where he has many friends.

To Divide Proceeds.

An entertainment is to be presented at Friendship Hall, New Market, tonight, by the Ladies' Aid Society of the South Plainfield Baptist church. The Ladies' Aid Society of the New Market Baptist church will help to make the affair a success,and the proceeds are to be divided between the two organizations.

SEES A HIDDEN MOTIVE

Writer Believes "Harmony Dinner" is Planned to Kill Off Martine's Chances.

A MAN OF PRINCIPLES

But Like Many Other Good Men the "Farmer Orator" is Embarrassed by His Friends.

The able political writer of the Newark News has scented a double motive in the planning of the testimonial dinner to the "Farmer Orator" at Elizabeth next week, and sizes the situation up in the following editorial:

"It looks very much as though the Union County "harmony dinner" to be tendered James E. Martine in Elizabeth on May 29 was a put-up job to kill off the Gubernatorial chances of Plainfield's "Farmer Orator." Martine is known to be a man of good principles and progressive ideas. Maintaining his independence his chances of election if nominated might be better than his chances of nomination. Surrender of this independence may improve his chances of nomination, but is likely to destroy his chance of election."

"While it has not come to the surface as prominently as in the Republican party, there is a widespread and healthy sentiment for reform, progressive policies and all around improvement in the Democratic party. Thousands of Democrats who have been voting the Republican ticket for years because of the influences in control of the Democracy of New Jersey are ready to return to their party if these influences are eliminated. Thousands of independent Republicans are ready to support a Democrat candidate for Governor if the Republican machine leaders persist in the policy of the last few years, of making the party the catspaw of corporation and other selfish interests.

"The list of speakers announced for the Martine dinner, however, promises little relief in that party from the repudiated leadership which has prevented its success in past years. With James Smith, Jr., and William B. Gourley heading the list, the prospect of the Martine dinner being utilized as a protest against past bossism and improper influences and short-sighted leadership, or as an incentive to hope of bettered conditions and policies in the Democracy is not bright. The other speakers on the list, with one or two possible exceptions, are alike devoid of promise.

"Harmony in the Democratic ranks, with Smith and Gourley stirring the broth, is not the kind of harmony that will elect a Democratic Governor. Theirs are not the auspices under which a winning boom is likely to be launched, even if the subject of the boom is as good a man as "Jim" Martine.

"The "Farmer Orator" is not the first good man who has found himself embarrassed by his friends. The hope of New Jersey Democracy is in the leadership of such men as the Martines, Silzers, Hugheses, Tumultys, Wrights, Alexanders and Gebharts, but such leadership cannot harmonize with the methods and policies to which the Smiths, Gourleys, Thompsons and Nugents have committed the party. It is a housecleaning and not a family reunion that is needed in the Democratic household.

"But it is not to be taken for granted, because Smith, Gourley and Nugent sit at dinner with and eulogize Martine, that they desire Martine's nomination and election. It is entirely possible that the men who have been contributing to Democratic defeat by their leadership in past years may intend to insure Democratic defeat this year, whoever is the candidate, by the simple and inexpensive plan of giving their indorsement to all candidates."

Epworth League Rally.

An Epworth League rally will be held in the Monroe Avenue M. E. church tonight by Group No. 4, Elizabeth District. L. G. Ayers, of Somerville, will be in charge. Rev. P. C. WANT FITZSIMMONS TO OPEN THEIR SEASON

DUNELLEN BALL CLUB AFTER HIM FOR SATURDAY AFTERNOON.

Free from the rivalry of a circus or other attraction, the Dunellen baseball club has planned its league opening, which will take place next Saturday afternoon, on a more ambitious scale than was attempted by the Y. M. C. A. The association knew no crowd would ever get by the big tents, and there was no effort to prepare a stirring programme. Dunellen will have nothing on its mind but baseball next Saturday afternoon, and the club is arranging for a real opening. Bound Brook, which started off here, will be the opposing team.

Manager Ayers has asked Bob Fitzsimmons, the pugilist, to toss the first ball. Bob officiated at an opening here one season, and he made a hit with the crowd by the grace with which he went through the motions of a real ball player. Bob is not only a distinguished patron of sport, but he is an ump of tried knowledge and ability. The mayor and the members of the Dunellen council will receive invitations to attend the game.

The game will start at 3:30 o'clock. The Dunellen players are on edge for the contest, and expect to start off with 1,000 per cent. Bound Brook, having dropped to the Y. M. C. A., is set hard to pull up and get into a winning stride, so the contest will be hard fought from the start.

ASSESSORS COMPLETE ROUNDS OF CITY.

Will Now Devote Their Time to a Careful Revision of All the Lists.

The Plainfield Board of Assessors completed its rounds today when it finished up the Second, Third and Fourth wards, and the members will now devote their time to going over the entire list. When any question arises to what assessment should be placed on a propperty it is considered by the entire board and a vote taken. In this way no one assessor,s judgment is relied upon.

The board will make an extra effort this year to see that an equal assessment is levied, and will take every precaution to give satisfaction to the property owners. Later the board will submit the result of its work to the County Board of Taxation. All complaints about assessments must be made in writing to the county board.

Church Team's First Defeat.

The Holy Cross baseball team met its first defeat of the season yesterday on Crescent Oval, when it crossed bats with the second team from the Plainfield High School. The score was 4 to 2. The contest was an exciting one throughout, the score being 2 to 2 up to the ninth inning. In the last inning a few base hits at an opportune time gave the school boys two runs, while they were able to blank the church team. A return game will be played on the Cricket Field soon, whehn thhe borough team hopes to turn the tables.

Frost Predicted for Tonight.

Plainfielders who woke up this morning with chattering teeth and blue noses and then said all manner of unkind things about the weatherman, had better restrain themselves and prepare for the worst. Not content with dealing out a minimum temperature of 38 degrees today, the weather prophet promises that there will be frost tonight. This is a warning to all who care to preserve their plants and shrubbery. Ice found in several places about town this morning.

J. V. D. Field Sells Property.

Joseph V. D. Field, who is well known to Plainfielders, has sold his extensive real estate holdings at Beechwood Heights, East Bound Brook, to the Empire Title Co., of New York, for $21,500. The property consists of 150 acres, all high ground, and is one of the most desirable sites in the town. The new owners will cut it up into building lots and erect a number of fine houses.

FANWOOD BUZZING OVER THE VINCENT-HOAR CASE

WHOLE BOROUGH EXPECTED TO ATTEND HEARING BEFORE MAYOR WRIGHT

All Fanwood is palpitating in anticipation of what promises to be one of the liveliest trials in the history of the borough courts. It is set down for Thursday night, before Mayor Wright Babcock.

The complainant is Chharles Vincent, street commissioner of the borough, and William H. Hoar the defendant. Both are well known in Fanwood, and both are wealthy New York business men.

Mr. Vincent charges Mr.Hoar with assaulting him, and with running off with a load of cracked stone belonging to the borough. The clash between the principals grew out of a load of stone Mr. Hoar contends he bought from the predecessor of Mr. Vincent, who entered office recently. Mr. Hoar is said to have driven for the stone which he claimed to be due him, and Mr. Vincent sought to prevent him from taking it.

Mr. Hoar drove the wagon himself because he wanted to make sure that he got what he thought was coming to him. Mr. Vincent, bristling with a determination to prevent what he deemed an illegal act, personally opposed the removal of the road-making material.

He charges that Mr. Hoar assailed him when he soughht to do his duty S. S. Swackhamer, counsel for Mr. Hoar, said this morning, that his client's progress was barred by Mr. Vincent,who seized hold of the heads of his team, and that he merely rapped him across the knuckles with a light stick to emphasize his demand that Mr.Vincent release the animals.

The case was to have been tried yesterday afternoon, but an adjournment was secured by the defense. The borough is buzzing with the case and afull house will probably be out to hear the trial Thursday night.

FACULTY AGAINST STUDENTS.

Lively Baseball Game to Be Played at the Oval Friday Afternoon.

The faculty of the High School, will play a baseball game with the senior class nine at Crescent Oval Friday afternoon. The school is keen to see the meeting. In all but two positions, actual members of the faculty will play against the boys. The exceptions are second base, where Benjamin Evans, janitor of the hiigh school and an old Hope Chapel player, will work, and catcher, where Loizeaux, one of the school players, will perform.

Superintendent Maxson will be one of the players. Lindsey Best will pitch. Principal I. W. Travell will be in action at first base, where he iis said to have made a reputation that will never fade in the baseball world. The weak places on the faculty team are centre and right fields, where Instructors J. D. Macnab and Charles L. Lewis will play. Their knowledge of the game is confined to a vague notion that the player called a thrower or something like that, tried to knock a club called a bat out of the hands of another player, with the ball.

Mrs. Gerken Sells Horses.

Thhe retirement of Mrs. John Gerken, who competed in the Plainfield horse shows, from active breeding of blooded stock was marked by a dispersal sale of her stables at Van-Tassel & Kearney's, New York, last evening, when twenty-nine head of horses were disposed of, including a number of prize winners in various horse shows. Mrs. Gerken retains about a dozen head of horses which she will show, including her four-in-hand team, Doncaster, Model, Shop Girl and Newsboy and others. The prices brought were disappointing to Mr. and Mrs. Gerken, who attended the sale, exceptional value being obtained at very low figures.

Plainfield Council Active.

Plainfield Council, No. 293, Jr., O. U. A. M., initiated four candidates last night. There were present members from Lakeside Council, of New Market and the local councils, and after the initiation there were sevseral short addresses. Two weeks from last night several additional candidates will be initiated.

Ladies' Section Entertains.

The Ladies' Section of the Gesang and Turn Verein entertained the organization at Sangerbund Hall last night. Music, dancing and a supper were features. The affair was arranged by a committee composed of Mrs. Charles F. Meyer, Sr., and Mrs. Gustav Schempp.

New Horse for Fire Department.

The councilmanic fire committee has purchased a gray horse, to be used to No. 2 hose wagon. He takes the place of one of the team that was injured some time ago. The horse was purchased through Stonewall Jackson and thus far has given satisfaction.

OLEO CASES IN COURT

State Authorities Prefer Charges Against Two Grocers for Its Sale Illegally.

THIRD CASE DROPPED

Defect in the Affidavit on Which it Was Based Results in its Dismissal.

Action to recover penalties of $100 in each case for the alleged illegal sale of oleomargerine will be presented by the State Board of Health against Charles Tallman, of 216 Liberty street, and William W. Wilson, who has three grocery stores in the West End, in the District Court, this afternoon.

They are charged with selling oleo without having complied with the section of the butterine law which requires that both written and verbal notice of the character of the product be given to purchasers. The actions were started last week, and were to have been tried this morning. Josiah Stryker, of Trenton, one of the assistants of Attorney-General Mc Carter, was present to press the state's case, but Joseph F. Farmer, of Jersey City, retained to defend the grocers, was not on hand.

Mr. Stryker called up Mr. Farmer's office, after Judge Newcorn had declared a recess, and insisted on his going on with the case. Mr. Farmer wanted an adjournment, but finally consented to come here for a trial this afternoon. The hearing was put over until 2.30 o'clock.

It is several years since oleo cases have been brought in a local court. The State Board of Health recently renewed crusading activity in oleo supervision, as a result of an alleged effort on the part of the oleo makers in Jersey City and Newark to widen their field for the illicit sale of the stuff. The New York authorities have charged that practically all the oleo sold in the metropolis comes from Newark and Jersey City, and hints have been thrown out that New Jersey has not been as active as it might be in keeping the butterine makers within the law.

Reed & Coddington are the local counsel of the State Board of Health, Senator Reed came to the court this morning to watch the progress of the case.

A third charge against a North Plainfield storekeeper, which was to have been pressed this afternoon, before Justice Mundy, will be dismissed. Mr. Stryker said this morning that there was nothing to be done in that case, because of a fatal defect in the affidavit on which the charge was based. The allegation was that the sale was made in "Plainfield, Union County," in stead of "North Plainfield, Somerset County." Mr. Stryker will make no effort to combat the motion of S. S. Swackhamer counsel for the defendant, to non-suit the action.

PRESIDENT INSTALLED.

Monday Afternoon Club Also Hears Interesting Paper.

The Mondayp Afternoon Club held the closing meeting of the season yesterday at the Casino, when the retirement of the president, Mrs. Robert Lowry, who has filled during the past year the unexpired term of Mrs. F. O. Herring, and the installation of Mrs. Henry M. Maxson, who was elected to the presidency May 6, were interesting features of the programme. Graceful speeches by the retiring president and her successor marked the passing of the gavel.

A paper full of artistic suggestions on "Revival of Arts and Crafts" was presented by Mrs. Olaf Saugstad. Specimens of modern weaving, embroidery, pottery, glass, wood carving and stencil work were exhibited in illustration of the subject. The paper was received with enthusiasm and aroused interesting discussion.

Forget Your Money Troubles—We Can Show You How

Start life afresh. Borrow from us to pay the several you owe and make payments in keeping with your income. By so doing you keep your credit good. Ease up the pressure on yourself and have a chance to "turn around" in other things needed for the family.

An Illustration

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

THE CAT THAT REASONED.

Family Pet Made the Best of Unfamiliar Situation.

"Talking about the ability of animals to reason," said a citizen, "you ought to see my wife's cat. He is a spoiled beast, and in the evening when the family is sitting about the lamp no objection is made to his jumping up on the table and walking around to be petted. But one thing he has learned by dint of several good whippings is that he must never get up on the table when it is spread for a meal. Well, one night recently when we came home from the theater we decided to have a little supper, and my wife spread a cloth over the end of the table. The cat just then entered the room. Walking to the table he was about to jump up when he caught sight of the white cloth over one end. It was plain that he was puzzled. First he went to the end that had no cloth, hesitated, and then returned to look at the end that contained the cloth. My wife and I stood still to watch him, and we had no doubt that he was assuring himself that the cloth was really there. At length he jumped up on a chair by the table so as to survey its top. The half of the table at which he sat was free from the cloth, and finally he very cautiously climbed up on the table and slowly crossing over to the half which contained the cloth, sat down at the very edge."

IS A RELIC OF THE PAST.

It is not often that one may have his dinner cooked by a woman who can at the same time give reminiscences of the stage dating back for half a century. She who possesses this remarkable memory is the proprietor of an inn of odd construction which is not far from Greenwood Lake, in New Jersey. She has been identified with practically every phase, not only of the stage, but of the circus. She is now blind, but her mind is so filled with images of the past that she is never depressed. She remembers P. T. Barnum, James A. Bailey and all the old-time kings of the tented field, for in her younger days she was a performer in the ring. The palmy days of minstrelsy she can talk about for the hour, recalling anecdotes of Wambold and Backus and old Billy Emerson. Then by a quick transition she will go to the drama and talk entertainingly of Florence and Jefferson and the elder Sothern. In the meantime she is busy about the details of the dinner and is carrying on the complicated operations as easily as though her sight was as keen and strong as it was in the days of her triumphs of ring and stage.

Painting Under Difficulties.

A. A. Boussoff is a Russian painter of Arctic scenes. To produce his sketches he was compelled to make toilsome and hazardous journeys, during which he could only use charcoal and pastel. It was not possible, save in the spring, to use oil colors, and even then it was hard to mix them, the paints being frozen. "Some of my sketches," he says, "I painted in the open air when it was bitterly cold. I had to put on fur gloves to hold the brush and work with rapid and energetic strokes. There were moments when my hands were frozen and refused service, my brush splitting with the cold. Yet I continued, having the ardent desire to fix on the canvas all those fantastic phenomena of the far north, so full of fascinating charm."

Advice to the Discontented.

Whenever you are tempted to growl against fate or complain of your lot just look around and find out what others are bearing. You will find many men with more brains and better education worse-off than you are. Then compare your lot with that of such men and if you don't quit complaining and go in for rejoicing there's something radically wrong with your mental balance. When an obstacle gets in your way don't waste time and energy in complaining about it. If you can't push it out of your path get over it, under it or around it any way you can—and leave the obstacle behind you. The second obstacle will not appear half as big if you get past the first.—Spare Moments.

Easy.

"But do you think," said Manager Fiasco, "that you can stand the onerous duties of the villain's role? You must remember that you have to be kicked from a third-story window, that in the fire scene the whiskers are burnt off your face, and in the final climax you are first beaten to a pulp and then thrown into a caldron of boiling oil." The applicant smiled. "All that will be child's play to me, sir," he replied. "I once paraded with the Orangemen on St. Patrick's day."

Why She Dined with Him.

"No, you are right," assented the impecunious girl. "I had met him only half a dozen times when I went to dinner with him. I sometimes do that. Why? Oh, because it's so lonely to dine opposite strange faces. I had almost rather go hungry than sit all by myself at some little cafe table, or, say, opposite some strange and unbeautiful face. Then, besides," she added plaintively, "it is so expensive."

Not the Same.

"That theatrical doctor is something like an epicure." "In what way?" "He knows how to cure 'hams.'"

For All The Family

Here is a strength-giver and health-creator that should be in every family medicine chest.

Many a father suffering from dyspepsia and indigestion has found that Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge corrects the sourness of the stomach, heartburn, weight at the pit of the stomach, want of assimilation of food and consequent weakness, and made life worth living to him.

Many a feeble, tired and dispirited mother has found its mild tonic influence of much benefit—aiding her digestion, giving tone to her stomach and strength to her system.

DR. D. JAYNE'S TONIC VERMIFUGE

is a splendid children's tonic, improving the digestion and assimilation of food, strengthening the nervous system, stimulating and restoring perfect health. There is no tonic more scientifically suited to regular family needs. It is a safe Worm Cure.

If you lack the enjoyment of perfect health, ask your druggist for a bottle of Jayne's Tonic Vermifuge. All good druggists sell and frankly recommend it, because they know what it does for their customers. Sold in single size bottles at 35 cents; double size bottles, 50 cts.

Jayne's Expectorant—For 77 years a standard remedy for Coughs, Congested Colds, Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Croup, Whooping Cough and similar ailments.

The Mathushek & Son Piano

Do Years of Experience in Piano Manufacturing Mean Anything to You?

The piano that you buy must appear to your ear by the perfection of its tone, to your eye by the beauty of its casing, and to your practical sense by its reputation for durability. The thousands of users are proof positive that the Mathushek & Son possesses all these; that in the purchase of this beautiful piano you will secure an instrument that has passed through all the experimental stages; a piano that is the result of years of study and experience, produced by creators and masters of the art of piano making. A piano known to the public for over half a century.

Before you purchase see these beautiful instruments. You will be convinced of their beauty. We ask no fancy price for reputation and expensive outlays, but just a fair price for an artistic piano.

Deposit Purchase Accounts.

6 per cent. Paid on Deposits.

A plan that will undoubtedly prove profitable and advantageous to many thousands, and will enable those not having charge accounts with us to trade just as though they had, will be established in this store, beginning yesterday, Monday, when we open our Department of Deposit Purchase Accounts.

In this department patrons may deposit any amount they desire, small or large, and every dollar will earn interest from the time they put it in for each month it is left with us, and on this deposit they may draw to pay for purchases in any part of the establishment.

This is not a bank system and will not issue checks.

The object of the department is to facilitate the purchase of merchandise, and, so as not to encourage unused deposits, interest will be credited on deposits at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum for each month in which purchases are charged, while for the month in which no purchases are charged, interest will be credited at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum.

By this method every dollar on deposit will be an earning power for the depositor, and at the same time a great convenience.

Statements will be rendered monthly showing the balance on hand and the amount of merchandise purchased during the month.

Any part or all the deposit may be withdrawn at any time without notice.

Information at the Deposit Purchase Account Department in the rear of Main Floor.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

There was a lack of ginger in the Y. M. C. A.-Bound Brook game at Crescent Oval on Saturday. Little more rooting on both sides would help matters.

Minford has the goods and with a good catcher can fool the best of the batters.

As was to be expected there was some kicking over the umpire's decision. Nothing short of an angel would please all the players, and it is doubtful whether he would suit.

The Boston Americans have secured Congaltion, the outfielder, from the Cleveland Club.

Captain Craig, of the Y. M. C. A. team, is a hard worker. He covers considerable ground about third and in stick work he promises to lead the league.

Charles Gilman, who is playing an outfield position for the Clinton Avennes, gives promise of being a valuable player for the club. He was one of the star players at Harvard, from which college he was graduated in 1904. He played on his class team for four years. His regular position is in the box and as soon as he gets in condition will alternate with Clifford Randolph. His absence from the team on Saturday was partly responsible for defeat, as he is a good sticker. Gilman holds a position with the Manganese Steel Safe Works.

The New York Americans have changed pitchers in fifteen out of twenty-five games. Orth and Doyle have fared best in going it alone for a full game. Keefe has pitched enough parts of a game to make several whole ones.

In the matter of pitchers' battles, thhe Yale-Princeton freshman game looms up. One hit on each side is going some even in these days when pitchers have entirely too much the better of the batsmen.

Clinton Avenue will cross bats with Scotch Plains at Crescent Oval Saturday when the Plainfielders hope to reverse the score. Dunellen and Bound Brook will meet at Dunellen and Y. M. C. A. will have an off day.

GOLF.

Charles B. Morse now leads for the President's cup at the Park Golf Club with five points.

Judge A. B. Endicott, of Atlantic City, brother of Dr. G. W. Endicott, of this city, has presented a handsome trophhy to the Women's Eastern Golf Association, to be awarded to the woman making the best score by poins from June 11 this season to June 1, 1908. The point system is a new departure in the association and theh tally will begin at the championship at Atlantic City during the week of June 11.

The play in the annual interscholastic championship tournament at Garden City yesterday started an unusually active week in golf. The competition continues today and tomorrow, thereby conflicting with Metropolitan championships for both men and women to be held at Nassau and Knollwood, respectively. Although a large entry is rarely received for a schoolboy tournament, thhe present one will compare favorably with its predecessors. With Fred Herreshoff ineligible to defend his title it is quite possible that Harry Legg, of the Lawrenceville School, and a former Minnesota champion, will be made a favorite.

Philmont Country Club, located at Philmont Station, sixteen miles out of Philadelphia, was formally opened on Saturday. A nine-hole course was laid out by Donald Hall, the well-known professional, and it calls for a playing length of 3,040 yards. John Reid has been engaged as pro by the club.

Fun and no zest for championship titles is the impelling cause of the Advertising Men's golf. The tournament of the Metropolitan district at Fox Hills tomorrow will have more starters, it is expected, than the championship field at Nassau on the same day.

In looking over the scores at the local golf clubs it is noticed that many new faces are to be found on the links. This shows a decided increase in the interest in the game and proves that the coming season is sure to be a successful one.

The members of the Plainfield Country club who visited the clubhouse and course on Saturday were obliged to put up with a whole lot of inconvenience in the way of trolley service. The circus put the cars out of the running for golfers and many a one could be seen walking home after dusk Saturday night. Another good argument for the improvement of this line. As it was the trolley company could not begin to handle the crowds at the circus and hundreds walked back and forth to town rather than wait for cars.

A NEEDED APPROPRIATION.

It is to be hoped that Governor Stokes will sign the bill appropriating $10,000 to carry on the work of ditching the mosquito marshes. Good work has been done, but much remains for Dr. Smith and his aides to do. To withhold the appropriation would stop much of the work at time when it is needed urgently. It would mean the loss of a year, and while the forces of extermination were idle the mosquitoes would go on propogating by the million, recovering from the decimation of the past three or four summers. None of the residents of districts affected by the mosquito evil doubts the value of Dr. Smith's work, or hopes for anything but that the Governor will sign the bill. All the money given to the extermination force is applied wisely and help them become free from the winged pests, and he should not hesitate in signing the appropriation measure.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Charles W. Runyon and daughter Ethel, of the New Madison, are visiting Philadelphia relatives.

Miss Olla Kline, of West Eighth street, has recovered from a long illness and is able to be out again.

Miss Ella Renard, of Fairview avenue, who has been visiting relatives in Philadelphia, has returned home.

Mrs. H. C. Bye, of Clinton avenue, has recovered from a severe illness which detained her at home for a few weeks.

SHAKESPEAREAN RECITAL.

Marshall Darrach's Appearance Here Next Week to be Society Event.

The appearance here of Marshall Darrach, of New York, in a Shakespearean recital, at the Casino, next Monday afternoon, will be one of the society events of the season. More than 100 women prominent in Plainfield society have joined as patronesses of the affair.

Mr. Darrach is a delightful interpreter of Shakespeare. For his recital in this city he has chosen "The Tempest," a work in which his skill is shown at its best.

Mr. Darrach has appeared on the Yale extension course nine times. All who remember his superb rendering of "Twelfth Night" and "Julius Caesar" in Plainfield at the Casino some years ago will welcome —An attractive sight in the borough is a wisteria vine in full bloom which is to be seen at the home of Charles Steiner, of 24 Jackson avenue. The vine was trained about a dead tree which stands about fifty feet in height and it is now completely covered with the wisteria flower.

HEIGHT OF THE CLOUDS.

Measurement Shows They Are from One to Six Miles Away.

When the illuminating tests of the new high-preasure fountain in the Schwartzenbergplatz, Vienna, were made a remarkable cone of light was observed, appearing as though projected by a searchlight, says the London Post. When this beam of light fell on a cloud an exceedingly bright spot appeared in the heavens. Dr. Rhaden, assistant at the Vienna observatory, observing the angle which the bright spot made with the horizon, had the happy thought of using it to determine the height of the clouds. A simple geometrical calculation permits of this and from a number of observations cloud heights were deduced ranging from 1,550 to 10,070 meters, or from one to six miles approximately. A peculiar fact was that sometimes during weather that was apparently perfectly clear a bright spot would appear in the projection of the beam of light, showing the presence of a stratum of fine vapor, ordinarily visible with difficulty or entirely invisible. On one occasion this vapor stratum proved to be more than six and a half miles high.

POINT HAD BEEN PROVED.

No Need for Young Man to Carry Experiment Further.

A young man who had inherited a large fortune from a rich but very economical relative decided to live on a scale commensurate with his greatly increased income, and was making arrangements to build a fine mansion, buy an automobile and invest in other expensive luxuries, when an elderly friend who had always been one of his advisers undertook to remonstrate with him. "What's this I hear about your squandering the money your uncle left you, Harry?" said the elderly friend. "I am not going to squander it," he answered, "but I'm going to get some good out of it." "It's enough to make him turn over in his grave. Didn't your uncle prove in his own case that a man could live on a personal expenditure of less than $1,000 a year?" "Yes." "Well?" "Well, he proved it so thoroughly that I accept it as demonstrated. What is the use of my continuing the experiment?"—Youth's Companion.

Laughter the Best Tonic.

Laughter is a good, healthy, muscle-making, lung-developing exercise, and it is as good for girls as boys. And humor can be cultivated in a girl's mind without any abatement of the dignity and modesty and charm of her womanhood. Not the unpleasant and constant frivolity evidenced in "smart" speech or quickness of repartee, but the humor that looks at the world with a twinkle in the eye and sees its absurdities, its smallness and its fun, says a writer. It should be part of every woman's mental equipment, for women are called upon to bear so many of life's small worries as well as its greater ones. The bringing up of children, the care of servants, and the many social duties that become a burden, are all made easy and possible to put up with by the woman with an unfailing sense of humor and of the bright side of life.

The Change in Surgeons.

"The surgeon of the past was a huge, coarse, red-faced brute, a very terror," said a surgeon of the present. "And no wonder. What type of man but the brute type could cut off legs or saw through the skull while the patient, perfectly conscious, howled and wept? In the past surgery was barred to gentle and refined men. Whatever their interest in anatomy, in medicine, they shunned surgery. They could not endure to operate upon a conscious subject. The advent of anaesthetics caused the advent of new men into surgery. Men of delicacy, of sympathy, of imagination—a higher type—took the profession up. That is why surgery is continually advancing now, whereas in the past it stood dead still."

Could Use Him Later.

When "Gipsy" Smith spoke at a banquet the other evening he told a story which, he said, he had brought from England. An old Yorkshire farmer drove into Leeds on a market day behind a rather stolid-looking animal. Pulling up at the door of a business house, he threw the reins over the mare's back and alighted from the cart. A young man in search of a job happened by. "Shall I hold her for you?" he asked. "No," replied the farmer. "She don't need any holding. She'll stand all right." The young man was walking away when the farmer shouted to him. "Hey, there," he said, "you can come back in half an hour and help to start her."

A Real Distinction.

A young matron of New York is the only one of her family who is not in "Who's Who," her father being a well known clergyman and her mother, brother and sister being more or less celebrated writers. One day her sister was condoling with her on her lack of distinction in this respect. "Never mind, Belle," said the literary sister; "you may not be in 'Who's Who,' but you're the only member of the family who is in the telephone book, and that costs real money."

Had Heard the Sound Before.

Mrs. Knicker—Weren't you frightened when the bull bellowed at you on account of your new dress? Mrs. Bocker—No; it was exactly the way Henry behaved when he got the bill.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Mr. and Mrs. William Dean, who have been visiting Mrs. Dean's mother, Mrs. Charles M. Mooney, of Valley road, have returned to their home at Summit.

A combination team of local and Plainfield players were defeated Sunday afternoon, at Newark, by the semi-professional Ironsides, by the score of 9 to 11.

Howard D. White, formerly principal of the public school, but now principal of one of the Paterson schools, has been visiting friends in town.

The local League team should take a large band of rooters with them Saturday afternoon, when they play Clinton Avenue at Crescent Oval.

Just a light covering of sand or gravel spread over the crushed stone on the sidewalks on Park avenue, would make walking much better.

The second team, the Twilight A. C., play Berkely Heights team Saturday afternoon on the local diamond.

Fred Jonanson has taken a position with the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., of Plainfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walpole have been entertaining relatives from Newark over Sunday.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The swish of the waves off the docks of the Battery, New York, an electric launch in Fall river, and a hand to hand struggle on the wharf are a few of the interesting scenes of "A Little Outcast," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre tonight. Novel and surprising climaxes realism of the striking kind, and genuine true American heroism, combined with humor, goes to make up a play that one must see to appreciate and having seen will not soon forget. A phonograph also plays an important part as a silent detective. Miss Ella Galvin, that petite actress is well fitted to the part of "Bob," the newsboy, with an honest heart and pure grit. The balance of the company ably assist her in bringing out the story. The cast which is one of unusual strength, consists of Johnny Galvin, J. H. Miner, James Harris, D. C. Seccord, W. Anger, Bill Hanley, Geo. Summers, Burt Simon, Geo. Gordon, Bestie Morris, Irene Drew, Lillie Steele, Loncile Norman, Henrietta Gibson, May Morris, and last but not least, Little Tootsie, a tiny tot who plays the part of a stage baby to perfection.

Mrs. Hoar, mother of Mrs. M. H. Ewart, of Fairview avenue, who underwent an operation at the hospital, is recovering.

SOMETHING WRONG WITH MAN.

Scientist Points Out How His Life Is Much too Short.

What is the matter with man? March Phillips points out that there is this peculiarity in the condition of man, as compared with the other mammalia, that his life is shorter now than by analogy it ought to be. In other animals the period of growth is about one-tenth to one-fifteenth of the whole life. The lion, which is full grown at five, lives for 70 or 80 years. The dog, full grown at 18 months, is as old at 15 as a man at 80. Man, living as long as the lion, is not full grown till 20. The same proportion would give man from 320 to 400 years. Thus his physical life is not in this respect the normal life. It is cut exceedingly short, and its brevity points to some primal failure of vigor—to the presence of some nonnatural—that is, some diseased—condition sapping his vitality. Prof. Virchow notes that if we gather together the whole sum of the fossil men hitherto known and put them parallel with those of the present time we decidedly can pronounce there are among living men a much greater number of individuals who show relatively inferior type than among the fossils known of to this time.

RAT AND CRAB IN BATTLE.

Former Found Helpless in the Grasp of the Crustacean.

D. L. Van Culin, a Paducah stationer, is fond of salt water crabs, says the Cincinnati Enquirer. Receiving a consignment from Maine, he took one out to experiment with. They were numb from the ice packing and one placed by the warm stove began to exhibit signs of life. "I will just leave him there and see how long a crab can live out of water," Van Culin explained, as he locked his store for the night. The stationer found no crab when he returned. A thorough search of the ground floor failed to reveal anything, but a peculiar knocking sound from upstairs attracted his attention. On the top step of the stairs he found the trouble. The crab, with his grippers fast in the sides of a fat rat, was clinging to his captive. The rat, nearly dead, struggled feebly for release and little by little wormed his way upstairs with the weight of the crab pulling steadily against him. The rodent had presumably sniffed at the queer-looking intruder and was caught before his nimble legs could carry him out of harm's reach.

A Strange Short Cut.

It will certainly be news to most people, says the London Globe, that New York is a short cut for telegrams between London and Paris and between London and Berlin. However, the fact is vouched for. The messages are received at an agreed address in New York and are immediately passed on for London, Paris or Berlin, as the case may be. The reason for this amazing roundabout to save time is curious. New York time being about six hours behind European time, its wire connections with Europe are almost always unoccupied during the London forenoon, while during the same time European wires are often congested. Via New York, therefore, is a "short cut," but expensive.

Don't Think You Are Old.

A certain amount of social life is absolutely essential to the old as well as to the young. A woman never grows so old that she ceases to enjoy the company of others, and generally the older she grows the more she enjoys it. It is always a pity to see a man fall into a state which he explains by saying: "Oh, we're getting old and don't care for so much variety in our lives," says Woman's Life. In the pure selfishness of his soul he always speaks of "us" and "we" as if it naturally follows that because he is getting antiquated his wife must keep pace with him in his decline. Let him keep in touch with the world, and both he and his wife will be the better and the younger for it.

A Practical Joke.

New water mains were being put down and an immense line of pipes lay end to end in the road. Late in the night a half-drunken tramp rolled a pipe out of the middle of the line, curled himself up in it, and fell asleep, fairly well protected from the blustering wind. But on towards the small hours a couple of students discovered the tramp, and rolled his bed and himself back into place in the great line again. The tramp, awaking in the morning had to crawl through nearly a mile of pipe before he regained his freedom.

Untimely Courtesy.

"Politeness always pays." "I beg to differ with you." "Then you'll have to cite an instance." "I can. Yesterday morning I was driving my touring car down the avenue when I saw that haughty Miss Snippersley on the sidewalk." "Yes?" "I tipped my hat and smiled." "Yes?" "Yes, and when I looked ahead again I found I had bowled over two workingmen and was trying to climb a telegraph pole." —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Joke on Good Man.

A minister, during his discourse one Sabbath morning, said: "In each blade of grass there is a sermon." The following day one of his flock discovered the good man pushing a lawn-mower about his garden and paused to say: "Well, parson, I'm glad to see you engaged in cutting your sermons short."—London Tit-Bits.

A COURTSHIP IN SCRIPTURE.

More Proof That Nothing Is Impossible to Cupid.

If this story had come from Topeka, we should have been more readily inclined to believe it, because Topeka's familiarity with all things Biblical is proverbial. But it is a good story, even if it isn't its first appearance on earth, and it is told thus by the Jewell County Monitor: A young gentleman at church conceived a most sudden and violent passion for a young lady in the next pew and felt desirous of entering into a courtship on the spot, but the place not suiting a formal declaration, the exigency suggested the following plan: He politely handed his fair neighbor a Bible open, with a pin stuck in the following text, second epistle of John, verse 5: "And now I beseech thee, lady, not as though I wrote a new commandment unto thee, but that which we had from the beginning, that we love one another." She returned it with the following, second chapter of Ruth, verse 10: "Then she fell on her face and bowed herself to the ground and said unto him, Why have I found favor in thine eyes that thou shouldst take notice of me, seeing I am a stranger to you?" He returned the book pointing to verse 12 of the third epistle of John: "Having many things to write unto you, but I trust to come unto you and speak face to face." From the above interview the marriage took place the following week.—Kansas City Journal.

WANTED THE WHOLE HOGS.

Widow Fully Determined to Get Her Money's Worth.

"It's curious how the people have turned around within a couple of years and become so distrustful," said the old farmer, as the matter of graft and trusts were touched upon. "I had four hogs to sell and advertised them in the village paper. Half a dozen people came out to see them, and among them was a widow. She wanted me to swear to the breed, the weight and the fact that the hogs were in good health. She wanted to be assured of their good eyesight and hearing. She wanted to be satisfied that they were good-natured hogs. She wanted me to sign a paper that I had raised the porkers instead of stealing them. When I had done all this and the sale was about effected she suddenly turned and walked away. 'Hello, now, what's the matter?' I called after her. 'You've cut their tails off,' she replied. 'Yes,' that was done when they were pigs.' 'Then you knock off 50 cents apiece for missing tails, or I don't buy. It's whole hog or none and no graft!'"

Special Guidance Needed.

Edwin A. Halsey, late assistant charge d'affaires of the senate press gallery, who hails from Virginia, is responsible for the following story: An old darkey who had not been to church for a long time appeared one night at prayer meeting. His presence at the meeting was commented on by one of his brethren of the church. The conversation between the two was something like this: "Say, Brother Johnson, I ain't saw you heah at de meetin' house for a considerable duration." "Dat's so," replied Brother Johnson; "I'se been very busy." "Well, how come you heah to-night, Brother Johnson?" "Well, you see, it's like dis Brother Jackson. I'se repairing a chicken coop for some white gentlemens, and I'se got a situwation putting a fence round a watermelon patch for another gentlemens, and I needs special guidance from temptation."

Right of Way.

As a train from Washington recently slowed up before the station at a small town in Virginia the mail bag was thrown to a darky lad of perhaps 12 years, who at once started off at a brisk trot to the post office. He had not gone more than ten yards before a large negro boy ran into him, almost knocking the youthful messenger off his feet. "Look heah, niggah!" exclaimed the messenger, with a glance of indignation, "Youse tryin' to git in jail, ain't you? Youse interferin' wid de United States mail, niggah. When yo' jars me yo' jars de government of de United States!"—Harper's Weekly.

Fashion in Medicine.

There is a fashion in most things, and medicine during the last ten years has appeared to me to be as much under its sway as dress or charity. Half one's duties as a medical man is devoted to explaining away the diagnosis of the fashionable physician, which, however, creditable to the diagnostician, is particularly unfortunate for the patient, who readily makes a pet of the maladie a la mode. —D. W. Samways, in British Medical Journal.

Life on a Troopship.

The troopship of to-day revels in luxuries compared with its compeer of other days, and if the soldier nowadays grumbles to himself at his cramped accommodation and his ship's fare, he can take comfort in the thought that he enjoys advantages that his brother-in-arms of the sailing-ship period never even dreamed of.—The Captain.

Stung!

He—"What would your father do if I told him I wanted to marry you?" She—"He'd refer the matter to me." He (hopefully)—"And what would you do?" She—"I'd refer the matter to the young man who proposed to me and was accepted while you were trying to make up your mind."

CHAPTER V.

A Question of Guessing.

Some men are so stupid at times that one wonders how they get on in life at all, and after a few moments of ridiculously profound thought, I was quite ready to consign myself to this class. Here was a man, obviously a slave to a habit which was slowly but surely eating his very life away, who virtually admitted his shortcomings in the plainest of English, and yet who rushed from my presence in horror and disgust when I attempted to persuade him to leave intoxicants alone! Here was his servant, an honest, trustworthy fellow, who not only admitted his master's failings but gave many details of his unfortunate downfall, and yet who regarded me with suspicion and dread when I ventured to ask him a most natural question! And here was a fool of a lawyer who could not see through a millstone with a hole in it!

I reached for the telephone and called up MacArdel.

"Hello, Mac!" I said. "Busy tonight?"

"Nothing special," he replied, laconically. "What's up?"

"Dine with me at the club at seven, will you?" I asked. "I want you to tell me something."

"All right," said MacArdel. "Seven sharp, and I'll order the dinner. Good-by," and he hung up his receiver with a snap.

I did not resent McArdel's abruptness, for I knew he had a room full of people waiting to see him and the fact that he was to order the dinner was enough to make a man forgive anything short of an unpardonable sin.

MacArdel was late, of course. He was born half an hour after he was expected and his time-table through life has always been that much behind to a second; so I called for the things and made the cocktails myself. I cannot order a dinner as MacArdel can, but I can construct a cocktail that would make the nectar of the gods taste like Bloomsbury coffee.

The dinner was as good as the cocktail and we went to the roof for our coffee and cigars.

MacArdel tipped back in his chair and rested his heels on the broad coping, for we were sitting in a secluded corner, back of a pillar, and the only light we had came from the restless city far below us, sparkling and glittering like the reflection of a September sky at midnight. An occasional glimmer of moonlight broke through the fleecy, scudding clouds, so that, from time to time, we caught glimpses of each other as we lazily puffed our cigars. The silence was emphasized by the disjointed murmur of voices about us, and the never-ending distant rumble in the streets beneath.

It was a dreary night and a dreamy place and I dreaded to bring up the disagreeable topic that we had met to discuss. So we sipped our coffee and smoked out our cigars almost oblivious of each other's presence. But when the fresh cigars were lighted, MacArdel yawned impolitely, as was his habit when we were alone, and said briefly:

"Well, what is it?"

I told him of my experiences in the morning, taking care not to omit a single detail of what I had observed in my interview with either Carney or Bobbs. When I had finished he remarked, with equal brevity:

"Well, what of it?"

That's the way with MacArdel! He can be, and usually is, the most exasperating fellow that ever lived.

"What of it!" I exclaimed. "There's a deuced lot of it, I tell you! I want to find out what this fellow is doing and get him to leave it alone. If you had ever seen his sister and could understand, as I do, the desolateness of her position, you'd be as anxious as I am to reform him."

"Woman in the case, of course," murmured MacArdel softly, taking a deep puff of smoke which he held in his mouth for a moment and then blew out slowly in a long thin cloud.

"Well, What Is It?"

This is one of the most insulting things that a man can do, and MacArdel knows it perfectly well. I was inclined to knock him down, but I think too much of him for that, so I merely said:

"No, Mac, don't be a fool, but try to listen to reason, if you can!"

"Impossible when you're talking," he observed softly.

I ignored this and continued: "My only interest in Miss Carney is that of lawyer to client and I'm not in love with her or thinking of marrying her. In the first place, I've only seen her once or twice in my life, and in the next, the difference in our financial positions, to speak of nothing else, is quite enough to put out of the question any such idea on my part."

"Cat-look-king," said MacArdel, between puffs.

"I suppose you mean by that to infer that a dog may look at a queen!" I replied testily, "but I tell you, man, it's all nonsense—utter nonsense."

"Looks bad, though!" said MacArdel, "'specially when a fellow compares himself to a dog, and the lady to a queen," and he touched the bell on the little table between us.

"What's that for?" I asked. "I've got plenty of cigars here in my pocket."

"Yellow chatreuse," he replied. "I think you need it."

"Now, seriously, Mac!" I resumed. "What do you think of this man Carney's virtual denial of any excesses?"

"Lie," said MacArdel.

"Well," I went on, "what do you think of the servant's behavior in practically admitting the whole business and then turning about as he did at the last moment?"

"'Nother lie," he replied.

Then you think they are a pair of prescious scoundrels?" I asked.

"No; damned scoundrels," he said slowly. "I think they are unless the matter can be explained in another way. But I'm not at all sure of it. That's merely the way things look now."

"Mac," I said, "you don't know as much as I do."

"That," he replied, "is the most unkind thing you ever said to me. I know things, my boy, that your philosophy never dreamed of. I have been trying to think, while you have been talking, and, in spite of you, I have thought to some purpose.

"In the first place, as I said a minute ago, I think the man is an ordinary drunkard and that this servant of his is in league with him to keep the facts from you and his family. Now, I only think this because it is the most plausible explanation that offers; I am not sure of it by any means, and I want that distinctly understood.

"In the second place, you don't know anything about it at all, and yet, in your monumental assurance, you have settled the whole thing with the exception of one detail, and you have come to me, as a physician, to supply you with that necessary link in your chain of evidence. You think he is the victim of some drug habit and you want me to tell you, from his symptoms, what drug he is using. Isn't that so?" and he blew out another of those insulting streamers of smoke.

I was forced to admit sheepishly that he was right, and my good opinion of myself faded away like the smoke of our cigars.

"Well," he continued, "the symptoms he presents could not be caused by opium, nor by cocaine, nor by hasheesh. Whisky is the most likely thing of all, and you have nothing but a couple of vague expressions of astonishment from him and his servant to make you search for any other solution of the problem.

"There is, however, one other thing that might be at the bottom of it all, but he could not get it here, and it would be pretty hard for him to get it anywhere. Moreover, I am not at all sure myself about it, and would have to look it up before I would venture to say anything definite on the subject."

"What is it?" I asked impatiently.

"Never mind what it is, for the present," he replied. "If I am wrong in my surmise you can safely put it down to whisky, and if I am right, you are no better off, though perhaps no worse. Now, I am not going to say anything more about it to-night."

"But in the meantime what am I to do with him?" I persisted. "I may see him again or be asked for advice concerning him at any time, you know."

"Leave him to Bobbs, Ware; leave him entirely to Bobbs and let him go his own way as he will," said MacArdel earnestly. "If it's whisky, the sooner he drinks himself to death the better, and if it's the only other thing it can be, Bobbs is a veritable God-send to him and to all of you, too. Whatever you do, leave him alone yourself, for you can't do him any good and you may get into a lot of trouble if you bother with him. Let's go down and play a game of billiards."

CHAPTER VI.

An Anonymous Letter.

The first lot of bills that I paid for the Carney establishment contained one for two dozen bottles of Scotch whisky which had been ordered by Mr. Carney and shipped by express to Carney-Croft on the day that he and Bobbs were in my office. I made no mention of this item to Miss Carney when I was going over the accounts with her, but paid it on the chance that it was correct. In this I was not mistaken, for, although I never saw John Carney again except for an instant, I did see the identical 24 bottles, empty, of course, in the cellar at Carney-Croft.

It was more than three years after the death of the old gentleman and the stable boy, and I had gone back to the place to arrange for its opening after it had been closed for the greater part of that time.

John Carney had remained at Carney-Croft only long enough to have a short visit with his sister and put to rights his own personal effects, and then, accompanied by Bobbs, he had departed for a tour of the world or goodness knows where. I heard from either him or Bobbs at varying intervals, and on strictly business matters, and the only way I had of addressing him was through a banking house in London which was kept fairly well informed as to his whereabouts.

Miss Weston's health improved sufficiently to permit her traveling, and she continued to reside with Miss Carney, who took a furnished apartment in town, as her brother and I had advised her to do. Later they traveled considerably abroad, and finally settled down for a protracted stay at a little village on the Mediterranean coast, in the hope of benefiting the health of Miss Weston, who, as I afterward learned, was suffering from consumption.

As I have said, more than three years had passed when I received almost unexpected communication from Miss Carney saying that she had decided to return home at once, bringing Miss Weston with her. She asked me to have Carney-Croft made ready for occupancy with as little delay as possible.

I had had no vacation that summer, and it occurred to me that, instead of attending to the matter at long range, I would go down myself for a week or two and give it my personal attention.

I arrived on a day that was almost a counterpart of the one that saw my first visit to Carney-Croft, and at the station, I was received with scant show of welcome by the man who had taken me down in his trap before and entertained me on my return journey with anecdotes of old Mr. Carney and a tale of ghosts.

"Want teh go daown teh th' place, I s'pose," he grumbled.

We rode along in silence until we reached the gates, when, as I was unlocking them with a key from the big bunch that I had brought with me, he unbent enough to say: "Don't look much like it uster, here!"

He was quite right. The grass stood knee high on the lawns, the roadbeds and paths were choked with weeds, and the asphalted walks, leading from the front and sides of the mansion, and winding gracefully down under the trees to the river, were blanketed under the leaves and other accumulations of three long years.

The man waited until I had unlocked the front door, which swung inward with the fitful creaking of disuse, and then asked: "D' ye want me teh wait?"

"Oh, no!" I replied. "Not at all."

"All right," he returned, clucking to his horse, "I'll tell Hoskins teh save a room fur ye, an' it hain't much of a walk frum here, anyhaow."

"Hold on!" I shouted, as he was turning the corner. "Don't do anything of the sort! I'm going to sleep here to-night, if I can find any lights and manage to turn on the water. I don't want to sleep at Hoskins' unless I have to, but I'll be over there for breakfast in the morning.

His expression of amazement was wonderful to behold, as he pulled his horse down on its haunches to hear me through. Then, with a grin, he chuckled: "Wal, it's gol dummed little sleepin' ye'll do, I'll warrant!" and he drove on up the road."

I wandered over the house, raising windows and opening shutters to let in the light and air and then, making a frugal lunch of some things I had purchased on the train for this purpose, I lighted a cigar and, drawing a chair out on the veranda, I watched the sunset far away over the river and waited for bed-time.

I had no doubt that my rustic friend's astonishment at my determination to sleep in the house was founded upon the twaddle over ghosts that was begun in the village three years before, and I rather welcomed this idea, for I felt that the more prevalent it became the less likelihood would there be of undesirable prowlers about the place.

The room I chose for the night was the one I had occupied on the occasion of my former visit and, after making up my bed in true bachelor fashion, with bedding which I had no trouble in finding, I locked the house securely and slept the sleep of the just.

I awoke suddenly, startled no doubt by a ray of sunlight gleaming fairly in my face, and, finding the day so far advanced, I sprang out of bed thoroughly refreshed by my sleep and exhilarated by the crisp morning air that was blowing in through the window. As I threw back the sheet something fell to the floor; picking it up, I found a small, square envelope addressed in a cramped and totally unfamiliar hand:

Frederick Ware, Esq.,
Carney-Croft.

I tore it open, and my astonishment at its discovery was increased ten fold by its contents. The note read:

As you love Florence Carney and hope to make her your wife, keep her away from this place at any cost.

New Jersey's Greatest Mail Order Organization

We are justly proud of our mail order system. We feel that it is one of the strongest links in the chain of this great store's success. We want you to use it—test it thoroughly and allow us to demonstrate its many splendid advantages. The Bamberger mail order system is not the result of a day, but the culmination of years of painstaking effort. In fact, this branch of our business is so perfectly organized that you may shop as quickly and conveniently by mail as in person. There are no delays—no errors—satisfaction is snugly packed with each parcel we send out. If you are not a patron (which is highly improbable) send in a trial order and you'll quickly realize the truth of the foregoing statements.

SIGN WITH THEIR THUMBS.

Wyoming Bank's Method of Identification of Customers.

When Mark Twain wrote "Pudd'nhead Wilson" it is doubtful if he realized into what general vogue this novel form of identification would come, and that its commercial value and utility would be incalculable. For a number of years thumb prints have been adopted as a means of identifying criminals, but it remained for the First National bank of Cheyenne, Wyo., to adopt this method for the identification of customers. The bank has a large number of Japs, Greeks and other foreigness as patrons, these being employed in the railroad service. But few of these can write the English language, and some of them not even their own. As a result, each depositor is required to make an impression of his thumb, which is filed away for record, taking the place of the customary signature.

The Glass Eye Crop.

The glass eye crop comes from Thuringia. As Newfoundlanders are fishermen, or as Cubans are tobacco growers, so the typical Thuringian is a maker of glass eyes. Almost every Thuringia. As Newfoundlanders are tory. Four men sit at a table, each with a gas jet before him, and the eyes are blown from plates and molded into shape by hand. The colors are traced in with small needles, and, as no set rule is observed in the coloring, no two eyes are exactly alike. Sometimes a one-eyed man or woman —come, maybe, from a great distance —sits before one of these Thuringian tables, posing for a glass orb, and the artisan, with his gas-jet, his glass and his needle, looks up at his sitter and then down at his work, and altogether the scene suggests a portrait painter at work in his studio.

Comparing Two Generations.

Dr. William H. P. Faunce, president of Brown university, in the course of an address at Cooper union, one of a series of public lectures, said: "The young people of to-day, as compared with those of 50 years ago, are chiefly deficient in power of sustained attention and original thinking. They cannot, or at least they usually do not, think as clearly, as patiently and as cogently as did their fathers. They do not as quickly distinguish the irrelevant from the pertinent, the kernel from the husk, as the men of the last generation." Dr. Faunce said, however, that the children of this generation have an amazing fund of general information.

Enough to Depress Anyone.

Dr. Austin Flint said at the Century club in New York apropos of a will contest that had been tried last year: "The plaintiff lost and no wonder. His case was as difficult a one as that of a young man who appeared unduly depressed after the death of his rich aunt. 'Why are you so sad?' an acquaintance said to the young man. 'You never appeared to care much for your aunt.' 'I didn't,' said the youth dolefully, 'but I was the means of keeping her in an insane asylum the last five years of her life and now that she has left me all her money I've got to go to court and prove that she was sound mind."

HARD TASK FOR TRANSLATORS.

Much Ingenuity Called For in Compiling Bible Into Zulu.

In the words of the Reverend C. W. Kilbon, the true missionary aims to repeat the saying of his Master, "The words which thou gavest me I have given unto them." He may preach and explain, but the people must be able to search for themselves. Ultimately he must leave the Bible in the language of the people to whom he has been sent as the foundation upon which his work must rest. Strongly convinced of this, the Bible Society, working in Natal, South Africa, began the translation of the New Testament into Zulu. It was almost a task of despair. The mental capacity of the Zulus was of the lowest order, and they had practically no terms to express spiritual truths. There was no proper word for "God," and, of course, none for such abstract terms as "faith," "holiness," "worship," "conscience," "honesty," etc. A spiritual vocabulary had to be created, and existing words applied to material things had gradually to be twisted around with an ingenuity truly amazing. But at last the Zulus possessed a complete Zulu Bible in one volume, which was available for the millions of African savages who ranged from the borders of Cape Colony on the south to the shores of Lake Nyassa on the north, and from the Indian ocean on the east to the western borders of the Transvaal, and into Rhodesia on the west.—William George Fitz-Gerald in the Circle Magazine.

HINT FOR BOOK LENDERS.

Woman Has Ingenious Scheme Which Has Worked Well.

A book borrower's album is the device which a woman who has a fine library has employed in order that she may keep track of her books and that her friends may not be delinquent in returning them. She delighted in lending her books, but was far from pleased in punching her friends up for their return. Now when a friend asks the loan of a book she acquiesces readily enough, but requests the borrower to write in the album his or her name and the date on which the book is borrowed. On returning it the borrower is asked to comment on the book and initial it.

This album always is kept in a conspicuous place in the drawing room, where visitors are likely to pick it up and glance it through, learning who is not prompt in returning books. The result is that this woman now has her books returned promptly, as the borrowers know they will be convicted in the album if they are delinquent. They take kindly to the plan, the lender does not have to prod them for the return of the books, and she has an album which is valuable to her as containing the comments of her friends on the treasures in her library.

Most Common Proper Names.

Census returns show that the most common proper names in the world are largely the same, regardless of the country where they are found. Change in the form of pronunciation of the name does not necessarily mean a different name. In England and Wales the 15 most common names are these: Smith, Jones, Williams, Taylor, Davies, Brown, Thomas, Evans, Roberts, Johnson, Wilson, Robinson, Wright, Wood and Thompson, in the order named. In Scotland they are Smith, McDonald, Brown, Thompson, Robertson, Stewart, Campbell, Wilson, Anderson, Scott, Miller, McKenzie, Reid, Ross, McKay. In Ireland we find Murphy, Kelly, Sullivan, Walsh, Smith, O'Brien, Byrne, Connor, O'Neill, Reilly, Doyle, McCarthy, Gallagher, Doherty and Kennedy. In the United States the names differ somewhat in the different cities, but on the whole they are very similar.

Eclipsed.

The stranger from the east was surprised. "Why," he exclaimed, as he stepped from the train in the South Dakota settlement, "the Indians around here look as calm and peaceful as school children on a picnic. I thought they considered themselves bad?" "Wall, I'll tell you, pard," drawled Amber Pete, "they used to consider themselves bad, but since they have had a peek at some of the paleface folks in the divorce colony they have taken a back seat."

Cat Fixes Right Time.

A woman received a telephone call one morning last week from a woman friend, asking her the time of day. The friend telephoned back it was 10 a. m., whereat the other explained that her clocks were all at 9:30, which she knew was wrong, as her pet cat had just washed its face, which it did every morning precisely at ten. Hereafter the woman proposes to regulate her clocks by the cat's ablutions.

Spare Money Hypothecated.

"Madam, your husband said if I would call here to-day there'd be an old suit of his clothes I could have." "He ain't going to have no old clothes. I'm going to get a new bonnet."

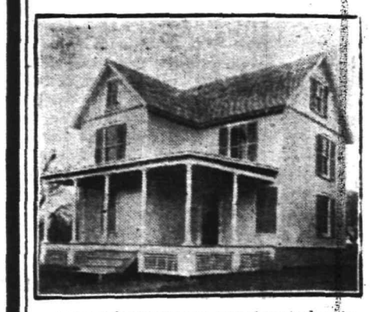
NEW SYSTEM OF BUILDING.

A MARVEL IN THE SCIENCE OF CONSTRUCTION.

A method far in advance of anything formerly used in the preparation of the different parts of a house when erected in sections, making it easy to construct any design of a house, and a very superior house for all seasons, countries and climates at a great reduction in cost.



These houses are constructed principally from the best kiln dried lumber in a factory entirely protected from weather, where best high speed woodworking machines are used for cutting and shaping of every piece, reducing cost for mechanics fully one-half, making a superior house when finished.

Houses or other structures erected under this system make the warmest houses in winter, and the strongest building that can be constructed with any material, the fiercest storm fails to cause any vibration whatever. They are adapted to receive all improvements, plumbing, lighting, heating, etc., when desired.

A new method of lath and plaster is used for interior finish, making a perfect indestructable wall superior to anything ever before used.

TREBLE CLEF'S CONCERT

First Appearance of the Organization Greeted by Large Audience.

EXCELLENT PROGRAM

Miss Bertha VanN. Willis, Mrs. Anna Louise David and Horatio N. Rench the Assisting Artists.

The first concert of the Treble Clef Club, of this city, under the direction of J. Edmund Skiff, was enjoyed by a large number of music-lovers at the Casino, last night. The club was ably assisted by Miss Bertha VanNuise Willis, soprano; Mrs. Anna Louise David harpist, and Horatio Rench, tenor. Mrs. Harry N. Taylor, of Westfield, was the accompanist.

The features of the evening were the selections by the club, which is composed of soprano and alto voices and those by Mrs. David on the harp. The solo work by Miss Willis received much praise, while that of Mr. Rench was very satisfactory, especially in the rendition of the cantata, "Queen of the Sea," which comprised part second of the programme.

In the selections by the club, which included in part first, "Carmena Walz," by Wilson-Mildenberg, and "Mazurka," by Schnecker; "Spinning chorus," from "Flying Dutchman," Wagner; "Daddy," Behrend-Wiske, and "Doan Ye Cry Ma Honey," the voices showed careful training. The chorus was exceptionally well balanced and the harmony was delightful. The chorus was equally as good in the rendition of the cantata. Mr. Skiff, as director, brought out all the fine points in an effective manner.

Mrs. Davis was well received in the harp selections and was obliged to respond to encores after each number. She showed herself to be a master of the stringed instrument and her work aroused much enthusiasm. Two numbers that were especially enjoyed were "Old Welsh Air," and "Old Irish Air."

Mr. Rench sang one solo number, with an encore in part first and his excellent tenor voice was pleasing. In the cantata, which followed, Miss Willis took the part of "Agneta," the queen; Mr. Rench, that of "King of the Sea," while the club impersonated the water sprites, populace, etc. This cantata consumed the greater part of the evening and afforded Miss Willis an excellent opportunity to display her sweet soprano voice. In her solo parts, as well as in the duets with Mr. Rench there was pleasing harmony, while the chorus was effective throughout.

During the evening the soloists were remembered with beautiful flowers from their many friends. In every way the concert was pleasing and a source of encouragement to the club to even do better work in the future.

OLEO SELLERS FINED.

Defense of Accused Grocers Confined to Objections to Evidence.

Charles Tallman, who conducts a grocery store on Liberty street, was fined $100 by Judge Newcorn in the District Court yesterday afternoon, after the State Board of Health, through Josiah Stryker, assistant attorney-general, had proved that he sold the Board's agent, Henry Boehn, a half a pound of oleomargerine without telling what it was. W. W. Wilson, who conducts three grocery stores in the West End, was fined the same amount, on similar testimony by Boehn.

Joseph F. Farmer, of Jersey City, the lawyer defending the grocers, made no effort to disprove the facts. He made one or two objections as to the evidence, and moved for dismissal of the action on the ground that the Board of Health had erred in taking proceedings in the name of Boehn. It was said the cases would be appealed on the technicality raised.

Grocers Nineteenth Annual Outing.

The nineteenth annual excursion of the Plainfield Grocers' Association to Coney Island, will be held on Decoration Day, May 30. The train will leave Dunellen at 7.40 o'clock in the morning, Grant Avenue at 7.42 and Plainfield at 7.50, returning leaving the Island at 8.40. Tickets for the outing can be procured from any grocer.

Hartridge School Commencement.

The Hartridge School has issued invitations to the commencement exercises to be held Friday morning, May 31, at 11-o'clock at the Casino. Dr. Edward Howard Griggs will make the address and diplomas and prizes will be presented to the graduates.

Miss Pauline Denton, of Washington avenue, has returned from a visit with her brother, Arthur Denton, a student at Brown University.

FIGURES SHOW UNEQUAL TAX IN UNION COUNTY

ELIZABETH AND PLAINFIELD SUFFER THROUGH CHANGE IN ASSESSING.

Secretary William R. Townsend, of the County Board of Assessors, yesterday received from City Clerk Kenah a copy of the communication sent to the Elizabeth Council at the last meeting concerning the equalization of taxes and the reduction of Elizabeth's share in the county expenses.

The members of the Finance Committee suggested that the Council call the attention of the County Board to the fact that instead of the relief expected for Elizabeth through the assessment of property throughout the county at its true valuation, there has been an increase.

The total valuations in Union county for 1906 were $106,259,437. The valuations in Elizabeth for the same year were $47,459,550. Elizabeth's valuation was therefore 44 6-10 per cent of the total county valuations. The total tax levy for county purposes in 1906 was $297,500, of which Elizabeth paid $132,874.

If the apportionment of the levy had been made on the basis of the valuations of 1905, Elizabeth's share would have been $129,780.44—showing that the city has suffered a loss of $3,093.70, instead of an expected gain.

Complaint was made from Plainfield that the taxpayers here are paying more than their share, and figures to prove that they paid last year $12,000 more than they paid in the tax levy for 1905 are given.

EPWORTH LEAGUERS HOLD A GROUP RALLY

MANY CHAPTERS REPRESENTED AT GATHERING IN MONROE AVE. CHURCH

The largest and most successful rally of Group No. 4, Epworth League, which includes the chapters from Somerville, Raritan, Dunellen, Mt. Horeb, Westfield, Bound Brook and Plainfield was held at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church last night. This was the third rally held this year and all considered it the best.

L. C. Ayers, of Bound Brook, president of the group, was in charge and conducted the devotional exercises, after which Rev. Perry C. Bascom, pastor of the M. E. church, Bound Brook, made the address of the evening, his subject being, "The Man in the Tower."

The man referred to by the speaker was John the Baptist. He told of his characteristics and peculiarities; and said that he was a man with a message. He described John as possessing patience, common sense and said that he was a good man to pattern after in Christian work; always zealous and progressive, yet not too much so. Mr. Bascom applied his subject in an interesting and helpful manner to the members of the Epworth League, showing how they can do even better work for Christ than in the past.

Mr. Bascom talked for about forty minutes, after which President Ayers gave an earnest address to the Epworthians. He reviewed the work of the past year, showing the progress made. There have been accessions to all the chapters and this was a source of encouragement to all.

Following the programme, the chapter of the Monroe Avenue church entertained the visiting members, serving refreshments and providing a social time, which was a feature of the rally. Every chapter in the group was well represented, the young people coming to Plainfield by trolley.

WORK AMONG THE MORMONS.

Interesting Paper Read at Home Missionary Meeting.

"Mission work among the Mormons" was the subject of a very interesting paper by Mrs. J. H. Buchanan, presented at the meeting of the Home Missionary Society of the First Baptist church, yesterday afternoon, in the lecture room. Mrs. Buchanan gave many of the hindrances to the work started in 1870 and carried on with different degrees of success by several Protestant missions. The influx of Gentiles into that country, the education of the masses and especially, the dissemination of Gospel truth were given as influences with power to Christianize this sect who hold in defiance the laws of God, as well as man.

The paper was preceded by the devotional service led by Mrs. B. J. Shreve and succeeded by an account of the anniversaries at Washington, D. C., by Mrs. J. A. Chambliss; the Home Missionary barrel viewed at the recipient's end by Mrs. Brown, and the organization of the Home Missionary Society by Mrs. D. J. Yerkes.

SUCCESSFUL OPENING OF CHRISTIAN CHURCH FAIR

LARGE ATTENDANCE, AND BOOTHS, PRETTILY DECKED, DO GOOD BUSINESS

The fair under the auspices of the women of the Christian church, opened last evening at the church. There was a good attendance, and everyone enjoyed the entertainment and the attraction offered at the various booths. The programme was as follows:

SOUTH PLAINFIELDERS APPEAR AT NEW MARKET.

Baptist Church Ladies Aid Society Gave Successful Entertainment.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the South Plainfield Baptist church gave a successful entertainment in the New Market Baptist church, last night. The programme opened with a selection by an orchestra, followed with a vocal duette, "You're as Welcome as the Flowers of May," by Miss Emma Faulks and Miss Mundy; vocal solo, Mrs. Jackson; recitation, "Christmas," Mrs. C. F. Attlee; song, "That's What the Daisy Said," Miss Grace Norman; recitation, "Briar Rose," Mrs. Bigley; quartette, "Somewhere," H. J. Manning, Miss Emma Faulks, Miss Mundy and T. A. Lindaberry; recitation, Rev. A. F. Attlee; dialogue, the Misses Mildred and Florence Johnson, Monroe Pyatt; selection by the orchestra.

At the close of the enterment all united in singing "Way Down Upon the Swanee River. A social time followed and ice cream and cake were served by a committee of women from the church. There is some talk of repeating the entertainment soon.

BLAZE IN A STORE-HOUSE.

Structure Belonging to Frank Putnam Damaged $30.

Fire in a store-house situated in the rear of Frank Putnam's home at 342 East Second street, called the department out this morning. The blaze was discovered by a boy living in the neighborhood and he notified Patrolman George Dobson, who sent in an alarm from box 53, East Second and Berckman streets. It required two tanks of the chemical engine to extinguish the blaze and the damage amounted to about $30.

The building was used by Mr. Putnam to store tools, lawn mower and various things. This morning some children had a bon-fire close to the building and it is Chief Doane's opinion that the structure caught in that way. Most of the contents were saved, but the house was burnt considerably inside and out.

From Toronto For Graduation.

Mrs. Alexander C. Scott, of Toronto, Canada, is a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Coward, of East Front street. She came to Plainfield to attend the graduation exercises of the Training School for Nurses, Muhlenberg Hospital, at the Casino, tomorrow night, her sister, Miss Hilda M. Hewlett, being one of the graduates.

Funeral of Arita O. Cruse.

The funeral service of Arita Octavia Cruse, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Cruse, was held from the parents' residence on West Third street, yesterday afternoon. Rev. J. W. Mitchell, grandfather of the child, officiated. The interment was in the Plainfield Avenue cemetery.

Reception to Graduates.

The North Plainfield High School Alumni Association will give a reception and dance to the 1907 graduating class at the Casino on Friday night, June 21. The affair will be by subscription.

Miss Alice Johnson, of Somerville, has returned home after a visit with relatives in Plainfield.

WANT ANNUAL CARNIVAL

Knights of Columbus Suggest That Big Affair Be Held Yearly.

APPEAL TO THE B. OF T.

Knights Would Like to See the Board Conduct the Carnival If It Became a Regularly Recurrent Event.

Striving to insure such a measure of success for its coming carnival as to make an event of that character annual in recurrence, the Knights of Columbus have asked the Board of Trade to help in making the affair go with the snap and popular approval aimed at by those in charge of it. The Knights argue that the carnival is in keeping with the Board's newly organized campaign of publicity for the city, inasmuch as Plainfield will be widely billed and advertised in the surrounding sections before and during the progress of the affair. For that reason it is felt that the Board can consistently give all possible assistance in pushing the carnival.

The Knights do not desire to make the proposed annual recurrence of the affair a project to be carried on by them. They feel that in the event of its becoming an annual feature of Plainfield's amusements it should be carried on under the direction of a body like the Board of Trade.

The letter to the Board was sent to President Harry W. Marshall by J. F. O'Keefe, chairman of the reception committee. It is as follows:

"I wish to bring to your attention officially the matter of the carnival which is to be conducted by the Hippodrome Amusement Company during the week beginning June 3, under the auspices of Watchung Council, No. 552, Knights of Columbus. This is certainly a step in the direction of the results which the Board of Trade is desirous of attaining, namely: The widespread advertising of the city of Plainfield and its many advantages, and it seems that all possible assistance should be given to the project by the Board of Trade, in order to assure its complete success and annual recurrence.

"May I ask that you will do what you can towards that end, by such notice to your members as you may deem proper under the circumstances? If the carnival is to be an annual affair it will be desirable that it be held under the direction of a representatie body such as yours; in that event, I can assure you that you will have our earnest and hearty cooperation. You may make such use of this letter as you see fit."

The letter was received too late to be brought before a regular meeting of the Board before the carnival begins, but the subject will be brought before the members unofficially. The letter will be presented to the Board by Mr. Marshall at the June meeting, and the suggestion that the Board arrange for an annual carnival will be considered.

APPORTIONMENT OF STATE SCHOOL MONEY

LARGE INCREASE OVER SUM DISTRIBUTED LAST YEAR.

The apportionment of the State school monies has been made public by County Superintendent William J. Shearer. Of the sums set aside for educational purposes by the State, Plainfield will receive a total of $80,477. Fanwood will receive $7,203. The amount apportioned from railroad tax to Plainfield is $28,561. This is not available, being held up pending the decision of the courts as to the validity of the legislation.

The sums available are much larger than last year. It was on account of this increase that the Board of Education found it possible to raise the salaries of the teachers. The money due the city will carry out all the work planned by the Board. The railroad tax money will be received with joy in keeping with its amount, but if the courts decide against the law, the loss of the money will not affect the financial ease of the Board.

Nearly a half a million dollars is apportioned to Union county. The exact sum is $467,062.76. The year in which the apportionment applies begins July 1.

Suspended Sentence.

Robert Randolph, colored, was arrested at North and Park avenues by Policeman John Kelly, yesterday afternoon. He was released under suspended sentence this morning.

—The price of Rockdale print and creamery butter at Neuman Bros. has been reduced to 33c and 32c. Elgin creamery is selling at 31c the pound.

RUSSIANS HOPE FOR PEACEFUL REVOLUTION

FINNISH EXILE TALKS OF THE REFORM MOVEMENT AT HARTRIDGE SCHOOL.

Views of the Russian revolutionary movement from the inside were afforded the pupils of the Hartridge school this morning. Ivan Narodny, a Finnish worker for the reform of Russia spoke to them of the struggle that is going on to make the northern empire as free and modern as her sisters to the south and east.

Mr. Narodny is an exile. He served four years in the political prison in St. Petersburg. Undaunted by his sufferings, he is as earnest in his work for the cause as when he first started it.

He said the freedom to be established in Russia was to be brought about, if possible, by peaceful revolution. It was to be accomplished by educating the people, and the work of instruction was going on among all classes, from the peasantry and the soldiery up to the highest circle. Mr. Narodny is waiting until the peaceful revolution has been accomplished, when he will return to his country and help educate the people.

He was accompanied by Miss Mieler, a Finnish worker for Russian reform, who is also exiled. She sang several Finnish folk songs. Mr. Narodny told of his experiences in prison.

Miss Mieler has a splendid soprano voice, and her rendition of the folk songs were excellent. She will give a concert in this city in the fall.

ORGANIZE TO SIFT HIGH COST OF STONE ROADS.

State Commissioners of Public Thoroughfares Hutchinson President and Robbins Counsel.

The commission appointed by the Governor to investigate the cost to the State of stone for roads, organized at noon yesterday in the office of State Commissioner of Public Roads Elijah C. Hutchinson in the State house, Trenton.

Mr. Hutchinson, former Assemblyman David D. Denise of Freehold; John E. Darnell, of Masonville, and John Albertson, of Magnolia, were present. Winthrop E. Scaritt, of East Orange, the other member of the commission, sent a letter saying that an important business engagement prevented his attending. He advised the board to go ahead and organize in his absence.

Mr. Hutchinson was elected chairman, on motion of Mr. Denise. Robert A. Meeker, of this city, State supervisor of public roads, was elected secretary. The commission spent some time in discussing the scope of the powers given it under the resolution passed by the Legislature and a plan of action.

THIRTY DAYS IN DARK TO SAVE SIGHT OF AN EYE.

Ordeal Must Be Undergone By Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Prominent Local Lawyer.

Because of an affection of the left eye which threatens the sight, Counsellor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., will today go into dark room "exile" at his home on Grant avenue. The treatment was ordered by Dr. Frank C. Ard and there is a possibility that it may continue a month. Mr. Hetfield has been unable to use the eye for the past week but it was only Monday that he realized the seriousness of the trouble. It had its origin in an injury to the optic last January.

The young man is a member of the Union County Board of Elections and is one of the best known lawyers in the city.

RELENTED TOO SOON.

Borough Woman Imposed Upon By Husband She Forgave.

On complaint of his wife, William McDonald, of Duer street, was locked up by Chief Weiss, of the borough, last night. She charged that while in an intoxicated condition he struck and beat her. McDonald promised that he would stop drinking and on this pledge his wife refused to press the charge and he was released.

Later McDonald returned home, and according to his wife's story, he took the only dollar there was in the house and spent it for liquor, leaving nothing in the house to eat. She again complained to the police and said that if they would arrest her husband she would appear against him. Up to noon today McDonald had not been sighted. He is employed as a burnisher in one of the local machine shops.

Special Meeting of Governors.

William R. Cock, president of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital has issued a call for a special meeting of the Board to be held at the close of the graduating exercises of the training school at the Casino tomorrow night. Matters of importance and special interest to the hospital are to be considered.

WITH INCREASED STRENGTH SOCIETY STARTS NEW YEAR

CONGREGATIONALIST WOMEN'S ASSOCIATION HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING.

Encouraging reports were received by the Women's Association of the Congregational church, yesterday afternoon, at the annual meeting. Incrased activity has been marked in all departments, and the society starts the new year stronger in membership and in general prospects than ever before.

These officers and heads of committees were eelected:

President, Mrs. Curtis Bates; vice president, Mrs. C. L. Goodrich; treasurer, Mrs. John M. Whiton; recording secretary, Mrs. Charles A. Rice; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Bentley. Visiting, Mrs. William VanAlstyne; sewing, Mrs. Hand; literature, Mrs. Dunning; local charity, Mrs. George Fisher; programme, Miss Florella Clark; music, Mrs. Eugene Laing; literature, missionary tea, Miss Jessie McIntosh; church care, Mrs. Frank A. Weeks; social, Mrs. LaBoyteaux; entertainment, Mrs. James MacClymont, refreshments.

During the year the society collected $667, an increase of $136 over the sum contributed last year. Money was given to home and foreign missions in equal sums. The secretary reported activity in all departments of the work. The membership is 58, an increase over that of a year ago.

A social hour followed the meeting. Refreshments were served.

NEW PONY CLASS ADDED FOR COMING HORSE SHOW

COMMITTEE ALSO PLANS FINE ARRANGEMENTS FOR SHIPPING ENTRIES.

The Plainfield Riding and Driving Club has added a class, open to all, for pairs of ponies in harness at the coming horse show; first prize $25, second prize $10; ponies 13 hands and under 14-2 hands. Should there be a sufficient number of ponies of comparative large and small sizes in this class, it will be respectively divided into two competitions, each winner being awarded half of the first and second prizes and to receive regular ribbons. The division of sizes will be 13 hands to 13-3 and over 13-3 and under 14-2 hands.

To permit all exhibitors mailing their entries without delay, the rule governing all maiden and novice classes is amended to read as follows: "Open only to horses that have not won prior to May 18, 1907, a first prize at any recognized horse show." All entries will close Saturday, May 25, with Charles W. Smith, assistant secretary, 16 East Twenty-third street, New York.

Arrangements have been perfected with the New Jersey Central to furnish suitable horse cars, which will be in readiness at Jersey City for loading early Wednesday morning, June 5, all horses to be loaded not later than 11 o'clock in the morning. Necessary cars will also be provided to accomodate vehicles which should be loaded and ready for movement the same time as the horses. The trains will leave Jersey City about 12 o'clock noon on June 5. The return trip of both horses and vehicles will be by special train Sunday morning, June 9, at 9 o'clock. The fast Philadelphia train leaving Liberty street on the New Jersey Central at 12 o'clock noon, or from West Twenty-third street at 11:50 a. m., will stop at Plainfield, June 6, 7 and 8; dining car attached.

For information as to boxes, reserved seats, parking spaces and subscribing memberships, address Lewis G. Timpson, secretary, Plainfield. There has been a great demand for parking spaces, boxes and reserved seats, and those desiring accomodations should make application at the earliest possible date.

Sheridan Jones Fined.

Sheridan Jones, colored, who has appeared in the city court a number of times, was arrested yesterday morning for drunkenness. His record worked against him when he faced Judge Runyon this morning, and he was fined $5 or twenty days in jail.

The Fifth Jamestown Picture.

The great Historic Exposition at Norfolk, Virginia, is now in full swing. The New York World again announces a beautiful picture in colors of this Exposition. Everybody should have this set of pictures. Free with the Sunday World.

W. B. Grannatt, Jr., Branches Out.

William B. Grannatt, Jr., who has been connected with Thad. Doane, Jr., the real estate broker, has severed his connection with Mr. Doane and has opened a real estate office at 134 Park avenue, second floor, of the Jeffrey building.

A THRILLING EXPERIENCE

Auto Bearing City Clerk MacMurray and Randolph Perkins Almost Plunges Over Cliff.

STOPPED AT THE EDGE

Accident Occurred Sunday Near Fort Lee But Was Kept Quiet By the Participants.

City Clerk James T. MacMurray and Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, while touring the Palisades above Fort Lee, Sunday afternoon, had the narrowest kind of an escape from being dashed to pieces over a very high cliff. They are alive to tell the story of an experience that neither one want again, only by what seems a Providential act.

Mr. MacMurray and Mr. Perkins, accompanied by a chauffeur, left Westfield ealy in the day to take an auto trip through Northern New Jersey. It was afternoon when they struck Fort Lee and proceeded to climb the long hill, leading from the town, which is hemmed in on one side by a high stone wall and an open space with a deep precipice on the other. The machine had covered about half the distance, when for some unknown reason, the steering gear refused to work. The auto headed for the precipice and when the chauffeur attempted to apply the brakes he discovered that they would not work. The occupants of the car were about to give up all hope when the front wheels stopped at the edge of the cliff, and the car suddenly proceeded to back up at a terrific pace.

The chauffeur remained at his post and exhausted every means to bring the bucking machine to a standstill, but it would not be tamed. With alarming speed it continued to butt against the stone wall, until it was a wreck. In the meantime Mr. MacMurray and Mr. Perkins succeeded in jumping from the machine and a few minutes later the chauffeur was rescued.

The front wheels, the fender and the axles were damaged to such an extent that the big car was put entirely out of commission. Thankful that their lives were saved the trio took a trolley back to Fort Lee, from where they returned to New York. The wrecked automobile was taken to a garage at Fort Lee, where it is now being repaired.

The accident was kept very quiet, but today the facts came out when someone asked Mr. Perkins what had become of his automobile.

SCARCITY OF FLOWERS FOR DECORATION DAY.

Backward Season will Make it Harder for G. A. R. to Get Sufficient Supply.

There is likely to be a scarcity of flowers for Decoration Day. Usually the Grand Army, the Women's Relief Corps and the organizations which decorate the graves of the soldier dead have no difficulty in getting big supplies of flowers from private gardens and flower beds, the season usually being so well advanced that all sorts of flowers are in full bloom.

This year the backward season has held back the flower crop. Many gardens which usually at this time are a mass of bloom are now little more than started, and some people, discouraged at the backward weather, have not planted their gardens at all.

The committees organized to secure flowers are making a much more careful canvass than ever before in the effort to keep this year's supply of flowers up to the standard. The committee of the Grand Army request all persons having any flowers whatever to give for Decoration Day, no matter how small the quantity, to notify the committee, by sending a postal to Mrs. Wm. C. Smith, and arrangements will be made to get the flowers in time for the purpose for which they are designed, the decoration of the graves of the soldier dead in the local cemeteries on Decoration Day, May 30.

Dramatics a Social Event.

In addition to the interest from a dramatic point of view, the annual public performance of the Park Comedy Club tomorrow evening will be a social event of considerable importance. From the inception of this club its members have attempted to make its entertainments more than a formal presentation of plays and it is intended to carry this policy out even more fully in the year to come. The club has already produced four plays, or rather given four "evenings," and the fifth which is to be held tomorrow night promises to be the most elaborate of all.

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

Frank Cyphers, of Somerville, has moved his family to Somerset street, Raritan.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Conboy have moved from Church street to Rahway.

WESTFIELD.

Westfield Council is having the sewer problem investigated. Owing to the growth of the town and the building of a reservoir near the sewage disposal beds, the question is either go to the epense of a sewer to tidewater, or a new location for the disposal beds. W. G. Peckham who was an advocate of the disposal beds when first installed, is out with a letter strongly in favor of increasing the size of the disposal bed system.

Ordinances for the telephone extension in Westfield came before the Council Monday night. There were some objections made to overhead wires, but as the ordinance also calls for the underground system, the objections were not pressed.

Repairs to the county road system in Westfield and Cranford have been started by Road Superintendent J. W. Fink.

Rev. J. R. Danforth and family will go to Squirrel Island, Me., on June 1 for the summer.

The annual inspection of the Westfield Fire Department will be held Friday evening.

NO RECEIVER FOR THE STATE MUTUAL B. AND L.

Vice-Chancellor Leaming Declares That in His Opinion One is Not Necessary.

Vice-Chancellor Leaming, after hearing argument of counsel yesterday, dismissed the application for the appointment of a receiver for the State Mutual Building and Loan Association. In so doing the court said that in his opinion a receiver is not necessary. The petition for a receiver was made by and on behalf of Dennis Ryan, of Camden, and many Plainfielders are concerned in the matter.

It was charged in Mr. Ryan's supplementary bill that for more than a year the State department of banking and insurance had knowledge that the association was in a condition of insolvency, and that the commissioner was preparing to file a bill asking for the appointment of a receiver when influence was brought to bear upon the department, with the result that the proceedings were stopped. It was for this reason, the bill said, that counsel filed the original application for a receiver without consulting the banking and insurance department.

SHORT TALKS BY L. T. COOPER.

THAT TIRED FEELING.

"That tired feeling" is a sure sign that the system needs regulating. A dull, droopy man or woman needs something to get the blood jumping once more. The whole body is clogged with impurities, but the seat of the trouble is the stomach. It has been gradually letting down, only half doing its work and the poisons that should be carried off by the bowels absorb the nutrition and then the blood becomes impoverished, sluggish. From one to three bottles of Cooper's New Discovery will get the stomach back in shape. The tired feeling will surely disappear if this is done.

MRS. M. WISE.

This letter tells what a woman thinks who tried it:

"I suffered from loss of appetite, poor digestion and general breaking down. I was so weak I could scarcely get about. I felt tired and worn out nearly all the time. Upon hearing of the great things Cooper's New Discovery was doing for others afflicted as I was, I began to use it. By the time the first bottle was gone my condition was immensely improved. I now feel strong again and do my own work with ease. Please accept my sincere thanks." Mrs. M. Wise, 1217 Norwood St., Indianapolis, Ind.

The Cooper preparations enjoy a larger sale than any other medicine.—That seems to prove their efficiency.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

The New York Americans won three straight on the road. It would be very nice if they would do it again before returning home.

Scotch Plains and Clinton Avenue will furnish the sport on Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon and it will be a battle for keeps. The locals will try to retrieve lost honors.

Ernest Dorflinger, of the Clinton Avenues, says that the Scotch Plains team will be their hardest proposition this season.

The Y. M. C. A. aggregation promises to make it interesting for any team in the amateur league this year.

The Potter A. C. is open for games with any amateur team. Address L. Lambert, R. F. D. No. 1.

Gilman will be with the Clinton Avenues on Saturday and no doubt he will help to make the contest a victory for his team. He is valuable with the stick and in the field.

The officials of the Inter-City Amateur League are confronted with a knotty problem. Jack Peacock, of this city, a freshman at Princeton, allowed Manager James Penny, of Dunellen, to enter his name as a member of that team, and later it was discovered that he had also signed with Scotch Plains. The question to be decided is whether his written word to Manager Penny or his signed name to the Scotch Plains list should be accepted. The Dunellen manager says he will not waive his claims to Peacock, while Scotch Plains feels the same way. In case the officials are unable to decide the matter Peacock will not be permitted to play with any club in the league. He is considered a fine pitcher and would be a big help to any one of the five clubs.

"Christy" Mathewson, who is now in such fine condition, is looked upon by the New York fans as the one man to safely land his team in first place. Of course, the other members of the team are expected to support him faultlessly.

If enthusiasm could win games the New York Americans would probably be in first place now, but unfortunately it cannot. Clark Griffith says that he is the hardest loser in the world and he don't care who knows it.

GOLF.

A remarkable score by E. Milton Wilde, a boy entered from the Cranford High School, was the most prominent feature of the opening at Garden City yesterday of the New York Interscholastic Golf Association tournament. Wilde won the low score prize in the qualifying round by a lead of four strokes. The team prize had but two competitors, Lawrenceville and St. Paul's Schools. The former team re tained its title, first claimed last year.

Play will be continued on Saturday at the Plainfield Country Club for the Golf committee cup, a team match with Yale University and continuation of play for the May cup.

In addition to the weekly play for the President's cup at the Park Golf Club on Saturday there will also be the initial play for the Golf Club cup, offered by W. J. Buttfield. This competition will continue every Saturday up to and including Election Day, November 5. The previous winners of this cup are Gus. W. Faber, 1904; Raymond B. Carroll, 1905, and Charles A. Reed, 1906. The cup shall become the property of the person winning it three times.

Another event of interest to be started at the Park Golf Club on Saturday will be the competition for the Hydewood cup, offered by Louis K. Hyde. This will be contested for the morning and afternoon of Saturday, May 2, Thursday, May 30, and every Saturday in the month of June, and Thursday, July 4. Play for the trophy will be on the point system, five, four, three, two and one.

There will be many special events at the Plainfield Country Club on Decoration Day in addition to the final play for the May cups, Class A and B.

Dudley H. Barrows, who will be graduated from Princeton College this year, has found time to distinguish himself in the game of golf and he devotes much of his spare time on the links. After his graduation he will accompany his parents on a trip abroad.

The Park Golf Club course continues to improve every day and there is also a noticeable improvement in the scores of the players.

Programmes for the thirteenth annual open championship of the United States Golf Association have been sent out by Secretary W. Fellowes Morgan. It will be at the Philadelphia Cricket Club, June 20 and 21, at seventy-two holes medal play. Thirty-six holes will be played on Thursday and thirty-six holes on Friday, but contestants whose scores at the finish of Thursday's play exceed by fifteen strokes the tenth place shall drop out of the competition. There will be ten prizes. The winner will receive $300, a gold medal and the custody of the championship cup, the other prizes being $150, $100, $80, $70, $60, $50, $40, $30 and $20. Entries close on June 12 at the office of Secretary Morgan. Aleck Smith, the titleholder, will not compete, as he has sailed to play in the British open championship at Hoylake, June 12 to 14.

Ernest A. Thomson, of the Garden City Golf Club and W. C. Carnegie of the Allegheny Country Club are with Byers and Horstman at St. Andrews, Scotland. Jock Hutchinson, professional at our St. Andrews, is at his old home to caddie for Byers in the British amateur championship.

In the annual match between Oxford and Cambridge played at Hoylake recently the latter team won by 1 up, the score being 23 holes to 22. Former Amateur Champion Barry led the Cambridge team and lost to J. A. Robertson- Durham after they had made the record of halving the first eleven holes by 7 up. Each pair went thirty-si holes, and in the morning Oford led by 3 up. If the count had been by matches instead of holes Oxford would have won by 1 up, but they do not favor that system. Owing to a mix-up of the same sort the American Intercollegiate Golf Association some years ago evolved a system of counting one point for each match plus one-half the holes the player was up. Under lit the team winning the most matches will win out in nine cases out of ten. Under the American system Oxford would have won by 15 to 14½.

There will be many attractive features. The proceeds will be for the benefit of the Sunday-school carpet fund.

WEST PORTAL ARSON CASE.

Trial Set Down for June 10 Because of Pressure of Business.

The West Portal arson case, in which Postmaster Vail, Harry T. Vail, Joseph Hummel and Ellen Gillen are indicted for burning down and conspiring to burn down buildings at West Portal, has been set down for trial on June 10 at Flemington. The time of trial has been set for this late date owing to the press of other business connected with the Prosecutor's office. Postmaster Vail is a former local resident, while Miss Gillen has been living on Watchung avenue, this city.

Postmaster Vail is still in jail in default of $4,000 bail. His counsel, Senator Gebhardt and Paul Queen, have been unable to induce the court to accept the bond offered, on the grounds that the security is insufficient. Prosecutor Large opposes the bond for that reason, declaring that he will take no chances on his getting away.

Contracts Awarded for Addition.

The trustees of Faith chapel have awarded the contracts for the addition to the structure and work will be started within a few days. Mundy Brothers will do the mason work, Peter Thompson the carpenter work, while J. D. Loizeaux will furnish the lumber. The addition will provide several extra class rooms, one for the Baraca Classs, one for the women's Bible class and a room for the holding of prayer meetings.

S. of V. Close Charter.

John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, met last night and added a number of names to the charter, after which it was closed. The camp has more than enough members for the charter and has reorganized under favorable auspices. Some of the division officers were present last night to give the camp assistance. At the meeting next Tuesday plans for the coming year will be discussed more fully.

CLOSED PORTALS.

There wil be initiation at the meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., tomorrow night.

Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. & A. M., conferred the master mason degree on three candidates last night at aregular communication.

After Philadelphia's Councils had passed finally yesterday the ordinance appropriating $50,000 for the decorating of Broad street and the erection of arches in honor of the Elks' convention, next July, Edwin O. Lewis, common councilman from the Twenty-seventh ward, who alone opposed the passage of the bill, declared that the appropriation would be attacked and the courts be asked to enjoin payment on the ground that Councils have no right to appropriate money for such purposes.

DRUG DECISION HAS LITTLE EFFECT LOCALLY.

Circuit Court Decides That Price Contracts Between Retailers and Manufacturers Are Void.

Druggists in this city think they will not be effected much by the recent decision of the United States Circuit Court restraining certain drug manufacturers from making contracts with the retail druggists regulating the prices of drugs. The drug manufacturers were made defendants in the case along with the National Association of Retail Druggists, the suit being instituted by the Government.

There are a number of makers of proprietary drugs who have insisted on a contract with a druggist, before letting him handle their goods, that the druggist would retail the goods for a certain price. The druggist could not sell below this figure and the Circuit Court decided that this was in restraint of trade. Practically all the druggists in town have had such contracts with the few manufacturers who insisted on them. Now that the c ontracts are declared illegal, the druggists may sell the particular drugs at any price they choose. There are not many drugs affected by the court decision, and it is not expected that any startling change of prices will result, though it is possible that the particular drugs round which the contracts hinged may drop a little.

ENTERTAINED CLASS.

Members of Warren Chapel Sunday-School Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Place.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Place, of Grove street, entertained the members of Mr. Place's Sunday-school class from Warren chapel, at their home, last night, in a delightful manner. There were about thirty-two guests and a pleasing programme was arranged for them. After an address of welcome by Mr. Place, A. V. D. Honeyman gave a short talk on "Egypt and the Nile," at the conclusion of which he distributed to each one present a Flemish coin, valued at one-fifth of a cent and picture postals as souvenirs.

Miss Ella Case gave recitations and remarks were also made by Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel; E. E. Parvin, superintendent of the Sunday-school, and Joseph W. Gavett, a teacher in the school, and Mrs. George H. Campbell read a couple of stories. A social time followed and coffee, sandwiches and cake were served by the host and hostess.

CIRCUS GOT OFF CHEAPLY.

Paid Fine of $20 Because it Failed to Pay License Fee of $200.

Bridgeton, May 22.—It has just leaked out that the City Council of Bridgeton unintentionally passed a "joker" ordinance regulating the license fee for amusements, and the councilmen are having to stand a lot of guying. They put the fee for a circus at $200, and then the fine for violating the ordinance at $20.

The Forepaugh-Sells Brothers circus showed here last week, and politely but firmly refused to pay the license, saying they preferred to "cough up" the fine for the violation. They took out of the town about, $10,000 in gate receipts, and left with the city officials just $65, the additional sum above the fine being for damage to streets, etc. The councilmen look sheepish and say the ordinance will be promptly amended at the next meeting.

James E. White Critically Ill.

James E. White, father of Edward White, of this city, is critically ill at the home of his sister in New York and it is not believed that he will live through the week. Mr. White was one of the early merchants in this city, he and his son being engaged in the dry goods business at East Front street and Watchung avenue in 1887. During the past few years he has been conducting a dry goods business at Morristown. He was taken ill a month ago and then went to the home of his sister, where he has been ever since.

MRS. BAILEY GIVES $100,000.

As a memorial to her husband, the late James A. Bailey, the showman, Mrs. Ruth L. Bailey has contributed $100,000 for a memorial hospital in Mount Vernon, N. Y.

It was announced several days ago that Mrs. Bailey had contributed $10,000 toward the maintenance of the Mount Vernon Hospital, but, in addition, she has decided to expend at least $100,000 for a new hospital to be built beside the present structure, and to be called the Bailey Memorial Hospital. It is to be the central administration building of the whole hospital corporation. It will be built of stone and will be modern in every detail. Mrs. Bailey also will endow the new hospital.

The exact amount of this gift is not yet known, but it will assure the perpetuity of the institution.

Harriman Horses Win.

Reginald C. Vanderbilt, J. W. Harriman, Peter T. Roche, Carr brothers and George Watson divided honors among them in the harness classes at the first day of the Country Club Show, Clyde Park, Brookline, Mass., yesterday. In all the classes in which Avondale Farm, owned by Mr. Harriman, and the Vanderbilt entries met the former showed to better advantage under the guidance of John Donnelly, and in nearly every case the Harriman entries got the blue. Many of these horses will be seen at the fourth annual horse show of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, June 6, 7, and 8.

POSTAL CLERKS' CONVENTION.

Gathering Will Be Held at Elizabeth Decoration Day.

Elizabeth, May 22.—Arrangements have been completed for the annual convention of the New Jersey State Association of Postal Clerks in this city on Decoration Day. The convention will be held in Arcanum Hall, and will be opened at 11 a. m., by Peter F. Scherf, president of the local branch. Addresses of welcome will be delivered by Mayor P. J. Ryan and Postmaster Charlock, and the reply will be made, on behalf of the visiting delegation, by Edward Eaton, of Paterson. Then the business meeting will be held, with John J. Fitzgerald, of Paterson, president of the State Association, in the chair. In the afternoon officers will be elected.

Beginning at 6:30 p. m. a banquet will be held in Quien Hall, with Postmaster Palmer H. Charlock as toastmaster. The toasts will be as follows: "Our Country," Congressman John J. Gardner; "Memorial Day," the Rev. Father Lundy, of St. Patrick's church; "Our City," General Dennis F. Collins; "The Postal Service," Postmaster George W. Politt, of Paterson; "The Postal Clerks," John J. Fitzgerald, of Paterson.

Among those present are expected to be United States Senator John Kean and Congressmen Fowler, Hughes and Loudenslager.

Steamer Fire Fatal to Five.

Grand Haven, Mich., May 22.—Trapped in the forecastle, cut off by a fire that was destroying the steamer amidships and unable to squeeze through the small portholes, four coal passers lost their lives in the disaster which overtook the steamer Naomi in midlake yesterday morning. A fifth death was claimed when J. M. Rhoades, of Detroit, travelling agent for the Diamond Match Company, succumbed to his burns after being taken to a hospital in Grand Rapids. That the remaining fifty-five persons also did not lose their lives in the fire was due to the prompt work of three other lake going vessels, all of which on perceiving the calamity to the Naomi hurried to give assistance. These vessels were the steel freighter Kerr, bound for Duluth, and the steamers Kansas and Stratford, bound for this port.

Senator and Mrs. Everett Colby are still in the south for the benefit of Mrs. Colby's health. She is improving slowly. A little later they will go abroad for the summer.

Eccentric Frenchman Carried Resentment to the Grave.

There has just died at Belley, France, an old man of 72, who during his lifetime was notorious for his eccentric and miserly habits, though he was in possession of an income of $4,000. His funeral was attended by a large number of relatives, who were astonished to discover only a few coppers in the house after the funeral. The will was then opened, and it read as follows: "My dear relatives: I am afraid you are going to be disappointed. I know that none of you have any sort of affection for me, and that if you come to my funeral it will be in the hope of dividing up between you whatever I may leave behind me. I now inform you that I have left no money whatever. I sank the whole of my fortune some years ago in a life annuity. All the money that remained over and above what I spent of the annuity I have given away or burned. I hope this will be a little surprise for you." A search revealed, however, $1,000 worth of annuity stock, the coupons of which appeared to have remained unpaid, but on going to the bank to have these coupons cashed the heirs discovered that the coupons had been paid, but at the special request of the old gentleman, who had given a separate receipt for each coupon, they had not been canceled. "This is only a little surprise I am keeping back for my heirs," he said. It appears that on the occasion of the annual festival the old man deliberately burned $10,000 worth of bank notes, which he found he had been unable to spend.

BODY NOT TO BE SACRIFICED.

Physical as Well as Mental Education Demanded.

The man or woman who will train the mental faculties without any reference to the physical, shows a faulty qualification for the work in which he or she may be engaged, says the Knoxville Journal. The mind may be ever so well trained and stored with knowledge of the books; but unless there is behind it a reasonably strong body, life runs the risk of being a failure; if not that, an existence of pain that serves as a limitation upon its possibilities. It is a species of cruelty to educate the mind at the expense of the body. Better let a child grow up into manhood or womanhood with an inferior education than with a better education of the mind and a body weakened in the effort. The fact that so many men in this country have succeeded in business and in professional and public life have been the sons of farmers, whose early life has been spent out of doors, has been a subject of remark; may it not be accounted for on the ground that in their boyhood their physique was developed so that in after life, besides their mental acquirements, they had strong bodies with which to do the work they have so successfully performed? This is not only possible, but very probable.

How to Treat Employes.

Every store that I know of in America obliges its help to stand on their feet from morning until closing time. Behind each counter in my store is a chair. I want my employes when not busy to sit down and rest. As I walk through the different departments in my store my employes do not have to feel that they must brace up because the "boss" is coming around. My employes are doing right all the time because, they know that I am doing right and using them as near right as I know how. My employes would far rather have me home than abroad. I guess that I am an easier fellow to work for than the manager, but he cannot be very severe with them, because I always tell him to use them just as I use him. I tell every man at the head of a department, "Be kind to the help under you. Do not speak to them in any other way than the way I speak to you. Handle your help so that they will respect you and so that they will regret to leave my employ."—Everybody's.

The Old-Fashioned Sea Captain.

Is the old-fashioned sea captain extinct as a type? He stuck close to his ship in the moments of disaster, doing what he could to save the lives of passengers and crew, and, if necessary, going to his death in the effort. He may often have erred in his extreme devotion to duty, but he held unflinchingly to the loftiest ideals of responsibility and self-sacrifice, and his example was of incalculable value to his profession and to humanity. Are we to regard him only as a memory, or does he anywhere to-day survive?—Brooklyn Eagle.

Submarine Lifeboat.

When a submarine boat becomes disabled beneath the surface of the water and cannot rise its crew is in a bad predicament. To remedy the difficulty an inventor has contrived an auxiliary boat to be carried in the submarine and to be a part of it, practically, until needed. In time of accident the crew of the incapacitated submarine would enter the little craft and when the containing chamber had been flooded the bolts would be withdrawn and the vessel with its human freight would clear itself and rise to the surface.

TWO METHODS OF BUSINESS.

One Conspicuous Success and the Other a Complete Failure.

A few years ago the proprietor of a great steel file company in New England, which has several branch factories in various parts of America, altogether employing skilled workmen by the thousand, called at the office of a forwarding firm in New York, one of whose partners is a European, and asked that they suggest the proper way to introduce his files in Europe. This factory makes 7,000 varieties of files, and enjoys a great reputation throughout the mechanical world of America. The agent selected was a European, who had been Americanized, who believed in the virtues of the files he was to sell, and who was familiar with the great opportunities in industrial Europe. He went from one manufacturing town in the old world to another, and to demonstrate the superior quality of the American implement, took similar European tools and filed right through them, to the astonishment of foreign mechanics and factory owners. Orders began to go to America by cable, says a writer in Appleton's Magazine. It was not long before one request reached New England from Germany for 100,000 dozen. A good salesman and superior goods had done the work. The salary of the agent was raised to $20,000 a year and expenses, and the American file to-day is furthering the constructive work of every mechanical center in Europe. Contrast that masterful record with the fiasco of the American who spent $2,000 to introduce corn medicine into Japan, only to discover that the multitudes of that empire wear no shoes and consequently have no corns.

GUARDING A GREAT HEIRESS.

Unfortunate Girl of Wealth Never Allowed Out Alone.

They do say that an American heiress of well known name is never by any chance allowed out of sight of one or more responsible persons, who act in the capacity of a body guard or secret service men. The luckless girl can never move outside the domicile for a run in the park or a trip down the avenue or pay a visit to another girl unless accompanied, not merely chaperoned. Chaperones do not count nowadays. And wherefore these precautions? Simply because mademoiselle is such an heiress she is a quarry for fortune hunters and a recognized class of conspirators who stick at nothing in their social brigandage! Formerly it was the detrimentals whom mamma feared; now it is a much bolder schemer that may swoop down any moment and carry off the dove of millions. Funny, is it not, that such a state of things should have developed in America?—Boston Herald.

Seventy Years Old.

In one of the Jersey courts of justice, a prisoner was about to be put on trial for a serious offense. Five jurors had been accepted. The clerk called out: "Dennis Riordan." A shriveled old Irishman responded: "Here!" The counsel for the defense looked at him and said: "Challenged." Why? On account of age. "How old are you?" the attorney asked. "Siventy," replied Dennis, in a wheezy, squeaky voice. The venerable judge asked: "My good man, when were you 70?" "Three years ago, yer honor!" shouted Dennis in a voice that could be heard blocks away. "Excused," said the judge; and he had to rap for order.

To Encourage Thrift.

A New York man has just patented a device for the encouragement of thrift. It consists of a toy savings bank with a clock attachment. The clock is set in the face of the bank and cannot be wound unless a dime is dropped in the slot. As winding causes the dime to fall into the vault and the clock will run but 24 hours without rewinding the contrivance assures an accumulation of 70 cents a week. The theory is that the necessity of depositing a dime every day will lead to slipping in other coins at odd moments and thus establish a habit of saving.

The Modern Woman.

The modern woman's aim is to be business-like, and her affairs of the heart, such as they are, she conducts on the same principles as she would conduct a public meeting or a charity bazaar. She plays hockey and golf, fences and wrestles in order to develop her muscles, and learns ju-jitsu principally because it is the fashion, but also because, as an ethereal debutante informed me the other day, "it's so jolly useful if you want to knock a man down."—Ladies' Field.

Suspiciously Bad Cold.

"Why do you ask me where I was last night?" he queried. "Didn't I 'phone you specially that I was nearly dead with a cold and was going straight home and go to bed?" "Yes," she assented, "and I would have believed you, too, if you hadn't coughed so terribly over the 'phone."

Appraised at Full Value.

"Miserly gave the fireman who saved his life when his house was on fire 50 cents for carrying him down the ladder. "Did the fireman take it?" "Partly. He gave Miserly 20 cents change."

Of Personal Interest.

"What," queried the spinster, "was the most interesting thing you ever read?" "My decree of divorce," promptly replied the grass widow.

The Mystery of Carney-Croft

BY JOSEPH BROWN COOKE. COPYRIGHT 1907 BY STORY-PRESS CORPORATION

CHAPTER VII.
A Misplaced Joke.

I read it over and over again until the letters fairly danced before my eyes, and then I suddenly awoke to the importance of finding, if possible, how it had been placed in my bed.

The window was open, to be surer, and had been open all night, but it was too far from the ground to have been reached without a ladder, and a later inspection of the ground beneath showed conclusively that no ladder had been placed under it. Moreover, the little tendrils of ivy that waved in the breeze all around the sash were absolutely uninjured, which could not have been the case if an entrance to the room had been effected in this way.

The door was securely locked and bolted on the inside, as I had left it the night before, and a most thorough search disclosed no other door opening into the room, and no possible place of concealment for anything of the bulk of a man.

The thought of a concealed opening in the ceiling over the bed naturally suggested itself to my mind, but nothing of the sort existed and a moment's examination with a towel on the end of a walking stick showed a layer of dust which evidently had not been disturbed for years.

In short the presence of the envelope on my bed seemed to be shrouded in mystery of the most impenetrable kind; but even it was exceeded in its incomprehensibility by the astonishing contents of the note.

My love for Florence Carney was, I had thought, a secret buried deep in my own breast. Surely I had never told it in all the years that I had cherished it so fondly, and, on one occasion at least, I had denied it flatly. Yet it was mentioned here, in as matter-of-fact a way as if our engagement had been formally announced and our wedding day named.

I turned the matter over and over in my mind, as I strolled slowly along in the winding road that led to Hoskins' hotel, but I was no nearer a solution of the problem when I finished my breakfast than I had been when I left the house. There were a number of letters for me at the post office, but I had no interest in them, and, stuffing them unread into my pocket, I wandered back to Carney-Croft, still pondering deeply.

Unlocking the door, I returned at once to my room and again made a careful search for any possible means of ingress after the door was closed and secured for the night. While the lock might have been turned from the outside with a master key, there was still the bolt to hold it, and that this could not have been slipped by any other hand than mine I was absolutely sure. Moreover, there was no hidden mechanism connected with the bolt, which was a simple, commonplace affair, bearing the name of a well-known maker and evidently attached to the door after the house was completed.

Giving up in despair, for the present, at least, I descended to the ground floor again, intending to make a minute inspection of the house and grounds, when a faint odor of cigar smoke attracted my notice, and I saw that the library door was ajar.

Tiptoeing forward, I peered through the opening and beheld, to my amazement, a familiar figure seated comfortably in one of the large leather chairs with his feet resting lazily on another in all the assurance of apparent proprietorship. At the same instant he turned his head slightly in my direction and, uncertain as to whether he had seen me or not, I retreated rapidly and noiselessly up the stairs to my room, where I locked myself in and tried to smother my anger and view the situation logically.

While the manner in which the note had reached me was still as much of a mystery as ever, its contents, at least, were explained, and my fury knew no bounds at the wholly unwarranted impertinence of this sorry attempt at a practical joke.

To me the matter was so sacred, so precious, so entirely my own, that my rage at the frivolity of this contemptible jest drove from my mind all thought of wonder that a man who, I had every reason to believe, was miles away, should be, at this very moment, under the same roof with me.

I sat down and gazed out of the window across the river to the heavily wooded hills in the distance, and made an almost superhuman effort to control myself. Finally I opened the letters that had come by the morning's mail and began to read them in a perfunctory way. The second was from my secretary, and, as I perused it, I suddenly awoke from my apathy and read with interest:

"Two letters came this morning from Mr. Carney, one postmarked London and the other Paris. I forward them, with other papers, under separate cover.

"Dr. MacArdel called this afternoon and was greatly surprised to learn that you had gone away so suddenly and without sending him word. He said he wanted to see you on a personal matter, and seemed quite disappointed at missing you.

"The Jarvis case has been postponed to the fall term."

The letter closed with a few memoranda of business matters and by the time I had finished reading it my mind was clear to an extent that enabled me to see things in a reasonable light and to appreciate that the mystery of the note was as deep if not deeper than ever.

Opening the door I strode downstairs, into the library, and up to the figure in the chair.

"Hello!" I exclaimed, grasping him by the arm.

"Better late than never!" he responded with a hearty laugh. "What made you sneak upstairs in that mysterious way? Think I was a ghost?"

"No," I replied, slowly and seriously, "I thought you were a scoundrel, and I owe you an apology from the bottom of my heart!"

"Have a cigar, old man," said MacArdel.

CHAPTER VIII.
A Disappearing Cigar Case.

"What on earth brings you here, Mac?" I exclaimed, accepting his proffered cigar and lighting it with a sudden interest and respect for the traditional pipe of peace.

"Train," said MacArdel, "coupled with an overwhelming desire to seize upon you and take you off with me for a month's vacation."

"So that's why you called at my office yesterday afternoon, eh?" I queried.

"How did you know that I was there?" asked MacArdel.

"My secretary mentioned in his letter that came this morning," I explained. "And it's a great good thing that he did, for while the information only made a big mystery out of what appeared for a moment to be a comparatively small one, it served, fortunately, to clear you in an instant from a very serious charge that I was nursing against you."

"Humph!" said MacArdel. "So that's the way you treat your friends! Condemn 'em without a hearing, eh?"

"Well, Mac," I replied, "this had to do with a matter that only you and I knew anything about, and what you know about it you have merely inferred. Then, when I saw you here in the house there seemed to be no other explanation at all, at least of the most important part of the thing. But now it is more hopelessly tangled up than before, for, as you were in my office yesterday afternoon, you could not possibly have had anything to do with it.

"Delightfully interesting, I'm sure!" said MacArdel, "and most appropriate when occurring in a house alleged to be haunted. Still, I confess I could follow you more closely if I had some faint glimmer of an idea of what you are talking about."

I handed him the note, and he read it slowly and thoughtfully.

"When did you get it?" he asked.

"Found it on my bed this morning when I woke," I replied.

"Who put it there?" he continued.

"How the devil do I know who put it there?" I returned, excitedly. "The house was locked up and so was the room. The window was open, I admit, but I am positive that no one could have gotten in that way. There are too many vines about it, and not a twig was bent.

"So you thought it was a miracle and that it must have been I who performed it, eh?" said MacArdel. "I know you always maintained that I worked a miracle when I cured your typhoid."

"Hang it all, Mac!" I exclaimed. "I don't care a snap of my little finger how it got on the bed! I want to know who wrote it!"

"Well, I didn't, anyhow," said MacArdel. "I never heard of it before. I suppose somebody wanted to play a joke on you for your temerity in sleeping alone in a haunted house. Pretty poor sort of a joke, to be sure, but I don't see anything to warrant your getting so excited over it."

"See here, Mac!" I said, drawing my chair up close to his, "you don't seem to understand just what I mean. The point is simply this. No one could have written a thing like that, in such a positive way, unless he had known

"Have you ever told any one of your love for Florence Carney?" he asked, suddenly, after a long pause.

"Never," I replied, "except you, and you are the only person living with whom I have ever talked on this subject, for you will remember that you once intimated pretty broadly that I was in love with Miss Carney."

"And you denied it flatly," he remarked.

"Yes," I replied, "I denied it flatly."

"MacArdel," I said, soberly, looking him squarely in the face, "you've cornered me and I might as well tell you the whole thing. It was three years ago when we talked of this before, and I must have loved her then and from the day I first saw her. But not as I love her now, old man, for now she is my all in all and my only thoughts are for her welfare and her happiness. You know I saw her very frequently when she was living in town, and now that she is away our correspondence is necessarily frequent, so that I can keep informed of her whereabouts and know of her needs from the estate."

"Of course, you could not pay her any attentions unless you meant to ask her to marry you," said MacArdel, "but I don't see any objection whatever to that. I know you haven't any money, but your social position is as good as hers, and you are doing well in your profession. It seems to me that it would be a very appropriate match if you love each other."

"No, Mac," I insisted. "It's better as it is. Considering my position in connection with the estate it would be a mean advantage for me to take, and, Mac, if she refused me, I believe I would kill myself, I'm such a fool over it."

TIME TO ACT.

Don't Wait for the Final Stages of Kidney Illness—Profit by Plainfield People's Experiences.

Occasionally attacks of backache, headaches and dizzy spells are common early symptoms of kidney disorders. It's an error to neglect these ills. The attacks may pass off for a time, but return with greater intensity. If there are symptoms of dropsy—puffy swellings below the eyes, bloating of limbs or ankles, or any other part of the body, don't delay a minute. Begin taking Doan's Kidney Pills, and keep up the treatment until the kidneys are well, when your old-time health and vigor will return. Cures in Plainfield prove the effectiveness of this great kidney remedy.

Charles H. Lippencott, painter, of 107 Somerset street, Plainfield, N.J., says: "The statement made by me some years ago regarding what Doan's Kidney Pills had done for me was not only true at that time but now, four years later, I am glad to confirm it. I had dull, heavy pains around my groins, dreadful backache, dizzy spells and in damp weather or when I caught cold the trouble was so bad I could not get about. I tried my best to find some prescription or remedy to cure me, but without success. I was suffering intensely when I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's pharmacy, but it only required a few doses to convince me that I had the right remedy. In a short time I was cured. I have used your remedy since then and with the same satisfactory result. I am glad to say anything in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Quality and Price

The two vital questions in your piano purchase are, first, quality; second, price. An unsatisfactory piano, in tone and action, is the most annoying article you can have in your home. You dislike to be expending money on it continually to keep it in playing condition.

CHAMPIONSHIP TENNIS ON COUNTRY CLUB COURTS

TOURNAMENTS WILL BE HELD SATURDAY AND DECORATION DAY.

One of the important tennis events of the season will begin at the Plainfield Country Club Saturday morning, when the championship tournaments of the East Jersey Lawn Tennis Association for men's doubles and women's singles will be started and continued on Decoration Day.

The play in women's singles will commence at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. All matches will be the best two out of three advantage sets. First, runner-up and consolation prizes will be awarded. The play in men's doubles will commence Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. All matches will be the best two out of three advantage sets, except the final, which will be the best three sets out of five. Individual prizes will be awarded to the winners and runners-up. Both events will be continued and concluded on Decoration Day.

Entries, accompanied by an entrance fee of $2 per team in men's doubles, and $1 per player in women's singles, should be received by Thomas M. Day, at 740 Carlton avenue, by 8 o'clock Friday night, May 24, at which time and place the drawings will be made.

The Plainfield Country Club extends to all the members of the clubs composing the association the privileges of the club during the tournaments. Luncheon will be served by the club to contestants on Saturday. The steward will provide luncheon at sixty-five cents and table d'hote dinner at $1 on each day. Owing to thhe limited accomodations orders for dinner must be left with the steward not later than 11 o'clock Saturday morning. There will be music and dancing in the evening of Saturday and Decoration Day.

The club may be reachehd by taking the Arlington avenue trolley cars, which leave the Plainfield station on the hour and at intervals of fifteen minutes. A stage will be run between the trolley terminus and the clubhouse, while the tournament is in progress. Thomas M. Day will act as referee, and the following tournament committee will be in charge: Thomas M. Day, chairman; Henry J. Cochran, Frederick W. Goddard, Owen H. Fleming, Wylie Brown and Albert D. Beers. There will also be a special committee of women.

—A parents' meeting will be held at the Watchung School, the borough tomorrow afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. E. K. Allen, of Prospect place, has been detained at home several days by illness.

Mrs. Henry E. Bowen, of Watchung avenue, is registered at the Chalfonte, Atlantic City.

Olaf Saugstad has taken a position in Philadelphia and with Mrs. Saugstad will soon move to that city.

Rev. and Mrs. E. E. Roberson, of Monroe avenue, have returned home after spending a week with relatives in Connecticut.

Leslie Hallock, of the borough, will be graduated from Swarthmore College this year in the civil engineering department.

George E. Griffen, who was seriously ill for several weeks, and who has been taking a trip for his health, is now at Battle Creek, Mich., taking treatment at its celebrated sanitarium.

Tax Collector George F. Brown, of the borough, accompanied by Mrs. Brown, will leave this afternoon for Mt. Clemens, Mich., where Mr. Brown will take the famous treatment for rheumatism. Councilman R. I. Tolles, who has taken this treatment and found it beneficial, will go to Mt. Clemens next week for a time.

More Haywood Jurors.

Boise, Idaho, May 22.—Court in the Haywood trial was adjourned yesterday until tomorrow afternoon to allow the Sheriff to summon another special venire of sixty men. So far, eighty-eight talesmen have been examined out of 128 called in the special venire and on the regular panel. Of that number twenty-four have qualified as jurors, and twelve men have been excused on peremptory challenges, each side using six peremptories. There remain but eleven men in the jury box, as Oric Cole, a farmer, was excused by the Court on account of his health, both sides agreeing to let him go. A. P. Burns, another of the jurors, has asked to be excused, as he is suffering with lumbago, and Daniel Clark wants to be relieved, as he cannot find a man to attend to his farm. The Court has not acted on either of these requests.

Hummel Breaks Down.

New York, May 22.—Abraham H. Hummel was sent to the hospital in the penatentiary on Blackwell's Island yesterday, instead of being put to work in the commissary department. His condition is not regarded as dangerous, but it will probably be a week or more before he will be discharged from the hospital ward. When he was taken to the prison he appeared to be in his usual good health, but the shock of confinement and a night spent in a cell combined to reduce his vitality so that he contracted a severe cold. He complained of pains in his abdomen and legs yesterday morning and at first it was feared that he was suffering from appendicitis.

Gets Great Art Collection.

New York, May 22.—J. Pierpont Morgan has purchased in Paris for more than $1,000,000 the great Hoentschel collection of carvings, statuary and furniture, considered by experts the greatest assemblage of objects of the applied arts and crafts in the world. Concerning the negotiations and sale of it the greatest secrecy has been maintained for months, owing to a belief that if it became definitely known it was to be sold to an American an effort would be made by the authorities abroad to prevent its leaving France.

Motorman Bell on Trial.

John Bell, the Brooklyn motorman, who is charged with the murder of Dr. Charles W. Townsend, a one-time resident of Plainfield, at Richmond, S. I., last January, was placed on trial at Richmond yesterday. The preliminary evidence was very damaging but Bell's lawyers are prepared to make a strong defense. It is alleged that Bell held Dr. Townsend responsible for the death of his wife, who was operated upon by the physician, and sought revenge by killing him.

"CENTRAL PARK"

Was — Is — Will Be

IT WAS, only about a year ago, just a pretty farm.

IT IS to day the finest building site in Plainfield, with broad avenues macadamized their entire width, concrete curb, sidewalks, trees, gas, electric light, in fact all improvements. Nearly $100,000 expended in new and handsome dwellings, now ready for the market.

WHAT IT WILL BE we hardly dare predict, with contracts out for even more extensive improvements and twelve more handsome residences.

Central Park is that beautifully situated tract bounded by Park, Prospect, Hillside and Thornton Avenues.

Lots selling rapidly—Prices very low—Great investment or speculative opportunities.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Leonard G. Dennick.

Mrs. Clarinda Dennick, wife of Leonard G. Dennick, died suddenly last night at her home on West Third street, near Rock avenue. She had been ailing several days but attended to her household duties as usual. Yesterday she was stricken with diabetes and death ensued at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Dennick was sixty-five years old and came to Plainfield from Albany, N. Y., in 1880. The family has always resided in the West End and is well known in that section of the city. Beside her husband she is survived by a family of ten children, six daughters and four sons. They are Mrs. Mary McNeil, of Albany; Mrs. James Egan, of Elizabeth; Mrs. G. W. Gildersleed and Mrs. C. W. Lines, of New York; Mrs. Joseph Chapot, of Great Bend, Pa.; Mrs. Irving DeHart, at home; George and Samuel Dennick, of Roselle Park; William Dennick, of New York, and Jacob Dennick, at home. The funeral will be at the late residence Friday afternoon at 2:30 and interment will be at Hillside.

Samuel Haliday.

Samuel Haliday, a prominent citizen of Rahway, and a director of the Union County Board of Freeholders about twelve years ago, died at his home in that place this morning, aged seventy-nine years. He was well-known throughout Union county. He is survived by three sons and three daughters. The funeral service will be held from the late residence Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

—The annual exhibits of the school work will be held in the North Plainfield public schools this and tomorrow afternoons. The public is invited.

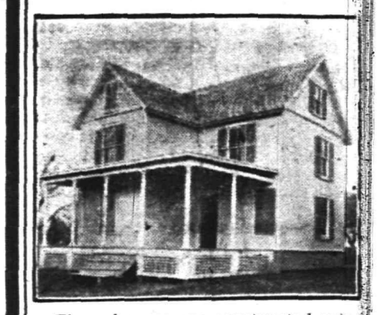
NEW SYSTEM OF BUILDING.

A MARVEL IN THE SCIENCE OF CONSTRUCTION.

A method far in advance of anything formerly used in the preparation of the different parts of a house when erected in sections, making it easy to construct any design of a house, and a very superior house for all seasons, countries and climates at a great reduction in cost.



These houses are constructed principally from the best kiln dried lumber in a factory entirely protected from weather, where best high speed woodworking machines are used for cutting and shaping of every piece, reducing cost for mechanics full one-half, making a superior house when finished.

Houses or other structures erected under this system make the warmest houses in winter, and the strongest building that can be constructed with any material, the fiercest storm fails to cause any vibration whatever. They are adapted to receive all improvements, plumbing, lighting, heating, etc., when desired.

A new method of lath and plaster is used for interior finish, making a perfect indestructable wall superior to anything ever before used.

PUPIL'S WORK EXHIBITED

Many Parents and Friends View the Displays in the Borough Schools.

ALL CLASSES SHOWN

Several hundred parents and friends attended the exhibit of pupils' work in the North Plainfield Public Schools, which opened yesterday afternoon and will be continued this afternoon. While an attempt has been made to arrange the rooms and papers neatly, the main object of the exhibit is to show the regular class-work that has been done by the pupils during the year, which was preserved by the teachers for this occasion.

The exhibit at the Watchung School is under the general direction of Miss Emma Tantim, the principal. It is evident to the casual visitor that a great deal of time and effort have been used in making the display attractive and the halls and rooms inviting.

The kindergarten room, in charge of Miss Miln, not only shows the work of the pupils, but is prettily decorated by blackboard scenes in color, which is the work of the assistant, Miss Alice Martin. There are a number of creditable paintings of tulips in Miss Dodd's room, which were done this week from the flowers. In Miss Dwight's room a series of drawings based on last week's circus are a feature of interest. The little people in Miss Hare's and Miss Tyler's rooms show the first steps in writing, language and number work, as well as in drawing, paper-cutting and painting.

At the Somerset street school there is so much in the thirty rooms that not more than a mention of a few things is possible. The kindergarten room, under the direction of the Misses Butler and French, attracts a great deal of attention. The little folks have done much work in color as well as in the other items of kindergarten activity.

The Misses Lyndon and Frazee show first year work. The walls in their rooms are covered with paper illustrating the first steps in writing, drawing, language work and arithmetic. This is continued in the second grade rooms under the supervision of the Misses Conkling and Rittenhouse. The Misses Webster and Bowen have a large display of third grade work, while the Misses Dampman and Kiernan show the most advanced achievements of the primary department.

The grammar grades, dealing as they do so largely with the work of the common branches, make a special effort to show the proficiency of the pupils in these subjects. Maps illustrating geographical features and historical occurrences show the power of the pupils to express themselves as well as the nature of the topics taught in the school.

The work of the seventh and eighth grades, in which pupils finish the common branches, is perhaps of particular interest. It is sometimes felt that pupils are not proficient in these subjects, because of the time given to special work. Those who have seen the work in arithmetic, history, geography and grammar displayed in the rooms of the Misses Speidel, Eldredge, Trenbath and Hudson can judge whether this criticism is true of the borough schools. The same lines of work, in a more elementary form, are shown in the rooms of the Misses Mackey, Bateman, Carpenter, Perry, Holcomb and Van Patten.

The exhibits of the special work in sewing, art and wood-work attract much attention. Miss Sydenham, who directs all the art work of the school, shows some excellent sketches by high school pupils, many of original design. Mr. Crandall's manual training department is represented by many pieces of practical value. He has also posted a number of mechanical drawings. Miss Denneen's pupils illustrate the sewing by means of various garments that they have made for their own use.

There is perhaps no better way of getting an idea of the aims of present day common school education than by examining the work represented. Something by every pupil in the school is shown, whether good or bad. There is no attempt to display only the work of the best pupils, but to give a correct idea of the real, every-day products of the school. As such its examination and study are of value to all.

—The regular meeting of the Board of Trade will be held on Thursday night, June 6.

—Edward Blair, the orderly at Muhlenberg Hospital, has returned to his position after a couple of weeks' vacation.

FORTY DAYS IN JAIL FOR BROKEN PROMISE

MICHAEL COYNE HAD AGREED TO STAY ABOUT HIS HOUSE.

Michael Coyne broke his promise to Judge Runyon and gave way to his appetite for drink, and as a result of the two mistakes he will spend forty days in jail.

Coyne, after repeated appearances on similar charges, faced Judge Runyon a month ago, charged with helpless drunkenness. Coyne begged for another chance, and promised to stay in the house for two months if allowed to go. The judge took him at his word. He was told that he would be arrested if he appeared downtown inside of two months, drunk or sober.

For a month Coyne shunned the center of the city as if pestilence was rampant there. Yesterday his thirst and his desire to see outlying parts of the neighborhood proved too strong, and went out in search of booze and fresh scenes. The former worked in the usual way, and last night, Coyne, oblivious to his surroundings and unmindful of his promise, was found by Patrolman Andrew Saffron on West Front street.

Coyne had nothing to say in his own defense when he faced Judge Runyon this morning. The magistrate told him he had had all the mercy that was due him, and sentenced him to forty days straight.

Saffron testified that Coyne told him he had secured his liquor at Lawrence Kerwin's hotel, which is unlicensed. Coyne denied getting the drink there in court.

STONY HILL CHURCH'S SIXTIETH ANNIVERSARY.

It Will Be Celebrated by St. Mary's Parish Next Sunday Morning.

The sixtieth anniversary of St. Mary's church, Stony Hill, will be celebrated on Sunday, at which time Rt. Rev. Bishop James A. McFaul, of Trenton, will officiate and preach the sermon. He will be assisted by the pastor, Father Lynus Schwarz, and a number of visiting clergymen from the Trenton and Newark diocese.

Father Schwarz is making great preparations for the event. The church has been painted, the grounds surrounding it have been graded and drive-ways and walks added, while the cemetery has been reclaimed from its wild and neglected condition. The interor of the church has also been decorated and painted, the sanctuary enlarged and other improvements added. The programme will be an imposing one.

Following this celebration, which will be held in the morning, various church societies and dignitaries will gather at Mt. St. Mary's College in North Plainfield to receive the Bishop upon his return from Stony Hill. The Bishop will have charge of the blessing of the corner-stone at the college, and will be assisted by many prominent clergymen from the diocese. There will also be special music to mark the occasion.

Hartridge School Commencement.

The Hartridge School has issued invitations for its Commencement exercises which will be held at the Casino May 31 at eleven o'clock. The address will be delivered by Dr. Edward Howard Griggs, who will be present and speak on "The Use of the Margin." Dr. Griggs will be introduced by Hon. Charles J. Fisk and Rev. Dr. John S. Zelie will make the opening prayer. The members of the graduating class are: Miss Margaret Atwater, of East Orange; Miss Ellen Burke, Miss Blanche Buttfield, Miss Julia Fieberger, of West Point; Miss Virginia Fox, Miss Frederica Mead and Miss Anne Waldo. In the evening Miss Hartridge will give a dance for the graduates and their friends.

Court Cases Concluded.

All civil cases and Supreme and Circuit Court causes were finished in the Union County Court at Elizabeth, this morning, and the jurors were excused from further service until recalled by the sheriff. The court is now waiting the report of the Grand Jury with its indictments, when those cases will be taken up.

"A Musical Hour."

Miss Palmer has issued invitations to "A Musical Hour," at the Hartridge school, 303 East Seventh street, Friday afternoon, May 24, at 4 o'clock. The programme will be presented by Miss Palmer's pupils, after which she and Mrs. Charles L. Lewis will render selections from Richard Strauss.

McDonald Returns Home.

William McDonald of Grove street, the borough, who was sought by the police for having broken his promise to abstain from drinking liquor, returned home yesterday and made reparation with his wife. The police took no further action in the matter.

SEEKING GRADUATES FOR THE STATE NORMAL

PRINCIPAL TAKES STEPS TO STIMULATE INTEREST THROUGHOUT STATE.

For the purpose of stimulating an interest among graduates of high schools throughout the State to enter the State Normal School at Trenton, J. M. Green, the principal, has issued a circular letter to the various principals in New Jersey. This letter was read in the North Plainfield High School yesterday by Supervising Principal H. C. Krebs.

It is urged that those intending to enter the State Normal School matriculate, if possible, before June 10, that there may be opportunity to properly adjust the appointments, according to Legislative requirements, and make arrangements to meet the demands.

Mr. Green says:

"The outlook for those who desire to enter the Normal School is encouraging. As stated last year, arrangements have been made at a number of colleges for crediting the two years' work done at the Normal, so that those who wish to go to college after teaching for a time may take the degree in two years. There is also a course at the Normal for those who wish to do advanced work here.

"The demand for the Normal graduate is increasing each year. We have had calls during the past year for at least three hundred more teachers than we could supply. This condition assures to the graduate a position of some kind, and if she has done well in her course, a good position. The salaries of those who have received appointments in the class to be graduated in June range from $45 to $75 a month. The average beginning salary will probably be $480 per year. The average is usually increased from $50 to $80 the second year."

Applicants may matriculate at this time, subject to their graduation from the High School they are now attending, and may fill out the certificates as they would be at the close of the term. Entrance examinations take place June 11, 12 and 13 and the appointments of students are made on or before June 30.

F. C. TALMADGE QUALIFIES.

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers Defeated by Miss Georgiana Bishop.

Frank C. Talmadge, of the Plainfield Country Club, qualified with a score of 90, 83-173, for the two rounds, in the qualifying round of the Metropolitan Golf Association championship tournament at the Nassau Country Club yesterady. He was the only Plainfielder represented in the tournament.

In the first round of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association championship, continued at the Knollwood Country Club, yesterday, Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers was defeated by Miss Georgianna Bishop, 5 up and 4 to play, which puts her out of the play.

Buys Tract of Land.

It was announced this morning by Robert L. Pierce, a real estate agent, that an unnamed purchaser had purchased a tract of land comprising sixty lots, from the Central Land Improvement Company, of Dunellen. The tract lies between Lincoln and Washington avenues, on West Fourth street, Dunellen. The deal was concluded yesterday, through the agency of Mr. Pierce. The price was not made public. The buyer has made no definite plans as to the improvement of the tract.

Will Build Seven Houses.

Joseph Harrigan has purchased the land on Berckman street, between St. Mary's and North avenue, with a frontage of 160 feet and a depth of 202 feet, and he proposes to erect seven small modern houses. They will be complete with all the improvements. Plans are now being drawn and as soon as they are finished the contracts will be awarded.

Workmen Attend Anniversary.

V. W. Nash, Sr., Edward Mosher, Henry Zimmerman and Charles Randolph were among the local Workmen who attended the celebration of the seventeenth anniversary of Ernest Lodge, No. 61, Ancient Order United Workmen, at Elizabeth, last night. Grand Master Workmen Reeves, of Atlantic City, was present and made an address.

New Bleachers for the Opening.

In order to accomodate the large crowd that is sure to attend the opening game in the Inter-City Amateur League series on Saturday at Dunellen, the Dunellen Baseball Club is having new bleachers built. They will be in readiness for the game, when the local team will meet the Laurels, of Bound Brook.

—Fruit and vegetable lovers should not fail to see the display at Neuman Brothers'. Big assortment received fresh each day.

MISSION WORKERS MEET

Annual Conference of Elizabeth District W.H.M.S. held at Cranford Yesterday.

ATTENDANCE LARGE

Plainfield Women Among Those Elected to Office—Memorial Service to Mrs. Ham.

The annual conference of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist church in the Elizabeth District, was held yesterday in the Roselle Park Methodist church. The bright spring weather helped to bring together many delegates from the various churches in the district, and at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning, when the opening session was begun, the auxiliaries of many churches were represented.

Miss Helen Carlton, of Elizabeth, president of the society, presided. The devotional exercises of the morning sesion, led by the president, consisted of an opening hymn, Scripture reading and prayer.

Miss Carlton gave to the delegates, as a thought to be carried throughout the day, "Let us walk in the spirit." It was an inspiring message.

Rev. C. C. Woodruff, pastor of the Roselle Park church, extended, on behalf of the entertaining society and the church, words of kindly and cordial greeting, assuring the delegates of the sympathy in their work, and promising that all needs, spiritual and physical, should be supplied as much as lay in the power of the Roselle Park church.

Mrs. E. C. Dutcher, of Dunellen, the recording secretary, responded. The report of the corresponding secretary, Miss Effa Ham, of Cranford, was read, showing many encouraging features in the work. On account of the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. E. W. Bloom, of Frenchtown, her report was read by the president. It showed advance along all lines and proved exceedingly interesting to the convention women. As the afternoon session was to consist mainly of addresses of interest, and the time would be fully occupied, the business of the day was taken up at this time.

The annual election of officers resulted in the following: President, Miss Helen B. Carlton, of Elizabeth; first vice president, Mrs. Miller, of Plainfield; second vice president, Mrs. Winter, of Plainfield; corresponding secretary, Miss Weeks, of Westfield. The office of treasurer was left to be filled later. A motion was made and carried that a third vice president be added to the list of district officers. It was carried and Miss Effa Ham, of Cranford, for so many years the faithful secretary of the society, was elected to that office.

The report of the Young People's Secretary, Miss Glads Chambers, of Roselle Park, was presented and accepted.

Miss Chambers being unable to serve another year, Miss Aleine Simons, of the Roselle Park church, was elected to serve for the ensuing year.

The office of recording secretary was filled by Mrs. E. C. Dutcher, who has served the convention in former years. Secretary of Literature, Miss Karr, of Bound Brook; Secretary of Miteboxes, Mrs. Pierson, Plainfield. The speakers of the afternoon were introduced by the president to the assembled women, and they were cordially welcomed by the delegates. The newly-elected officers were called to the platform and prayers offered for the year of future service.

Miss Effa Ham, the corresponding secretary, called the roll of auxiliaries, delegates from most of the churches responding.

A memorial service for Mrs. B. F. Ham, of Cranford, so long associated with the woman's work, was conducted by Mrs. Winter. It was an impressive part of the morning session. Many of those associated with the deceased in Christian work and as personal friends, brought their tribute to the memory of Mrs. Ham, and spoke feelingly of her beautiful Christian character, her devoted life and faithfulness to service.

At the close of the service an invitation was extended by the society of the Roselle Park church to partake of luncheon and adjournment was made.

Circus Employes Strike.

The Forepaugh-Sells Bros. show, which exhibited here last week, had trouble in getting unloaded in Easton, Pa., yesterday, because of a strike among the employes. Fifty of the men quit at Elizabeth, Tuesday, and the remainder refused to work yesterday morning until they had been assured that they would get a raise in pay.

Mrs. F. C. Maury, of Nashville, Tenn., has returned home after a delightful winter spent with her mother, Mrs. L. J. Ellis, of 1164 Park avenue.

"GIFT" SHOWER IN HONOR OF BRIDE-TO-BE

FRIENDS TENDER A PLEASANT AFFAIR TO MISS MAY ROSS.

In honor of Miss May Ross, of West Fifth street, whose marriage to H. Eugene Davis, of Alfred Theological Seminary, will take place on June 11, the Women's Society for Christian Work, of the Seventh-day Baptist church, gave a "gift" shower in the parlors of the church, yesterday afternoon. The affair was planned as a surprise and it was complete. Miss Ross was invited to the sewing meeting it being understood that the members desired to give her a farewell.

Mrs. David E. Titsworth, president of the society, made a short address at the conclusion of which she disclosed the purpose of the gathering and presented Miss Rose with a purse of gold. She also told some interesting facts about the mission work in China, where Miss Rose and her husband expect to go. In addition to the purse every member of the society brought a gift for the bride-to-be. Miss Ross thanked one and all for the substantial remembrances.

An interesting feature of the affair was an address by Mrs. J. W. Crowfoot, a returned missionary from China, who told much concerning the work in that country, especially in the section where the couple will reside. After the informal programme refreshments were served.

GOVERNOR WILL HEAR JOHNSON'S EXPLANATION.

To Give Accused Commissioner a Chance to Present His Side of the Case.

When asked yesterday about the letter he wrote to Percy H. Johnson, of Bloomfield, a member of the Fish and Game Commission, Governor Stokes admitted that he had requested Mr. Johnson to come to Trenton, but declined at this time to say anything further regarding the purposes of the conference, the object of which was not stated in the letter, which contained a bare invitation to call.

It is positively known that the summoning of Mr. Johnson is the result of the developments brought out by the House Investigating Committee. While it is assumed in some quarters that the Governor intends to ask unequivocally for Mr. Johnson's resignation, this is probably not correct.

A more likely course is that the Governor will give Mr. Johnson a fair opportunity to present his side of the case and that he will be governed in his subsequent action accordingly.

PERKINS DIDN'T MEET BURKE.

Assemblyman Not at Meeting to Which Anti-Saloon Man Invited Him.

Westfield, May 23.—Thirty-one persons were in the auditorium of the Club Hall here Tuesday night when J. Frank Burke, of Newark, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, stepped to the platform to speak for local option. Mr. Burke explained that though he had invaded Assemblyman Randolph Perkins' home town, he did not intend to be personal. Mr. Burke then commenced reading the letter he sent recntly to Mr. Perkins outlining the points he (Burke) would maintain and inviting the lawmaker to be present and make reply. Mr. Perkins was not on hand. It was for charging that Mr. Perkins and two of his colleagues conspired to smother the Buck local option bill last March that the House excluded Mr. Burke from the Assembly chamber.

At Tuesday night's meeting Mr. Burke took up his letter to Mr. Perkins by paragraphs and commented on each section as he went along. He explained the difficulties he experienced at the last session of the Legislature in getting the Buck local option bill from the committee and charged that Mr. Perkins in refusing to vote for the bill practically declared that the people were not intelligent enough to vote properly on such a subject. In closing his address he asked if any one present represented Mr. Perkins, and as there was no responce Mr. Burke said he took it for granted that as Mr. Perkins was not present or represented, that he had nothing to say. None of the local clergymen or politicians were present.

Police Nine.

The police nine is being reorganized for a series of games with Newark, Elizabeth and Trenton police teams. At least three games will be played this season, it is said, all of them on the local grounds. Some of the new men are old players, and a fast team is likely to jolt the visitors. Jack Payne, who is playing first base for the Y. M. C. A. nine, will probably captain the combination.

CLINTON R. PETERKIN WEDS MISS OSTERMOOR

CEREMONY PERFORMED YESTERDAY IN GRACE CHURCH CHANTRY, NEW YORK.

Miss Madeline Gregory Ostermoor, daughter of the late Henry Ostermoor, and Clinton Rhoades Peterkin, son of Mrs. J. A. Peterkin, both of Belvidere avenue, were married at 11 o'clock yesterday morning in Grace Church Chantry, New York, by Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church, this city. The affair was a very quiet one, and Henry Ostermoor, brother of the bride, was the only attendant. The wedding ceremony was witnessed by about fifty relatives and friends.

The bride was gowned in grey silk, wore a black picture hat, trimmed with white plumes and carried a prayer book. After the ceremony the bridal party and a few relatives and friends partook of a wedding breakfast. Later the couple left for a wedding trip, which will include a journey through Colorado Springs and Mexico. They will return to Plainfield in September.

Both the bride and groom are well known in local and New York society, where they have many friends. Mr. Peterkin is connected with the Rutherford Iron Tire Pneumatic Wheel and Auto Truck Co., and is also interested in several mines in Colorado and Mexico. The bride was the recipient of a large number of useful and costly gifts.

AARON B. KARNER DIES AFTER A LONG ILLNESS.

Had Been a Local Resident Twenty Years and Was Well Known.

Aaron B. Karner, aged eighty-three years, father of Rev. George N. Karner, of Brooklyn, died early this morning at his home on Bradford avenue, following a long illness. Although his condition was known to be serious, his death was rather unexpected. Mrs. Karner was stricken with paralysis a year ago, and her death has been looked for at any time. She is practically helpless. Mr. Karner was a resident of Plainfield for twenty years. Previous to that time he resided at Kingston, this State, where for many years he was a school teacher. After coming to this city he was associated for some time with Joseph T. Vail, of North avenue, in the real estate business. During the past few years he lived in retirement. He was an active member of the First Presbyterian church, although he never held office of any kind in the congregation. Surviving Mr. Karner are a wife, two daughters, Miss Clara Karner, a graduate nurse, and Miss Louise Karner, a school teacher, and one son, Rev. George N. Karner, a former Presbyterian minister, but now engaged in the drug business in Brooklyn. The funeral service will be held from the late residence Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

FLOOD OF SUBPOENAS.

Elizabeth Detectives Get Names in Unique Way.

Elizabeth, May 23.—The Union County Grand Jury room has been flooded for the past two days with subpoenaed before it to testify against saloon-keepers at Elizabethport who violated the law by selling on Sunday. The prosecutor employed detectives, who visited the offended places on week days, got acquainted with the patrons and this enabled the sleuths to gain admission on Sunday.

The sleuths pretended to be agents for a land company that was about to begin operations in Elizabeth, and took the names of a number of men who were to get work this week at $2.75 a day. Instead of that they were hauled up before the grand inquest. As a result of the crusade it is said many saloon-keepers throughout the city, especially at Elizabethport, will be indicted.

Freshmen Win.

The first of a series of inter-class games was played yesterday on Crescent Oval between the Sophomores and Freshmen. The Freshmen won by the score of 6 to 3. Loizeaux pitched for the second year class, striking out twelve men. S. Parsons caught him. Ricketts and Rogers formed the battery for the Freshies, who put up an exceptionally good game. They played well both in the field and at the bat. Score by innings:

Freshmen	0	1	1	1	0	1	1	1	0	—6

To Play in Perth Amboy.

The Y. M. C. A. nine will play the Raritan Club, of Perth Amboy, Saturday afternoon, at Perth Amboy. The association battery will be Minford and Nelson.

Mrs. Matthew Maury Corben, of Cincinnati, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Reinhart, of Truell Inn.

DR. MOLDENKE HONORED

Presented With Silver Bowl and $1,000 in Gold by Foundrymen.

A NATIONAL AFFAIR

Organization of Iron Masters Recognize His Years of Service For the Association — An Authority on Foundry Work.

Signal honor was paid to Dr. Richard Moldenke by the organization representing the iron founders of the country, Tuesday night. He received two noteworthy gifts as a mark of their esteem. He was the central figure at the reception and smoker that followed a session of the American Foundrymen's Association convention.

The convention, which closed yesterday, was a national affair. It was held in Philadelphia, where more than 1,500 delegates gathered to discuss the state and the prospects of iron founding throughout the nation. Dr. Moldenke is secretary and treasurer of the association.

At the business session Tuesday Dr. Moldenke submitted statistics and read a paper on "The Malleable Foundry as a Business Venture." The discourse included statements and suggestions of the greatest value to founders. As secretary, Dr. Moldenke reported great gains by the association.

The reception and smoker was tendered to the delegates by the Philadelphia foundrymen. In the name of the association, Dr. Moldenke was presented with a solid silver punch bowl and $1,000 in gold. The gifts were tendered to mark his fellow-foundrymen's recognition of the work which he has performed for many years.

Dr. Moldenke is one of the recognized authorities on casting in this country; and America has forged to the front in metal casting within the past decade. To him as much as to any man is due the commercially valuable methods now pursued in American shops. He is an expert on the chemical construction of iron and steel work, and he has rendered particularly valuable service to the iron and steel trade in working up to the successful use of scrap metal in castings. He is one of the most thoroughly informed men in the world on malleable castings. His knowledge of the history of steel and iron working is exhaustive.

Dr. Moldenke, who had been assigned to the task, was busily engaged, yesterday, in laying the foundation for a national association of brass foundrymen. Several conferences were held for that purpose during the day. There are said to be 6,000 brass foundries in the United States, employing 30,000 hands. In the present membership of the Foundrymen's Association there are not less than 300 concerns whose business is confined to the moulding of brass. A committee was appointed to draft a constitution and bylaws for the brass foundrymen.

Those who attended the convention were treated to a sightseeing expedition in coaches yesterday, the start being made from the Bellevue-Stratford about 2 o'clock. Places of historical interest were visited, and a drive through the Park ended the program. "Ladies' night" at the armory drew a bright-plumaged crowd. The visitors will be entertained separately today, the women going to Atlantic City on a special train, and the men to a riverside resort to enjoy a planked shad dinner. The board of directors of the Manufacturerers' Club has by unanimous vote extended the courtesies of the house to the visiting foundrymen.

Park Comedy Club Tonight.

It was the unanimous and enthusiastic verdict of those who attended the dress rehearsal by the Park Comedy Club at the Park Club, last night, that the sketches to be given there tonight, will be by far the best performance yet presented by the club. There was not a single hitch at the rehearsal, every member of the cast giving true interpretation of the part assigned to him. There has been a large sale of seats, but there are still a few left which will be on sale at the Park Club tonight from 6 o'clock until the performance begins.

Mrs. Whittemore Will Speak.

Mrs. E. M. Whittemore, founder of the "Door of Hope," in New York, who now has charge of the Anti-Suicide Bureau of the Salvation Army in New York, will speak at the Salvation Army Hall on East Second street, tonight at 8 o'clock. Her subject will be "Out of the Depths." Miss Cromwell, of Cranford, will be the soloist.

IN MY HOUSE BY THE SIDE OF THE ROAD.

(Sam Walter Foss.)

There are hermit-souls that live withdrawn
In the place of their self-content;
There are souls, like stars, that dwell apart
In a fellowless firmament;
There are pioneer souls that blaze their paths
Where highways never ran;
But let me live by the side of the road,
And be a friend to man.

I see from my house by the side of the road,
By the side of the highway of life,
The men who press on with the ardor of hope,
And the men who are faint with the strife;
But I turn not away from their smiles nor their tears—
Both parts of an infinite plan;
Let me live in my house by the side of the road,
And be a friend to man.

I know there are brook-gladdened meadows ahead,
And mountains of wearisome height;
That the road passes on through the long afternoon,
And stretches away through the night;
But still I rejoice when the travellers rejoice,
And weep with the strangers that moan,
Nor live in my house by the side of the road
Like a man who dwells alone.

Let me live in my house by the side of the road
Where my fellow-men go by;
They are good, they are bad, they are weak, they are strong,
Wise, foolish—so am I.
Then why should I sit in the scorner's seat,
Or cry the cynic's ban?
Let me live in my house by the side of the road,
And be a friend to man.

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

The best coal mined is that sold by V. W. Nash, Sr., of Park avenue, and his prices will be found low. Place your order now.

For a first-class hair-cut, shave or shampoo stop at E. B. Maynard's shop on North avenue. He conducts an up-to-date tonsorial parlor.

When you want the best cuts of meat or fancy chickens patronize John A. Koch, the Watchung avenue butcher. His prices will suit you.

Interested in real estate, accident or life insurance? Call on George F. Brown, of Somerset street, and he can accommodate you. He has a desirable list of properties and also represents the best insurance companies.

All kinds of lumber may be advancing in price, but the prices of the furniture sold by Powlison & Jones, East Front street, remains at the same reasonable figures as hitherto. The furniture buyer who does not inspect the P. & J. stock before purchasing makes a mistake.

The particular dresser may satisfy his most exacting tastes as to all the details of his sartorial display by buying at Harry Werner's store, West Front street. His line of clothes and furnishings is full of suggestion. The prices are surprisingly low, and the values are surprisingly good, irrespective of the cost.

Boston at St. Louis.

The New York fans are poor losers. This is the unanimous opinion of the local fans after Tuesday's game between the Giants and the Chicagos. Disgraceful scenes marked the closing part of the contest in whch the lives of the umpires were threatened until long after dark.

The uncertainty of baseball was illustrated Tuesday, when the Bostons defeated St. Louis by a score of 15 to 5, and on Monday the Cardinals put a stop to the winning streak of the Giants by a close score.

The race in the National League this season, especially among the leaders has proved exciting from the start, New York, Chicago, Pittsburg and Philadelphia, of the first division, being uncomfortably close to each other.

Smarting under the defeat of last Saturday, when Scotch Plains carried off the honors in the first amateur league contest, the Clinton Avenues are making every preparation to regain lost ground on Saturday, when the same teams will meet at Crescent Oval.

Gilman, the star player on the Clinton Avenue team, had an ulcer removed from his left eye this week, but he hopes to be able to take part in Saturday's game against Scotch Plains.

Altrock, the Chicago American Club twirler, is back in the game, as shown on Tuesday, when he defeated Boston by a score of 3 to 1.

"Warry" McLaughlin continues to pitch winning ball for Springfield, of the Connecticut State League.

"Pop" Dietrich, formerly of the Murray Hills and Plainfield teams, is playing first base for Westfield, and is showing up in his old time form.

Westfield has been strengthened by Flynn, who is covering the middle station. He formerly played on the Plainfield team. He is a fast fielder and an almost sure hitter.

The Hobokens continue to play fast ball and are adding many victories to their string. The team is practically the same as last year.

Dunellen and Bound Brook will meet at Dunellen Saturday for the first time and the contest is sure to be a lively one. "Bob" Fitzsimmons will open the league season there by throwing the first ball.

GOLF.

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers finished fifth in the first eight in the opening round of the eighth annual championship of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association on the links of the Knollwood Country Club, Tuesday. Her score was 50, 48—98. Mrs. Rogers was not playing in her usual form as was shown by the fact that she took ten strokes for one hole.

The first one-day tournament for the women of the Metropolitan Golf Association will be held at the Plainfield Country Club on Tuesday, May 28, and on Saturday, June 15, the Metropolitan Golf Association one-day tournament will be held. No club competitions will be held that day.

It is expected that W. J. Travis and Jerome D. Travers, together with many other crack golfers from the Metropolitan Golf Association, will meet in the one-day open tournament to be held at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, June 15. It will be a red-letter day for the club.

Rev. L. R. Howard has returned to the game of golf and is now playing the game at the Park Golf Club. He usually returns a fair score.

Improvements are constantly being made at the Plainfield Country Club which add to the pleasure and convenience of the members. Visitors to the club are always impressed with the course and clubhouse.

The Cranford Golf Club course, nine holes, is considered one of the best in the Metropolitan district. Many of the best players have found it also an exceedingly difficult one on which to make a low score.

The weather of the past week has been beneficial to the local golf courses and the players find that it makes a big difference in playing the game. The greens are also improving very much.

The Plainfield Country Club is scheduled to play a team match with Yale on the local course Saturday. Robert Abbott is one of the strongest players on the college team, which has been winning many matches this season.

"Marty" O'Loughlin, the pro at the Plainfield Country Club, has been returning many low scores this season and there is no doubt but that he will make a new record for the local course.

Ellie Dugans Riding.

New York, May 23.—Miller's admirers may not be willing to admit it, but that popular lad has a formidable rival in the tiny California apprentice boy, "Eddie" Dugan, who can ride as light as eighty-four pounds, is entitled to five pound allowance in selling races and who yesterday won three races, in one of which, his ride on Sheriff Hayes, experts declared his judgment and perseverance were worthy an older head. Dugan is one of four brothers, all of whom have been jockeys. His older brother, W. Dugan, rode heavyweight races last year for Barney Schreiber. "Eddie" Dugan is under contract for the next two years to C. H. Durnell, and that means that the boy will many a time ride for John W. Gates' big bets. To see the little fellow hold his own after the start in the first race, in which he had the mount on Sheriff Hayes, was a sight.

David Warfield in Newark.

David Belasco will present for an engagement of one week with a matinee Saturday, at the Shubert theatre, Newark, next Monday night, David Warfield in the 3-act comedy-drama entitled "The Music Master." Everyone who has been in touch with the matters theatrical are eagerly waiting the coming of Warfield, for the artistic nature of the play and his beautiful acting are now world famous. For three seasons this Belasco attraction has been playing in New York to the utmost capacity of the Belasco and Bijou theatres, and the Academy of Music, where he closed his final New York engagement in this play a few weeks ago. Although the Academy of Music seats over 3,000 people, hundreds of would-be patrons were turned away from the theatre at every performance unable to procure even standing room. On his four weeks' engagement at this historic theatre, he played to receipts of over $95,000. This surpasses the previous record held by Booth and Barrett on their joint engagement at the same playhouse in 1888, when the great American stars played their farewell in repertoire.

The type that Warfield portrays strikes a common human note, and is filled with sympathies of human nature; his interpretation of it has been regarded by persons of artistic analysis, as nothing short of a classic. The dominant element in the play is that quality that goes so far to make a drama full of life and to appeal to our finer senses; it is "heart interest." Warfield's art is the kind, pure and great, that appears infrequently during centuries. The new role that he has given to the stage will always remain a proud ornament to American dramatic art. As we look back on the Belasco methods we can see that this new achievement is a triumph of art, independence and fearlessness over modern theatrical methods governed by box office standards. The American public above all else demands fair play, and it still demands, as it always has, high ideals and fair dealing in the art and business of the theatre. It is not given to many plays to see a third season in Broadway. In fact, none has ever run through continuously two seasons. This third season in New York for Warfield is so strongly emotional a play, is an answer of its own to those who think only horseplay, inspired music and spectacular or sensational drama, are wanted in New York.

The American theatre-goers of discernment and culture, who believe in our own art, and who are watching with zealous interest its development and progress, are thankful to David Belasco for what he has done for the American stage. The production of "The Music Master" was made under the personal supervision of Mr. Belasco. This means that every attention has been given to mounting; that the atmosphere is natural, effective and artistic, and that the backing fulfills the best traditions and rejects the bad. The company is the same that has been appearing in Warfield's New York support.

Seats are now selling for the week's engagement. Mail orders when accompanied by proper remittances and stamped, addressed envelope, will be filled as near the desired location as possible, although no locations can be guaranteed on mail orders.

REFORMATORY NEXT.

It was declared at Trenton yesterday that the next step of the Investigating Committee, which has been inquiring into the methods of the Fish and Game Commission and has revealed some startling disclosures, would be to probe into the cost of the Rahway Reformatory. A few years ago, while the building was in course of construction, the contract prices were a subject of frequent newspaper criticism but no especial inquiry was made. Now that the official probe has commenced to sink and the old figures are to be gone over it is currently believed that the time spent will not be in vain.

The investigations so far have been regarded with varied interest by the men about the State House. By some of the employes, who are also newspaper correspondents, the probing is looked upon as a good thing to furnish space, while others who are interested in their party's success are fearful as to its result in the coming election. Democrats and Republicans alike agree that it has been started for political effect but even so, it has brought to light a state of affairs that should not exist and which are a credit to no one. Whether or not the Reformatory investigation will reveal a system of "graft" remains to be seen and is expectantly awaited by the people as well as the officials and contractors.

Death Ends Hypnotic Sleep.

South Bridge, Mass., May 23.—Andrew E. Simpson, forty-three years old, a leading South Bridge man, who had lain unconscious three weeks with a trouble which physicians say they are unable to diagnose, is dead. Mr. Simpson was an enthusiast on hypnotism, and after reading and commenting upon a book in which the hero is represented as hypnotizing himself, he lapsed into a condition of coma simulating the hypnotic state. Efforts to rouse him were vain during the last twenty-two days. Since his throat had been paralyzed only a few days, preventing physicians and specialists from forcing even liquid nourishment into his system, they say he cannot have died of starvation and tomorrow Dr. W. G. Reed will perform an autopsy to determine the cause of death.

Blossoms Cause Her Death.

South Norwalk, Conn., May 23.—Mrs. Charles B. Keeler, thirty-five years old, wife of one of New Canaan's leading physicians, was killed yesterday afternoon in a runaway caused by a shower of cherry blossoms. Driven by a sudden gust of wind, the flowers fell about her horse's head, frightening him, and in the runaway that followed Mrs. Keeler was thrown, dying five minutes after she was picked up. Mrs. Keeler was a clever horsewoman and yachtswoman, her husband for many years having been commodore of the Norwalk Yacht Club.

Train Wreckers' Work.

Los Angeles, Cal., May 23.—Train No. 20, one of the Southern Pacific's coast line flyers, due here at 9 o'clock Tuesday night, was wrecked at West Glendale, ten miles north of here, at half-past twelve o'clock yesterday morning. The wreck was the deliberate work of train wreckers. One man was killed and twenty-two persons injured, three probably fatally.

—The tennis court at Church and Washington streets has been rolled and put in condition, and the club will start its season Saturday afternoon.

—A horse owned by Fred Angelo, of Hunter avenue, Scotch Plains, was found wandering on South avenue by a policeman early this morning. Angelo claimed it this forenoon.

A LILAC GOWN.

It is only the pretty blonde that can venture to wear becoming lavender shades, unless, perhaps, a woman possesses a remarkable clear complexion. Lavender is one shade which brings out all the beauty tints of a blonde, or ugly blemishes of a muddy skin. A magnificent costume was seen this week fashioned of lilac chiffon cloth. It is one of the indescribable creations of beauty which one must see to appreciate its good features. However, some idea of its rich beauty can be seen in even a pen portrait. The dress had a full wide skirt with five-inch band of velvet satin ribbon around the bottom, headed by five inches of pin wide, tucks. Above the tucks was a middle band of ribbon three inches deep, headed with three inches of tucks and another ribbon one inch wide, the same of tucks. Above the neat skirt trimming were large scroll designs, possibly about twenty, placed around the skirt, the chiffon being cut from beneath. The waist was very full, high neck, Japanese sleeves, and a very deep lace yoke was formed with oval lace medallions about twelve inches long. The medallions came well out upon the sleeves, forming the broad shoulder effect. A lavender satin ribbon encircled the waist, fastened into two artistic bows and streamers at the back.

Odd Slum Explosion.

New York, May 23.—Six children were injured—one so severely that he died—yesterday afternoon, as the result of a mysterious explosion in front of the building at No. 70 Mott street. The street in that block is populated by Italians, and at first the police believed the explosion was the result of a Black Hand plot, but investigation revealed that the accident probably was the result of carelessness. It is believed that some one put a can of gasolene in an ash can and that boys dropped a match into the can. When the explosion occurred, at half-past two o'clock in the afternoon, the sidewalk was filled with children. Many of them were knocked down by the concussion. Immediately there was a panic. Mothers rushed from their homes to find their children, and the street was filled with shrieking women. A fire alarm was turned in and the police reserves were called out from the Elizabeth street police station.

A DAINTY TRIMMING.

A pretty idea just now is to work the swatiska design in pink or blue shadow embroidery on the cuffs, collar and front plait of the sheer waist. To make this design cut a pattern the size wanted and outline with a pencil the designs on the back of the material, working them with the herring-bone stitch, which leaves the dainty color showing through on the outside. The small stitches employed in the work neatly outline the design.

The extensive showing of Summer Oxfords

for Women will please the fancy of the most fastidious. Pumps are about as dainty a foot covering as a gentlewoman can dress in; the models we have are extremely low cut, yet being made on regular pump lasts—there can be no slipping at the heel or bulging at the instep. Daintily fashioned in patent leather, gun metal and Russian calf, tan with bows to match. They are certainly the nobbiest creations that we ever had the pleasure of showing. The prices are $3.50, $4 and $5.

Plot to Seize 'Frisco?

San Francisco, Cal., May 23.—Following the sensational reports which became current Tuesday night that President Calhoun, of the United Railroads, was engaged in a deep laid plot to seize the reins of municipal government under the guise of a law and order movement, a newspaper statement declared yesterday that Calhoun is prepared to go to any length in order both to save himself from conviction and imprisonment under the charges brought by the graft prosecution and to win his fight with the car men. The report yesterday stated that Calhoun had been working for several days in a desperate effort to c onsolidate in aid of the movement all the most important financial interests affected by the graft disclosures. Men high in financial circles were seen going in and out of his office through the day Tuesday, and it is alleged that other conferences were held in the business centre of the city.

Murder Young Girl.

New York, May 23.—Murdered, after being brutally attacked by two men, supposedly Bohemians, was the fate of fifteen-year-old Amelia Staffeldt, daughter of a well-to-do farmer, who left her home in Elmhurst, L. I., early yesterday afternoon to gather dandelion greens on the old Witte farm, in Baxter avenue, near Broadway. Stirred by the crime, and with the avowed determination to take the law into their own hands, more than one hundred farmers of the neighborhood formed a posse and began a hunt for the murderers. While a good description of them was obtained from several persons, all trace of them was lost two miles from the scene of the tragedy. Practically the entire police force of the Newtown precinct, in addition to a corps of Central Office men, were last night scouring the Elmhurst section, but there was every indication that the murderers had made good their escape.

Hughes Bill Passes.

Albany, N. Y., May 23.—Public opinion virtually swept aside Senate party lines yesterday, and that body gave its approval to the Public Utilities bill in the form in which it was adopted by a Republican caucus. There were only six votes in the entire Legislature against the measure, which embodies the ideas of Governor Hughes as to the regulation of public utilities and establishes a policy which its friends say will insure efficiency and fairness in the dealings of public service corporations with the people. These six votes came from Democratic Senators. Senator McCarren, Democratic leader of Kings, led the attack upon the bill in the Senate.

Japan Wants Peace.

Tokio, Japan, May 23.—Two important deputations have just been sent to Europe by the Emperor of Japan. One, headed by Mr. Tsudsuki as First Plenipotentiary, goes to represent Japan at The Hague Peace Conference; the other consists of Mr. Wakatsuki, Vice Minister of Finance, and Mr. Soyeda, president of the Japan Credit Mobilier, who go to London and to America to handle Japan's interests in important financial negotiations. The Emperor summoned Hr. Tsudzuki to the imperial palace a few days before the departure of the deputation to The Hague and placed in his hands this message: "The maintainance of the peace of the world is our great concern. We instruct you to bear this wish of ours in mind in attending the Peace Conference at The Hague."

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Young People's Society of the German Lutheran church will have an apron and cake sale Tuesday night, May 28, in the Sunday-school room of the church.

The Men's Association of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church will hold its last entertainment and social of the season, tonight. The women have been invited to enjoy the programme.

A meeting in the interest of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home will be held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles W. McCutchen, on Rockview avenue. Miss Sara Curry, the matron, will be present and speak.

Rv. J. Tucker Lansdale, pastor of Marconnier chapel, is now comfortably located in the new parsonage built at the corner of Park avenue and the road leading to South Plainfield, and within a short distance of the chapel. The parsonage has all improvements, including electric lights, water, etc., and is complete in every respect, which is due to the liberality and interest of Mr. Beckstein, who has noticed the excellent work being accomplished in that neighborhood by Mr. Lansdale. Last night the first prayer-meeting, which is to be a regular mid-week service, was held at the chapel and it proved to be a helpful one to the fifteen persons present.

Big Jewelry Swindle.

New York, May 23.—Trading on business relations with many very wealthy men, J. Edward Boeck, a commercial agent for the Chinese government, a prominent member of the Republican Club and a broker in gems and objects of arts, has disappeared, taking with him $250,000 worth of gems belonging to large business concerns and some private individuals. This became known yesterday when it was revealed that the Grand Jury had ordered indictments against him and that public and private detectives believe the man will be in custody in a very short time.

ROYAL Baking Powder is indispensable to the preparation of the finest cake, hot-breads, rolls and muffins.

Housekeepers are sometimes importuned to buy other powders because they are "cheap."
Housekeepers should stop and think. If such powders are lower priced, are they inferior?

Alum is used in some baking powders and in most of the so-called phosphate powders, because it is cheap, and makes a cheaper powder. But alum is a corrosive which, taken in food, acts injuriously upon the stomach, liver and kidneys.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning May 26.

By REV. S. B. DOYLE.

Topic.—Home missions. The progress of the southern mountaineers.—Isa. lii, 7-12.

The southwestern part of the Appalachian mountain system is inhabited by one of the most interesting and important of the exceptional populations of the United States. President Roosevelt in "The Winning of the West" calls their ancestors "backwoodsmen of the Alleghanies." Dr. Charles L. Thompson, secretary of the Presbyterian board of home missions, denominates them "our highlanders," and by a distinguished southern writer the inhabitant of this region has been called "the forgotten man." In missionary parlance they are called "the mountaineers" or mountain people of the south. In round numbers there are about 2,000,000 of these people, principally living in the mountains of North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky and West Virginia. They are divided into two classes. The first are the "valley folk," who live in the fertile valleys at the foot of the mountains and have enjoyed the advantages of education, culture and civilization. In the second place there is the true mountaineer with whom the missionary has to do. He lives in his cabin home, far distant from the city and the village, in the deep valleys and on the mountain sides, and makes a scant livelihood by the practice of rude agriculture and by hunting.

The southern mountaineers are the descendants of Scotch-Irish Presbyterians who came to the country because of religious persecution in the reign of Queen Anne in England. For years they came in great numbers to America, some settling in eastern and western Pennsylvania and others going to the mountains of Virginia and the Carolinas and thence westward to Tennessee and Kentucky. Toward the close of the eighteenth century two factors entered into the lives of these early settlers of the southern mountains which led to their impoverishment and their being driven back into the mountains. The first of these was the Revolutionary war. It is needless to say that they were enthusiastic in support of the movement for independence. To this cause they not only offered their lives, but their fortunes, and when the war was over they were poor. In the second place, they were strongly opposed to slavery, and this kept them poor, and they were gradually pushed back farther and farther into the mountains until they scarcely ever came into touch with civilization, were lost sight of and were indeed forgotten. It seems like a romance that such a population, with such an ancestry, could have drifted thus almost out of sight of the throbbing world, which, after all, was not far distant. But it is no romance, but an awful tragedy, that almost lost a great multitude of really noble people to the world.

The conditions of life under such circumstances may readily be imagined, as also the terrible results that must surely follow. Life in the mountain cabins was hard, and as the mountaineers descended deeper and deeper into poverty they also descended mentally, morally and spiritually until they had reached a most degraded condition. And then the missionary appeared, and from that time on progress has been made.

The progress of the mountaineers has been most remarkable. This was largely due to the inherited tendencies of the people. Their ancestors had been strictly religious, and in spite of all their ignorance and degradation there still clung to them a strong faith in God and, above all, a deep reverence for the Bible and sacred things. In many a mountain cabin an old copy of the Bible could be found, which was frequently read by mothers and grandmothers to the children. And the men, while rough in many ways, had not lost all the principles of true manhood. The soil was good, and when the seed was sown upon it it brought forth good fruit. In a single generation men of education, of great force of character and capable of doing things were produced even from such surroundings, and the progress continues. The school and the church are lifting up that mighty population, and the entire lives of the mountaineers are being transformed. But the need for mission work was never greater than at the present. Railroads are being pushed back into the mountains to bring forth its rich ores. Towns and cities are springing up, but the influence of these mining towns tends toward greater degradation rather than toward the uplifting of the people. Therefore instead of relaxing our efforts in their behalf we should redouble them. The present is the most critical moment in the lives of the mountain people of the south, and, this being the case, we should put forth redoubled efforts to win them for Christ.

A Token of Honor and Love.

Bishop Hasse in his president's address before the British Christian Endeavor union spoke of Dr. Clark in connection with Sir George Williams and General Booth as being one of three men who during the recent decades have had the privilege of starting a new organization and leading it to world wide acceptance. "It is but befitting," said Bishop Hasse, "that there should be a quarter century memorial of a permanent kind to be an abiding witness to our international and interdenominational fellowship in Christ and also a token of the honor and love which Endeavorers the world over feel to their leader."

May 26: "Rescuing the World From Sin." (Missions.) "He that doth not take his cross and follow after Me is not worthy of Me."

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Jonah iii, 1-9; Ps. cxxvii, 1; Prov. xi, 10. II; Matt. x, 5-39.

The vast majority of Christians have never yet caught a glimpse of personal responsibility in the work of bringing in the kingdom of God. That the world ought to be Christianized they would probably acknowledge, that it will be they might say is a possibility, but as to putting much cash or effort into the scheme—that has not appealed to them.

Our missionary meetings are not particularly popular unless some returned missionary be present to tell humorous and pathetic stories of life in the far-off lands, and it is often a question if it is not curiosity which holds the audience more than genuine interest in the salvation of the heathen.

There is some radical defect in this whole matter. Those who give regularly, proportionally and systematically to this cause are the exception rather than the rule. Yet every person in full membership in the Methodist Episcopal church has taken a solemn vow, in public to give to this cause according to his ability and not according to his niggardliness or spasmodic impulse.

The first thing every leaguer should settle is the fact that God has some particular work for each of us to do. For that work no one else can be made responsible. Failure to do it makes derangement in God's plans and personal loss to the one who neglects duty. Whatever it may cost of time or effort, each should find his appointed place in the great work of saving this world to God.

That book of Jonah should be well studied in this connection. Need not stop long on the fish story. That is the least important part of the document. Nor is the question whether the story is real history or an allegory worth the expenditure of much time and thought. Get down to the vital message which God has for the world of workers in that writing.

That word seems to be that Israel is the servant of Jehovah and has special gifts intrusted her, not for her own particular advancement and pride, but for communication to the whole world. She has received instruction in righteousness, justice and mercy as no other people ever had. This lesson she was commissioned to teach all other people. She has refused this labor and has used God's mercies on her own pleasures. She has become the recreant prophet.

Jonah is a representative of the nation. He is sent to Nineveh. He runs away. Disaster follows. Finally he goes to the city, but with no good will toward the people, no pity for them and no zeal for Jehovah. When the people repent he is provoked that Jehovah shows mercy to them.

This same lesson is applied by Jesus to a later generation in the parable of the prodigal son.

How far does the story of Jonah and the story of the prodigal represent the state of the Christian church at the present time? How fully does it show your past regard and work?

Here is God's desire so plainly made known to us. Here is our ability so abundantly supplied by the wonderful mercy of God. Here is the need of the world in wickedness so pressing. What advantages will follow faithfulness to our mission! What miseries must inevitably follow our failure! Surely we will give greater diligence to do this work in the future if God will help us.

Measured to Our Strength.

We never have more than we can bear. The present hour we are always able to endure. As our day, so is our strength. If the trials of many years were gathered into one, they would overwhelm us; but God sends in pity to our little strength the cares first one, then another, then a third, but never two and last a third, better perhaps than either but all so proportioned to our strength that the bruised reed is never broken. We do not even look at our trials in this way. Each one is sent to teach us something and to perform for us a lesson which is beyond the power of any to teach alone.—H. E. Manning.

Will Help You Bear It.

Never meet trouble halfway. It will come soon enough, and then you will meet it where God meant you should meet it and where He will help you to bear it.—Spurgeon.

If the Lord Should Come.

If the Lord should come in the morning
As I went about my work,
The little things and the quiet things
That a servant cannot shirk,
Though nobody ever sees them,
And only the dear Lord cares
That they always are done in the light of the sun,
Would He take me unawares?

If my Lord should come at noonday,
The time of the dust and heat,
When the glare is white and the air is still
And hoof beats sound in the street,
If my dear Lord came at noonday
And smiled in my tired eyes,
Would it not be sweet His look to meet?
Would He take me by surprise?

If my Lord came hither at evening,
In the fragrant dew and dusk,
When the world drops off its mantle
Of daylight like a husk
And flowers in wonderful beauty
And we fold our hands and rest,
Would His touch of my hand, His low command,
Bring me unhoped for zest?

Why do I ask and question?
He knows coming to me,
Morning and noon and evening,
If I have but eyes to see
And the dullest load grows lighter,
The dullest ores grow sweet
For the Master is near, the Master is here
I have only to sit at His feet.

—Mary F. Sanguster.

The Mystery of Carneycroft

BY JOSEPH BROWN COOKE. COPYRIGHT 1907 BY STORY-PRESS CORPORATION

"But suppose she didn't refuse you," said MacArdel softly, laying his hand on my arm.

"No, old man, it's no use talking that way," I replied. "I'll just go on as I've been doing. It's the only thing I can do, as I see it."

"Bet you a dinner at Sherry's that you propose to her and marry her within two years!" said MacArdel, with a quizzical look in his kindly eyes, and, with a half-hearted grasp of his hand, I accepted the wager with a temerity that was half wishing and half hopeful.

"So you see why I feel so strongly about this note," I said, rising and opening the door, which I had closed carefully on my entrance. "The subject is one that I cannot bear to have trifled with, and, anyway, I cannot imagine who could have read my innermost thoughts so correctly. That puzzles me more than the mysterious appearance of the letter in my bed."

"I fancy we'll be able to explain that without much trouble," said MacArdel, lighting a fresh cigar and laying his cigar case on the table beside him. "These mysterious occurrences always happen in a most simple fashion, after all is said and done. One night, last summer I was reading in bed and just before putting out the light I laid my eyeglasses on a little table about six feet from the window. I was perfectly sure about it, for the spring was bent slightly and I had spent several minutes fussing with them before I put them down. The next morning they were gone, and never turned up, in the most vigorous search, until I found them, three or four days hidden completely in the folds of the curtain which had fallen from the table and caught on it. My room was on the ground floor and had been securely locked, the affair was quite commonplace till it was so simply explained. We'll find out before long how the letter got on your bed, and that will doubtless lead to the discovery of its author. Have a fresh cigar and show me around the place a bit. It looks mighty interesting and romantic."

As he spoke MacArdel reached for his cigar case and my eye followed his hand to the table beside which we both stood and where I had seen him lay it only a moment before.

It had vanished as completely as if the earth had swallowed it up.

CHAPTER IX.
Two Ghosts.

Instinctively I sprang back and closed the door with a bang, while MacArdel was going through his pockets in a bewildered sort of a way that was ludicrous to witness.

"The thing's gone!" said MacArdel, as he finished his search. "I wouldn't have taken an even hundred for it!"

"These mysterious occurrences are usually explained in a very simple manner, when all is said and done," I observed, dryly. "Doubtless we'll have no trouble in finding out what became of it."

"Oh, dry up!" said MacArdel, impolitely, as was his wont.

"The door was only open about six inches," I continued. "Nobody could have come in."

"Or gone out," said MacArdel.

"Well," I went on, "it's shut now. "Suppose we have a look about."

Without any apparent reason we searched the room high and low for the missing cigar case, peering into vases and jars, moving furniture about and disturbing things generally until the place looked like a curio shop in the middle of housekeeping.

Finally we gave up in disgust, and, suddenly struck with the ridiculousness of our own performances, sat down in the chairs that we had formerly occupied by the side of the table.

The cigar case was lying under the lamp where MacArdel had first laid it down.

There was nothing to say, and so we said nothing. At length, MacArdel picked it up, examined it carefully, put it in his pocket and muttered: "Let's get out of here, Ware, I want some fresh air."

"Once outside the house, he continued: "That's the most remarkable occurrence I ever heard of. Ghosts don't walk by day, so it couldn't have been spooks, but how on earth do you explain it?"

"I don't explain it," I replied. "It's just like the note on the bed."

"Well, what if it did," I persisted. "It isn't any more mysterious, and we've got to get to the bottom of the whole business before we can let Miss Carney come back. No vacation for us, my boy. We must stay here and find out what's going on."

We walked all around the house, investigating every nook and corner of its walls and shaking the cellar windows and other subterranean openings to assure ourselves that they were securely fastened. Not finding anything of interest on the outside we returned again to the interior and beginning at the top, inspected every square inch of space until we reached the basement and were ready to descend to the cellar. I had discovered two candles, which we lighted for this exploration, and I confess that my hand traveled instinctively to the revolver in my hip pocket as we started down the stairs.

The cellar, however, disclosed nothing of importance, though we examined it thoroughly. As we were about to ascend, I noticed the pile of empty whisky bottles, and, after finding that there were exactly two dozen of them, had not a doubt that they were the ones Mr. Carney had ordered and emptied during his short stay at Carney-Croft three years before.

In brief, there was nothing to indicate that the house had been disturbed in any way since it was closed by Miss Carney, and we strolled slowly along the road to Hoskins' for our luncheon, completely baffled at every point.

"Don't you keep a watchman here?" asked MacArdel at length.

"I wanted to," I replied. "But the Carneys didn't think it necessary."

That night we sat on the veranda, discussing the happenings of the day, while the full moon shone coldly in the zenith and the river splashed fretfully against its banks back of the trees.

The town clock in the distant village had just struck the hour of midnight and I was beginning to yawn openly after my long day of excitement and exertion, when MacArdel said laughingly:

"Now's the time to trot out your ghosts, Ware. The clock just struck 12, you know."

As he spoke I grasped his arm and pointed to the path leading to the river. Two filmy white figures, one larger than the other, were wafted along under the trees, as if they were part of the air itself, and from them came an odor, so faint and yet so overpowering in its fetid oppressiveness that I could scarcely draw my breath.

For an instant MacArdel sat as one petrified, and then, with a muttered cry, he sprang over the rail and followed the fleeting things into the blackness of the overhanging trees.

I was after him in a bound. Running with all our speed, we saw the creatures, whatever they were, sail majestically before us as on wings of air until they reached the river, where, in the full glare of the moonlight, they vanished suddenly under our very eyes.

When I overtook MacArdel he was leaning heavily against a tree trunk, gasping for breath.

"Ware!" he said, as soon as he could speak. "That odor was the smell of the grave. There's nothing else like it, I tell you, man! I was a coroner for too many years and have opened too many coffins not to know it."

He sank to the ground from sheer exhaustion.

A moment later I heard a crackling in the underbrush not far away and, with a shout, I dashed into the bushes, followed by MacArdel. Suddenly there was a glimpse of white through the leaves, and, with a warning cry, I drew my revolver and fired twice with careful aim. The object in white fell to the ground, and we were upon it in an instant, while the continued crackling of branches showed that some one was escaping at the top of his speed.

The white object was a bundle of towels and odd pieces of bed linen and the articles were permeated by the same indescribable odor that we had noticed as we pursued the fleeting creatures in white down the path to the river.

MacArdel poked the parcel open with a stick and spread the pieces about in the moonlight as it filtered in through the branches overhead, making bright patches here and there under the trees. Whether because of his startled remark that this was the smell of the grave, or perhaps on account of the nervous strain to which I had just been subjected, I was forced to view this operation from a respectful distance and was glad when the investigation was completed.

Leaving the rags, for such they were, strewn about as MacArdel had scattered them, we returned in silence to the house and reseated outselves on the veranda.

"Mac," I said abruptly, a moment later, "do you know that we left this place standing wide open and that some one may be inside by this time?"

"Not much danger of that," said MacArdel slowly. "Whoever was around here is as far away by this time as he can possibly get. Make no mistake about it, Ware, those pieces of cloth down there have been around a corpse!"

I shuddered in spite of myself, and we slept in the same room that night, with the doors and windows bolted, and a revolver under each of our pillows.

CHAPTER X.
Courtship and Business.

We breakfasted at Hoskins'. As we were rising from the table, MacArdel said: "I've got a trunk up at the station. I suppose I can get somebody around here to take it down to the house."

"There's an old fellow here who drives what he calls an 'express.'" I replied. "I expect he'll attend to it for you."

Hoskins was standing by the door as we left the room and I asked him where we could find the stage driver.

"Where Did You Get It?"

but his reply was far from encouraging.

"Ye can't find him at all," he said. "He didn't git in till nigh mornin', an' he's abed yet. His wagon's aout teh th' barn, an' ef ye want teh hitch up yerselves an' git th' trunk ye're welcome to, fur all I can see. I'd send one o' my boys fur it ef I could, but they're all workin' to-day, an' I can't git hold o' one nohow."

We decided that we were quite equal to this task, and, proceeding to the stable, undertook to "hitch up" on our own account.

MacArdel did the driving, and I sat on the seat behind him in all the glory of an escorted guest. As we turned the corner into the road that led to the station, a sudden gust of wind wafted into my face the same indescribable odor that had offended my nostrils the night before and I called him to stop.

"Mac!" I said, "there's something wrong here! I can get that confounded smell again!"

He pulled up his horse with a jerk and, springing to the ground, began, with me, to peer under the seats of the vehicle. A moment later he extracted from a pile of blankets and laprobes, a bundle of white cloths similar in appearance to those we had discovered on the previous night, and exhaling the same odor.

"Put them back!" I exclaimed suddenly, "and cover them up again, too! After we get the trunk we can take them to the house and see what they are."

"Great idea!" muttered MacArdel, "only I was on the point of suggesting it myself. Get in here with me. The air's better up front."

I clambered into the seat by his side and we proceeded on our way to the station.

"Who is it that owns this turnout?" asked MacArdel. "Do you know anything about him?"

Mob Attacks Umpires.

New York, May 23.—Infuriated by the defeat of the Giants by the Chicago Cubs by a score of 3 to 2, thousands of men and boys, led by a band of ruffians, Tuesday attempted to mob Robert Emslie and Henry O'Day, umpires, whose decisions the crowd thought had helped the visitors, at the Polo Ground. Only the sledgehammer blows of Frank Bowerman, former lumberjack and catcher for the Giants, and "Iron Man" McGinnity, who felled several of the leaders, and the appearance of the police, who drew revolvers, saved the two umpires from bodily injury. After the umpires had escaped into their room under the grandstand, the ruffians attacked the policemen, hurling bottles, glasses and stones at them, and Andrew McLaughlin, a policeman, of the Thirtieth precinct, was forced to draw his revolver and fire into the air in order to protect himself.

J. B. Hegeman Indicted.

New Yorw, May 23.—Ten indictments, three for perjury and the others for forgery in the third degree, against John R. Hegeman, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, were handed to Judge Greenbaum by the Special Grand Jury late yesterday afternoon. Most of the indictments deal with the custom of the company to transfer its loans at the end of every year to some outside concern such as the firm of Vermilye & Co., make a report to the State Insurance Department in which no loans were mentioned, and then, after the report had been sent to Albany, to have the loans transferred back to the company. The forgery indictments have to do with the false entries made in the books to cover these transactions; the perjury charges are for the swearing by Mr. Hegeman to the truth of the reports forwarded to the State Insurance officials.

DIAMOND DUST.

The Y. M. C. A. nine will practice on Crescent Oval late this afternoon.

The second team of the Netherwood A. C. will play the East End Field Club this afternoon.

The members of the High School faculty, who are to play the Senior class nine tomorrow, had hot practice on Crescent Oval, yesterday afternoon. Principal Ira W. Travell, whom the pupils call "Zeus" to mark the magnitude of his power, showed that he was as pre-eminent in baseball as he was in educational work. He smothered everything that came toward first base. He ate line drives and pops as if he never did anything but pull horsehide out of the air. The other members of the faculty hustled hard, but they yielded the palm to their chief. Superintendent Maxson didn't come out to practice, and there are rumors that Capt. Matthewson will release him. Engineer Ben Evans, who will play second for the faculty, went through the motions as of real ball playing. He has a record behind him, and may surprise the youngsters.

PERSONAL.

The four children of Mr. and Mrs. street, who have been suffering from whooping cough, are recovering.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowler, of Newark, are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Elderton, of East Front street.

S. R. Struthers, of West Front street, has suffered a slight stroke of paralysis. His condition is not considered serious.

Among the Americans registered this week at the Paris office of the New York Herald are John F. Harman and family, of West Eighth street, who are travelling in Europe, and Robert Hecht and Mrs. Hecht, of Netherwood.

Mrs. Albert Hedden, of West Fourth street, while attending the funeral of her son-in-law at Newark on Saturday, slipped and fell down a pair of stairs, receiving a severe sprain of the knee and ankle which has since detained her at home.

Miss Panayotova, an exceedingly bright young woman from Bulgaria, has been the guest for several weeks of Mrs. L. J. Ellis, Park avenue. She is visiting America and Plainfield for the purpose of gaining information for the benefit of her own country.

Alfred S. Loizeaux, a former well known resident of this city who has been with the General Electric Works at Schenectady, N. Y., has resigned the position in order to accept one as second engineer in the New York Edison Company's lighting plant. He will return to Plainfield to live.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

All Saints' Episcopal church, Scotch Plains, will be consecrated by Bishop Scarborough early in June. The date will be announced within a short time.

Miss Fullman, a student from the missionay institute at Nyack, N. Y., will deliver an address at the Christian Alliance service, Friday, at 2:30 p. m., in W. C. T. U. rooms.

A meeting in the interest of the work being carried on for firemen, motormen and policemen will be held in the W. C. T. U. rooms this afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. Mrs. Irving Cubberly will conduct the meeting.

CITY JOTTINGS.

—Rev. M. A. Alexander, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, officiated at the funeral of Arita Octavia Cruse, at the parents' residence on West Third street, Tuesday afternoon, and not Rev. J. W. Mitchell. The interment was in Hillside cemetery.

CLOSED PORTALS.

Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will meet tonight and have initiation.

Plainfield Council, No. 293, Jr. O. U. A. M., in preparation for the initiation of several members on Monday night, June 3, will have a rehearsal of the ritualistic work on Monday night.

DELICATE WILL CASE QUESTION

Court to Decide Whether or Not Woman's Testament Was Torn.

New Brunswick, May 23.—Whether mending a will by pasting strips of paper on the back proved fatal to the will of the testator is the delicate point brought out by the contest of the will of the late Mrs. Caroline Cunningham, of Perth Amboy, and the issue is still further complicated by the claims that the will was torn and was not torn, respectively. Upon these latter claims the issue may turn.

The will is dated May 6, 1897, and leaves the estate to surviving children, the contest being instituted by Winifred Cunningham Tucker, a grand-daughter of the deceased, whose mother, a daughter of Mrs. Cunningham, is dead, and to whose descendants nothing was left.

Evidence was given that Mrs. Cunningham carried the will in a packet, hung around her neck. This and frequent handling made it fragile. Stripes of paper were pasted on the back. The proponents declare the will was not torn, the strips being only to strengthen it. The caveatrix declares the will was torn, and therefore to remain valid, should have been republished and witnessed according to the law in such case.

Supper and Entertainment Tonight.

The fair was continued at the Christian church on Grove street, last night, with unabated success. Tonight supper will be served from 6 to 9 o'clock, to be followed by an entertainment. Admission will be free. The fair will close tomorrow night.

JAPANESE FOOLED THE FAKER.

Fingers Had Been Trained for Just That Kind of Thing.

The street faker who was selling cement near the steps of the court house stood behind a little table on which was conspicuously displayed the sign: 'A box of this cement given free to anybody who can break any of these apart."

There were spools, blocks of wood and other articles that had been cemented together, and most of them bore marks of having been struggled with by persons with grimy hands in vain attempts to wrench them apart.

A swarthy little fellow who had stopped in front of the faker's stand pointed to a round peg that appeared to have been dipped in the cement and driven into a good-sized chunk of wood, and asked him what would be the reward for pulling it out.

"If you can pull that out," said the peddler, "I'll give you a silver dollar."

The peg projected a little more than a quarter of an inch above the block. The swarthy little fellow placed his left hand on the block to hold it down, took the peg between the thumb and forefinger of his right hand and pulled it out with apparent ease, a portion of the wood coming away with it.

"Great Scott!" gasped the man behind the table. "What are you?"

"Me Japanese dentist," replied the little fellow, pocketing the silver dollar and walking away with a grin on his face.

EAST AFRICAN MONARCH.

August Sovereign of Eight Years Sits on a Throne of Scarlet.

The king of Uganda, in British East Africa, rejoices or grieves in the somewhat picklish and chow-chowy name of Dandi Chua. This august sovereign—may his tribe increase!—is now "going on" eight, says Everybody's Magazine. To befit a colored scepter bearer he has a highly colored court. He sits on a throne of scarlet, and probably the court carpenters have made it a world too long for his chubby little legs. Under the British protectorate folks have to be economical in Uganda, and a king must grow up to his throne, and can't have a custom made one every time he has growing pains. We can remember when a king of Uganda was every inch a king, no matter how few his inches. So sacred, no supra purple was he that the remains of his food had to be buried lest its sacredness strike dead some unhappy subject. The British have changed all that. Daudi—we wish we had a photograph of him—Daudi sits on his scarlet throne, a leopard skin under his bare feet, a toy gun in his little hands. Probably not a bit more absurd and many times more "sympathetic" in the eyes of the heavenly powers than many a wide ruling czar or kaiser that has been, is, or shall be.

What She Wants to Know.

"You are going to marry a rich widower who has three children."

"Oh, I know that," replied the beautiful girl. "But I'd like to find out what we are going to do with the children, for, as he says, they certainly need a mother's care."—Chicago Record-Herald.

PUSH THE COUNTRY'S TRADE.

Invaluable Work That Is Done by American Drummer.

"The American drummer is the greatest patriot in the world," said W. J. Clark, in the Washington Post. "I believe no other men can touch the Americans in selling goods or boosting their country. The traveling men of the United States have made our foreign trade. They are good mixers, quick to catch on and are the greatest civilizers we have, with the exception of the newspapers. How faithful and patriotic they are none but those who have seen them can appreciate. Their patriotism is put to the real test, for anyone who has traveled in a foreign country longs to get back home when he has been years away from his fireside. But the men stick to their work, knowing that it is up to them to make trade. And they are doing it bravely and surely. There is no better trade-mark in Europe today than that which appears on American goods. Foreign countries know it, too, for many of them are continually making imitations of our manufactured products, and some are even going so far as to mark them with American names. The people of Europe are beginning to look upon goods that come from America the same as we looked upon woolens and other articles a few years ago that were marked imported."

MANY USES OF THE BANANA.

Product of Entire Tree Utilized by West Indian Natives.

In this country the banana is regarded mostly as a food product, but in the West Indies the natives find a use for the entire tree, and well it serves its many purposes. When the young coffee and cocoa plants need protection from the fierce rays of the sun banana leaves give the desired shelter. Physicians and nurses use the tender, unopened leaves for dressings, and the old leaves are made into twine and boxes. In Malay the stalks and leaves are made into a soap for laundry purposes, and a solution forms a valuable salt. From banana juice and the skin of the fruit a preparation is made for blackening purposes and the juice also makes a good indelible ink. On the under side of a banana leaf a wax forms which is very valuable and is one of the export products of the island of Java. In some countries a dye stuff is produced from the ashes of the fruit and leaves and the banana fiber is used in making manila hemp, from which rope and cordage are manufactured. In Switzerland a very fine hat braid is made from this manila hemp. From these examples it is readily seen what an important place the banana holds in the world of commerce.

Spindle-Shanked Men of To-day.

"You see," said Mr. Simpson, editor of the American Gentleman, "trousers are trousers and there are no new ideas possible in them. We've had the baggy trousers and the peg-top. The normal has now been attained and we're going to stick to it. Knee breeches? Oh, my, no! You'll never see them in America—not even for evening dress. The trouble is that the modern city man is too spindle-shanked and knock-kneed to wear them with distinction. And it's not only the city man's legs that are deteriorating in grace and strength. It's a well known fact among tailors that the man of to-day is physically inferior to his grandfather. It's the extension of transit facilities and elevator service that is ruining him. Nowadays if a man has any flesh it's under his waistband."

Startles a Bridal Couple.

In one of the Seventeenth street windows of the Colorado Midland ticket office is a stuffed stork. Yesterday about noon a young Elk and his wife stopped in front of the window and had a look at the stork and the baby camel which stands by it. Jim Davis, the Midland's city passenger agent, noticed them gazing at the stork as he came up Seventeenth street. He hesitated a moment before the window and the young Elk noticed him. "That's a stork, isn't it?" asked the Elk of Mr. Davis. "Yes," replied Jim, "that's a stork." Then, as he went through the screen door: "Just leave your orders in here." The young Elk and his wife "faded away" in a hurry. —Denver Post.

How He Awoke the Congregation.

Ferdinando Nicholls, who was at one time rector of St. Mary Arches, Exeter, England, in the midst of his sermon one day discovered that several aldermen in the congregation had fallen asleep. He paused and sat down. The people then began to stand up and move about, and this had the effect of awakening the slumberers, who stood up with the rest to ascertain the cause of Mr. Nicholl's silence.

Upon this he arose and addressed the drowsy aldermen as follows: "The sermon is not yet done, and now you are awake I hope you will hearken more dilligently."

Decline in English Study.

In all directions tragical results of the long neglect of serious English study are visible, writes Sidney Lee in the Academy. The worst English is practiced and appreciated, outside a very small circle of English society. The municipal libraries, which minister to the literary needs of the multitude, overflow with literary vacuity and vapidity. The standard of the average taste in literature steadily declines.

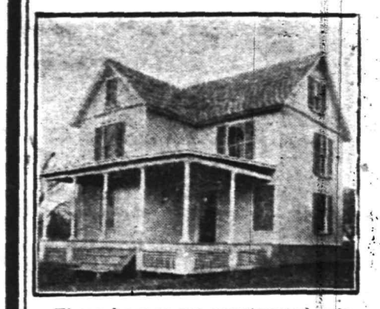
NEW SYSTEM OF BUILDING.

A MARVEL IN THE SCIENCE OF CONSTRUCTION.

A method far in advance of anything formerly used in the preparation of the different parts of a house when erected in sections, making it easy to construct any design of a house, and a very superior house for all seasons, countries and climates at a great reduction in cost.



These houses are constructed principally from the best kiln dried lumber in a factory entirely protected from weather, where best high speed woodworking machines are used for cutting and shaping of every piece, reducing cost for mechanics fully one-half, making a superior house when finished.

Houses or other structures erected under this system make the warmest houses in winter, and the strongest building that can be constructed with any material, the fiercest storm fails to cause any vibration whatever. They are adapted to receive all improvements, plumbing, lighting, heating, etc., when desired.

A new method of lath and plaster is used for interior finish, making a perfect indestructable wall superior to anything ever before used.

COUNTY APPROPRIATIONS

Board of Freeholders Decides $310,000 Must Be Raised for the Coming Year.

AN INCREASE OF $14,000

Heaviest Item for Erection and Repairs of Bridges and Culverts —Court Expenses Next.

The Union County Board of Freeholders at a special meeting held in Elizabeth, yesterday, decided upon the appropriations for the coming year. The amount to be raised is $327,050, less the money assets of the county, $17,050, making the total sum to be raised by taxation, $310,000. This is an increase of $14,000 over last year, when the amount was $296,000. This is due to the increase in salaries and expenses in some of the departments over which the Board of Freeholders has no control. These departments include the courts, county jail and lunacy. The appropriation, it is reported, would have been $36,000 less if it had not been for the necessity of building the First street bridge, Elizabeth, and similar work in Rahway and Summit.

The budget is made up of the following amounts:

Courts, $51,000; county jail, $8,-$$$; lunatics, $39,000; expenses and salaries, $14,000; fees of coroner, $500; elections, $21,000; stationery, $2,500; advertising and printing, $2,000; incidentals and schools, $12,000; children's guardian account, $1,000; ..ational Guard, $850; tax board and taxes, $2,700; debt and interest, payment of principal on bonded indebtedness, $9,-000; payment of interest on bonded indebtedness, $40,000; payment of bank interest on temporary loan, $1,-500; sinking fund, $8,000; permanent improvement of public buildings and grounds, $17,000; erection and repairs of bridges and culverts, $57,-000; repairs to county roads, $17,-500; hospitals, $20,000; repairs to roads under the State road act, $2,-500.

The board adopted the report of the committee regarding the petition for raising the bridge at Rahway to permit the building of a reservoir by a water company, and granted the petition. A new bridge was also built at Rahway over Robinson's Creek.

CARNIVAL PROGRESS.

General Committee Hears Several Encouraging Reports.

The carnival committee from Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, met last night and received gratifying reports as to the progress being made for the coming outdoor show at West Front street and Grant avenue. Everyone is enthusiastic over the affair. The grounds have been put in first class condition and everything is practically in readiness for the opening.

Chairman Theodore J. Shirley, Treasurer J. J. Kenney and Secretary J. J. Varley, who visited the Bayonne carnival, in company with J. J. Hines, A. A. Cannon and J. F. O'Keefe, last night, and were much pleased with the attractions furnished by the Hippodrome Amusement Company, which will bring the same ones to Plainfield. All the various committees are working hard to make the carnival a success and it promises to equal the one given for the hospital.

Dr. Hughes Improving.

Dr. Frederic Hughes, of the borough, who has been seriously ill for the past two weeks at Roosevelt Hospital, New York, is beginning to improve and it is expected he will be able to leave the hospital within a week or two.

Plenty of City Work Ahead.

At the June meeting of the Common Council arrangements will be made to advertise for bids for building the Plainfield avenue storm sewer, which was decided upon at the last meeting of the Council. Other important business will be the advertising for bids for macadamizing of a number of additional streets and for an extension to the sewer system provided for at the last meeting. With this work and that of laying brick pavement in the business section the coming summer promises to be exceedingly busy in Plainfield.

Miss Utter's Annual Recital.

The pupils of Miss Jessie Utter, piano teacher, gave their annual recital this afternoon at the home of Miss Uter, 517 Central avenue. An excellent programme was well rendered by the pupils.

—Among the vegetable specials at Neuman Brothers' tomorrow will be asparagus, peas, beans, egg plant, rhubarb, cucumbers, lettuce, fresh tomatoes, Jersey radishes, white squash and celery.

CLEVER ACTING BY STARS OF PARK COMEDY CLUB

AMATEUR ACTORS SHINE IN THREE HUMOROUS PLAYLETS.

In three one-act plays of humor, the stars of the Park Comedy Club displayed their skill and art, last night, at the Park Club. It was the last event of the Comedy Club's season. The audience was large and appreciative.

The three casts were well balanced, and the stage settings were complete and perfect. The parts were carefully assigned, and the work of J. M. Edgar Hart, stage manager of Carnegie Hall, New York, who had the amateur actors in hand for the presentations, produced exceptionally good results. All those who took part in the plays did well.

The comedies themselves were good, and the audience found much to laugh at, and much to applaud. The applause was unstinted. Mrs. Henry Emerson Butler received no less than five bouquets.

The casts were as follows:

"Our Aunt From California," by Madalene Demarest Barnum—Felicia Needey, Miss Mabel Van Deventer; Rosalie Neeedey, Miss Helen Philips; The Maid, Mrs. William R. Faber; Sally Needey, Mrs. Spencer Fullerton Weaver; Mrs. Merry Muntoburn, from California, Mrs. Henry Crofut White; Miss Wilcoxgibs, their dressmaker, Miss Katheryn Ball; Mrs. Needey, Miss Elsie de R. Suffern.

"The Old Master," by Henry Arthur Jones—Simpkin, Sir Rupert's man, Alson M. Abbott; Sir Rupert Vanstone, Clifford W. McGee; Sophie Penrose, Matthew's daughter, Mrs. Henry Emerson Butler; Penelope Gamble, Matthew's sister-in-law and housekeeper, Mrs. Henry Crofut White; Matthew Penrose, a village schoolmaster, Henry Crofut White.

"Miss Civilization," by Richard Harding Davis—Alice Gardner, the railway president's daughter, Mrs. Henry Emerson Butler; "Uncle" Joseph Hatch, alias "Gentleman Joe," Henry Crofut White; Harry Hayes, alias "Grand Stand Harry," Spencer Fullerton Weaver; "Brick" Meakin, alias "Reddy, the Kid," Alston M. Abbott; The Chief of Police, Harry L. McGee.

The stage manager for the evening was Charles H. Lyman. H. Fullerton Weaver was business manager, and Charles B. Morse was in charge of the publicity department. The stage committee was made up of Harry L. McGee, Mrs. Charles H. Lyman, Mrs. Alson M. Abbott, Mrs. William R. Faber and Miss Saidee Mae Howell.

TEMPORARY RECEIVER FOR POWERS PHARMACY CO.

Elston M. French Appointed With Possibility of Being Made Permanent.

Because a number of the creditors of the Powers Pharmacy Company have failed to consent to the settlement proposed at the creditors' meeting of the corporation on April 27 last, and in order to protect the interests of all, Elston M. French, of the borough, has been appointed temporary receiver, the purpose being to make his appointment permanent.

The action is in chancery between Henry K. Wampole, Albert J. Koch and S. Ross Campbell, partners, trading as Henry K. Wampole & Co., complainants, and the Powers Pharmacy Co., defendants. Mr. French is appointed receiver by Chancellor Magie, with full power to demand, sue for, collect, receive and take into his possession all the goods and chattels belonging to the Powers Pharmacy Company. He is obliged to furnish a bond for $4,000. Tuesday morning, June 4, at 10 o'clock, in the Chancery Chambers, Newark, has been fixed as the time and place, when the creditors and stockholders shall show cause why Mr. French should not be made permanent receiver. Reed & Coddington are solicitors for the complainants, and Charles M. Dolliver is the solicitor for the Powers Pharmacy Co.

Speaker Not Yet Secured.

The Borough Board of Education is rapidly completing the details for the commencement exercises in June. The only matter of importance not yet decided is that in reference to the speaker for the occasion. Dr. J. H. Cooley is chairman of the committee on speaker and he hopes to announce the name within a few days. The committee has been in communication with several men of prominence and it is believed that the selection will be highly satisfactory.

Fresh Air Home Meeting.

A meeting in the interest of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home will be held at the First Baptist church Sunday night, when Miss Sara Curry will speak and a number of children from the Home will sing. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the church, will also have a few words to say about the work.

SEVEN NURSES GRADUATE

Annual Exercises Hospital of Training School at Casino Last Night.

DR. CHAMBLISS SPEAKS

Addresses Also Made By Dr. Ellis W. Hedges and Mayor Fisk— Dance After Programme.

The annual graduation exercises of the Training School for Nurses of Muhlenberg Hospital, was held at the Casino, last night, and it was the most delightful of any previous affairs of the kind. There was a departure from the former set programme, and the innovation of giving a dance to the graduates and their friends after the exercises proved popular with all. The affair was arranged by the members of the Muhlenberg Hospital Alumnae Association, and it was the suggestion of Miss Margaret Cramer that the change from the church to the Casino was made. The stage was attractively decorated with flowers and palms, while the American and English flags helped to make the decoration complete, the English flags being displayed in honor of the three graduates from Canada.

William R. Cock, as president of the Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, was in charge of the exercises and after an opening prayer by Rev. George A. Warner, rector of the Church of the Holy Cross, he made a short address of welcome. The address of the evening was delivered by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church.

After congratulating the members of the graduating class, who with the other members of the training school occupied seats on the stage, Dr. Chambliss turned his attention to the profession of nurse and physician, showing the close relations that must exist between the two. He spoke of the various kinds of patients that nurses have to care for, and did not fail to mention the "fake" patient, one who is always trying to deceive. He said that this is not always restricted to boys and girls, but older people practice the deception and try to fool the physician. He believed the profession of nursing to be a divine calling.

Referring to the necessary qualifications of a nurse, Dr. Chambliss spoke especially of patience, which he said was a Scriptural injunction. "It must be remembered," said the speaker, "that there are physicians and nurses whose tempers are short and crusty and who are rough and wrathful. There are brave physicians who are ill-tempered and even brutal. They rage and roar like a mad bull. Only a genius can do that, but a majority of us are common people and can afford to be decent.

"It is often hard to endure carelessness, neglect and the dull apprehension of some people, but let me tell you that the course of true love is not the only thing that doesn't run smooth. Not more than once in ten times does the thing you most earnestly wish for come true. Put your heart on some one thing and it fails to come to pass, and often the person who doesn't need a thing is usually the one to get it. You want a particularly fine day for a trip and it is quite likely to be stormy. When you want a physician in a case of life and death, often-times the physician can't come or is miles away. But what does the world care of these things?

"Think of the suffering that comes to us in one way or another. It is then that we need the true patience that is worked by the good Spirit. May we have that patience to endure even those things which are the hardest to bear."

Dr. Ellis W. Hedges, representing the medical staff, was introduced, and he talked in a lighter vein, recalling some amusing incidents of his college days. He disagreed with Dr. Chambliss when he said that not more than once out of ten times will a person's desires be gratified. He said that three years ago, the graduates set their hearts on becoming first-class nurses and "here they are."

Turning to the graduates he gave them some excellent advice in their chosen profession of "charming the dear public whom they will serve" as he put it. "If a woman wants you to do a lot of unnecessary things and keep you running up and down stairs," said Dr. Hedges, "don't worry. Think how much better off you are than the husband." Dr. Hedges said that the present class was, of course, the best one ever graduated from the training school.

The diplomas were then presented to the graduates by Mr. Cock and E. H. Ladd, Jr., presented the gold pins. The graduates are as follows: Miss Hilda M. Hewlitt and Miss Margaret Cranswick, of Toronto, Canada; Miss Charlotte Griffin, of London, On-

JUDGE BOORAEM ORDERS SOMERSET OFFICERS HELD

BAIL FIXED AT $500 FOR BOTH SHERIFF AND CONSTABLES.

In the Somerset County Court, this morning, Judge Booraem, of New Brunswick, ordered that the rule of attachment be made permanent in the contempt proceedings against Deputy Sheriff John L. Anderson and Constables Dennis Wyckoff and Ambrose Mantz. The writs were given to Sheriff Cooper, who took the accused into custdy. They were later released in $500 bail each to appear for a hearing on Monday, June 10.

One week ago today Judge Schenck granted a rule to show cause why Deputy Sheriff Anderson and Constables Wyckoff and Mantz should not be attached for contempt of court, the former for attempting to influence jurors and the two last named for permitting outsiders to talk with jurors while in their charge. The application for the rule was made by Prosecutor John F. Reger, and the jury to which it has reference is the one which disagreed on a verdict in the trial of William H. Skillman, of Blawenburg, for forgery.

Judge Booraem was asked to hear the application this morning by reason of the fact that he presided at the Skillman trial.

MAY PURCHASE PICTURES.

Freeholders Still Considering Price Asked for Scott Canvases.

The committee from the Union County Board of Freeholders, of which J. Hervey Doane, is the chairman, which is considering the proposition of purchasing three paintings by the late Col. Julian Scott, now in the possession of Drake's Zouaves, of Elizabeth, met on Wednesday to talk the matter over. No decision was reached at the time and the committee will meet again next Wednesday.

The Zouaves have offered to sell the three pictures to the county for $1,000, but it is believed that a little lower price would be accepted. One painting, 7x5 feet represents the "Battle of Antietam," another one 3½x2 feet is a picture of Gen. Hancock and the third one, 3x2 feet, is entitled "All Quiet Along the Potomac." Experts who have seen the paintings declare them to be worth a great deal more than the price asked and many people believe that the county should purchase them and hang them in the court house. They are considered to be among the best paintings by Col. Scott.

HE'S A NEAR-PLUMBER.

City Court Prisoner Explains False Description in His Pedigree.

Patrolman Charles Flynn arrested an old man with a heavy load of strong drink on West Front street at 9:30 o'clock last night. The prisoner said he was John McIntyre, plumber, of Newark, and his card was made out that way. In the city court this morning, he said his name was John McPherson, and his trade was mining.

"What did you give your name as McIntyre for?" asked Judge Runyon.

"That was my stepfather's name," explained the prisoner.

"How near are you to being a plumber?"

"Well, my son is a plumber, and I know something of the trade," said McPherson.

Judge Runyon suspended sentence and gave him ten minutes in which to start on his way back to Newark.

SPOKE OF RESCUE WORK.

Mrs. Whittemore, Founder of New York Mission, at S. A. Hall.

Mrs. E. M. Whittemore, founder and head of the Door of Hope Mission, 805 Third avenue, New York, spoke at Salvation Army Hall last night on rescue work in the metropolis. There was a large attendance.

Mrs. Whittemore caught and held the interest of her hearers with a graphic story of the work that the missionaries do, and the results they accomplish. She recounted a number of personal experiences.

She did not speak on the work of the newly organized suicide bureau of the Salvation Army, of which she is the head. She has the rank of adjutant in the Army.

Special music was a feature of the meeting. Miss Marion Cromwell, of Cranford, sang several solos.

Sewer Work Progressing.

Work on the Southside sanitary sewer is progressing rapidly and no further trouble has been experienced by Contractor Morgan. Cormick Caulfield is the sub-contractor, who will do the mason work for the installation of the pumping plant on Randolph road. The contract for installing the pump was awarded to Warren B. Travell.

ALL QUIET AT FANWOOD

Vincent-Hoar Assault Case Ends Abruptly and Without any Casualties.

PRINCIPALS "MADE UP"

Folks Gathered All the Way From Scotch Plains to Dog Corner to View the Proceedings.

After keeping all Fanwood in a state of trepidation for three weeks or more, the assault charge preferred by Charles R. Vincent, of that borough, against his neighbor, William H. Hoar, was called before Mayor Wright Babcock in the fire hall, last night, but terminated almost as abruptly as the original trouble occurred. Both principals were on hand with counsel apparently to see the matter through to the bitter end, but at the crucial moment the complaint was withdrawn and the principals "buried the hatchet" in a vigorous handshake.

The crowd which showed up for the trial was so large that the fire apparatus had to be sent out in the chill night air to make room for the commuters and their wives and daughters and the townsfolk from as far over as Scotch Plains and Dog Corner. Fanwood's entire police force—he came out in a spic-and-span new uniform, too—was on hand to maintain order and to see that the hose truck was put back after everybody had gone.

Hoar arrived at the court room early in the evening with his counsel, former Assemblyman Samuel S. Swackhamer, the latter being prepared to explain in more ways than one that his client was justified in the so-called assault charge preferred by Mr. Vincent. The plaintiff showed up a little later, coming in by a side door to avoid the newspapermen and camera artists, and was joined by his legal representative, George W. V. Moy, of this city. Mayor Babcock sat at the head of a table placed in the centre of the room, wearing a substantial look of judicial dignity and trying hard to show no partiality in his glances. When the overture of small talk and hand-shaking had subsided, the mayor-justice rapped for order and called the case with all the earnestness of Court Crier Bunn at Somerville. As he finished Counsellor Moy arose and said:

"Your Honor, I wish to say that an agreement has been reached between my client and the defendant, Mr. Hoar, and the charge is withdrawn."

Fashionable Fanwood gasped and the less exclusive residents from the Plains and over toward Dory Glazer's way looked about and gave "I-told-you-so" giggles. Then Bedlam broke loose and for a moment or so cheer after cheer and vigorous handclapping showed that everyone would rather see the matter end in this way than to have it drag along indefinitely. As silence was gradually restored, Plaintiff Vincent put his hand across the table and Defendant Hoar grasped it much the same as does a Plainfield politician the palm of the Pondville workingmen before election. And the next moment the white-winged Dove of Peace fluttered about the hall and then went out into the weather to settle down over the length and breadth of Fanwood.

The whole affair grew out of Mr. Vincent's charge that Mr. Hoar had assailed him with a cane when he (Vincent) had sought to prevent him from carting off some slag. Hoar claimed to have bought it from Harry E. Knight, when he was Chairman of the Street Committee of the Borough Council, and Vincent, as his successor, claimed that no one had a right to sell the material without first getting the council's consent. He held up the horses as they were being driven away with the load and to emphasize his demand to let go, Mr. Hoar rapped the street committeeman on the knuckles.

Will Repeat "Peasant Prince."

"The Peasant Prince," by William E. MacClymont and Dr. Charles R. Clinton, which was given with so much success last week, will be repeated on Tuesday night, June 11, at the New Plainfield theatre for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital. The matter was decided last night at a meeting of the Board of Governors of the hospital and plans are now underway for the second performance. Mr. MacClymont has decided to make the opera a two-act one instead of three, which, it is considered by many, will be an improvement.

Allen Wilson Seriously Ill.

Allen Wilson, son of Col. John F. Wilson, of the borough, is seriously ill at his home in Philadelphia, the result of a paralytic stroke a few days ago. He is practically helpless. It is believed that his condition is due to an automobile accident he had last summer at Atlantic City.

CITY OFFICIALS ON A MUNICIPAL TOUR

MAYOR FISK AND OTHERS LOOK OVER IMPROVEMENTS AT NEW BEDFORD.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Health Officer Leon R. Thurlow and Street Commissioner Andrew J. Gavett visited New Bedford, Mass., a few days ago for the purpose of inspecting the reduction system of garbage disposal in use in that city of 92,000 population. While this system is the invention of the American Extractor Company it is not wholly unlike the Arnold system in use at Atlantic City which was inspected a few weeks ago.

Both are known as the reduction system and a considerable profit is realized from the bi-products after the garbage is disposed of. The Plainfielders were met at New Bedford by Mayor Ashley, of that place, who escorted them about the city. They were also interested in the question of street pavement, as it was noticed that about every known kind has been laid in New Bedford. They were apparently pleased with the system of garbage disposal, although they refuse to give an opinion on the subject. They saw the plant in operation and so far as they could learn it worked satisfactory.

MARTINE DINNER.

The special committee of the Elizabeth Democratic Committee, appointed by the chairman, General Dennis F. Collins, to arrange for the dinner to be tendered to James E. Martine on May 29, held a meeting Wednesday night at the Democratic headquarters to review their work. All the details have been completed but there will be several changes in the list of speakers. The first of these was announced by General Collins yesterday morning. He has received a letter from Peter F. Daly, of New Brunswick, expressing regret that he cannot attend because of sickness. Martin Conboy, of Orange, has been secured to take the place of Mr. Daly and speak on the "Democracy of the Fathers." Mr. Conboy is a member of the firm of Griggs, Baldwin & Pierce, of 27 Pine street, New York, of which former Attorney-General J. W. Griggs is the head.

General Collins said that he had received a number of requests from different parts of the county and the State for invitations and he wished it understood that no invitations were being sent out except to speakers and other special guests. Anyone desiring to attend the dinner may secure tickets from any member of the County Committee.

The members of the County Committee will meet tonight to make their returns for tickets for the dinner.

QUIETLY WEDDED.

Miss Evelyn Wilson Becomes Bride of William Conover.

Miss Evelyn Wilson, daughter of Alfred Wilson, and William Conover, of Manalapan, were married last night, at the home of the bride's father, 539 West Fourth street, in the presence of about sixty relatives and friends. Rev. H. C. Ashley, former pastor of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, but now of New Brunswick, performed the ceremony. The wedding march was played by Charles VanHorne.

The bride was gowned in white satin, and was attended by her sister, Miss Emma Wilson, whose gown was of blue silk. The best man was Henry Conover, brother of the groom. The couple received a great many gifts. After the ceremony supper was served and dancing enjoyed. The couple have gone on a wedding journey. They will reside with the bride's father for the present.

McCARDELL SUIT DELAYED.

Put Off For Term, On Account of Calendar Conditions.

Andrew McCardell's suit for $5,-000 against the Courier-News Publishing Company will not be tried until the next term of court. It was hoped by both sides to dispose of the action at the present term, but an unexpected disposal of the cases set down before the suit on the court calendar upset the plans of the plaintiff.

There were eight suits ahead of the McCardell action, and the plaintiff counted on a certain amount of time in which to get his case ready for trial. Seven of the eight cases were unexpectedly put off, and Walter L. Hetfield, lawyer for Mr. McCardell, found his case on the verge of call for trial yesterday, before his plans were complete. The case was accordingly put off for the term.

Mr. Hall, an Elizabeth evangelist, will speak at Salvation Army Hall Sunday night.

SWINDLED BY OLD GAME

Antonio Falceon Victimized to the Extent of $20 by Sharpers.

THOUGHT HE HAD JOB

Affable Strangers Hired Him For Easy Work At Good Wages, Then Proceeded to Use His Services.

Antonio Falceon, of Watchung avenue, met two affable strangers yesterday, who offered him a good job. As a result of the encounter Antonio is out $20, and his faith in amiable strangers with kindly intentions has been shattered.

He met the strangers on Watchung avenue, at noon. One of them was an Italian, and engaged Falceon in conversation in his native language. He said he understood Falceon was open for employment. The men were well-dressed, and looked as if they might be employers of labor, so Falceon thought he had run into a bit of good fortune when the prosperous-looking Italian offered him a job paying fifteen dollars a week. The stranger said the work would be easy, and Falceon promptly accepted the job.

"Good," said the stranger. Then he turned to his companion and they held a low-toned conversation. The Italian told Falceon that they had an errand for him to do. They had a package of money, he said, which they wanted delivered to a man. He took out a bulky-looking envelope, and held it up impressively.

They liked his looks, the Italian continued, and had decided to trust him with the money. Still, when one came to think of it a bit of security, just to make things more business-like, wouldn't come amiss. Had Falceon anything he could put up to guarantee his honesty?

Falceon looked at the envelope. It had a most reassuring look. The bulk of it looked just as if a thick wad of bills was enclosed within it. Yes, Falceon said, he had security of a kind. He had a twenty-dollar bill, and would willingly put it up to guarantee his swift and honest delivery of the rich packet. The pair said the twenty dollars would satisfy them, just as a guarantee of good faith. They took the bill, and Falceon got the package.

It was addressed to James Williams, 763 West Front street. Falceon hurried to the address, and asked for Mr. Williams. There was no Williams in that house, or in any other house in the neighborhood. Falceon spent an hour looking for James Williams, and then a chilling suspicion as to the safety of his twenty struck him. He paused on the sidewalk and ripped open the envelope. A batch of worthless strips of paper, cut to the size of bills, was disclosed. In the middle of the batch was an ancient model of a one dollar bill, issued by the State Bank of New Brunswick, signed by the cashier but unsigned by the president. Falceon thought it might have some peculiar and tremendous value, and hurried, with renewed hope, to Watchung avenue, where he was to meet the strangers after performing the errand.

On Watchung avenue Falceon's hopes slumped again. The strangers were not in sight, and Falceon carried his tale to police headquarters.

Chief Kiely told Falceon that he had been up against an old, old game. He took the victim's description of the strangers and sent Detective-Sergeant Flynn out on the case, but there isn't much hope of locating the dispensers of easy jobs.

SHEELEN HOMESTEAD SOLD.

Property On Jerusalem Road Will Be Cut Up For Suburban Homes.

Borough Collector Charles Sheelen, of Fanwood, has closed a deal with the New York and New Jersey Realty Company for the sale of the Sheelen homestead on Jerusalem road. The farm comprises fifty acres of land and includes some of the best building sites in that section of the State. At present the Westfield Golf Club holds a lease on a portion of the farm, the lease holding good until 1911. The club has been given the option by the company of buying that part of the farm, which includes part of the course, or vacate when the lease expires.

The club decided to buy and the balance of the farm will be cut up into building lots, streets cut through and twenty-five or thirty houses will be built during the summer and fall. They will be suitable in style for the New Yorkers who are looking for suburban homes.

Warm Weather Promised.

The first outing of the season from Plainfield this season will be the grocers' excursion to Coney Island on Decoration Day. The weather man has decided to be good and has promised warm weather for that date. Arrange to go and have a pleasant trip.

WHITEHOUSE.

Former Congressman Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville, who owns the Island Farm, near Whitehouse, has awarded the contract to Frank Fisher, of Hillsborough Township, to grade the public highway which runs from the Easton turnpike through the Island Farm to the Lamington road, at his expense, and work is already well underway. Hills are being cut down and when completed the thoroughfare will be greatly improved.

At the request of the Hunterdon County Sabbath Observance Association the churches in the county will hold special services next Sunday, as the beginning of a campaign for better observance of Sunday. At Lebanon the Reformed and Methodist churches will hold a union service and the pastors, Rev. Lucas Boeve and Rev. G. F. Illman, will speak.

A meeting of young people will be held in the Methodist Episcopal church in Whitehouse Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when a junior Epworth League will be organized. Rev. Sylvanus D. Decker, the pastor, is at the head of the movement.

Professor and Mrs. Rockafellar, of Lebanon, are spending a few days in New York this week. While there Mr. Rockafellar will make arrangements for the annual reunion of the Rockafellar Family Asssociation, of which he is the president.

Beginning next Sunday morning and for every Sunday throughout the summer, the services in the Reformed church at Lebanon will start at 10 o'clock, and the Sunday-school session will be held directly after the preaching service.

Asa Sharp, who is ill at his home at Lebanon, took a sudden turn for the worse a few days ago, and Dr. Hedges, of Plainfield, was called in consultation. The patient is improving.

Mrs. Joseph Higgins will entertain the Woman's Christian Temperance Union at her home in Whitehouse next Saturday afternoon.

CRANFORD.

When the Board of Health met Wednesday night, Miss Alice Lakey presented a complaint from a State official that a slaughter-house was in an unsanitary condition. The secretary of the Board declared that there was no such establishment in the township. Miss Lakey requested the Board to empower its inspector to take samples of milk from venders for analysis.

Notices are posted that six surveyors of highways have been appointed by the court, to meet in the township rooms on June 11 at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, for the purpose of widening and extending Claremont place and Hamilton avenue.

Miss Eva Kunkel, the Union newsstand agent, has been presented with a testimonial and a $50 gold note, to defray the expenses of a trip to the Jamestown Exposition, by a number of citizens.

The Rose Villa Musical Society gave a musicale at the residence of Mrs. John H. Thompson, yesterday afternoon. The compositions of Paderewski were performed by members.

The Cranford Choral Club will give a concert in the opera house next Wednesday night.

RARITAN.

Miss Nora Cahill, of Norwalk, Conn., has been spending a few days with her aunt, Mrs. John Cahill, at Raritan.

Mrs. George W. Hope and daughter have been guests this week of Rev. and Mrs. J. B. Heard of Rahway.

The Loyal Catholic Benevolent Association gave a dance and entertainment in St. Bernard's Hall last evening.

Miss Catherine Fallon, of Newark, has been spending this week here with her mother, Mrs. William Fallon.

Mrs. Catherine Shearn and daughter, Miss Cornelia, are guests of Mrs. John W. Fay, at Roselle.

NORTH BRANCH.

Congressman Wood has received notice from Washington that the pension of Abram Du Mont, of North Branch Depot, has been increased to $15 per month under the act of February 6, 1907.

Miss Alice Lyon and her mother have returned to their country home near Pluckemin, for the summer. Miss Lyon has purchased another automobile and now possesses two machines.

Miss Mary Williamson, of Neshanic Station, has been entertaining Mrs. S. Howard Williamson and her ward, Harold Butterfield, of South Bound Brook.

There was a large gathering in the Reformed church Wednesday night, when a social was held under the auspices of the Ladies' Association.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Taggart, of this place, have been entertaining their son, James Taggart, of Bound Brook, for a few days.

Frederick Williams, of Newark, has been visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Williams, in this place.

Mrs. H. J. Stilson and daughter, Miss Lillian Stilson, of this place, have been visiting friends in New York.

Michael Pollack fell from a bridge at South Branch a few days ago and was badly cut about the head and face.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest E. Lane, of Pluckemin, have returned from a visit to relatives in Readington.

WESTFIELD.

A. W. Vars, town engineer, and Councilman Wilson have been appointed a committee to confer with the officials of the Central Railroad over the charge for the storm sewer under the railroad at Broad street. The contract was that the work should be done for $750, but when the work was completed the railroad company sent a bill for $1,900.

The officers of the C. & C. Electric Works at Garwood announce that the works will not be closed, but will be devoted entirely to the construction of car motors under the Westinghouse management.

ALL WORN OUT.

This is the time of year for the "all worn out" feeling. You hear it everywhere. "I'm all worn out." Did you ever stop to think what it means? Well, it means just this; 'my liver is dull and not working properly, my stomach is taking too much food which it is'nt digesting properly, I'm all clogged up from being indoors with so little fresh air all winter long, and my body is full of impurities. In consequence I'm dull, half feverish and tired all the time.' That is what 'all worn out' really means. Take a tablespoonful of Cooper's New Discovery three times a day for two weeks and the 'all worn out' feeling will certainly leave.

MR. JOHN BURGER.

Mr. Burger was 'all worn out' once. "For some weeks I suffered from an affection of the stomach that seemed to wear me out completely. My system was run down, my bowels constipated, I had dull headaches and although I was not sick enough to go to bed I did not have ambition to stir around. I read of Cooper's New Discovery and began using it. I am glad to say that two bottles put me on my feet and relieved every symptom of my trouble. It is one of the best system tonics I have ever heard of." John Burger, 1119 Hopkins St., Cincinnati, O.

Mrs. Fred Vail has returned from a visit in Dover.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The local ball team should take a large crowd of rooters with them tomorrow to Crescent Oval, when they meet Clinton Avenue in the second game of the league season. Nothing encourages a ball team more than familiar faces when playing away from home. The locals have a good chance to win if they get the encouragement from home, and put up as good a game as they did last Saturday. The game will be called at 3:30.

The ball team will be out for practice tonight. Manager Frentz will present the same line-up against Clinton Avenue in the game at Crescent Oval tomorrow as last Saturday: Reick, lf; Alberts, c; Baldwin, ss; George Frentz, 2b; A. Jacot, cf; J. Jacot, 1b; Mahaffey, 3b; Schreinbeck, rf; A. Frentz or Hewitt, p.

Alex. Crane, the second hand lumber dealer of Plainfield, who so generously donated the lumber to the baseball club with which to build the bleachers, has again come to the front with an offer to furnish enough lumber to build another stand on the right field side of the diamond.

Miss Mattie Hull, of Westfield avenue, entertained a few friends at an informal social at her home Wednesday night. Music and games were the features of the evening. Refreshments were served.

Mrs. H. C. Smith, of East Second street, Plainfield, spent yesterday with her mother, Mrs. L. B. Coddington, of Park avenue.

The Vincent—Hoar controversy was aired last night before Mayor Babcock in the Borough Council rooms.

The newly organized Twilight baseball team plays Berkeley Heights tomorrow afternoon on the local diamond.

The weekly prayer meeting of the Baptist church will be held tonight in the church parlors.

Mrs. George L. Dunn was the guest of out of town friends yesterday.

—Work was started yesterday on the new addition to Faith chapel, the contracts for which were awarded early in the week.

IMPORTERS · NEWARK'S STORE BEAUTIFUL BROAD, NEW AND HALSEY STREETS · RETAILERS

$7.50 to $10.50 Silk Waists $4.50

One of the best lots of Waists we have ever offered you at a most astonishing price will be ready for Saturday's buyers when the store opens at 8.30. This is a purchase of high class waists, made in the fashionable Marie Antoinette model, and the newest effects in stripes and checks in taffeta of an excellent quality, and in black and white, navy and white, brown and white with trimmings of solid colors; all wanted sizes; waists that should sell at $7.50 to $10.50, marked for Saturday at only

$4.50

$6.50 to $12.50 Girls' Coats $3.50

A big lot of Little Girls' Coats are to be offered you in our popular Misses' Department tomorrow at less than half price.

These coats are for girls of from 4 to 8 years only. They are made of handsome Imported Worsteds in fashionable striped and checked materials as well as of handsome White Serges, Tan Covert Cloths and pretty Imported Mohairs in checked effects. They are nicely made garments, extremely stylish and dressy, and would sell readily in the regular way at from $6.50 to $12.50. Take your choice of the lot tomorrow at only

One of the makers who supplies us with some of our nicest dresses found that he could use up the short pieces of silks he had on hand to advantage by converting them into smart little dresses without expecting the usual manufacturing profit. So you will get these dresses at just about what the silk is worth. See them; then figure how you could make them at home and pay for the materials with the money we ask for the completed suit.

Guimpe, Jumper and Shirtwaist Suits and Princess Dresses

Plain Colors, Stripes and Checks in Black, Navy, Brown Tan and Gray.

Skirts made very full; side-plaited with two bands and box-plaited and cluster-plaited styles; sizes 34 to 44.

In some styles there are only a few of a kind, so first comers will have widest choice. There isn't a dress in either of these two lots that is not a beauty. The styles are entirely new, some of them having been copied by other makers desiring to offer good things to their buyers; but nowhere have equal suits been offered so cheaply.

First lot. Silk Dresses made of excellent silk in black and white, blue and white, brown and white stripes and checks, trimmed with lace; also plain blacks; suits that should sell at $15 to $18.50, will be placed on sale tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock at only

Second lot. Silk Dresses made of plain colored Chiffon Taffeta in black, blue, brown, tan and gray; also checks in blue and white, black and white, wine and white and a few fine stripes, the values running from $22.50 to $25.00. These will be sold at only

$10.50

None of these can be sent out C. O. D. or on approval, and none will be credited.

SHADES AND AWNINGS.

Have given the best of satisfaction because we made them of the very best material obtainable. Send us your order and it will prove likewise. At the same time look over our new stock of Mattings, Rugs, Furniture, Beds, Bedding, etc., etc. The argument won't stand that perhaps you can do as well some other time.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

The National Baseball Commission has decided that player Robert A. Unglaub, of the Boston Americans, is indebted to the Williamsport Tri-State League Club in the sum of $500 advance money and player O. S. Clymer, of the Pittsburg Club, is indebted to the Williamsport Club $65 advance money.

"Lou" Wiltse, of the Johnstown Tri-State League Club, is doing better work and promises to be the club's strongest slab artist this season.

Allen Bacon, of Newton Highlands, Mass., has been elected captain of the Naval Academy baseball nine for the season of 1908, succeeding Fred Van Auken, the present capfain.

The Philadelphia Nationals, under the guidance of "Billy" Murray continues to show improvement and it is not unusual, as heretofore, to hear that they have taken a few games from the leaders.

With no counter attractions there should be a large crowd on Crescent Oval tomorrow, when Clinton Avenue and Scotch Plains will clash for the second time this season. There is every indication that the contest will be a fine one.

Great preparations are being made at Dunellen for the opening league game tomorrow between Dunellen and the Laurels, of Bound Brook. The Laurels having lost one game will make every effort to score a victory.

The North Plainfield High School baseball team has disbanded for the season.

Harney, the Bound Brook twirler, is one of the best in the amateur league and is sure to give opposing teams lots of trouble during the season.

The game scheduled to be played at Elizabeth, Saturday, between the Westfield and Elizabeth Lackawanna League teams, has been transferred to Westfield by request of the Elizabeth management. The line-up for the teams is as follows: Westfield—Barry, 3b; Flynn, 2b; Smith, rf; Mallon, cf; Dietrich, 1b; Alberts, lf; Kennedy, ss; Garvan, c; Ortleb, p. Elizabeth—Dalton, 3b; Worthley, 2b; Driscoll, 1b; Lamar, c; Harter, ss; Bergen, cf; Brogan, lf; Stallings, rf; Archer, p. Persons taking the 3 o'clock express from New York will arrive at Westfield in time for the game.

The Y. M. C. A. team having no league game tomorrow, has arranged to play the Raritans at Perth Amboy.

GOLF.

The events at the Plainfield Country Club tomorrow will include weekly play for the Golf committee and Green committee cups, and a team match with Yale. There will also be the commencement of the East Jersey Lawn Tennis Association championship play on the club's courts.

Decoration Day will be a busy one at the Plainfield Country Club. Besides the regularly scheduled events there will be a number of special competitions and social features will be enjoyed at the clubhouse.

There will be the weekly competition for the President's cup at the Park Golf Club tomorrow and the initial play for the Golf Club and Hydewood Park cups, monthly competitions.

At the Westfield Golf Club tomorrow there will be the qualifying round for the June cup, which was started last Saturday. Other special events will also be a feature of the day.

Stages will be operated between the end of the Arlington avenue trolley line and the Plainfield Country Club tomorrow afternoon and on Decoration Day during the progress of golf and tennis play.

Harry Legg, of the Lawrenceville School, won the title of interscholastic golf champion at Garden City, Wednesday, when he defeated E. M. Wild, of Cranford, by 7 up and 5 to play in the thirty-six hole final round. As a matter of fact nearly all the honors of the tournament were gathered in by the Lawrenceville representatives, as H. C. Jordan, of the same school, won the consolation cup. The only exception to the Lawrenceville string of successes was the winning of the low score prize in the qualifying round by Wild earlier in the week. Experience and physique had much to do with determining the match for the title. Wild is but a slip of a lad and hardly able to bear up under an all day test, especially over a long and trying course like Garden City. He was almost invariably outdriven by the young man, who once won the championship of Minnesota. It was this having to continually play the odd that got Wild pressing. In the final for the consolation cup Jordan defeated C. Buckingham, of the St. Paul School, by 2 up and 1 to play.

SEVEN NURSES GRADUATED

tario; Miss Florence Jadwin, of Carbondale, Pa.; Miss Martha Griggs, of Belle Mead; Miss Ethel Quipp, of Cranford, and Miss Elizabeth Wilson, of this city.

During the evening there were popular selections by Suhr's Imperial orchestra, which furnished the music for the dancing after the programme. An added pleasure was the serving of ice cream, cake and lemonade. The graduating nurses were showered with beautiful flowers and more substantial gifts from their many friends and as Mayor Charles J. Fisk expressed it, it was the purpose of those in charge to give the nurses and their friends one of the best times of their lives. Mr. Cock in referring to the change of holding the exercises said that it was through the kindness of Mayor Fisk and Major Maze Edwards, that the Casino was secured. The graduates have made no deffnite plans for the future, as some of them still have time to serve before completing their course.

FRESH AIR CAMP MEETING.

Miss Curry Addresses Gathering at Mrs. McCutchen's Home.

To interest philanthropic citizens in the work of the Netherwood Fresh Air Camp, Miss Sara Curry, with eight of her little charges, appeared at a parlor meeting held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Chas. W. McCutchen, of Rockview avenue. Rev. E. M. Rodman presided and after prayer introduced Miss Curry with a few words appreciative of her work and the fidelity with which it was prosecuted.

Songs and recitations by the children were followed by a talk from Miss Curry, in which she stated that the object in all the work of the Day Nursery in New York and the Fresh Air Camp at Netherwood was not only to minister to the bodies of the children in her care and the parents who came under her influence, but to lead their souls to Christ. Questions from the audience elicited the interesting facts that more than 44,000 children were cared for last year in the nursery at St. Mark's place, New York, that every evening of the week besides religious meetings, there were classes in cooking for the mothers and instruction in home making for the young girls.

The Camp at Netherwood, Miss Curry said, gave the children of the crowded tenements a chance for health and strength, and to the tired mothers brought incalculable blessings, not only in rest and change but in the christianizing influences about them leading them to desire better things for themselves and families.

Tea was served, and over the teacups, more questions and answers on the interesting subject drew out important facts, such as the mothers are taught to buy judiciously.

The next meeting will be held at the residence of Marion S. Ackerman on Crescent avenue, June 17.

Sunday-school Institute.

The annual institute of the Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union will be held in the First Baptist church, Monday afternoon and evening. Miss Rose Scott, of Newark, a well known Sunday-school worker, will make an address at the afternoon session, and Rev. Forest E. Dagner, of Philadelphia, will speak in the evening on the subject, "Save the Boys." Supper will be served between the afternoon and evening sessions.

Outing Date Changed.

The Timbo Social Club has changed the date of its Annual Outing to Atlantic City from Sunday, June 23 to Sunday, June 16. The other arrangements will remain the same.

OBITUARY.

Frederick E. Keep.

Frederick E. Keep, until Jan. 1, 1907, manager of the Boston office of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, died Monday morning at his late home, 75 Centre street, Brookline, in his sixty-ninth year. He was in Boston as late as Wednesday, and it was not until the evening of that day that he first noticed the symptoms of abdominal inflammation which finally resulted in his death. Mr. Keep was born in Providence, R. I., and was a resident of Plainfield for many years. His wife was Miss Sarah Vermeule, daughter of Manning Vermeule, who kept a hat store on West Front street. Mr. Keep first entered upon a business career with his father in the manufacturing jewelry business at Newark. He later returned to Providence and engaged in the flour and produce business, and was also a member of the city government as one of its common council, serving at the same time as did Senator Nelson W. Aldrich. He served with the Seventh New York Regiment in the Civil War. He went from Plainfield to Boston in 1888 as special agent for the Mutual Life, and later was a member of the firm of Hopkins, Keep & Hopkins, general agents of eastern Massachusetts for the same company. On Jan. 1, 1902, he was appointed manager of the Mutual Life at its Boston agency. Mr. Keep retired from active business Jan 1 last, and at that time was made a life member of the Boston Life Underwriters' Association. He was a member of the Harvard Congregational church of Brookline. He is survived by a widow and one son, Dr. Charles M. Keep.

Luezanner Outlaw.

Luezanner Outlaw, daughter of Percilla and the late Alfred Outlaw, died this morning at the mother's home on Stebbins place. The funeral will be held at the residence Sunday afternoon, at 2.30.

They Were "Tapped."

It was "tap day" at Yale yesterday, and two young men well known in this city were "tapped" for election to exclusive societies. Robert Abbott, of Central avenue, was picked by the Scroll and Key Society, and Lucius Bigelow, 3d, of Brooklyn, a former resident of this city, was picked for the Skull and Bones Society.

Want a Farm at a Bargain?

Nelson Runyon, special master, will sell at public auction Monday, May 27, at 2 p. m., at the Hotel Iroquois, Plainfield, the Cutter Dolbier farm, of about 33 acres, on Terrill road, in Fanwood Township. Here is an opportunity to get a small farm near Plainfield.  5 24 2

Plainfield Legion, No. 1495, N. P. L., received eight applications for membership at its meeting last night. Owing to the unavoidable absence of some officers-elect the installation of officers was postponed until the next meeting.

Early tomorrow morning Neuman Brothers will receive a fresh shipment of delicious Maryland and Norfolk berries. Prices will be low and the fruit extra fine.

Mrs. Arthur T. Gallup, of West Front street, is quite ill at her home.

WILL CONDEMN PUBLIC SCHOOL AT STIRLING.

State Superintendent of Instruction Baxter to Act if Township Refuses to Better Conditions.

Trenton, May 24.—Charles J. Baxter, State superintendent of public instruction, is convinced that prompt action should be taken by the State authorities to compel the furnishing of adequate school facilities in the township of Passaic. Mr. Baxter said his attention had been called to the matter and he had made an inspection of the school which convinced him that the complaints were more than justified. Mr. Baxter added that he had gone over the matter carefully with County Superintendent Watson D. Matthews, and they were both agreed that more adequate accommodations should be insisted upon.

If the residents of the township persist in their refusal to vote the funds necessary to provide proper accommodations for children of school age, Mr. Baxter said he would consider it his duty to authorize the condemnation of the present school building. He added that the school law passed this year and recently signed by the Governor gives the Department of Public Instruction ample authority to deal with such cases.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Epworth League, of the First M. E. church, will hold a business meeting in Vincent chapel, tonight, followed by a social hour.

The Ladies' Aid Society, of the Danish Lutheran church, will hold a fair in the W. C. T. U. rooms, Madison avenue, Monday afternoon and evening.

At the first quarterly conference at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, Wednesday night the pastor's increase in salary was adopted and J. Stephen Higham was elected a trustee.

—Our coffee is guaranteed to be extra high quality and makes a delightful drink. Let us sell you some. Neuman Brothers.

Another Lot from the Same Manufacturer of

Men's High Grade Suits
AT A GREAT SACRIFICE

They were secured from a well-known New York Manufacturer, noted all over the United States for making one of the best lines of men's clothing. These suits are hand-tailored with hand-made buttonholes. Lined with good quality alpaca. Cut on new models. Materials are beautiful shades of fancy worsteds and handsome blue serges. All sizes, 33 to 44. Also plenty of suits for stout men up to 46 size. Without doubt the greatest offer ever made in this city for such clothing. They were made to sell at $15.00 and $18.00, but the backward season brought them to us so low that we can offer them to you for $10.50

YOU FURNISH THE HOUSE

We'll Furnish the Fixin's

If you're a beginner or if you wish to "re-furnish" we'll supply every needed piece of furniture, floor covering or bedding—yes, stoves, pictures, lamps, clocks, shades, and curtains, too! That's not all—we'll ask you the least possible price, yet you're welcome to pay cash down or pay a little at a time! For nearly 50 years we've been fitting out homes this way; the popularity of our house to-day proves how we've succeeded!! Note the week's leaders:

$28 buys any one of the $35 damask covered Parlor Suits, mahogany frames of late design—all are effective.

Every Dept. is complete—plenty of variety of pattern and price!

The Best of Qualities—The Smallest of Prices.

Marshall & Ball Clothing
The Highest Type of Ready-to-Wear.

Have a Spring Suit

For Decoration Day.

There'll be a lot more pleasure derived from your Decoration Day Outing if you feel that you're well attired. And you can't be well attired in a Suit that has done service all Winter nor one that has been laid away since last Spring.

Why not choose a suit today? And if good taste is to govern the selection our showing of garments must appeal to you. The range of fabrics involves a varied series, embracing within its scope weaves and colorings of the highest order, including the popular grays.

Numerous models are shown in all of the most approved forms—radical models with the extreme knacks as well as those of the conservative type.

Any good clothing shop can secure good cloths—that's merely a matter of disposition. But there is a second something which is built into Marshall & Ball Clothing—a superiority that comes from greater tailoring skill in fashioning and finishing. It establishes a standard of clothes excellence that rivals the product of the most exclusive to-order tailor.

Spring Suits, $12. to $35.

1,000 Pairs $4.50 and $5.00 Shoes at $3.15

High-grade footwear, made for a large Western dealer who failed to meet his obligations. We took them. Mostly Oxfords, button, lace and blucher, in patent colt, vici kid, calf and gun metal. All sizes and several different toe shapes. Don't miss getting in on this.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Fresh fruits of all kinds, in season, at Alex. Lusardi's store, West Front street. Only the finest quality in stock.

John Winzenreid, the reliable trucker of Dee place, takes care of all orders promptly. His charges are reasonable.

When you need coal place your order with Boice, Runyon & Co., of Park avenue, and you will get the best at the lowest prices.

Brokaw's creamery on East Front street is the place to purchase cream, milk, eggs and butter, strictly pure and fresh. Prices are reasonable.

To insure the best work and the most artistic effects, give your contract for painting and decorating to J. C. Hansen, East Front street.

A. H. Enander, the sanitary plumber of Watching avenue, has the reputation for doing first-class work. Remember him when you need anything in his line.

Spring and summer goods of every description are offered for sale at "The White Store," and it will save you lots of trouble by trading here instead of in New York. The firm is also showing a handsome line of men's furnishings, laces, embroideries and rugs, as well as household furnishings.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Ida Hacker, of Whitehouse, has been visiting relatives in town for several days.

Dr. F. C. Herbert, of East Second street, has been spending a week at his summer cottage at Manasquan.

Rev. and Mrs. George A. Warner, of Washington avenue, have returned from a visit with relatives in Orange.

Rev. George Mooney, former pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, who has been severely ill, is improving slowly. His son is also recovering from an attack of diphtheria.

GET JUNKMEN, SAY JUDGE.

Advice to Detectives Who Run Down Boys for Stealing Junk.

New Brunswick, May 24.—County Judge Booraem has made a statement to detectives of Middlesex that they would do far better to arrest the junkmen who buy stolen goods from boys than to be continually haling the boys themselves into court. The judge declares that he believes the junkmen encourage the boys to steal, and that if they did not afford so easy a market the youngsters would not be tempted to crime.

Judge Booraem has invariably suspended sentence on boys brought before him for stealing who were first offenders, and has intimated that if the junkmen are brought before him a striking example will be set.

"CENTRAL PARK"

Was—Is—Will Be

IT WAS, only about a year ago, just a pretty farm.

IT IS to day the finest building site in Plainfield, with broad avenues macadamized their entire width, concrete curb, sidewalks, trees, gas, electric light, in fact all improvements. Nearly $100,000 expended in new and handsome dwellings, now ready for the market.

WHAT IT WILL BE we hardly dare predict, with contracts out for even more extensive improvements and twelve more handsome residences.

Central Park is that beautifully situated tract bounded by Park, Prospect, Hillside and Thornton Avenues.

St. Mary's Defeat Stillman Boys.

The St. Mary second team defeated the Stillman Grammar School nine, yesterday afternoon by a score of 9 to 4. It was one of the few defeats suffered by the Grammar School boys this season, but their opponents were too strong for them in every departmentfi The lineup: St. Mary—J. Deady, c; W. Conway, p; Michael Cumisky, 1b; James Deady, 2b; James Casey, ss; C. Conway, 3b; Joseph Carty, rf; John Sullivan, lf; J. Henry, cf. Another for Holy Cross Boys.

The Holy Cross nine defeated the Sophomores of the Plainfield High School yesterday on Cricket Field, by the score of 10 to 5. The Holy Cross boys put up a swift game; they were strong at the bat and active in the field. Runs were made by Conroy 1, Knowlton 1, McClintock 2, Coyle 1, Blazier 2, Bristol 2, Gray 1. For P. H. S., Loizeaus 2, Robins 1, S. Parsons 1, L. Fisher 1. Loizeaux and Abbott were the P. H. S. battery, and fanned ten men. Vail pitched for Holy Cross, striking out 4. McClintock caught.

The team and its friends will leave Plainfield in a stage at 2:30 o'clock. The Mono Field Club will lineup as follows: Moffett, c; Emmons, lf; Conway or Bechtel, 2b; MacLaughlin, 1b; H. Conover, ss; Trotter or Hook, 3b; Randolph, cf; Phillips, rf; G. Conover, p.

SCHOOL EXHIBIT ENDS.

Parents' Meeting Held in the Somerset Street Building.

About five hundred parents and friends attended the exhibit at the Somerset Street School, the borough, yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock, and a like number attended the exhibit at the Watchung School. All seemed to appreciate the efforts of the children, expressing pleasure over their work. The exhibit is considered the most successful one ever held.

In the afternoon at 3 o'clock there was a parents' meeting at the Watchung School. This was largely attended. Supervising Principal H. C. Krebs gave a brief address to the parents in which he particularly attempted to secure in the future the full co-operation of the parents and teachers in school work. The children sang two selections under the leadership of Herbert Lloyd, of Bound Brook, director of music in the borough schools.

Church Boys' Annual Dinner.

In the parish house of the Church of the Holy Cross tomorrow evening at 6:30 o'clock, the annual dinner of the choir boys and Boys' Club will be held. About sixty boys will be guests at the dinner, which will be served by Mrs. Henry Johnson, caterer. The rector, Rev. George A. Warner, will be the toastmaster, and there will be presentations and responses by the boys.

NEW SYSTEM OF BUILDING.

A MARVEL IN THE SCIENCE OF CONSTRUCTION.

A method far in advance of anything formerly used in the preparation of the different parts of a house when erected in sections, making it easy to construct any design of a house, and a very superior house for all seasons, countries and climates at a great reduction in cost.

These houses are constructed principally from the best kiln dried lumber in a factory entirely protected from weather, where best high speed woodworking machines are used for cutting and shaping of every piece, reducing cost for mechanics fully one-half, making a superior house when finished.

Houses or other structures erected under this system make the warmest houses in winter, and the strongest building that can be constructed with any material, the fiercest storm fails to cause any vibration whatever. They are adapted to receive all improvements, plumbing, lighting, heating, etc., when desired.

A new method of lath and plaster is used for interior finish, making a perfect indestructable wall superior to anything ever before used.

P. H. S. FACULTY WON

Defeated the Seniors in Hot Baseball Game by One Run.

DEVELOPED A SYSTEM

Fathers of Learning Played the Game In Their Own Peculiar Way and Got Away With the Decision.

If the pupils of the High School ever had an idea that the faculty was only good for driving helpless youths and maidens to distraction, they learned differently yesterday. The dignified members of the faculty defeated the husky seniors in a ball game that will go down in high school history. Score, 12 to 11.

It was a great struggle. Both sides played with tremendous energy, and the faculty showed its gameness by struggling up from under a load of fourteen errors. The seniors had only seven, but the faculty refused to be kept down and piled up runs in spite of precedent and the dope sheet.

All the buds and sprigs of learning of the high school were there to watch the downfall of the seniors and the corresponding rise of the faculty chest. To the surprise of a small section of the general public that happened along, the faculty had a band of supporters that cheered lustily for the school powers. Seniors who have had a bit of sociological lore bored into them doped that out as a sign of the increasing friendliness between the classes and the octopi. Anyway, the faculty got some cheers and they felt nerved to renewed assaults when the harried seniors turned and smote them.

The faculty deserved to win, because they played a game developed entirely by themselves, on the spur of the moment. There was none of this inside ball the so-called experts talk about, and they displayed a magnificent disregard of rules and precedent. Their style of play had a peculiar look, but in view of the victory it must be regarded as entirely justified.

The faculty not only enlivened the style of play, but they injected a dash of spice and variety into the severity and cold-blooded plainness of the regular baseball uniform. Charles L. Lewis, the instructor in music, was arrayed in velvet tights, long black stockings, slippers, and a fluffy yellow silk waist, with a fluttering collar. The spot where he used to brush his hair was covered with a smart little cap. He carried a bag of peanuts, wrapped in a blue handkerchief to centerfield with him. He ate the nuts with a carefree air that was not shattered by the flies that pelted about him. He stopped one of the flies neatly by tripping over the ball. He winged the ball well, but the propulsive force was not proportionately as great as the arc described by his arm in delivering the spheroid. This statement is not guaranteed; it was handed into the press stand by a senior with spectacles, on.

Superintendent H. M. Maxson, arrayed in bicycle trousers and some other clothes, went into action in left field with a leather gauntlet on each hand. He had heard that ball players used a glove, and argued that two gloves would make a player twice as effective. Maybe it worked that way. The reporters wouldn't look at Dr. Maxson during the game for fear they might have to report the blow-up of his theory.

Instructor Samuel B. Howe played a lovely game at third base, dressed in a uniform and patent-leather shoes. He knelt carefully in front of every ball knocked toward him and didn't lose his patience even when Captain Matthewson, who played at short field, ran into his territory after throws that he could have muffed just as well himself.

Cap. Matthewson justified his leadership of the faculty forces. He played a heady game. He bunched all his errors in two innings, so he had seven whole sessions in which to look scornfully at the rest of the team and say captainish things like "Restrain the ascendant tendencies of our opponents" and "Grasp the sphere firmly." He lost his poise only once, and then, to the regret of his confreres, he allowed an expression as of one about to say "Ding it!" or "Gracious!" to flit across his face.

Lindsey Best, instructor in the exact sciences—whatever they are—showed how to carry his teachings into the ball yard by pitching fifty-seven varieties of scientfic bends and shoots at the senior batters. Seven of them couldn't solve his problems at all, and only six of his offerings were damaged. Charley Loizeaux, the catcher of the P. H. S. nine, was the only pupil in action for the faculty. He was the receiving end of the battery, and doesn't deserve any mention because he insisted on playing the game as it is played by the

HEAVY SENTENCES FOR LUFBURROW INCENDIARIES.

Negroes Who Fired Home of City Physician's Father Sent to State Prison.

Edward B. Westbrook and David Williams, the negroes from Navesink who two weeks ago pleaded guilty to burning the home of Joseph Lufburrow, near Hartshorne's Cove, Navesink Highlands, were sentenced on Thursday by Judge John E. Foster to seven and ten years respectively, in State Prison at hard labor. When arraigned for sentence each attempted to fasten the blame upon the other. Mr. Lufburrow is the father of Dr. C. B. Lufburrow, the city physician, and he has been living with his son here for some time.

Both negroes acknowledged that they were on the premises when the fire was started, but both denied that they applied the match, intimating that they were unwilling participants in the affair. Judge Foster explained to Westbrook that he made his sentence lighter than that of Williams because of his comparative youth and because he was the first to confess his guilt.

The loss of Mr. Lufburrow's home was a heavy one. It was furnished handsomely throughout, but at the time of the fire the family was away. There had been several incendiary fires in that part of the State and the authorities were determined to put a stop to them.

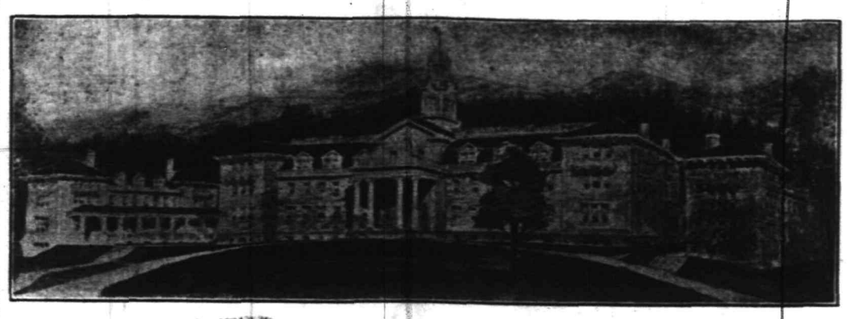
Dr. Rush Rhees in Peace Conference.

Rev. Dr. Rush Rhees, president of Rochester University, was one of the speakers, yesterday, at the session of the Lake Mohank Conference on International Arbitration, who believed in spreading the propoganda of peace by teaching its principals to pupils in the public schools and students of the colleges. Dr. Rhees said the colleges should train their students to analyze issues and to decide them in a spirit of justice. Dr. Rhees is a nephew of Messrs. Charles W. and Samuel St. J. McCutchen, of the borough.

Engagement Announced.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Blackwell, of 32 West 75th street, New York, announce the engagement of their daughter, Alice Birney Blackwell, to Francis Willoughby Frost, son of Mr. and Mrs. George H. Frost, of 745 Watchung avenue.

CORNERSTONE OF MOUNT ST. MARY'S COLLEGE TO BE LAID TOMORROW AFTERNOON



FINE ENTRIES FOR THE WATCHUNG STEEPLECHASE

WEALTHY PITTSBURGER SENDS ON FIVE THOROUGHBRED HORSES.

The entries for the steeplechase meet of the Watchung Hunt Club to be held Decoration Day and June 1, are coming in at a remarkable pace and promises to exceed those of previous years. One of the important competitors will be A. R. Hamilton, a wealthy resident of Pittsburg. Mr. Hamilton will enter five thoroughbred racers. They arrived last night from Pittsburg, making the trip in twelve hours and are now being cared for at the show grounds of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club. It was through Lewis E. Waring, an intimate friend of Mr. Hamilton that the latter was induced to send his horses to Plainfield. He will be the guest of Mr. Waring next week.

The entries for the meet were advertised to close on May 18, but those in charge found that it would be impossible to do so as the entries are being received in such large numbers. It is expected that the complete list will be ready for announcement within a few days.

Health Officer Leon R. Thurlow has prepared an extensive report concerning the investigation of the garbage disposal plant at New Bedford, Mass., and it will be presented to the Common Council at its June meeting. It contains facts and figures as to the probable cost of such a plant, which the Board of Health is trying to secure for this city.

Simple Life Trip.

A day in the hills, spent in the fashion of trappers or hunters, will be enjoyed by a party of Y. M. C. A. boys on Decoration Day. They will start at 10 o'clock in the morning, under the leadership of Office Secretary Wilbur Andrews. Dinner will be eaten at a campfire.

Many Catholic Societies and Prominent Clergy Will Assist in the Ceremony.

PROGRAM IN DETAIL

Bishop McFaul to Preside and Deliver the Address—Sermon By Mgr. John Fox.

Catholic societies, prominent clergy and well known laymen from all the surrounding districts will attend the laying of the cornerstone of Mt. St. Mary's College, which is to be built on the mountainside above the east end of the borough, tomorrow afternoon. The event will be observed as one of the most important in Catholic circles in this vicinity, for many years.

The order of exercises will be as follows: Venite Creator, blessing of the stone, by Bishop McFaul; hymn, by Children of Mary; sermon, by Mgr. John Fox, of Trenton; hymn, Knights of Columbus; Te Deum, blessing of the people and address, by Bishop McFaul. Two orchestras will play.

A very large attendance is expected at the ceremonies. Church societies from all about this city are expected to join with the local organizations in swelling the crowd. High dignitaries of the church will take part in the exercises, and prominent men will attend. The ceremonies will begin at 3:30 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made with the Public Service Company for running special cars between Watchung avenue and Terrill road and between Elizabeth and that point for the accommodation of those wishing to attend the ceremony. The cars will be run from the Watchung avenue trolley station between 2:30 and 3:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

GOOD GOVERNMENT CLUB PLANS AN ENTERTAINMENT.

South Plainfield Organization Will Entertain Next Wednesday Night.

An entertainment and dance will be given by the Good Government Club, of South Plainfield, Wednesday night, May 29, in Washington Hall, that place. "The Straw Man," a farce, will be presented. There will also be a minstrel show, to be given by T. A. Linaberry, Alfred Springer, William Hamilton, Edwin Springer and J. S. Linaberry, Jr. Comic old English songs will be given by George May and there will be vocal selections by John Voorhees Todd.

The farce will be given entirely by local talent, the cast being as follows:

"Rita Richards," a live girl, Mrs. Charles Jackson; "Florence Clayton," her guest, Mrs. T. A. Linaberry; "Gaston Morell," engaged to Rita, J. S. Linaberry, Jr.; "Tom Tracey," a guest of Rita, Charles Jackson; "Dennis," the gardener, Robin Horn. Dancing will follow the entertainment and Prof. Guttman, of Perth Amboy, will furnish the music.

"Twelfth Night" by Students.

Admirers of Shakespeare will have an opportunity to witness "Twelfth Night," which will be presented by the Senior class of the Plainfield High School on Wednesday, May 29, at the Casino. The progress that is being made by the daily rehearsals under the coaching of Miss Elizabeth Goddard speaks favorably for the success of the play. The high standard of the play, together with the careful training of the cast, the characters of which are exceptionally well taken, insures a wholesome, thoroughly enjoyable entertainment.

Will Try the Simple Life.

John P. Hall, who has been one of the obliging staff at Timbo's "Congressional" cafe for six years, has tendered his resignation to take effect next week. He will spend the summer camping on Halsey Island, Lake Hopatcong.

—It takes a good cup of coffee to start the day right. Try Neuman Bros.' Mocha and Java or Old Government Java and see if they do not please you.

IMPROVEMENTS PLANNED FOR LOCAL PLAYHOUSE

INTERIOR WILL UNDERGO A GREAT CHANGE DURING THE SUMMER.

Following the close of the moving picture engagement at the New Plainfield theatre, Manager Counihan has decided to turn the playhouse over to furnishers and decorators and when the third season opens it will present an entirely different appearance. Improvements will be added in every part of the building in order to carry out the owner's determination to provide local people with a theatre second to none in the State.

The auditorium proper will undergo considerable changing, all tending to add to the comfort of patrons and please the eye. The orchestra floor is to be newly carpeted with heavy Brussels, electric chandeliers will be placed at the stair posts leading to the balcony and brass railings will be added. New draperies have been planned for the boxes and several more panelings will be placed by a well known artist. A handsome electric chandelier will add to the illumination in the lobby and rows of electric lights will be placed under the present sign outside.

For the stage, Manager Counihan has secured entirely new sets of scenery and a handsome new drop curtain, all treated chemically to make them absolutely fire-proof. He has also purchased new stage fire-fighting apparatus, such as several of the leading New York managers have placed in their houses. This paraphernalia includes "scenery hooks" by means of which any piece of canvas that chance to ignite may be jerked from position to the stage floor.

A new high pressure boiler will be provided for heating purposes and in other ways the present house equipment will lose its identity and appear in another form next season.

"Phil" Smith Leaves Elizabeth.

Another sign that the Elizabeth Atlantic League Club is in the last stages was seen yesterday, when "Phil." Smith severed his connection with the team. Of course, "Phil." was not the whole team and unfortunately his throwing arm was in poor condition for awhile, but is all right now. There have been rumors that the club has been running behind, that the team has failed to draw at home and in consequence, it is said, that the treasury is low. "Phil." says that the club is indebted to him about $75 and he thought it was time to quit. He has several offers and it is possible that he may join the West Ends, of Somerville. If not, there is an opening for him with one or two of the clubs in the Lackawanna League.

Will Hold a Dime Social.

The "Jubilee Committee," from the Women's Relief Corps, of which Mrs. Sadie E. Baglin is the chairman, has appointed Miss May Smith secretary and Mrs. Sarah Mattox treasurer. It has been decided to hold a dime social in G. A. R. Hall, June 12, for the benefit of the jubilee fund being raised by the National Women's Relief Corps in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the organization which occurs this year.

Popek Charged With Assault.

Vincent Popek, arrested on a charge of assault preferred by Lawrence Mallinson, was arrigned in the city court this morning. Mallinson accuses Popek of chasing him, his wife and their infant child out of the house with threats of assault. Popek owns the house. The case was laid over for a week. Popek has retained Walter L. Hetfield, Sr., to defend him.

Views Around the World.

State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman has consented to show the pupils and friends of the Hartridge School the beautiful stereopticon views of various interesting places visited by him on his tour around the world. The lecture will be given at the Casino, Wednesday afternoon, May 29.

—John Auten gave up his position as clerk at the Hotel Kensington, yesterday. He will probably take a position in New York.

MAYFLOWER DESCENDANTS HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

LEANDER N. LOVELL, OF THIS CITY, ELECTED GOVERNOR.

Plainfield was well represented at the annual meeting of the New Jersey Society of Mayflower Descendants, held yesterday afternoon at the Women's Club, East Orange, which was followed by a banquet. The gathering was made up of many prominent men and women of the State, representing patriotic societies, and in the election of officers Leander N. Lovell, of this city, was made governor.

The music room had been prettily arranged for the function and seated about small tables, the members enjoyed an excellent menu and much oratory and a musical programme. Rev. Dr. F. Landon Humphreys, of Morristown, canon of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York, offered grace, and the retiring president, Colonel Mason W. Tyler, of this city, delivered a formal address, in which he welcomed the guests.

In the choice of officers beside Mr. Lovell, the selections were as follows: Deputy governor, Alden Freeman, East Orange; captain, Benjamin Shepard, East Orange; elder, Rev. Dr. Charles Augustus Brewster, Vineland; secretary, Mrs. Herbert Turrell, West Orange; treasurer, Elijah Thompson Farnham, Elizabeth; historian, William George Wright, Plainfield; surgeon, Dr. William Gray Schauffler, Lakewood; board of assistants, William M. Stillman, Dr. Leonard Waldo, William S. Tyler, Edward H. Ladd, Jr., and Boardman Wright, Plainfield; Charles A. Greene, Summit, and Edmund Le Breton Gardner, Ridgewood.

The musical programme was in charge of Signor Arturo Nutini. Hamilton W. Mabie, of "The Outlook," gave an address on the responsibilities of the descendants of the founders of the republic and their work in the present generation. Rev. Warren Giles, of Summit, spoke in a humorous vein, and Mrs. Turrell gave an interesting talk on her work instructing children who "come in the modern Mayflower" regarding the history and institutions of the first immigrants. Three recitations were given by Mrs. Sarah Wiley King Drummond from her book, "Alcestos." Patriotic numbers on the piano by Signor Nutini concluded the programme.

MOVING PICTURES POPULAR.

"Continuous" Performances at New Plainfield Theatre Well Attended.

The "continuous" style of moving pictures and illustrated songs which Manager Counihan has inaugurated at the New Plainfield theatre has already proven popular with the local people and large audiences have been the result. The programme is opened in the afternoon at 1.30 and closes at 4.30; in the evening at 7.30 and ends at 10.30. Yesterday and last night several of Mr. Shepard's best films were shown. "The Indian's Revenge" proving a very acceptable one.

Today the pictures will be changed and new illustrated songs will be sung by James Montgomery.

Funeral of Mrs. Leonard Dennick.

The funeral of Mrs. Leonard Dennick, who died Tuesday night, was held yesterday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock at her late residence on West Third street, near Rock avenue. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and many floral tributes. Rev. Mr. Short, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, officiated. The interment was in Hillside cemetery and the pall-bearers were four sons and two sons-in-law, Samuel Dennick, Jacob Dennick, William Dennick, George Dennick, William Lyons and Joseph Chapot.

Walter Rittenhouse to Marry.

The approaching marriage of Walter B. Rittenhouse, son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Rittenhouse, of Sandford avenue, is announced. The wedding will take place at Canon City, Colo., June 5th, the bride elect being Miss Lois Leona Rogers, of that city. Mr. Rittenhouse (M.E.) is a graduate of Stevens' School of Technology, and is now superintendent of the Hydraulic & Electric Power Plant of the Great Northern Power Co., of Duluth, Minn., located on the St. Louis River, near Fond-du-Lac, Minn.

Horse Show Tickets Here.

The tickets for the reserved seats, private boxes and parking spaces for the forthcoming horse show of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club, June 6, 7 and 8, have arrived at the Casino and are in charge of Major Maze Edwards, to whom all applications should be made. Already a large number of seats, boxes and parking spaces have been spoken for and those desiring them should apply as early as possible.

MEMORIAL DAY PROGRAM

Local Grand Army Veterans will Fittingly Honor Their Soldier Dead.

PARADE AND EXERCISES

Details From Winfield Scott Post Will Visit City Schools Wednesday Morning.

Dr. J. F. Berg, commander of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., issued the official program today for the observance of Memorial Day. The Post will assemble at headquarters tomorrow night, at 6.45 o'clock, in full uniform with white gloves and cane, to attend divine services in the Presbyterian church, Westfield. The members of the Post and the Women's Relief Corps will make the trip by special trolley.

The regular encampment of the Post will be held Tuesday night and a full attendance is requested. Wednesday morning the veterans will again meet at headquarters at 7.30 o'clock, in full uniform to attend memorial exercises in the public schools of the city and borough. The details to each school are as follows:

Plainfield High School, 8.30 o'clock, L. V. F. Randolph; North Plainfield High School, 12 o'clock noon, L. V. F. Randolph; Parochial School, 2.30 o'clock, W. C. Smith; Washington School, 2 o'clock, T. O. Doane; Bryant School, 1.45 o'clock, Captain William Hand; Franklin School, 9.15 o'clock, J. N. Bogart; Irving School, 10 o'clock, Stillman School, 11 o'clock, Whittier School, 1 o'clock noon, M. C. Dobbins; Watchung School, North Plainfield, 1.30 o'clock, W. W. Coriell; Scotch Plains School, W. D. Johnson.

Captain William Hand has been appointed marshal for the day and will have charge of the parade which will form on East Front street, right resting on Watchung avenue ready to move at 10 o'clock Decoration Day morning. The line will then proceed as follows: Watchung avenue to Chatham street to North Plainfield cemetery, Chatham street to Somerset street to Plainfield avenue to Evergreen cemetery, Fifth street to Park avenue to Front street to headquarters and dismiss.

Previous to the parade details will visit the cemeteries and decorate the graves of dead soldiers as follows: New Market and Samptown, John Wagner and Firman Gise; South Plainfield, R. Manning; North Plainfield, W. C. Smith; Hillside, H. C. Smith; Scotch Plains, W. D. Johnson; Westfield, S. W. Reese; Friends and Catholic, John Finley; Evergreen, N. C. Pennington; Washingtonville, J. W. Coddington. Flowers, flags and markers will be furnished at headquarters.

Co. K will also have part in the parade, as usual, and the Liberty Band, of Plainfield, will furnish the music for the march and at the exercises to be held at Reform Hall at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, will be the orator of the day, and in addition there will be the customary exercises, including musical selections, honoring the unknown dead, the reading of Memorial Day orders from National Headquarters and Lincoln's address at Gettsburg. A chorus of children will also sing under the direction of the Women's Relief Corps, who will afterward entertain the children in the basement of the hall. The women will also have charge of the arrangement of the flowers for decorating the graves and Reform Hall.

Home Mission Society Elects.

The officers elected at the annual meeting of the auxiliaries of the Women's Home Missionary Society of the Elizabeth District, Newark Conference, at Roselle on Wednesday, are as follows: President, Miss Helen B. Carlton, Elizabeth; vice presidents, Mrs. N. A. Miller, Plainfield; Mrs. M. Winter, Plainfield, and Miss Effa Ham, Cranford; treasurer, Mrs. E. W. Bloom, Frenchtown; corresponding secretary, Miss Weeks, Westfield; recording secretary, Mrs. E. C. Dutcher, Dunellen; secretary of literature, Miss Karr, of Bound Brook; secretary of miteboxes, Mrs. J. C. Pierson, Plainfield.

"The Baby's Cry."

Dr. N. H. Probasco delivered an interesting address before the Alumnae Association of the Muhlenberg Hospital Training School for Nurses, this week, on the subject of the "Baby's Cry." He explained some of the meanings of an infant's cry and what a nurse should do under certain circumstances.

Decoration Day Outing.

In making your plans for Decoration Day just remember that the Plainfield Grocers' Association will run its annual excursion to Coney Island that day. It will afford a fine opportunity for a full day's pleasure.

Diabetes and finally Bright's disease.

Don't take this course. Follow the advice of a Plainfield citizen.

G. R. Leland, of 423 West Second street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I suffered as much as any person on earth from severe backache, pains in my head and limbs, occasional dizzy spells, sensation of all goneness and a general loss of ambition and strength. I doctored but none of the medicines I used seemed to benefit me. On being advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills I did so, and am glad to say that I met with most satisfactory success, as they drove away all my aches and pains and made me feel like a new man. I can but recommend Doan's Kidney Pills highly and also willingly."

The Judge Uses Forceful Language.

Judge W. B. Simmons, of Fincastle, Va., told the reporter that L. & M. Paint was used on his residence in 1882, and held its color well for 21 years; he furthermore said that 3 years ago he was induced to use another paint and is sorry he did, because the other paint didn't make good. The Judge will now always use L. & M., because he knows if any defect exists in L. & M. Paint the house will be repainted for nothing.

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

For the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with Permanent and Durable Macadam Pavement, and to Provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the following streets and parts of streets of the City of Plainfield, shall be permanently improved with durable macadam pavement to be completely laid and constructed on or before the thirtieth day of September, A. D. 1907, said macadam pavement to be of the depth and width hereinafter specified, and to be in every respect equal to the macadamizing on Carlton Avenue, between Watchung and Putnam Avenues, in said city, and all work to be given out upon contract to the lowest responsible bidder, and only after bids therefor shall have been solicited and received according to law, all bids to specify prices for each of said streets or parts of streets separately:

Randolph Road, from the center line of Arlington Avenue to the bridge over Cedar Brook;

Cottage Place, from the northeasterly curb line of Washington Street to the southwesterly curb line of Richmond Street;

Park Lane, from the easterly curb line of Woodland Avenue to the westerly curb line of Belvidere Avenue;

Elmwood Place, from the southeasterly curb line of West Front Street to the northwesterly curb line of West Second Street;

College Place, from the southeasterly curb line of West Eighth Street to the northwesterly crosswalk at West Ninth Street;

Denmark Road, from the present macadam on Berkley Avenue, southeasterly 381 feet;

Sycamore Street, from the southeasterly curb line of East Fourth Street to the northwesterly curb line of East Fifth Street;

Sec. 2. That said streets and portions of streets described in Section 1 shall be macadamized for the width and depth hereinafter set forth, and the macadamizing preparation shall be laid down to the grades already established by ordinance for said streets or portions of streets, respectively:

West Second Street, 76 feet wide.
Randolph Road, 16 feet wide.
Arlington Place, 16 feet wide.
Cottage Place, 16 feet wide.
Park Lane, 18 feet wide.
Elmwood Place, 22 feet wide.
College Place, 24 feet wide.
Denmark Road, 22 feet wide.
Sycamore Street, 32 feet wide.
Hillside Avenue, 28 feet wide.
West End Avenue, 32 feet wide.

All to be of a depth running from six inches in the center to four inches at the sides, excepting West Second Street, which shall be three inches in depth on present foundation, and Denmark Road which shall have a ballast foundation six inches in depth and a wearing surface of trap rock, four inches in depth. On Hillside Avenue, Denmark Road and West End Avenue the gutters shall be paved with rough stone or slag for a width of four feet on each side of said streets.

Sec. 3. That for the purpose of obtaining money by the sale of bonds hereinafter specified for the permanent improvement of said streets and parts of streets as aforesaid, in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits, the Common Council of the City do hereby, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, authorize the issuing of nine registered municipal bonds of the City of Plainfield, of One Thousand Dollars each, amounting in all to Nine Thousand Dollars, which bonds shall bear interest at the rate of five per centum per annum, payable semi-annually and be payable three years from said date of issue with the option of the city to redeem or pay off the said bonds, or any one or more of them at any time after one year from date of issue, and before three years from said date of issue, on giving personal notice to the said holders of said bonds or thirty days' notice by advertisement in the official newspapers of the City, of the intention to make such redemption or payment, which bonds may severally or collectively be sold for an amount not less than par value, and the interest on said bonds shall be raised annually by taxation and the principal be paid by the City at maturity, and the money derived from the assessments upon the property benefited, shall, when collected, be held as a fund toward the payment of said bonds.

Sec. 4. That after said improvements shall have been completed, the Common Council shall, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, apply to the Court of Common Pleas of the County of Union for the appointment of Commissioners to estimate and assess benefits upon the owners of the lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, in proportion, as near as may be, to an amount equal to the amount of benefits actually acquired by the lands and real estate bordering on said streets or portions thereof respectively, by reason of such improvements respectively; and in case the costs and expenses aforesaid shall exceed the amount of said benefits, the excess thereof shall be paid by the City at large and raised by general tax; no property or owner thereof to be in any case assessed beyond the amount of benefit actually derived from said improvements.

Adopted by the Common Council May 15, 1907; approved by the Mayor May 16, 1907.

CHARLES J. FISK, Mayor.

AN ORDINANCE

To Provide Separate Sewers Or Drains To Carry Off the Surface Water in a Portion of Plainfield Avenue.

WHEREAS, The city finds it necessary, and the Common Council hereby so determines, to provide separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in a portion of Plainfield Avenue hereinafter specified, and the water flowing into the brook near the city line, through said portion of said street, and the Common Council has determined, and doth hereby determine that the public good requires the construction of the sewers or drains hereinafter specified.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that separate sewers or drains to carry off the surface water in said portion of Plainfield Avenue and the water flowing into the brook near the city line, as aforesaid, be constructed in and for said City of Plainfield in Plainfield Avenue from Randolph Road to the brook near the city line, as shown for said portion of Plainfield Avenue on a map on file with the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield, entitled "Map for Separate Sewers or Drains to Carry Off the Surface Water in a Portion of Plainfield Avenue, City of Plainfield, N. J., March, 1907," made by Andrew J. Gavett, City Surveyor (to which map reference is hereby made and the same made a part hereof) said separate sewers or drains to be constructed on said portion of Plainfield Avenue between the above mentioned points, as shown on said map, with the necessary manholes and appurtenances to complete the same, and to be of the dimensions and materials, and to be laid along such lines and at such grades and in such manner as indicated and specified on said map.

Sec. 2. That the costs and expenses to be incurred under this ordinance shall be paid with money to be raised by taxation (by general tax for street improvements) pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, as other moneys are raised in said city.

Adopted by the Common Council May 15, 1907; approved by the Mayor May 16, 1907.

CHARLES J. FISK, Mayor.

AN ORDINANCE

To Provide for the Further Issue of Sewer Bonds Under Chapter CXXXI of the Laws of 1890 and Acts Amendatory Thereof and Supplemental Thereto:

Whereas the difference between the costs and expenses of the construction of that portion of the system of sewerage in the City of Plainfield not covered by sewer bonds heretofore issued, and not including improvements concerning which there was no assessment for benefits or the sum of Two Thousand Seventy Dollars and Seventy-three Cents ($2,070.73) of interest paid by general tax, under and by virtue of the Act of the Legislature entitled "An Act to provide for drainage and sewerage in cities of this State," Approved April 7, 1890, and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, including all incidental expenses, and the amount of the assessment for benefits has been ascertained and determined by the Common Council, and the Common Council doth hereby ascertain and determine the same to be the sum of Nine Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($9,500); and

Whereas the Common Council hath ascertained and determined, and doth hereby ascertain and determine that the whole amount of the costs, damages and expenses of making and constructing the improvement of sewage disposal works, beds and appurtenances under and by virtue of said Acts of the Legislature and the Ordinance entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the improvement of sewage disposal works, beds and appurtenances of the City of Plainfield," approved August 8, 1905, including all incidental expenses, to be the sum of Fifty-eight Thousand Five Hundred Dollars, and the said improvement is such that under the statute in such case made and provided there can be no assessment for benefits to pay the cost thereof, but the whole cost thereof is required to be paid by the City, and the said statute further provides that to defray the costs and expenses thereof, the registered or coupon bonds of the City may be issued; and

Whereas the Common Council desires to issue the coupon bonds of the City to the amount of said sum of Nine Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($9,500) to provide for the said difference between the cost and expenses of said improvement, including all incidental expenses and the amount of the assessment for benefits as aforesaid, the said bonds to be used (1) to discharge the notes or temporary obligations of the City issued under said acts of the Legislature so far as they exceed in amount the assessments for benefits, and (2) to satisfy and discharge whatever may remain due on the cost and expenses of the work; and to issue the coupon bonds of the city to the amount of Fifty-eight Thousand Five Hundred Dollars ($58,500) to defray the costs and expenses of the improvement concerning which there was no assessment for benefits as aforesaid, the whole amount of the coupon bonds which it desires to issue as aforesaid, being the sum of Sixty-eight Thousand Dollars, all as provided in said Acts of the Legislature; and,

Whereas the Common Council by resolution adopted April 9th, 1907, did authorize the issue of bonds and coupons in the premises in the form annexed to said resolution, which said resolution together with the forms therein referred to are on file in the office of the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield and are hereby referred to for greater certainty.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield by their Common Council do enact as follows:

Section 1. That pursuant to the statutes in such case made and provided and in accordance with said resolution of the Common Council adopted April 9th, 1907, there be issued in the form annexed to said resolution on file in the City Clerk's office coupon bonds of the city to the said amount of Sixty-eight Thousand Dollars ($68,000), the said bonds to be used for the purposes aforesaid, and the said bonds to be in denominations of One Thousand Dollars ($1,000) each, to bear date the first day of May, nineteen hundred and seven, and to be payable as follows: May first, nineteen hundred and eight, two bonds of one thousand dollars each, and on the first days of May in each and every year thereafter, down to and incuding May first, nineteen hundred and forty-one, two bonds of one thousand dollars each, said bonds to bear interest at the rate of four and one-half per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, and the semi-annual coupons to be annexed to said bonds to be for the sum of Twenty-two Dollars and Fifty Cents ($22.50) each, and said bonds and coupons respectively to be in the form annexed to said resolution, the said bonds all to be impressed with the corporate seal of the City, and to be signed by the Mayor and attested by the City Clerk, and the coupons to bear the engraved or lithographed fac-simile of the signature of the City Clerk.

Adopted by the Common Council May 15, 1907; approved by the Mayor May 16, 1907.

Notice is hereby given that an Ordinance, entitled "An Ordinance for the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield with Permanent and Durable Brick Pavement, and to Provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits," a copy of which is subjoined to this notice, has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time, and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt such ordinance at the regular meeting of the Common Council to be held in the Council Chamber, No. 149 North Avenue, in the City of Plainfield, N. J., at eight o'clock p. m., on Monday, the third day of June A. D. Nineteen Hundred and Seven, at which time and place prior to the adoption of said ordinance, said ordinance will be considered by the Common Council with reference to the proposed ordinance.

By order of the Common Council.
J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., May 15, 1907.

AN ORDINANCE

For the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield with Permanent and Durable Brick Pavement, and to Provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the following streets and parts of streets of the City of Plainfield, shall be permanently improved with durable vitrified brick pavement on concrete foundation with sand cushion and with necessary surface drains and underdrains, to be completely laid and constructed on or before the thirtieth day of November, A. D. 1907, said brick pavement and foundation and sand cushion respectively to be of the depth and width hereinafter specified and to be in every respect equal to the brick pavement on Watchung Avenue in said city, and all work to be given out upon contract to the lowest responsible bidder, and only after bids therefor shall have been solicited and received according to law, all bids to specify prices for each of said streets or parts of streets separately and to offer to contract to perform all the work and furnish all the materials for the paving of one or more or all of said streets or parts of streets:

Somerset Street, from the northerly side line of Front Street to the bridge over Green Brook;

Watchung Avenue, from the southerly side line of East Front Street to the southerly side line of East Fourth Street, exclusive of the portion of said Watchung Avenue already provided with brick pavement;

Sec. 2. That said streets and portions of streets described in Section 1 shall be paved for the entire width between the curb lines of said streets respectively for a depth of not less than 10¼ inches, that is to say, 5 inches concrete, 1½ inches sand and not less than 3¾ inches brick, said pavement to be extended to the side lines of said streets at each intersecting street, and shall be laid down to the grades already established by ordinance for said streets or portions of streets respectively.

Sec. 3. That for the purpose of obtaining money by the sale of bonds hereinafter specified for the permanent improvement of said streets and parts of streets as aforesaid, in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits, the Common Council of the city do hereby, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, authorize the issuing of forty-seven coupon municipal bonds of the City of Plainfield, of One Thousand Dollars each, amounting in all to Forty-seven Thousand Dollars, which bonds shall bear interest at the rate of four and one-half per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, and be payable as follows, that is to say on the first day of September of the year 1910, two bonds of $1,000 each and on the first day of September of each and every year from 1911 to 1925 both inclusive, three bonds of $1,000 each, which bonds may severally or collectively be sold for an amount not less than par value, and there shall be raised by tax in each year hereafter such sum of money as may be necessary to pay the interest on all outstanding bonds and the principal of such bonds as may mature during that year, and the money derived from the assessments upon the property benefited shall, when collected, be held as a fund toward the payment of said bonds.

Sec. 4. That after said improvements shall have been completed, the Common Council shall, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, apply to the Court of Common Pleas of the County of Union for the appointment of Commissioners to estimate and assess benefits upon the owners of the lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, in proportion, as near as may be, to an amount equal to the amount of benefits actually acquired by the lands and real estate bordering on said streets or portions thereof respectively, by reason of such improvements respectively; and in case the costs and expenses aforesaid shall exceed the amount of said benefits, the excess thereof shall be paid by the City at large and raised by general tax; no property or owner thereof to be in any case assessed beyond the amount of benefit actually derived from said improvements.

Corporation Notice.

Notice is hereby given that the following Ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.
Plainfield, N. J., May 15, 1907.

AN ORDINANCE

To Provide for the Construction of a Further Addition to the System of Sewerage Already Constructed in the City of Plainfield.

WHEREAS, There has been constructed in said city a system of sewerage and such action in relation thereto has from time to time been taken as is set forth in the preamble to the ordinance of said city entitled "An Ordinance to provide for the construction of an addition to the system of sewerage already constructed in the city of Plainfield," approved November 6, 1895, to which preamble reference is hereby made for greater certainty; and

WHEREAS, In the option of the Common Council the public good requires that a further addition, as herein described, to the system of sewerage already constructed, should be now constructed in and for said city under the provisions of the Act in said preamble referred to, and the Common Council has so determined and does hereby so determine; therefore,

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the Common Council doth hereby direct and order that a further addition to the system of sewerage already constructed under said Act and acts amendatory thereof and supplemental thereto, be constructed in and for said city under the provisions of the Act of the Legislature above referred to, with all the appurtenances necessary to complete the same, and of such dimensions and material and according to such plan as the said Common Council may hereafter direct, in and through the following described streets, avenues, property, lands and rights of way described, mentioned and referred to in this ordinance, to wit:

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

The Elizabeth Atlantic League club still continues to lose games and is now in fifth position in the race with seven defeats and six victories. Reading leads with ten victories and three defeats.

With favorable weather there should be a large crowd at Crescent Oval this afternoon when Scotch Plains and Clinton Avenue will again try conclusions. It will be a good test as there are no counter attractions.

The New York Giants and the Elizabethport Stars will meet at the Port grounds tomorrow afternoon. McGraw has promised to present his regular lineup and if necessary use six pitchers to win.

Billie Ross, of Trenton, has been secured to cover first base for the Elizabethport Stars on Sundays for the rest of the season. Manager Burke also hopes to sign three Tri-State League players soon

Nothing short of a regiment of National Guardsmen could have stopped the Chicago Cubs in their game against the Giants on Thursday, when McGraw used six pitchers, his entire staff. The Cubs left a bad opinion behind them when they departed for Boston.

Gilman hopes to be able to be in the game for Clinton Avenue today against Scotch Plains. He is a fine player, both in the field and with the bat.

Sandford will probably get another try-out today with Dunellen in the opening game against the Laurels, of Bound Brook. A week ago he showed up well in the box.

Amateur baseball is having full swing in Plainfield now after the semi-professional variety was given every opportunity. As yet the present kind of ball has not aroused great enthusiasm, but then the weather may be responsible.

Keep your eyes on the Philadelphia Nationals. When the Quakertown ball tossers can take three games from Pittsburg they are going some. Manager Murray is much pleased with the showing of his aggregation.

Wet grounds in Chicago on Thursday prevented the New York Americans from losing another game. The Highlanders have lost within two or three games as many as they have won this season.

GOLF.

James A. Stillman, Garden City, defeated Frank C. Talmadge, of the Plainfield Country Club, in the first round championship play of the Metropolitan Golf Association on Thursday. The score was 2 up and 1 to play.

The crack golf team from Yale will visit the Plainfield Country Club today and try to defeat the local team. Robert Abbott will probably play with Yale.

The women golf players in the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association are showing unusual interest in the game this season and it is predicted that it will be by far the most successful on record. The scores also show great improvement.

Miss Julia Mix and Miss Georgiana Bishop are just now holding the attention of women golfers. They have been playing in almost mid-season form, while many other women competitors have been doing remarkable work on the links.

Play for the Golf committee and Green committee cups and consolations cups, together with a team match with Yale will be the attractions at the Plainfield Country Club this afternoon.

In addition to the events on the golf course and tennis courts there will be social features at the Plainfield Country Club this afternoon and tonight. Lunches and dinners will be served to a great many parties.

There will be the initial play for two monthly cups and the weekly competition for the President's cup at the Park Golf Club, this afternoon.

The finalists in the Irish women's championship at Dollymount were both from Dublin, an unusual circumstance. Mrs. Gerald Fitzgibbon, the most successful Dublin player, beat out Miss V. Hezlet and Miss J. Magill, the latter having previously defeated Miss M. Dickson and Miss May Hezlet, while Miss F. Walker Leigh, in the lower half of the draw, had an easy road to the final. Miss Leigh won the championship without meeting a single northern player. Mrs. Fitzgibbon is a Canadian, and golfed there with some distinction before going to Ireland. She is a daughter-in-law of Lord Justice Fitzgibbon.

(Other sporting news on page eight).

Mrs. A. C. McCrea will lead the Epworth League meeting of the First M. E. church in Vincent chapel tomorrow night, previous to the preaching service.

PROTECTS TRUST FUNDS.

One of the most valuable of the Senate bills which Governor Stoke's pen has made a law was introduced by Senator E. R. Ackerman, of this city. It was bill 319, and defines the securities in which executors, trustees, guardians and administrators may invest trust funds without an order of the court.

The bill practically combines the present Orphans' Court provisions with the savings bank provisions. The savings bank laws are the result of the care and thought of those having the complete protection of the depositors in view, and it therefore appears that the application of the same to executors, etc., is perfectly wise and proper.

These are the securities in which, under this law, trust funds may be invested without the order of the court:

1—United States bonds.

2—In bonds interest-bearing notes or obligations of this State.

3—In bonds of any State of the Union which has not defaulted in payment for ten years prior to investment.

4—In bonds or interest-bearing notes of any county, city, town, township, borough, village or public school district of New Jersey issued according to law, providing the indebtedness does not exceed in the total 15 per cent. of the assessed valuation; or of the cities of New York and Philadelphia.

5—In first mortgage bonds of any railroad which has paid dividends of four per cent on its entire capital stock for a period of five years prior to the investment.

6—In bonds secured by first mortgage on real estate, provided such loan does not exceed 60 per cent of its estimated worth, covered by such mortgage.

It also provides that the rate of interest on the named securities shall not be less than three per cent nor more than 6 per cent per annum, but the act shall not apply when deed of trust or last will and testament specially directs "what securities the trust funds shall be invested."

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Junior Society of the Congregational church held a rehearsal yesterday for the May-pole entertainment to be given on the church lawn Tuesday afternoon.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church met last night and continued its study of "State and Provincial Missions," in the "Conquest Missionary Course."

The Junior Epworth League of the First M. E. church will hold a cake sale in Vincent chapel, Saturday afternoon, June 1, at 3 o'clock, for the benefit of the fresh air work in Plainfield.

Sunday night, June 2, the Westfield Presbyterian church choir will unite with the choir at the First M. E. church in singing the cantata, "Jairus Daughter." J. Edmund Skiff will direct.

Marion Lawrence, general secretary of the National Sunday-school Association, will visit the Sunday-school of the Park Avenue Baptist church shortly and make an address. He is a speaker of national repute.

In the interests of the Netherwood Fresh Air Home a meeting will be held at the First Baptist church tomorrow night. Miss Sara Curry and several children from the Home will be present to speak and sing. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss and Rev. E. M. Rodman will also speak, and the music will be by the church choir.

The Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union will meet at the Y. M. C. A. building Monday night. George E. Hall will speak on the topic, "Making Review Sunday Interesting." J. MacClymont will teach the following Sunday's lesson, "Moses Called to Deliver Israel," and Mr. Neilson will conduct the devotional exercises.

Want a Farm at a Bargain?

The sixtieth anniversary of St. Mary's R. C. church, Stony Hill, will be observed tomorrow. Father Schwarz, the rector, has arranged an impressive programme for the day's celebration. Rt. Rev. Bishop James A. McFaul, of Trenton, will officiate at the morning service and preach the sermon. Many from here will attend the services.

An entertainment under the auspices of the Rector's Guild will be given tonight in the Borough Fire House for the benefit of All Saints' Episcopal church. The evening's entertainment will consist of a short musical programme, which will be followed by a short farce entitled "A Box of Monkeys."

It is probable that taxes will be considerable lower this year, one reason being the last of the school bonds has been cancelled and this will mean $1,000 less money for the taxpayers to raise each year.

The Board of Education, at its meeting Wednesday night, decided to close school for the summer vacation Tuesday, June 12, Commencement exercises being held Wednesday night, June 13.

Services tomorrow at the Baptist church will be held at the usual hours: Sunday-school, 9:30 a. m.; morning preaching, 10:45; B. Y. P. U., 7:15 p. m.; evening sermon, 8 o'clock.

Baseball games of interest this afternoon are the local league team and Clinton Avenue at Crescent Oval and the Twilight A. C. and Berkeley Heights team on the local diamond.

The corner-stone of the Mt. St. Mary College will be laid tomorrow afternoon with appropriate exercises. Bishop McFaul and many other notables of the church will be present.

The congregation and members of the Methodist church will tender a reception to their new pastor, Rev. Mr. Deterick, Tuesday night, in the church.

Miss Lizzie O'Rielly, who has been visiting Mrs. Ferdinand Schmidt, of Westfield avenue, has returned to her home in New York.

Mrs. James C. Lyons, of Westfield avenue, is detained at her home suffering from the result of a fall down stairs several days ago.

Miss Anna Bruchmann, of Newark, has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Bruchmann, of Mountain avenue.

Mrs. Elliott T. Colins, of Brooklyn, was the guest yesterday of Mrs. William R. Buckley.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

In honor of the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Katherine Smith, who was eighty-eight years old, yesterday, a party was given at the home of her son, William E. Smith, last night. Mrs. Smith was heartily congratulated and received a number of gifts. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Smith, Miss Libby Smith, Mrs. Foote, Earl Darlington, Phil. Smith, Miss Fitzgerald, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dunham. During the evening Claude Luckey, of Plainfield, took a flash-light picture.

The question of securing the services of a marshal to do night duty at South Plainfield is being agitated. There are two marshals doing day duty, but no provisions have ever been made to police the village at night.

Rev. C. W. F. Attlee is preparing an attractive programme for the observance of Arbor Day at the Baptist church. This morning he preached in the Seventh-day Baptist church, New Market.

Members of the local volunteer fire department met last night in T. A. B. Hall, but owing to the illness of Chairman W. E. Smith, the charter was not presented, as was expected.

"Phil." Smith, the well-known twirler, has returned home having given up his position with the Elizabeth Atlantic League Club. He has made no plans for the future.

Special excursion trains will run on Decoration Day to Bellwood Park, Mauch Chunk and Glen Onoko, popular resorts along the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

The salaries of the teachers in the local schools have been increased, according to similar efforts throughout the State.

A Progressive Real Estate Man.

E. S. F. Randolph has purchased a thirty horse-power Corbin Touring car for use in his business as general manager of the Westfield Real Estate Company, and in his building operations on Evergreen avenue, this city. This company formed two years ago of prominent New York capitalists, has made rapid strides in the development of its property. Upon the death of Charles C. Dilts two weeks ago, Mr. Randolph was chosen to succeed him in the general management at Westfield. The company is removing its office to that of Mr. Randolph's at Elm street and North avenue, Westfield, and extensive changes will be made there. Mr. Randolph will continue the construction of his nine houses now underway on East Seventh street, Evergreen avenue, Park avenue and in Westfield, most of them being sold and subject to delivery September 1 next.

"Happy and Mrs. Hooligan."

"Happy and Mrs. Hooligan," together with a magic lantern show were given by the members of the Crescent Athletic Club, of the borough, at Somerset street and Mountain avenue, last night. There was a large attendance and the net proceeds were $3. Preston Dunning and Alfred Korff manipulated the doll figures, which caused lots of fun, and Preston Dunning was in charge of the lantern slides, displaying many excellent views.

Will Give Musicale Service.

The new chorus choir at Faith chapel, which is under the direction of William Holmes, is preparing to give a musical service at the chapel during June. The choir was organized by Mr. Holmes and comprises fifteen mixed voices. Mrs. Clarence Murphy is the organist at the chapel.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Made from pure grape cream of tartar, and absolutely free from lime, alum and ammonia.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union.

Regular meeting of the Board of Chosen Freeholders, of the county of Union, N. J., held on Thursday, May 2, 1907, at 2:30 p. m.

Roll call showed the following members present, viz.: Director King, Freeholders Adams, Cladek, Darby, Doane, Donaahue, Fay, Gruener, Jones, Krouse, Maurer, Meisel, Perry, Pierson, Robison, Smith, Swain, Wilbur and Woodruff—19. Absent, Freeholder Cady—1.

Before proceeding with the regular order of business, Frank Bergen, Esq., appeared before the board and after a few remarks presented the following petition:

Elizabeth, N. J., May 2, 1907.

To the Honorable the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Consumers' Aqueduct Company, a corporation recently organized, has purchased a tract of land containing about one hundred and fifty acres along Robinson's Branch of the Rahway River, in Clark Township, and has commenced the work of constructing a reservoir. The plans for the reservoir require a dam across Robinson's Branch a short distance west of Rahway.

In order to develop the site to its full capacity as a reservoir it will be necessary to raise the bridge across the stream in front of the residenve of Henry Bender about seven feet, and also to put in two new spans about seventy-five feet northeast of the bridge.

It will also be necessary to raise about two feet the bridge which crosses a tributary of Robinson's Branch on the Raritan road, between the residence of Martin Fate and the Lehigh Valley Railroad.

It will be necessary to change the location of the public road at these points, but that matter, of course, must be taken up with the local authorities.

The company respectfully requests the consent of your honorable body that these changes may be made; the expense to be borne by the company and the work to be done under the supervision of your committee on bridges. Plans of the proposed changes are herewith submitted.

Respectfully,
CONSUMERS' AQUEDUCT COMPANY.
By Frank Bergen.

Freeholder Wilbur moved that the communication be received and referred to a special committee of five, together with the County Attorney and County Engineer Hubbard, which was so ordered without dissent. The Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Wilbur, Krouse, Cladek, Pierson and Smith.

The following communication was presented and read.

Plainfield, N. J., April 30, 1907.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County,
Elizabeth, N. J.

Gentlemen—We are informed that your honorable body is authorized by a recent act of the Legislature to increase from $15,000 to $20,000 your annual appropriation for the support of hospitals in Union County.

We beg to submit that the needs of Muhlenberg Hospital of Plainfield are such as to cause us to ask that in case you shall increase the amount of your annual appropriation for the purposes aforesaid, that Plainfield shall be given for its hospital full pro rata share of such increase.

Very respectfully yours,
Finance Committee Muhlenberg Hospital,
EDWARD H. LADD, Jr.,
Chairman.

On motion of Freeholder Gruener received and placed on file.

From General J. Madison Drake, as follows:

Elizabeth, N. J., May 30, 1907.

To the Honorable the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County:

Gentlemen—The Veteran Zouaves of this city, organized at the close of the war for the Union, in which they took an active part, have had in their possession for many years the following described oil paintings, executed by the late Colonel Julian Scott, of this county, an artist of national renown.

The paintings, three in number, are in a perfect state of preservation, and mounted in heavy rich gold frames, withot flaw or blemish.

No. 1 represents the charge of the Union troops through the cornfield at Antietam, showing General McClellan and staff in the background, and the famous little white schoolhouse on the right flank of the field. The beautiful gold frame encasing this picture is eight feet by four feet, and once had a value of $10,000.

No. 2 is a life-size portrait of Major-General Winfield Scott Hancock, executed at the famous general's request. Its value was $1,000.

No. 3 is the celebrated masterpiece, "All Quiet Along the Potomac," for which the Zouaves were at one time offered $500.

Colonel Scott received $800 from the State of New Jersey for painting the portrait of the late Governor Joel Parker, preserved in the executive chamber in Trenton, which will afford your board some idea of the value of the creations of this artist.

As the Zouaves now have no place in which to preserve these valuable works of art, and cannot, in the natural order of things, maintain their organization much longer, and having a desire to see them exposed in a proper place in the Courthouse, where visitors to that beautiful structure may view them for all time to come, thereby receiving inspiration, the Zouaves offer the three paintings to the county for the trifling consideration of $1,000.

Hoping your honorable board may be pleased to purchase the paintings and believing your favorable action will be appreciated by all patriotic citizens, I have the honor to be, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,
J. MADISON DRAKE,
Bt. Brig.-General Commanding.

Freeholder Smith moved that the communication be received and referred to a special committee of five to report at the next meeting of this board, which was so ordered without dissent. The Director appointed as said committee Freeholders Smith, Doane, Adams, Fay and Woodruff.

Reports of Committees.

By the committee on Division avenue bridge, Summit, N. J.:

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your committee on the Division avenue bridge has visited and examined the same, in relation to extending the bridge on the north side and forming a sidewalk, to conform to the extra width of the street.

We respectfully recommend an appropriation of $225 to extend the bridge and form the said sidewalk.

JOHN N. CADY,
JOSEPH PERRY,
BRADFORD JONES,
Committee.

Freeholder Gruener moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By the Committee on Jail Inspection.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—The term of Dr. Alonzo Pettit as Jail Physician having expired, and he having expressed himself as not desiring a reappointment, the undersigned committee would report that they have appointed Milton A. Shangle, M. D., as Jail Physician for the term, from May 1, 1907, to January 1, 1908, at the rate of $250 per year, said compensation to cover all medical services required by prisoners confined in the county jail during said term, and would respectfully recommend the approval by this board of said appointment.

Dated May 2, 1907.

E. K. ADAMS,
J. HERVEY DOANE,
ADOLPH H. GRUENER,
Jail Committee.

Freeholder Krouse moved that the report be received and recommendation adopted, which was so ordered on roll call by an unanimous vote.

By Committee on Repairs to a bridge in Rahway, N. J.

May 2, 1907.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your committee to whom was referred the matter of having repairs made to the bridge over the South Branch of the Rahway River, in the city of Rahway, would report that the County Attorney notified the N. Y. and N. J. Telephone Company of the condition of said bridge, and requested that they take emmidate steps to repair the same, and in compliance with said notice and request, said telephone company has removed the concrete, straightened the iron rods and strengthened said bridge, so that the same is now in good repair and satisfactory to your committee.

Respectfully submitted,
ADOLPH H. GRUENER,
GEORGE B. CLADEK,
JOSEPH PERRY,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Woodruff received and placed on file.

The report of the Committee on Rules of the board, laid over from last meeting, was taken up and read in full by the Clerk.

On motion of Freeholder Krouse further consideration of the report was laid over till the next meeting, in order that the County Attorney might ascertain as to the amount of money which might be expended by individual freeholders in making repairs to bridges and culverts.

By the Committee to settle with the County Collector.

April 25, 1907.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the County of Union:

Gentlemen—Your committee to settle with the County Collector respectfully reports that it has examined his books, showing his receipts and disbursements, together with his vouchers, bonds and coupons paid and bank books, and we find the same agree and are correct in every particular.

His total receipts from the beginning of the fiscal year to April 4, 1907, are $411,032.68; total disbursements, $316,892.28; leaving a balance of $94,140.40.

HENRY KROUSE,
CHAS. A. SMITH,
Committee.

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur received and placed on file.

New Business.

By Freeholder Jones:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed with power to rebuild line bridge beyond Berkeley Heights, the same being a line bridge between Somerset and Union county, at an expense not to exceed $150 as Union county's portion of same.

Freeholder Krouse moved the adoption of the resolution and on roll call it was unanimously adopted, and the Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Jones, Swain and Perry.

By Freeholder Krouse:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to c onsider the advisability and probable cost of building a new iron beam brick arch bridge on Linden avenue, Roselle Borough, and report at the next meeting of this board.

On motion of Freeholder Gruener the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Krouse, Maurer and Robison.

By Freeholder Meisel:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to inspect a bridge on Shunpike road, Springfield, N. J., as to the advisability of covering the same with plank or concrete arch, and report at next meeting.

On motion of Freeholder Swain the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The Director appointed as said committee Freeholders Meisel, Darby and Donahue.

By Freeholder Woodruff:

Resolved, That a committee of three be appointed to examine a bridge in Union Township, on cross road leading from Hilton to Seven Bridge road, and report on the same and probable cost at the next meeting; and also the advisability of a new bridge and probable cost of same on Grant avenue, Roselle Park.

On motion of Freeholder Adams, the resolution was adopted without dissent.

The Director appointed as the said committee Freeholders Woodruff, Meisel and Adams.

By Freeholder Krouse:

Resolved, That when this board adjourns it stand adjourned until Thursday, May 23, 1907, at 2:30 p. m.

On motion of Freeholder Wilbur the resolution was adopted without dissent.

See Lehigh Valley ticket agent, 218 West Front street, for particulars. 5 20 5

Pastor's Aid Reception.

The reception given at the First Presbyterian church Thursday night by the Pastor's Aid Society, was largely attended by members of the church and congregation. The affair was an informal one, the only entertainment being several piano solos by Clifford A. Braider, organist of the church. A committee of women received the guests and served refreshments. These receptions are held chiefly for the purpose of permitting the members to become better acquainted.

The Mystery of Carneycroft

By JOSEPH BROWN COOKE. COPYRIGHT 1907 BY STORY-PRESS CORPORATION

"Nothing more than that he makes regular trips to and from the trains," I replied. "Runs a sort of local express, you know, between the station and Hoskins' hotel. Carries the mail and passengers, if there are any."

"Did you ever see him and talk to him?" continued MacArdel.

"Oh, yes!" I said. "He was the first to tell me about the ghosts at Carney-Croft; all that story of the Bruce woman's prophecy that the place would be haunted, you know."

"Humph!" said MacArdel, thoughtfully. "And where's the Bruce woman now?"

"She lives on the place yet," I replied. "Miss Carney gives her the use of a little house and about 20 acres of land rent free, and some man about here works the property on shares for her. It's that hilly land about a mile east of the house, where the big elm is. You remember, I told you the new golf links would take in that tree and the land around it."

Our return trip from the railway station took us past Hoskins' again, and that individual was sunning himself in front of the house as we drove up.

"By the way, Hoskins," said MacArdel, stopping his team [illegible] ing the man to [illegible] name of the fellow that owns this outfit?"

"Jenks," said Hoskins, briefly. "Sam Jenks, th' lazy cuss."

"When is he going to marry the widow?" asked MacArdel, in a most matter-of-fact way.

"That's jest it!" replied Hoskins in obvious disgust. "You tell me an' I'll tell you. Goodness knows; he's be'n a-sparkin' her long enough; ever sence 'baout a month after her boy got killed. S'pose he felt kinder sorry fer her at first, an' then, after a time, he began teh git mushy over it. I wish teh goodness he'd either marry her or leave her alone! What with his gallivantin' all over the country with her every week or ten days, an' not gittin' his hoss in th' stable till nigh onto daylight, there's no dependin' on him teh meet th' trains or do anything else, fur that matter! Here he is now, abed an' asleep, an' ef it hadn't ben fur you gents a-drivin' up teh th' pleepo', we wouldn't ha' got no mail till night, in all probability."

With this remark he fished out two mail bags which the station master must have tossed into the back of the wagon as we were driving away.

"We thought it was he and Mrs. Bruce that we saw last night," said MacArdel, pleasantly. "We were out enjoying the moonlight when they drove down the road."

"Didn't see nuthin' else, did ye?" asked Hoskins, in a confidential tone.

"Why, no!" laughed MacArdel. Why do you ask?"

"Wal," said Hoskins, drawing nearer and speaking seriously, "Jenks says th' ghosts wuz abaout agin' an' they went past him, daown th' road jest as he wuz a-turnin' into th' pike. His hoss give a jump as they went scootin' by, an' it threw him agin th' dash an' cut his hand some. He called me up teh git him a rag teh tie araound it an' he looked scared enough to ha' seen 20 ghosts."

"Was his hand badly hurt?" I asked.

"Nuthin' teh speak of," said Hoskins. "Jest a little nick along the side like he'd gouged a piece aouten it."

"See here, Hoskins!" said MacArdel sharply. "We didn't see any ghosts last night, and all your friend Jenks could have seen was ourselves, in our shirt-sleeves, walking back of the hedge by the river road. You remember how his horse jumped and ran, don't you, Ware?"

"Certainly," I replied, obediently. "We wondered what the trouble was, at the time."

"Now, then, Hoskins," continued MacArdel, looking at his watch and speaking rapidly. "Don't let Jenks hear a word about this business. He don't know that I had a trunk at the station, and, if we can get back here before he wakes up, he needn't even know that we've had his wagon."

"No fear of his wakin' up fur a good bit yet," grinned Hoskins. "He wuz so scared when he got in that he liked teh ha' finished a pint o' whisky 'fore I could stop him."

"So much the better" said MacArden, gathering up the reins. "Now, remember what I say, and keep this business to yourself. We'll have some fun with him before he gets through!"

We drove as rapidly as the tired beast could carry us, until we reached the gate leading into the stable grounds, when MacArdel pulled up suddenly and said:

"Let's dump the trunk in here. We can carry it up to the house after we get this horse and wagon back where they belong. No one will touch it here."

As soon as the trunk was on the ground by the side of the roadway, MacArdel dragged out the parcel from under the blankets and, opening it on the grass, began to examine the pieces minutely.

After a moment he straightened up and exclaimed:

"It's just as I thought. It's the same stuff that we found last night, and the scoundrel went back and got 'em all after we had gone to bed!"

They Were Wafted Along as If Part of the Air Itself.

CHAHPTER XI.

The Ghosts Captured.

Replacing the parcel under the blankets in as nearly as possible the same condition and position as when we found it, we drove rapidly back to Hoskins' stable and were successful in safely housing the horse and wagon before Jenks put in his appearance.

"Now," said MacArdel, "all we have to do is to tip off that man at the station, and we can keep Jenks in the dark until we are ready to bring him to a round turn."

We found the short half mile to [illegible] and found no difficulty in bribing the fellow to silence concerning the trunk, laying stress on the alleged joke that we purposed practicing on the driver of the "express."

"You see," said MacArdel, as we strolled leisurely along the grassy roadside "the whole business is plain enough now. This Bruce woman started a ghost story when she first came here purely in a spirit of idle gabble and to impress the wondering natives with the knowledge of the homes of the nobility in England. Then, when her boy was killed, she tried to make trouble by again circulating these yarns and frightening the men off the place."

"Well," I replied, "she ought to be satisfied now, at any rate. Miss Carney gave her a good bit of money in a lump sum, and provided her with a comfortable house and a generous plot of land around it. I don't see what more she wants or what she hopes to gain, and, to tell the truth, I'm about as much in the dark as I was at first."

"Well, it's plain enough!" continued MacArdel. "You gave her the money in a lump sum, you say, so she has nothing more to expect in that direction. You'd have done better if you had given her an annuity instead, and kept the control of her funds in your own hands."

"We do, in a way," I returned. "We give her the use of the house and land, you know."

"That's where the whole trouble lies now!" exclaimed MacArdel. "Don't you see, Ware, she and this fellow, Jenks, are going to be married. She's got a good house and farm on the estate, and, just as they are about to settle down for better or for worse, you come along with a scheme to oust her, bag and baggage, and turn her place into golf links."

"What of it?" I replied. "We are going to provide for her elsewhere and she will be better off than she is now."

"You know that, but she doesn't," continued MacArdel, "and there may be other reasons why she does not want to move. This seems to be a pretty prosperous community, and apparently no one about her is especially anxious to have the house open."

"No reason why they should want it open," I said. "Practically all the servants are brought from the city and almost nothing is purchased in the village, so the natives don't derive any material benefit from the place."

"But they may when it's closed up," MacArdel insisted. "There's fruit and nuts and game and grass and timber and other things that can be picked up and never missed from one year's end to another when the house is unoccupied and no watchman or caretaker is about. I tell you, Ware, these people don't want the Carneys to come back, and they are playing this ghost game for all there is in it to frighten them away."

"They'll have a fine time doing it," I said. "Miss Carney isn't afraid of anything under the sun, and even if she returns before we are able to make out a case against them, she'll stay here and fight it out to the last."

"Hope she likes to do housework," said MacArdel."

"What's that got to do with it?" I snapped

Clean Cooking

Wherever there's a New Perfection Oil Stove in the kitchen, there you will find the pots and pans clean and bright. The blue flame of the New Perfection is the cleanest flame produced by any stove, and is entirely free from smoke and soot. Another advantage of the

NEW PERFECTION

is that the heat is highly concentrated by enameled chimneys. This means quick results. The New Perfection is different from other oil stoves. Made in three sizes, with one, two and three burners. Every stove warranted. If not at your dealer's, write to our nearest agency for descriptive circular.

The Rayo Lamp is the best lamp for all-round household use. Equipped with the latest improved burner. Gives a bright, steady light at lowest cost. Made of brass throughout and beautifully nickeled. Suitable for any room, whether library, dining-room, parlor or bedroom. Safe and satisfactory. Every lamp warranted. Write to our nearest agency if not at your dealer's.

BICYCLE DEALERS REPORT HEAVY SALES.

Wheeling Seems to be Undergoing Revival in all Parts of the Country.

That the enthusiasm for bicycling this year has grown and waxed strong in the face of most miserable weather conditions, is certainly eloquent testimony for the genuineness of the revival. From the Pacific to the Atlantic the past two months have been anything but favorable to the wheel-selling interests, yet April has been a banner month with dealers in nearly every part of the country.

The conditions of the trade in Cleveland may be regarded as fairly typical. As the result of a store to store canvass, the fact was brought out that the increase in business so far this spring is from thirty to fifty per cent greater than it was a year ago. One leading bicycle dealer makes the statement that he has done more selling this year than in any spring since 1897.

A bicycle dealer in Allegheny in reporting on the state of trade calls particular attention to the large increase he has noticed in the livery and repair branches. There is something of a suggestion in that for other dealers, as many travelers, who find themselves in a strange town for a few hours, would be very glad to rent a wheel to look about the place, if bicycles liveries become as popular as they were a few seasons ago.

The awakening of wheeling enthusiasm has caused a simultaneous stirring up in police circles, as riders everywhere seem to forget that iron-clad laws against riding on sidewalks, and without bells or lamps are still on the statute books of every State and municipality. In New York State riders of side paths must have badges, and offenders in that respect are deceiving attention. Ogden, Utah, has a strict law requiring bicyclists to keep to the right, and a nasty collision of two riders last week has started the police after the lawless ones. A Mishawaka, Ind., wheelman writes to a paper of a bad fall he got while trying to avoid a child on the road, and says that if the wheelmen must keep off the sidewalks, children should be kept off the streets—which seems quite reasonable.

THE ART OF KEEPING YOUNG.

Few women are careful enough about keeping control over their facial expression. They are entirely too apt to frown and look serious, thus implanting lines and wrinkles which, once they come, are hard to erase.

Poise and expression have a wonderful amount to do with a youthful appearance, more, in fact, than most people realize.

As a rule it is the profile that shows age first, and there are certain lines and crow's feet that come in front of the ear and at the side of the face that should be carefully looked after.

Wrinkles in the neck are among the first signs that go to prove that a woman is no longer in her first youth, and when they do come they never should be neglected, but should be carefully massaged.

Therefore it is up to every woman who wants to look as young as possible to carefully study her profile and not to be content with the appearance of her full face. These lines are almost invisible at first, and if treated early they can be effaced and kept down.

The chin and throat are also tell-tales. If the chin is drawn in and down the throat naturally sets in lines curving toward the ear, but if the chin is held up there are no lines at all.

Figure, of course, has much to do with a youthful appearance, and corsets of the best make are an important asset to the woman who would look young. So is an elastic step, and nothing counts for quite as much as the art of sitting and rising in a youthful manner.

It is decidedly worth while to practice certain balancing exercises that will do much toward retaining elasticity of movement and giving the body perfect poise.

ABOUT SHOES.

Suede, the most deceptive article ever donned by matron or maid, is here in the form of slippers for summer wear. There are suede slippers in every imaginable shade, pale gray, white, pink, blue, etc. Good suede is lasting, but no dealer ever guarantees it; it is as treacherous as patent leather in a bargain. Suede is dyed in color, and there are few ways in which it can be cleaned, for even gasoline will run the colors, but the shoe is fashionable and will be worn. Newark has a new shoe which is decidedly jaunty. It has a suggestion of stylish pumps, but it is more dainty in appearance, being less mannish. The tongue is long, extending far above the leather bow, which is set off with a steel buckle.

Trying to Secure a Parsonage.

The members of Mt. Zion A. M. E. church are making an effort to purchase a parsonage on West Fourth street for their pastor, Rev. J. T. Diggs. A liberal hearted citizen in Washington Park, the borough, has contributed a good sized check to start the subscription list and it looks as though the matter would result successfully.

Mrs. A. M. Higgins, of Liberty street, has returned from a visit with relatives at Centerville.

PROBABLY the highest and greatest development of unselfishness apparent to-day is to be seen in the growth of Life Insurance. Every man with a family who carries a policy in is not only exhibiting a high degree of thrift and foresight, but is an example of the practical unselfishness that looks to the protection and comfort of loved ones.

Do you appreciate how absolute is the security afforded by fire and burglar proof vaults that are located in a building of fire proof construction occupied by one tenant?

THE FORUM.

New York, May 22, 1907.

Editor, The Daily Press:

I have read in your interesting paper of the appointment by His Excellency, the Mayor, Charles J. Fisk, of special policemen to assist the regular police in stopping the reckless speeding of automobiles on our public roads—the cause of so many accidents, injuries and deaths to pedestrians and riders.

The good matron of the Children's Country Home for Little Cripples at Westfield called on me and told me yesterday of the suffering of her only son, who cares for the little cripples and is an faithful as a St. Bernard dog in his love for them. One year ago last Fourth of July, she says, her husband, herself and her son drove over in a large spring wagon with a load of little children to witness the exercises and share in the raising of the American flag on the grounds of the Memorial Home for Orphans, on the Springfield road, at Mountainside. The wagon was driven into the gutter on the side of the road and the children, being crippled, were allowed to remain seated therein. Flags and signs (Look out for the children) had been placed up and down the road, but the drivers of the automobiles seemed to pay no regard to them. Soon an automobile containing four men came down the road with terrific speed, and, on reaching the wagon holding the little children, one of the men with a pistol fired a blank cartridge into it, the powder taking effect in the eyes of the matron's son, who thought his eyesight was thereby destroyed. The fright of the horses and the children, the confusion and panic, the speed and dust of the automobile prevented the getting of the number of the automobile and the criminal escaped. The boy's eyesight was found not to have been destroyed, but he has not yet recovered from the shock. The speeding through Scotch Plains and Mountainside, I understand, makes driving or walking on Mountain avenue and the Springfield road almost as dangerous as it would be on the track of the Central R. R. of N. J. A person can "Look out for the locomotive" and know he is safe when he is off the track, but the thousand and one automobiles passing and repassing each other monopolize the whole road and in the country portions of the sidewalks.

J. ACKERMAN COLES.

Editor, The Daily Press:

It gives me great pleasure as President of the Green Brook Improvement Association, to thank you in behalf of the Association for the fair, impartial and unbiased writeup you gave us in your paper a few days ago, on the sewerage matter with which we are confronted in our neighborhood at the present time.

We fully realize that if the Borough of North Plainfield should succeed in the plan as laid out by them, it would mean financial ruin to a number of us here, and, at the same time would practically depopulate the portion of the township which we consider is one of the prettiest spots in the township at the present time.

The Abram Vail farm is only about one thousand feet from our schoolhouse and less than seven hundred feet from the borough line of Dunellen. As you are aware, there is one sewerage plant located on the border of Dunellen at the present time the overflow of which contaminates Green Brook from Rock avenue to where the brook flows into Bound Brook.

Am told by people who know that Green Brook at one time was one of the purest, clearest and prettiest brooks in the State of New Jersey; at the present time with the polution, a great deal of its beauty has been taken away.

It is not only a detriment to the neighborhood but a disgrace to the State of New Jersey for a thing of this kind to be tolerated. For North Plainfield to put a sewerage disposal plant at Dunellen, will no doubt give that borough a worse set-back than they have had to live down since Plainfield established their plant.

For the welfare of ourselves, our neighbors and for all those who love the State of New Jersey in general, we trust through the assistance as such honest writeups as your paper has given us and our own efforts, that the sewerage disposal plant will never be established in our township. Will assure you that everyone interested in our township and in the Borough of Dunellen will leave nothing undone to completely block the efforts of the Borough of North Plainfield in establishing such a plant within our border.

Thanking you again for the fairness with which you handled this matter, we wish to remain,

Yours very truly,

W. L. McCAULEY.

"CENTRAL PARK"

Was—Is—Will Be

IT WAS, only about a year ago, just a pretty farm.

IT IS to day the finest building site in Plainfield, with broad avenues macadamized their entire width, concrete curb, sidewalks, trees, gas, electric light, in fact all improvements. Nearly $100,000 expended in new and handsome dwellings, now ready for the market.

WHAT IT WILL BE we hardly dare predict, with contracts out for even more extensive improvements and twelve more handsome residences.

Central Park is that beautifully situated tract bounded by Park, Prospect, Hillside and Thornton Avenues.

The seniors did the best they could, but they deserved their fate because they wouldn't alter their style of play even after they saw how successfully l'art nouveau was working for the faculty. Maybe Bert Leggett, the senior shortstop, ought to be excepted from this harsh criticism. He played just like a member of the faculty. See error column in the summary.

NEW SYSTEM OF BUILDING.

A MARVEL IN THE SCIENCE OF CONSTRUCTION.

A method far in advance of anything formerly used in the preparation of the different parts of a house when erected in sections, making it easy to construct any design of a house, and a very superior house for all seasons, countries and climates at a great reduction in cost.

These houses are constructed principally from the best kiln dried lumber in a factory entirely protected from weather, where best high speed woodworking machines are used for cutting and shaping of every piece, reducing cost for mechanics fully one-half, making a superior house when finished.

Houses or other structures erected under this system make the warmest houses in winter, and the strongest building that can be constructed with any material, the fiercest storm fails to cause any vibration whatever. They are adapted to receive all improvements, plumbing, lighting, heating, etc., when desired.

A new method of lath and plaster is used for interior finish, making a perfect indestructable wall superior to anything ever before used.

YALE GOLF TEAMS WINS

Plainfield Country Club Five Outclassed by "Sons of Old Eli."

THE SCORE WAS 26 TO 0

William T. Glenney Gets First Honors in Play for Golf Committee Cup.

The crack college golf team from Yale played a match with the Plainfield Country Club five at the local course, Saturday afternoon, and the "Sons of Old Eli" simply outclassed their opponents in every way, preventing them form scoring a point. When the scores were added up they were found to be all on the side of Yale and totaled 26 to 0. Even Robert Abbott was 6 up on Frank Reinhart, the latter failing to show his old-time form. The summary follows:

Yale—Knowles, 6; Robert Abbott, 6; W. H. Lyon, 4; N. Bundy, 4; Merriman, 6. Total, 26.

Plainfield—W. Lester Glenney, 0; Frank O. Reinhart, 0; C. B. Morgan, 0; R. Story Rowland, 0; Morris J. Dumont, 0. Total, 0.

William T. Glenney was the surprise of the day in the competition for the Golf committee cup, returning a net score of 73, thereby winning three points. His gross score was 76, pretty good going for a young player. Arthur Murphy finished second with a net score of 76, while J. A. Lane came in third with a 77, just beating out Robert Abbott, who had a 78. The scores for the Golf committee cup were as follows:

William T. Glenney, 76, 3—73; Arthur Murphy, 83, 7—76; J. A. Lane, 89, 12—77; Robert Abbott, 76, plus 2—78; W. D. Riggs, 91, 10—81; C. B. Morgan, 83, 2—81; Frank O. Reinhart, 85, 0—85; W. Lester Glenney, 85, 0—85; Henry D. Hibbard, 92, 6—86; Stuart H. Patterson, 96, 10—86.

G. F. Earl won first honors for the Green committee cup with a net score of 73, but his handicap was a fat one, 21, and it stands good chance of being generously sliced. The scores:

G. F. Earl, 94, 21—73; Herbert G. Rogers, 94, 16—78; George E. Cathcart, 96, 17—79; R. H. Cox, 106, 27—79; A. E. Barclay, 106, 24—82; C. C. Burke, Sr., 101, 15—86; J. P. Murray, 101, 15—86.

In the semi-finals for the May cup, Class B, C. C. Burke, Sr., beat A. G. Henderson, by default, and Herbert S. Rogers beat R. H. Cox, 1 up. The finals will be played off on Decoration Day, as will also the semi-finals and finals for the May cup, Class A and the consolation cup.

There was a large field out at the Park Golf Club on Saturday, when in addition to the weekly competition for the President's cup, there was the initial play for the Hydewood Park and Golf Club cups, monthly competitions. Charles A. Reed won first honors for all three cups with a score of 102, 11—91. The scores which count for all three cups are as follows:

Charles A. Reed, 102, 11—91; Alexander Gilbert, 116, 24—92; Samuel St. John McCutchen, 106, 13—93; Leon R. Thurlow, 108, 13—95; Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll, 115, 19—96; J. B. Betts, 122, 26—96; Charles B. Morse, 116, 15—101; Reuben Knox, 117, 16—101.

At the Westfield Golf Club on Saturday these players qualified for the June Handicap cup; H. E. Knight, 90, 7—83; S. S. Poor, 91, 7—84; Raymond B. Carroll, 84, 0—84; Joseph Sherman, Jr., 87, plus 4—91. Miss Estelle Hegeman won the approaching and putting contest with a score of 23.

Fresh Air Children Entertain.

Twenty children from the Netherwood Fresh Air Home, in charge of Miss Sara Curry, the matron, and Miss Florence G. Hawkins, attended a meeting in the interest of the Home at the First Baptist church, last night. Rev. Erskine M. Rodman, president of the fresh air association, was in charge, and in addition to a few words from him, Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss also spoke of the work. The children sang hymns, choruses, solos, duetts, quartette selections, while a number of them gave recitations in a way that pleased the congregation. Much interest was shown and the sympathy of all enlisted for the work.

Horse Show Prices.

There appears to be some misunderstanding as to the prices of admission to the horse show to be held June 6, 7 and 8 under the auspices of the Plainfield Riding and Driving Club. The general admission is $1, except to children, coachmen and grooms, who are admitted for fifty cents. Seats on the grandstand are fifty cents extra, but other seats will be provided free. The trolley cars pass the gate of the show grounds.

VETERANS AT UNION MEMORIAL SERVICES

ADDRESSED IN WESTFIELD CHURCH BY DR. ADDISON WILBUR HAYS.

The union memorial service held in the Presbyterian church, Westfield, last night, was largely attended by Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., the Women's Relief Corps and Co. K of this city, who were specially invited. The churches of Westfield combined in arranging the service, and the decorations, comprising American flags and flowers, were elaborate.

Rev. Dr. W. I. Steans, pastor of the Presbyterian church, conducted the opening exercises, and Rev. Henry Hoadley Guernsey, of the Episcopal church, presided. There were patriotic anthems by the chorus choir, and Rev. C. J. Greenwood, pastor of the Baptist church, read the Scripture lesson. Following the offertory, the congregation joined in singing, "Nearer My God to Thee." The offering was given to the Woman's Relief Corps.

The address of the evening was made by Rev. Addison Wilbur Hayes, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. He took for his subject, "The Volunteer Soldier." Mr. Hayes had two brothers in the Civil War, one of whom was killed in battle. He gave many interesting incidents about the war, and described pathetic scenes in the long fight to free the negro from slavery. The address was soul-inspiring and listened to with the deepest interest by the large congregation.

At the conclusion of the service a photograph of the congregation was taken and all money received from the sale of the pictures will be given to the Women's Relief Corps.

HE IS DETERMINED TO COMMIT SUICIDE

WIEDOSON'S MANIA FOR SELF DESTRUCTION ACUTE; TAKEN TO ASYLUM

Joseph Wiedoson, who attempted to kill himself with an axe, was taken to the state hospital at Morris Plains, Saturday, by Chief of Police Kiely, and City Judge Runyon. He has suicidal mania in acute form.

Sane in everything but his determination to kill himself, Wiedoson had to be closely watched at Muhlenberg Hospital, where he astonished the staff by recovering from a wound that would have killed most men within twenty-four hours. His mind is normal in everything excepting suicide. He is bent on self-destruction and would undoubtedly killed himself if given the opportunity to accomplish the act by any means at all. Brooding over money lost on the sale of a farm near Alton brought on the mania. Change of scene and dieting may cure him.

ANNUAL INSTITUTE OF PRIMARY UNION TODAY.

Twelfth Yearly Gathering Will Be Held in the First Baptist Church.

The twelfth annual institute of the Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union will be held in the First Baptist church this afternoon and evening. The afternoon session will begin at 3 o'clock with the following programme:

Devotional service, Mrs. D. L. Darby; words of welcome, "A Glance Over the Past Year's Work," Mrs. R. W. Barnes, corresponding secretary; conference on beginners' work, led by Miss Rose Scott, Newark; missionary talk, Miss Clark; offertory solo, Miss Florence Conroy; primary class programme, Miss Rose Scott; round table on Junior work, Miss Rose Scott; social and conference hour for superintendents and teachers.

The evening session will begin at 7:45 with devotional exercises conducted by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, followed by the teaching of the Sunday-school lesson by Rev. Dr. Forrest E. Dager, of Philadelphia. After an offertory solo by Mrs. L. R. Howard, Dr. Dager will deliver an address on the subject of "Saving the Boys."

Union A. C. Defeats Holy Cross 2ds.

In a closely contested game, the Union A. C. defeated Holy Cross Seconds on Hope Common, Saturday morning, by a score of 10 to 8. The game was exciting from start to finish, both sides making many good plays. The battery for the Unions was Rogers and Darling; for Holy Cross Seconds, Schorb and Kenyon.

Wholesale License.

Raphael VenSzia was granted a wholesale l iquor license by Judge Atwater in the county court Saturday, through his counsel, F. J. Blatz. His place is on Terrill road, Fanwood.

CHURCH BOYS GALA TIME

Club and Choir of Holy Cross Enjoy Their First Annual Dinner.

COVERS FOR SIXTY-TWO

Rev. George A. Warner Acts As Toastmaster and the Young Men Make Addresses.

Saturday evening was a gala night for the boys of Holy Cross Club and choir. It was the accasion of the boys' first annual banquet held in the assembly room of the parish house. The table, with places for sixty-two were placed so as to form a large letter T with the speakers table on the platform. The decorations were of dogwood blossoms, lilacs and lilies of the valley. Ask the boys what the caterer furnished in the way of edible and toothsome things and they'll tell you it was the "best ever."

The toast master, Rev. G. A. Warner started the ball rolling by telling the boys a story. When the laugh was over he spoke earnestly and seriously of the way in which the club had started, its progress and growth and then announced some plans made by the various committees of the club. The Athletic Committee he said had arranged for an athletic meet to be held in a week or ten days on the Cricket Field. Entries open to club and choir members only, the boys to be divided into classes A and B. The events for each class, 100 yard dash, shot put, running broad jump, standing high jump, potatoe race and hurdle race. The Athletic Committee decides which class a boy must enter. No boy to take part in an event without being provided with some kind of gymnasium shoes, running pants, etc. The prizes for the largest number of points won in each class, will be first gold medal; second, silver medal; third, bronze medal; boys winning first or second in the events and not qualifying for medals to receive first, and second prize event ribbons. The boys who show up best in the meet will constitute the track team of the club.

In addition to the arrangements made by the Athletic Committee the speaker made some announcements in regard to the summer camp. It is expected that about fifty boys will go this year. The club boys to pay their own travelling expenses and a fixed charge for board per week.

Mr. Warner then called on Percy Watson to respond to the toast "The Future of the Club." It was a very fair picture of what the future should bring forth; of a largely increased membership, of husky members grown several years older in the service of the club and by athletic prowess wiping up the earth with multitudinous opponents. To this was added the hope and belief of larger quarters, gymnastic apparatus, a swimming pool and shower baths, all at the disposal of club members. It is needless to speak of the applause accorded Watson's speech.

Russell Conroy, captain of the foot ball eleven was called upon to respond to the toast "Club Athletics." He spoke briefly and to the point of the work done by the baseball and football teams, the athletic meet and of the feeling of good fellowship among the players. The toastmaster followed by pointing out that the qualities of patience, endurance, grit, self-control, a spirit of frankness, fairness and good will such as the games called for were the qualities which would help the boy when he went forth to the battle of life.

The last speaker was Fred Gray, who responded to the toast, "The Spirit of the Club." He said, the spirit of the club is the democratic spirit, where a boy lived, whether on a fine street in a big house, or on a back street in a little house made no difference to the boys, if he was the right sort and a good fellow he was admitted to the club; a boy's father might have money or a boy's father be poor, it made no difference in the way the boy was received and treated in the club. Then again he said, the religious test was never made, the club received and had on its roll Holy Cross boys, Presbyterians, Methodists, Baptists, Jews, Roman Catholics and others. All the club required was that they should live up to the common ideal of honesty, fairness, purity and treating others as they would like to be treated—considerately justly and fairly.

The toastmaster then spoke of the place the club library occupied and afterward called up the foot-ball eleven to come forward and receive the Holy Cross monogram which they had won—a monogram which can only be worn when it has been earned.

The gift of a parlor pool table for the game room was announced and the donor, a member of the club, given a hearty cheer. The gathering broke up with the club yell.

CHAMPIONSHIP TENNIS

Play For East Jersey Title Begun in This City Saturday.

MISS WILDEE A WINNER

Captures Her Two Matches—Big Field Entered In the Men's Doubles; Charlock and Glazebrook Winners.

The play for the lawn tennis championship of the East Jersey L. T. A. began Saturday on the courts of the Plainfield Country Club in women's singles and men's doubles. Miss Edna Wildey, the most prominent of the women players, won both her matches and her two sisters. Mildred and Janet Wildey, also were winners in the play.

A big held entered for the men's doubles, among the players being Miles S. Charlock and H. McK. Knights' Annual Trip.

Crescent Company, No. 13, U. R. K. of P. will make its annual trip to Port Chester, N. Y., next Sunday, to conduct memorial exercises over the grave of Harvey L. Patterson, a former member who was killed in the New Jersey Central wreck at Westfield. From present indications a larger delegation than usual will go. The company will hold a special meeting in Persererance Lodge rooms Friday night to complete all arrangements.

Sisters Are Grateful.

The pupils of St. Joseph's School, Bordentown, who came to North Plainfield yesterday to attend the laying of the cornerstone of Mt. St. Mary's College, are being entertained by the seniors of St. Gabriel's Academy. The Sisters of Mercy expressed their appreciation, this morning, for all the local people and papers did to help in the arrangements for the cornerstone laying.

RAIN CURTAILED PROGRAM

But 4,000 People Witnessed Cornerstone Laying of Mt. St. Mary's College.

EXERCISES WERE BRIEF

Bishop McFaul and Monsignor Fox in Charge—Many Prominent Churchmen Present.

Only to a certain extent did the bad weather affect the laying of the cornerstone of College yesterday afternoon. The rain curtailed the exercises and the addresses, but no less than 4,000 people gathered on the mountainside rejoicing that marked the formal beginning of the structure that will mean much for the educational advancement of Catholic women in New Jersey.

The grounds and the roads leading to them were sopping wet and the rain fell steadily when the hour set for the opening of the exercises arrived, but Bishop McFaul and the dignitaries of the church who came with him to take part found a big concourse of people before them. There was a sea of umbrellas about the platform when the exercises opened.

Prominent churchmen and laymen occupied the platform with Bishop McFaul, including men well known in the city and the borough. Bishop O'Connor, of Newark, Senators Ackerman and Frelinghuysen, Mayor Ryan, of Elizabeth, Mayor Fagan, of Jersey City, James E. Martine, and Mr. and Mrs. David T. Kenney, who have been generous givers to the church, were among the specially honored ones. Delegations of Knights of Columbus, Ancient Order of Hibernians, Holy Name, Children of Mary and the Sodality societies, from Plainfield and nearby places were in the audience. Somerville and Raritan were especially well represented.

It was not until four o'clock that Bishop McFaul laid the cornerstone. The ceremonies were hurried through, to save the people from the necessity of standing longer than possible in the wet, and the end was reached by 4.20.

Bishop McFaul spoke very briefly. He said that he had not the heart to detain the crowd in the wet, and would defer his address until he came to bless the building. Monsignor Fox, of Trenton, who was to have delivered the sermon, spoke briefly on the benefits Christianity had conferred upon women.

He touched on the advance they had made since the days of the ancients, pointing his remarks with reference to the low estimation placed on women by the Hindus and the ancient Greeks and Romans. Mount St. Mary's College, he said, would send out into the world young women representing the highest point of education and womanly freedom and respect.

Beneath the cornerstone was laid a box containing a history of the diocese, copies of the daily papers, and a paper bearing the names of the President, the Governor, bishops and priests participating in the ceremonies, and Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Kenney, who gave the land on which the college is to be built.

Bishop McFaul complimented William Bartle, the stone cutter, on the cornerstone. It was unusually accurate in its cutting, he said, and the only one he had ever laid that was right in every particular.

"Twelfth Night" Performance.

The senior play, "Twelfth Night," to be given on Wednesday night by the students of the High School has met with such an unprecedented measure of popular approval that practically every seat in the Casino was reserved on the first day of sale of seats. To satisfy the public demand for more seats, a first performance of the play will be given tomorrow night instead of a dress rehearsal, and the dress reharsal will occur tonight and will be private. Seats may be reserved for the first performance at Armstrong's drug store and the price will be the same as was to be the admission charged at the dress rehearsal.

Elks Going to Bayonne.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E. has made plans to attend the dedication of the Bayonne Elks new $50,000 club house in a body, Wednesday night. They will leave here on the 7.37 train and will be accompanied by a drum corps. The lodge will also attend the Knights of Columbus carnival in a body on June 5.

Husbands Fail to Support Wives.

The wives of Martin Duffy and John Journeaux, both residents of the borough, have complained to the borough authorities that their husbands have failed to support them, and Justice Munday will give the defendants a hearing at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

POLICE RAID CRAP JOINT ON EAST FRONT STREET

BREMRY'S POOL ROOM YIELDS ELEVEN PRISONERS; PROPRIETOR FINED $50.

John Bremry's pool room at 148 East Front street, where Lee Johnson was shot three months ago, and which the police have been watching for some time as a suspected gambling joint, was raided Saturday night by Sergeant Herbert Overbaugh, Roundsman Maurice Higgins and Policemen Charles Flynn and William Messler. They arrested Bremry and ten of his patrons. All the prisoners but one were colored.

Overbaugh was tipped at 11:45 o'clock that he could "get the place right." With Higgins, he went to the rear of the place and looked into the room. He saw a group of men shooting craps at one of the pool tables. He sent for Flynn and Messler and surrounded the place. The plans were hardly completed when the players took alarm and all the men in the place made a concerted rush for the front door. They ran into the officers' arms, and all of them were arrested.

Judge Runyon fined Bremry $50. The magistrate said the place had the appearance of offering welcome to any sort of game its patrons desired to play. No institution worked for bad in a community so much as a gambling joint, and the court intended to help the police as much as possible in wiping them out.

The rest of the prisoners were released under suspended sentence. Bremry paid his fine.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS ARE EXCELLENT COOKS

THEY PROVE THAT BY A DINNER TO THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

That the domestic science department of the Plainfield High School has accomplished most gratifying results was proven Saturday night to the complete satisfaction of the Board of Education. A seven course dinner, prepared in the Whittier school building and served by the seniors and juniors of the High school who have taken the course in cooking, was enjoyed by the members.

Those present were Dr. John B. Probasco, president of the board; Superintendent Henry M. Maxson, Mayor Charles J. Fisk, Principal Ira W. Travell, and Leander N. Lovell, Eugene Cave and Floyd Woodhull, of the Board.

The table was decorated with candelabra and a center-piece of lilies of the valley. In one end of the room the American flag formed the background for an artistic arrangement of ferns and other greens. Buttercups, violets, and dogwood blossoms were banked on opposite sides of the room.

Each course was prepared and served by two different girls. The Misses Miriam Carman and Lillian Whitall had charge of the first course of canape. Soup was prepared and served by the Misses Sara Sanderson and Bertha Hill; salmon croquettes and roasted chicken by the Misses Elizabeth Randall and Alice Brown. Miss Whithall cooked the peas and Miss Eleanor Stutsman the potatoes. Biscuits with cranberry jelly was the work of the Misses Elizabeth Pound and Julia Fitz Gerald. Miss Gertrude Moody anh Miss Eleanor Van Tuyl prepared salad and cheese crackers. Caramel ice cream was made by the Misses Ethel Van Zandt and Cornelia Lounsbury. Miss Mabelle Cubberley made the cake, and Miss Edith Elliot the coffee. Miss Helen Johnson poured the water, and with Miss Mildred Berry assisted with the dinner.

After the dinner the cooks, carrying tin pans, iron spoons and culinary utensils of various sorts, marched into the dining room and formed a circle about the table. Dr. Probasco, Mr. Woodhull, Mr. Lovell, Mr. Cave, Dr. Maxson, Mayor Fisk and Mr. Travell spoke. They complimented the g irls and Miss Rachel Best, the cookery teacher, and said fervent things about the wife who can cook well and take the place of suddenly departing servants.

Didn't Have Milk Permit.

For selling milk without a permit, after disregarding two warnings from the Board of Health, Morris Myrowitz, of West Third street, was fined $10 by City Judge Runyon this morning. The magistrate said the danger from uninspected milk was too great to admit of lax enforcement of the law and its penalties.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement has been announced of Henry Wells, of Washington avenue, to Miss Alice Rushmore, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Rushmore, of Park avenue.

CUT IN A STREET FIGHT

Scotch Plains Man Suffering From Dangerous Wound in His Abdomen.

CHAS. OLSEN ACCUSED

MacCauley, His Alleged Victim, Disregards Wound To Hunt Him Up and Beat Him Severely.

Warren MacCauley, of Scotch Plains, is lying at his home suffering from a dangerous knife wound in the abdomen, and Charles Olsen, a Swedish carpenter, is in the county jail at Elizabeth, charged with cutting him. The alleged stabbing took place in the course of a fight on Park avenue, Scotch Plains, at 4.30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

According to eye witnesses, Olsen, partly drunk, paused before the Central Hotel, and reviled Ferdinand Schmidt, the proprietor, for having refused him liquor two days before. He applied a name to Schmidt, and MacCauley remonstrated over the language. Olsen turned his quarrel on MacCauley. The two men came together, but friends separated them.

Olsen repeated the epithet a few minutes later, and he and MacCauley again clashed. Friends were running to get them apart again, when MacCauley cried out that he was cut. He was taken to Muff's hotel and Olsen disappeared. There was an ugly knife wound in his abdomen. After resting, MacCauley gave way to anger against the Swede, and breaking from his feirnds went out in search of Olsen. He found him on Bartle avenue and whipped him thoroughly Then he succumbed to weakness brought on by loss of blood. His friends brought him back to the hotel and sent for Dr. F. W. Westcott. The physician sewed up the wound and ordered him removed at once to his home. He said the extent of the injury could not be told for a day or two.

In the meantime, Olsen swore out a complaint, charging assault and battery, against MacCauley. Before the warrant was served, Recorder Clark heard of the alleged stabbing and issued a warrant against Olsen. Constable Walpole arrested him at his home. He was held for the grand jury in $200 bail yesterday morning.

MISS ANNIE MEYERS BRIDE OF NEW YORK MAN.

Ceremony in Local Synagogue Followed by Reception at Company K Armory.

Miss Annie Meyers, daughter of Nathan Meyers, of Watchung avenue, and Joseph Berson of New York, were married at 6 o'clock, last night, in the Jewish Synagogue, on New street, in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends from New York, Elizabeth, Newark, Brooklyn, and this city. Rabbi Davidson, of the local synagogue, performed the ceremony, assisted by Rabbis Schecter and Canterwitz, of New York. Assisting in the marriage service was a choir of twelve boys from New York.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the armory of Co. K on West Front street, where several presentations were made to the bride. The members of Bnai Israel congregation, gave a loving cup, which was presented by Kalman Rottberg. On behalf of the Young Ladies' Social Circle, Miss Fanny Wolf presented a clock, and Samuel Rottberg, for the Young Men's Hebrew Association, gave a candelabrum. After the reception the guests adjourned to the dancing academy rooms above the armory and enjoyed dancing until a late hour. During the evening supper was served. The couple, after a wedding journey, will reside in New York, where the groom is employed.

Twenty-Cent Row.

Stephen Ramonoski and his wife Mary played cards in their flat on Muhlenberg place yesterday afternoon. Stephen lost twenty cents, Mary twitted him, and a scrap followed. Mary ran out of the house and sent for the police. In the city court this morning both of them were sorry, and Stephen wept over the disgrace. Judge Runyon suspended sentence.

Dr. Raven at Trinity Reformed.

Rev. Dr. John H. Raven, of New Brunswick, occupied Rev. Dr. Schenck's pulpit in Trinity Reformed church yesterday, in the absence of Rev. Dr. Johnson, who was suddenly taken ill. Dr. Raven delivered strong sermons at both services, his knowledg and use of Scripture quotations being a pleasing feature of the preaching.

Peddler Fined.

For peddling dry goods without a license, Frank Penn was fined $5 by Judge Runyon in the city court this morning.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

Thomas Trainor changed his plea of not guilty to non vult in the county court Saturday on a charge of selling at retail on a wholesale license and was fined $25. Senator Silzer, his counsel, explained to the court that Trainor was in Plainfield when his assistant sold beer and whiskey at retail. Prosecutor Berdine said Trainor's "barkeeper" had sold it. Judge Booraem asked if Trainor had a bar there to which the Prosecutor replied that his information was similar to that given the court by Mr. Silzer. Trainor was told he must not expect a light sentence on a repetition of the offense.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

The West Ends, of Somerville, have scheduled a game with the Garwoods for Memorial Day at Somerville and the following Saturday will play the Clinton, Hunterdon County, team at home.

The New York Giants after winning seventeen straight games, are now going to make a record for number of games lost.

George Wiltse, of the Giants, has always been effective against the Chicago Cubs, but during the last series in New York he looked like all the other pitchers.

The Elizabeth papers say that the trouble with the Invaders is that they don't invade, which seems to be the truth according to the number of games lost this season.

All of the Lackawanna League teams seem to be evenly matched and it promises to be a close and exciting race throughout the season. Westfield is preparing to make things lively for the other clubs.

"Billy" Gilbert, owing to an injury, has not been playing during the past few days for the Trenton Tri-State League club.

The reign of amateur ball in Plainfield this season is affording players of that class an opportunity to show their ability on the diamond. Already the fields are full of ambitious players.

The Newark Atlantic League team is showing great improvement in play, although it is not quite up to the fast pace set by the Pennsylvania teams in that league.

Gilman was unable to play with Clinton Avenue on Saturday, owing to eye trouble. He believes that he will be able to play on Decoration Day and in every game after that.

The puzzling question of five amateur baseball teams holding fifteen players under contract in each club seems to have been solved here. According to the rules each club must have that number of players.

GOLF.

The Middlebrook Country Club at a meeting a few days ago decided to build an addition to the clubhouse at Finderne at a cost not to exceed $3,600. The addition will provide for a large assembly room and a set of bowling alleys.

A golf tournament has been scheduled to be played on the course of the Middlebrook Country Club, Finderne, on Decoration Day. The competition will be at match play, 18 holes. Suitable prizes will be awarded.

The entries are coming in at a rapid pace for the open-day tournament to be held at the Plainfield Country Club for players in the Metropolitan Golf Association. It promises to be an event of great importance in golf circles.

A large force of workmen are constantly employed improving the Plainfield Country Club links so that by the time the big events come off it will be in the pink of condition.

A number of private dinners were given at the Plainfield Country Club on Saturday and the social features were greatly enjoyed.

Miss Georgianna Bishop defeated Miss Julia Mix in the final play for the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association tournament on Friday. She played remarkable golf and was steady throughout.

Considerable interest is being shown in the golf play of several American women who are opposing some of the crack women golfers abroad this season.

Several events are scheduled for the women members of the Park Golf Club this season and it is the hope of the officers and others that there will be a revival of interest in the game among the fair sex.

E. B. Shoemaker is among the members of the Plainfield Country Club that has been following the game closely. He is a regular contestant at the club in the weekly competitions.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Children's Day will be observed at the First M. E. church on Sunday, June 9. The baptismal service will be a feature.

S. S. Swackhamer will make an address at the mid-week prayer meeting on the First M. E. church in Vincent chapel, Wednesday night.

Mrs. Frank Quass will lead the consecration service to be held at the Park Avenue Baptist church Friday night by the Christian Endeavor Society.

The Junior Epworth League of the First M. E. church will meet this week in Vincent chapel on Friday afternoon, instead of Wednesday as usual.

The Board of Trustees of the Park Avenue Baptist church will meet tomorrow night at the office of John H. Doane, 209 North avenue, to consider important business.

Mrs. Laura Chamberlin, Miss Grace L. Chamberlin and Mrs. Helen G. Mason have been transferred from the membership of the Park Avenue Baptist church to the Hanson Place Baptist church, Brooklyn.

The East New Jersey Baptist Association will hold its annual meeting on Tuesday, June 4, at the Scotch Plains Baptist church. The local Baptist churches will be largely represented, as well as all of the churches in the association.

There will be a meeting of the probationer's class of the First M. E. church at the parsonage, 610 Central avenue, Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The class of probationers to be received next Sunday include the following: The Misses Alice Higgins, Alice Martin, Laura Warnock, Anna Warnock, Edna Mosher, Nellie Creger, Eva Deakyne, Amelia Geier, Lillian Wyckoff, Hazel Apgar and James Lindzey and Walter Deakyne.

COUNTY COMMITTEE MEETS.

Somerset Democrats Reorganize for the Coming Year.

The Somerset County Democratic Executive Comittee met at the County House, Somerville, on Saturday for reorganization. Senator Keyes, former chairman, called the meeting to order, and he and Michael W. Scully, of Somerville, who was nominated by Walter Linbarger, were candidates for the position of chairman. Mr. Scully won out by a vote of 11 to 4, and the election was made unanimous. Horace Codington was elected secretary.

A resolution offered by Mr. Linbarger and adopted, provides that the committee shall meet every two months and at such other times as the chairman may deem necessary. A vote of thanks was extended to Senator Keyes, retiring chairman, for faithful services. Before the meeting began Mr. Linbarger, about whom there was some dispute, was seated from his district.

Reception to Newly Wedded Couple.

Miss Flora Hartpence and John Wenzell, both of this city, were married in Newark on Wednesday last, and Saturday night when they returned home from a wedding trip to Washington they were given a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Drew, of West Front street. Mrs. Drew and her daughter attended the couple at the wedding. Music for dancing was furnished by Andrew Carpenter. For the present the couple will reside with Mr. and Mrs. Drew.

GREAT NAMES IN DIRECTORY.

Many Namesakes of Famous Lights of Literature.

A study of the new London Directory, which this year scales 13 pounds, is extremely interesting. In the case of literature, we are accustomed to regard the names of great authors as ending with them; yet the greatest of English writers has several namesakes scattered over London. William Shakespeare, professor of singing, almost alone carries on the artistic tradition of the name; but there is something quite Elizabethan in the address, "Green Lanes," appertaining to Henry Shakespeare, a grocer. John Bunyan is another grocer, in what Londoners will describe as "the" Edgware road. William Blake is a beer retailer, a craft that is far removed from "songs of innocence." Chaucer is a name that seems to have absolutely dropped out. Milton, of course, is fairly common, although the only John Miltons are a ship chandler and a chiropodist, neither of them poetic avocations. Keats occurs a few times, but there is no John Keats. Curiously enough, there is not a single Keble, but there is one Defoe. The name of Bronte is owned very appropriately by a woman, but she makes clothes instead of novels.

STARS ON COINS AND FLAG.

Little Heraldry Lore Shown in the Five and Six Points.

The stars on the great seal and the seal of the president of the United States are five-pointed, while on the seal of the house of representatives they are six-pointed. The 13 stars on the obverse of the present half and quarter dollar are five-pointed. The reverse of the present half and quarter dollar is a copy of the great seal, except that the clouds are omitted. It is evident that heraldry has not taken a very strong hold in these matters in the United States, therefore it is not in the power of anyone to say without a doubt why the difference in the stars on the flag and the coins. So far as is known, with the exception of the reverse of the present half and quarter dollar, the stars on American coins are copied from the colonial coins, which were, no doubt, made after the manner of English heraldry, while the flag was made up after the design of Washington's coat-of-arms, containing three five-pointed stars.

Led to Humorous Error.

Capt. Amundsen, having lost several dogs in his expedition to the Arctic regions, told some of the Netchillie tribe that he would purchase one from them. The suggestion caused consternation and was promptly refused. An explanation was demanded. The man applied to returned next day with a chubby, laughing boy on his back. "Such we do not sell," he said. Amundsen was astonished. "You wished to purchase one," said the man, seeing Amundsen's perplexity. Finally it was discovered that the Greenlandic term for "dog" was equivalent to "child" in the Netchillie language.

Money in Bogus Pennies.

Strangely enough, the most profitable coins to counterfeit are pennies because for an expenditure of 18 cents 100 of them can be made, which leaves a profit of 82 cents on the dollar. The chief difficulty is in getting them into circulation. It also takes expert workmanship to make these pennies, because they must be made with a die. The best counterfeiters pay most of their attention to the making of quarters, half dollars and dollars. With silver at 60 cents an ounce a counterfeiter can make five quarters from every ounce, quarters that ring true and have every appearance of the real thing.—New York World.

Mixed His Quaker.

Former Representative Charles T. Cherry was telling some men at Springfield the other day of a baggage man in an Illinois town to which a number of influential Quakers were coming. The baggage man conceived the idea that if the visitors thought he, too, was a Quaker business might be helped thereby. Consequently, upon the arrival of the delegation at the station the leader was greeted by the baggage man, who solicitously asked: "Has thou the checks for thou baggage?" And yet he wondered why the Quakers smiled.

Wine Without Grapes.

The Bavarian winemaker who fabricated 55,000 gallons of wine in one year by means of chemicals, without a drop of grape juice, is one of many similarly engaged who deserve the punishment of imprisonment and fine which he alone gets. Within seven years 300 tons of glycerin have been used by this dealer, it seems, making wine, besides citric and tartaric acids. No wonder that, with such a beverage, the bibulous Bavarian gets extremely "tight," almost to the point of explosion.

Onto Him.

"No," said Hi Tragedy, "I never take a sleeper when I travel. I don't think the berths are sanitary and besides in case of accident—"

"Yes," interrupted Lowe Comedy, "I suppose walking is safer."

AARON B. KARNER'S FUNERAL.

Service Conducted at His Home by Rev. C. E. Herring.

The funeral of Aaron B. Karner was held at his late home on Bradford avenue, Saturday afternoon, and was very largely attended by relatives and friends. There were many floral tributes. Rev. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, of which Mr. Karner was a member, had charge of the service and Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, read the Scripture selections and offered prayer.

Mr. Herring eulogized the life and character of Mr. Karner, speaking from the text "I Known in Whom I Have Believed." He emphasized the fact that Mr. Karner was a firm believer and lived an exemplary Christian life. The interment took place in Hillside Cemetery.

Matthew P. Lane.

Matthew P. Lane, one of the best known citizens of Somerville, died at his home there yesterday, aged fifty-nine years. He was the first probation officer appointed for Somerset county, by Judge Schenck, three years ago and he held the office until his death. Years ago he was treasurer of the Somerville Woollen Mills. He lived and died at the Lane homestead, which has been in the family since 1781. A wife and daughter survive him. The funeral services will be held from the late home tomorrow afternoon.

Parish Celebration.

St. Mary's church, Stoney Hill, celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of the parish organization yesterday morning. There was a large congregation out to hear Bishop McFaul deliver the aniversary sermon, in spite of the forbidding weather. Many of the church people went to North Plainfield in the afternoon to take part in the ceremonies attendant on the laying of the cornerstone of Mt. St. Mary's college.

Drunk and Disorderly in Borough.

Patrick O'Donnell and James Kenisky, of this city, were arrested in the borough Saturday night by Marshals Charles Keller and William Kiernan, charged with being drunk and disorderly. They were released on bail to appear for a hearing at 7 o'clock tonight before Recorder Dolliver.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The short lane leading from Park avenue to the borough fire house which was named "West 85th street," at the Vincent-Hoar hearing, before Mayor Babcock, Thursday night, will probably always be known by its given nick-name. Some practical joker sometime Friday night placed two large street signs on the telephone pole on the corner. The lettering of "West 85th street" could be read a block away and the borough residents passed beneath with happy and contented smiles.

"A Box of Monkeys," a short farce, rendered by a number of young people from Garwood, in the borough fire house, Saturday night, was enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience. The farce was preceded by a short musical programme, those taking part being Mrs. C. H. Vincent, Mrs. J. H. Thompson, Mrs. James H. Buckley and Prof. H. S. Mygrant, the well known cornetist. The entertainment was given under the auspices of the Rector's Guild of All Saints' church.

The bad weather could not interfere with the parish of St. Mary's church, Stony Hill, observing the sixtieth anniversary of the church yesterday. The exercises were attended by a number from here. The sermon at the morning service was preached by Rt. Rev. James A. McFaul, bishop of the diocese. In the afternoon the members attended the exercises at the laying of the corner-stone for the new convent.

Clinton Avenue won from the locals Saturday afternoon at Crescent Oval by the score 5-2. The home team did not have its batting eye with them and Randolph, who was in fine form, fanned fifteen men. Frentz, who was doing the work for the locals was in poor form and was replaced by Hewitt in the sixth inning. This ended Clinton Avenue scoring, but the game was lost.

The local fans will have the pleasure of witnessing three games this week on the home grounds. Decoration Day morning the visitors will be the Roselle A. C. team; in the afternoon the locals play Bound Brook, game scheduled in the regular amateur league. Saturday afternoon is an off-league day and a game has been arranged with the Star A. C. team, of Newark.

Park avenue presented the appearance of a wild western mining camp Saturday afternoon, and then they say the town does not need police protection. An officer on duty would soon have put an end to the Olsen-MacCauley fight before there was any chance to use a knife.

Squier Reick, who was hit on the hand by Randolph in the game Saturday afternoon, will probably be out of the game for a week or two, the index finger being badly bruised and lacerated.

Notwithstanding the bad weather yesterday many from here attended the laying of the corner-stone at Mt. St. Mary's College on Mountain avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Stillger, of Brooklyn, were the guests over Sunday of Mr. Stillger's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Stillger, of Front street.

Miss Nancy Wade led an interesting missionary meeting of the Epworth League held last night in the Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. James Pope, of Plainfield, were the guests over Sunday of Mrs. Pope's mother, Mrs. John R. Marsh.

The Twilight A. C. defeated the Potter team on the local diamond Saturday afternoon by the score of 23-12.

The members of the Port Watch Society met yesterday afternoon in the parlors of the Baptist church.

The weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. was held as usual last night in the parlors of the church.

Visitor's Remark Tended to Reduce "Swelled Head."

There are men in high positions in New York who are a credit to them only in their business ability. One of that sort came to the city a dozen or more years ago from a western town, where he made his start. A gentlemen who had known him in his less pretentious days called on him recently. "I simply called to pay my respects," he said, going a little lame at the reception he received. "I have no axes to grind and no favors to ask. You may have forgotten me, but I met you several times on business visits to your old town, and I thought I'd like to see how you were taking to the metropolis." "Yes, yes," responded the man at the desk, picking up a paper, as if he were very busy, and speaking in the tone of the person who sizes up other people on their material possibilities. And that's all he said. The visitor shook himself and got a fresh hold. "Yes," he said, turning to go, "I called to pay my respects, but I discovered that I don't owe any. Good-morning." Then he walked out, and the big man had a more uncomfortable feeling than had come to him since he had been in the big city.—N. Y. Press.

Peculiarity of Humanity That Is Not Generally Considered.

Most people would think that as man is, with very few exceptions, "right-handed," he would be at the same time "right-legged." But this is not the case. Almost every right-handed man uses his left leg more than his right. For instance, most people find it much more natural to go round circles to the right than to the left. That is because they start with the left leg. Being stronger, it is more readily brought into action, and it is on this account that bodies of soldiery always start to march with the left foot. Almost all courses for foot races are made out for running to the right, and dancers will indorse the statement that the majority of movements are far more easily executed in this direction. The left foot is the one that is placed in the stirrup for mounting a horse, and in jumping, it is from the left foot that the athlete "takes off." Thus it will be seen that, as a general rule, "right-handed" people are "left-legged."

Public Gifts for Beauty.

Everett H. Barney, a millionaire of Springfield, Mass., has just deeded an estate and a fortune to the city as the beginning of a scheme of local beautification. The plans include a boulevard and park system to extend two miles along the Connecticut river. Cooperation is called for on the part of the municipality and by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad. Mr. Barney's act and William P. Letchworth's splendid gift of a park reservation to the state of New York, recorded thus early in 1907, seem to promise a rare turn to the benefactions of the year. It has been charged that our rich men show no imagination, but only method in their giving; that they follow routine though extremely useful lines of philanthropy in endowing colleges, libraries and churches. If they are to pay a good deal of attention hereafter to the promotion of cities beautiful and to the preservation of nature's own art galleries, this point of criticism will have to be abandoned.

Owes His Life to Umbrella.

During the Franco-German war a man owed his life to an umbrella. He was so obviously a foreigner that the French arrested him as a German spy. He swore that he was English, but was disbelieved. A drumhead court-martial sentenced him to instant execution. As they led him away he insisted on returning, as he had left something. He could not return, they told him; he was now going to be shot. But he must go back, he declared. What had he left? they asked. "My umbrella," he said. They were instantly convinced that no one but an Englishman could be so helpless an idiot. He was at once liberated.

Fought Bears with Axes.

Two woodchoppers, armed with axes, had a battle with a huge black bear and four partially grown cubs on Mt. Pico, says a Rutland (Vt.) correspondent of the New York Times. They killed two cubs, but the mother and other cubs got away. Luther Weeks and his son Clinton felled a large tree and it crashed down into a clump of bushes. Angry growls followed, and the four bears, who had been hibernating under the bushes, made for the men. The men fought and won. The cubs that were killed weighed 100 pounds each. The men declare the old bear was fully eight feet long and would weigh about 500 pounds.

Permanent Employment.

Old Sam had been for several days patiently sitting on the bank of the Rappahannock river, near the dam, holding his shotgun in his hand. Finally he attracted the attention of a passer-by, who asked: "Well, Uncle Sam, are you looking for something to do?" "No, sah," answered Sam; "I'se gettin' paid for what I's doin'." "Indeed!" answered the stranger. "And what may that be?" "Shootin' de muskrats dat am underminin' de dam," answered Sam. "Well, there goes one now," exclaimed the stranger excitedly. "Why don't you shoot it?" "S'pose I wants to lose my job, sah?" answered Sam complacently.

Musical at All Souls' Church.

A musical entertainment will be given at All Souls' Unitarian church, tomorrow night at 8:15 o'clock. Mrs. William B. Miles, of Summit, has consented to play several piano solos and Mrs. Guy Bender, the church soprano, will sing. There will also be several selections by the church quartette. Refreshments will be served afterward.

Hebrew Association Elects.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association met in its rooms last night and elected these officers for the coming year: President, M. Moledesky; vice president, Harry Rosenbaum; secretary, Samuel Rottberg; treasurer, Edward Nadel; sergeant at arms, I. H. Rottberg. A social followed the business meeting.

Victor Crook Injured.

Victor Crook, aged nine years, of South avenue, fell through a glass door at his home last night, severely cutting his wrist. The lad was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, where prompt treatment stopped a severe hemorrhage. He will be detained at the hospital for a few days.

Business Trip to Scotland.

John Morton, of West Front street, will sail on Saturday on the Steamship Columbia, of the Anchor Line, for a business trip to Scotland. He will also visit Ireland while away and will return home abou the middle of July.

Gleason Was Drunk.

Michael Gleason, arrested for drunkenness at Watchung avenue and Front street, Saturday night, was arraigned in the city court this morning. Sentence was suspended.

The Junior Society, of the Congregational church will hold a Missionary May-pole entertainment on the church lawn tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. If the weather is not clear by 12 o'clock noon, the entertainment will be postponed until Friday afternoon at the same hour. A silver offering will be received.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Buy what coal you need, at all seasons of the year, of John Johnston, South avenue. No better quality sold anywhere.

Better than all the spring medicine you can take is a Turkish bath. Get one at Brookside sanitarium, Somerset street.

There is perfection in every detail of the service afforded by D. Demolli & Co., West Front street, caterers. Finest of French baking.

Buy milk and cream where you can count on the quality and purity. Those who get theirs of Marchant Bros. are assured of both virtues.

The Belle Mead sweets are the finest on the market. They will fill your sweet tooth acceptably. At P. B. Hodge's pharmacy, East Front street.

Clayton M. Naegle, the West Front street druggist, carries a full line of drugs and medicines, toilet articles, cigars, while his prescription work is first class.

If you have never had a meal at Timbo's restaurant you have no idea what you have missed. Excellent service with a change of menu every day are features.

Putnam & DeGraw, the West Front street dry goods merchants, are offering a fine line of goods for women as well as men's furnishings. Prices are right.

Charles Conover & Co., of Elmwood place, painters and decorators, are prepared to give you estimates on the best work. The firm's line of wall-papers is very attractive.

The Peck way of doing business is the way that makes for substantial and lasting success. The best values are given at the lowest rates, and the friendship engendered between merchant and customer is of a lasting character.

Start to save now and your savings will save you in other days. It is foolish to spend all your money. Practically no one earns too little to save some of his earnings. The Plainfield Trust Company will make your savings grow safely.

There is no question, ever, as to the quality of the meats and poultry to be procured at the store of Fred Endress, West Front street. The quality is of the finest. Deliveries always made at the requested hour.

L. W. Randolph's famous witch hazel and benzoin soap is one of the big sellers. It is the best values for the price ever put on the market. By the way you can get reliable drugs and medicines at this pharmacy and a full line of toilet articles always in stock.

The H. E. Gayle Hardware Company offers a large line of garden tools, farming implements, housefurnishing goods, cutlery and everything to be found in a first-class store of this kind. You will not only find the goods all right, but the prices attractive.

Have you bought your spring shoes yet? Have you a taste for a nicely shaped low-cut shoe? Satisfy it at M. C. Van Arsdale's store, East Front street, without giving your pocketbook a shock. All the latest shapes. The Van Arsdale line is the best to be found in Plainfield.

Roth & Co., of East Front street, are among the largest purveyors of meat and provisions in the State. The firm conducts many stores and being heavy buyers it is easily explained why it can sell the best at such low prices. Remember this when you need anything in this line.

Quality and Price

The two vital questions in your piano purchase are, first, quality; second, price. An unsatisfactory piano, in tone and action, is the most annoying article you can have in your home. You dislike to be expending money on it continually to keep it in playing condition.

Hallett & Davis Pianos

give permanent satisfaction. Come in and examine our new Style B.

We are sure you will have none other than this piano.

The price is ..... $350.

Dooms Nineteen Men.

Mexico City, Via Galveston, Texas, May 27.—Nineteen men, including two Mexicans, one Spaniard, two Italians and one Belgian, have been sentenced to death in Guatemala City for complicity in the attempt to kill President Estrada Cabrera by means of mines. These sentences were imposed after the arch-conspirators had committed suicide, preferring death at their own hands rather than fall into the power of the Guatemalan President. Immediately following the announcement of the sentences members of the Diplomatic Corps held a meeting of protest, at which it was decided that each member individually should call upon Cabrera and ask for annulment of the sentences. It was also decided that in case this step failed to obtain the desired result a collective note signed by all the members of the corps be presented to the Guatemalan government.

$5,000 Ring for Bail.

New York, May 27.—Mrs. Arthur B. Twombly, of No. 27 West Fifty-fifth street, yesterday afternoon, put up a $5,000 diamond ring as security for her chauffeur, who had been arrested on the charge of speeding on the viaduct, at 155th street. With Mrs. Twombly at the time of the arrest were two other women. The party was returning from a spin in the country in Mrs. Twombly's big touring car and had just turned into the viaduct from Central Bridge when Sergeant Whitney, of the 152d street station, ordered Thomas Williams, the chauffeur, to stop. Mrs. Twombly told the chauffeur to obey, and the sergeant ordered him to go to the station house. It was charged by the sergeant that the maching was going twenty miles an hour.

Crown Gets Big Fortune.

Washington, D. C., May 27.—Arthur Delroy, an English barrister, who recently came to the United States to search for heirs to the famous De Golia estate in England, will soon return to report that his search has been in vain. As a result, the bulk of the $6,000,000 De Golia fortune will probably revert to the British crown. Mr. Delroy's mission to America disclosed that John Cook, a nephew of Mr. De Golia, died in the Government Hospital for the insane here in 1900. His only living relative is his sister, Sarah Cook, an inmate of the Norfolk (Va.) Hospital for the Insane, who is unable to enjoy any of the vast wealth in her own life. A sufficient sum will be turned over to the hospital authorities for her support.

Black Hand Suicide.

New York, May 27.—Convinced the evidence in possession of Assistant District Attorney Elder would send him to the electric chair, Rocco Panagiro, one of the three members of the Black Hand indicted for the murder of Gaetano Costa in his butcher shop, Fourth avenue and Thirty-second street, on the night of October 11, 1905, committed suicide yesterday morning by hanging himself with his belt to a bar in the roof of his cell in Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn. As a result of Panagiro's act the other principal in the murder Ciro Carguillo, alias Genaro Esposito, decided to save himself from the death chair by pleading guilty to murder in the second degree.

Varsity Regatta on Cayuga Lake Decoration Day.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad will sell tickets at one fare plus $1.00 for the round trip from South Plainfield to Ithaca and return. Tickets sold May 28-29, return limit May 31. Good on all trains except the Black Diamond Express. The race of the Cornell-Harvard first Varsity crews will be the principal event. Observation train will follow the races along the lake side, tickets for which can be purchased at Lehigh Valley ticket office, Ithaca. See Lehigh Valley ticket agent, 218 West Front street, for particulars. 5 20 8

Yeggmen Terrorize Town.

Rochester, N. Y., May 27.—An attempt was made at one o'clock Friday morning by a band of armed yeggmen to loot and terrorize the city of Hornell, as a result of which John Hendy, night watchman of the Hornell Street Railway Company, was fatally shot, several citizens were injured and three yeggmen, Joseph Carroll, of Brooklyn; Raymond English, of Rochester; and Harry Thomas, of New York city, were arrested, English and Thomas having been filled full of buckshot in a running fight with the police.

'Frisco Indictments.

San Francisco, May 27.—The Grand Jury yesterday found indictments for bribery against these men: Eugene E. Schmitz, Mayor of San Francisco; Patrick Calhoun, president of the United Railroads; Thornwell Mullaly, assistant to the president of the United Railroads; Tirey L. Ford, chief counsel for the United Railroads; Abraham Ruef; William M. Abbott, attorney for the United Railroads. These men, all prominent in the city's affairs, must stand trial, and if convicted they must go to the penitentiary.

Decoration Day Excursion to Niagara Falls.

The Lehigh Valley Railroad will sell tickets at special low fare of $9.00 round trip from South Plainfield. Good going May 29, returning until May 31 on all trains except the Black Diamond Express. See Lehigh Valley ticket agent, 218 West Front street, for particulars.

The Mystery of Carneycroft

BY JOSEPH BROWN COOKE. COPYRIGHT 1907 BY STORY-PRESS CORPORATION

"Well," he returned, grinning, "she'll have to live here without servants until you get this business cleared up. She may be satisfied that there is nothing supernatural about these midnight visitations, but she won't get a servant to stay on the place while there's any hocus-pocus going on."

We were on our way back from the railway station, and, coming to the brow of the hill, we could look down across the valley and see the grim gray walls of the Carney mansion through the occasional openings in the foliage as it waved in the gentle morning breeze. To one side, and less than a mile away, was the Widow Bruce's cottage, and I pointed it out again to MacArdel.

"Let's go over there," he said, briefly. "I want to see her."

We tramped across the fields and over the fences of stone and brush, soiling our boots, tearing our clothing, and decorating ourselves with a generously distributed collection of burrs, which clung to our garments with a tenacity wonderful to believe.

A sharp knock at the cottage door was answered by a pleasant-faced, motherly appearing woman of about 45, who spoke with a marked English accent. MacArdel took the initiative and introduced us without delay.

"This is Mr. Ware," he said, "the attorney of the Carney estate, and I am his friend, Dr. MacArdel."

The widow bobbed up and down like a duck in a puddle and invited us into the house with a great show of ceremony.

"No, thank you," said MacArdel. "We won't come in. We've just been taking a morning stroll over the hills and we stopped to ask if you could do some washing for us. You know we've been stopping over at the house for a couple of days and the sheets and things are so musty that we thought we had better have some of them washed and aired out. We can get along to-night again, but if you could get some of the things back to us tomorrow we wish you would."

Mrs. Bruce was quite willing to do us this favor, and MacArdel told her to call for the things at six that evening, explaining that we would not return to the house until that hour.

As we left the cottage and wandered on down the hill, MacArdel said:

"She don't look half bad, after all. I confess I expected to see a very different sort of woman."

A moment later he muttered as if to himself: "We'll get the story out of her, though, or I'll miss my guess," beyond which sage remark he became absolutely uncommunicative on the entire subject.

We kept our word about returning to the place before evening, and, after lunching at Hoskins' and taking a row on the river in the afternoon, we arrived at the house a little after five to await the appearance of Mrs. Bruce. MacArdel had been far from talkative for some time, when suddenly he said:

"Ware, go back to the village right away! Send two or three meaningless telegrams to your office within an hour or so. Tell it around that unless you receive a reply before ten o'clock we will both have to return to town on the midnight train. I'll stay here and attend to the widow when she comes."

"Of course I won't get any reply if my messages are meaningless," I exclaimed, in amazement. "What on earth are you driving at?"

"Never mind about that," said MacArdel. "Just do as I tell you and be mighty careful to so word your message that no one can make any sense out of them, but be sure to send them to your own office. Then they'll look like cipher dispatches. Now, when ten o'clock comes and no answer, get hold of this fellow Jenks and make him drive up here along with you to get our things. He may pretend he's afraid, but he'll come willingly enough, especially if you offer to pay him well."

"What's That Got to Do with It?"

I did as I was told, and shortly after ten o'clock, Jenks and I drove up to the house and found MacArdel waiting for us on the veranda.

"Hello, Ware!" he called out, cheerfly. "Didn't you get that message from town?"

"No," I responded shortly. "I wired them three times myself, but I couldn't get any reply."

"S'pose we'll have to get started tonight, then," said MacArdel. "The trunk is all ready. Will your horse stand, Jenks?"

"Will ef some one holds him," said Jenks, sullenly.

"All right," said MacArdel, ignoring the fellow's surly manner. "Get hold of his head, Ware, and Jenks and I will fetch the trunk."

The man clambered down from his seat, slowly and unwillingly, and as he did so the moonlight fell on his injured hand and illuminated the crudely applied bandage.

"Why, what's this, man?" exclaimed MacArdel, with interest. "Have you hurt yourself?"

"Nothin's but a scratch," replied Jenks, gruffly. "Got dragged agin a nail in th' barn last night."

"Let me look at it," said MacArdel. "I'm a doctor, you know," and he reached for the injured member and grasped it firmly at the wrist. An instant later Jenks went spinning through the air with MacArdel astride of his chest, holding him firmly to the ground.

"Wonderful what an hour a day at the gymnasium will do for a fellow," said MacArdel, when he had regained his breath. "There's a bit of rope there on the step Ware. Give it here and help me tie him. He's wriggling like the devil."

"Hope I didn't hurt you, Jenks," said MacArdel, apologetically, when we had him securely pinioned. "I just want to have a little quiet talk with you, but I'm not quite ready yet."

We let the fellow up and seated him in a chair passing the hitching strap from the wagon about his waist for greater security.

"By the way, Jenks," said MacArdel, as we were performing this last thoughtful act. "Nobody can hear you if you shout, but don't do it, anyway, or I'll have to gag you. Mr. Ware and I have some matters to discuss and we don't want to be disturbed."

We sat and talked about everything under the sun except Carney-Croft and its affairs, while I marveled at MacArdel's actions, but was unable to question him as to his plans or objects in the presence of the conquered Jenks.

MacArdel consulted his watch with gradually increasing frequency, and, finally, when the hands pointed to ten minutes before 12, he said abruptly:

"Ware, you take this fellow down to the path where the ghosts come out and I'll go and get the widow. I've got her locked up in the house."

The behavior of Jenks was remarkable to witness, as MacArdel uttered these words for, although his capture and that of his accomplice effectually prevented the reappearance of the ghost, at least on this occasion, he could not have shown more evidences of genuine terror if he had expected to encounter an army of specters. After some difficulty I succeeded in getting him to rise, and, with his arms snugly bound behind his back, he shambled with trembling legs down under the trees where we were joined in another moment by MacArdel and Mrs. Bruce.

The two guilty ones did not look at each other, but stood in sullen defiance waiting for what might come next. MacArdel placed them side by side, and, as we faced them, he began:

"You two have been circulating ghost stories about this place all over the country. You've even been here yourselves at midnight, wrapped up in sheets and trying to scare people out of their wits and injure this property. You were here last night and when we shot at you we hit you, Jenks, and wounded your hand. You dropped the sheets and a lot of other things and then you came back and got them all after we had gone to bed. You can't deny it, Jenks, for we found them in your wagon this morning, while you were asleep. Now, there's more than this," continued MacArdel. "There has been some queer doings inside the house, too, and you've got some way of getting in and playing your tricks."

He stopped speaking and eyed them closely for a moment before going on. Then he resumed, slowly and impressively:

"But there's something even worse than all this to be explained, and we are going to find out about the whole matter if we have to keep you here all night. Several of the pieces of cloth in that bundle have been used for something else than making ghost clothes. You know what they've been used for and—"

"Oh, my God, help me!" screamed Jenks, and before I could reach him, he reeled and fell forward on his face. As I turned to his aid I saw the same pair of filmy figures glide slowly past us but with increasing speed as they neared the river, where, on the previous night, they suddenly vanished before our eyes.

Mrs. McKinley Has Vision.

Canton, Ohio, May 27.—Surgeon General Rixey announced last night there was no danger of the immediate death of Mrs. Ida Saxton McKinley, widow of President McKinley. He said she was still very weak, but might live several days or a week or more. That her early death is inevitable there seems to be no doubt. A serious relapse, the physicians say, would be followed by almost immediate death. During her rallies yesterday the patient had hallucinations. She imagined she saw "the Major," as she always called her husband, seated beside her in a chair, with his hand stretched out to grasp her's. When the illusion faded away, and she saw the empty chair as it was, she had been mercifully spared the aching sense of loss that has never before left her mind.

Somerset Teachers Meet.

The quarterly meeting of the Somerset County Teachers' Association was held Saturday in K. of P. Hall at Neshanic Station. C. G. Horner, supervising principal of the schools of Branchburg township and president of the Association, was in charge. The speakers were Judge Louis H. Schenck, of the Somerset County courts and Rev. John Hart, pastor of the Reformed church at Neshanic. Luncheon was served by the people of the village in the hall, after which the teachers and their friends boarded a special train and were taken to the estate of James B. Duke, near Somerville, where the afternoon was spent in sight-seeing.

McLaughlin Leaves Force.

New York, May 27.—William W. McLaughlin, stormy petrel of the Police Department and one of the most picturesque characters ever connected with it, was retired Friday at his own request, and at midnight he ceased to be a captain of police. His application for retirement when at any moment charges might have been brought against him for alleged irregularities in connection with the Howard Gould divorce case while commanding the Detective Bureau was a surprise to Mulberry street. It had been confidently predicted that the survivor of many storms would not quit until the present sea of trouble was calmed.

$20,000 for an Eye.

New York, May 27.—Alexander Regnier, who fell through a hatchway on the steamship the Gascogne and was injured so that the sight of his left eye is gone and that of the right impaired, won a verdict of $30,000 in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday. He sued the Campagnie Generale Transatlantique for $20,000 damages.

Breaks Leg Saving Cat.

South Norwalk, Conn., May 27.—Mrs. Herbert V. Carr, wife of a prominent contractor of No. 13 Winfield street, fractured her right leg in two places yesterday morning in a fight with a copperhead adder, three feet long, which had seized her pet kitten by the tail. After Mrs. Carr had freed the cat she turned to flee, but fell and broke her leg.

Avenges Father's Death.

Itasca, Texas, May 27.—Avenging the death of his father, Frank Maner, the crippled son of the late Dr. L. Maner, shot and killed E. E. Griffin, a banker of Itasca, on the street yesterday. Griffin had killed Dr. Maner two years ago in a street duel, which took place near the scene of this later tragedy.

It is now time to get busy about securing your summer suit of clothes and the place to buy it is at Weinberger's clothing store on West Front street. The stock is large and complete and correct as to style and make, while the prices are very low. A full line of men's furnishings in stock, including straw hats.

SCOTCH PLAINS BESTED BY CLINTON AVENUES

PLAINFIELD TEAM SQUARES ACCOUNTS BY A SCORE OF 5 TO 2.

Clinton Avenue squared accounts with Scotch Plains Saturday afternoon, winning a well-played game by a score of 5 to 2. There was a good-sized attendance, the Crescent Oval bore something of a resemblance to the old days when the ball works hummed in full blast. Lively rooting by an earnest band of Clinton Avenue fans added to the conviction that the league was working toward a wholesome revival of interest in home industries on the part of the fans.

The West End athletes had the game well in hand from the start. Clif. Randolph was in thorough form, and the suburban contingent winced and wilted under his withering fire. Errors saved them from the calsomine. Frentz was not effective, and Tune Hewitt took his place in the box. He was a bit wild, and suffered a jolt or two, but he performed as if his old-time form was still in his system and on the verge of blossoming forth again.

The feature of the game was the batting of Billy Giles. He clouted the leather safely every time he swung his stick, showing that the hitting was not an accidental streak by working up to a three-bagger. Mehaffey made a remarkable stop and shut off a run at the plate.

DRISCOLL'S TEAM DEFEATS WESTFIELD

FORMER COUNTY CHAMPS. LOST WHEN THEIR PITCHER WEAKENED IN THE 7TH

Westfield lost to Elizabeth in the Lackawanna League, Saturday, by a score of 8 to 6. The game was transferred from Elizabeth to Recreation Park. The cool afternoon prevented a large attendance. Westfield had the game won up to the seventh inning, when Ortleib weakened and sent three men to base on balls. This, coupled with two hits, did the trick for Elizabeth. Neither team played in form. The game was slow and long-drawn out. Westfield is tied with Elizabeth, Chatham and Dover, with .333 per cent.

DUNELLEN LEAGUERS BLANKED BY LAURELS

BOUND BROOK TEAM BEATS THEM BY 4 TO 0 SCORE.

The Laurels, of Bound Brook, whitewashed Dunellen in their first Inter-City Amateur League contest at Dunellen, Saturday afternoon, the score being 4 to 0. The visitors gathered seven hits off Sanford and Van Arsdale, while Harney held his opponents to four hits, and besides made a two-base hit and struck out fourteen batsmen. It was his effective box work that killed Dunellen's chances for winning, although they played a remarkably up-hill contest. They were weak with the stick and the four singles were well scattered.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

A male quartette, comprising H. J. Martin, E. D. Young, W. C. Leek and Philip A. Vroom, sang very acceptably at the consecration meeting of the Young People's Society Christian Endeavor in Trinity Reformed church, last night.

Instead of the annual musical, the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church has arranged to give an entertainment in the parlors of the church tomorrow night. The programme will be suggestive of the spring-time, partly musical, and something pleasing by the children. The public is invited. A silver offering will be received as was the custom at the musicales.

Will Attend Sunday-school Institute.

The Sunday-school Teachers' Union which meets at the Y. M. C. A. Monday nights, will not meet there tonight, having accepted the invitation of the Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union to attend its twelfth annual institute at the First Baptist church.

Will Manage City Restaurant.

John Auten, formerly clerk at the Hotel Kensington, has secured a position with the Coddington Restaurant Company, of New York, as manager for one of the company's restaurants in New York. He enters upon his new duties Saturday.

Christian Church Fair Closes.

The fair which was held at the Christian church on Grove street, several days last week, closed Friday night. It was a great success, financially and otherwise.

Miss Catharin Utley, of New York, spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Craft, of Kensington avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rockfellow, of West Second street, entertained Mr. and Mrs. William Koyer, of Newark, yesterday.

Miss Nannie Rodman, of East Orange, has been visiting at the home of her grandfather, Rev. E. M. Rodman, of East Seventh street.

The First and Probably Last Time In His Life.

Recently some one in Missouri has sent me a picture of the house I was born in. Heretofore I have always stated that it was a palace, but I shall be more guarded now. I remember only one circumstance connected with my life in it. I remember it very well, though I was but 2½ years old at the time. The family packed up everything and started in wagons for Hannibal, on the Mississippi, 30 miles away. Toward night, when they camped and counted up the children, one was missing. I had been left behind. Parents ought always to count the children before they start. I was having a good time playing by myself until I found that the doors were fastened and that there was a grisly deep silence brooding over the place. I knew, then, that the family were gone and that they had forgotten me. I was well frightened and I made all the noise I could, but no one was near and it did no good. I spent the afternoon in captivity and was not rescued until the gloaming had fallen and the place was alive with ghosts.—From Mark Twain's Autobiography in the North American Review.

OF COURSE HE LOVED HER.

But the Reason He Gave Was Not Very Satisfying.

"Paul Bourget, the French novelist," said a magazine editor, "thinks he understands American women. He is continually writing essays about them. Were I a woman these essays would make me mad. But Bourget does understand American men pretty well. Once at a dinner that Richard Harding Davis gave in his honor Bourget handed to our men a singularly large and acrid lemon. He said that we are too lax and boorish toward our wives. He said we often treated a pretty, yellow-haired typewriter girl hired yesterday with more gentleness and courtesy than we gave to wives of 20 or 30 years' standing. He instanced the case of a man who sat reading the evening paper one night, a cigar in his mouth and his feet on the sofa. 'Darling,' said his wife, 'do you love me?' 'Yes, he answered without looking up. 'As much as ever?' 'Sure,' said the man, as he struck a match and relighted his cigar. 'Why?' the woman pursued tenderly. 'Oh, I don't know,' said he. 'Habit, I suppose.'"

Patrons of the Coutts Bank.

The Coutts bank in London, founded in 1692, with which the name of the late Lady Burdett-Coutts will be forever connected, enjoys the distinction of having had a larger number of sovereigns as customers and more nobles as partners than any other institution of the kind in the world. The first royal customer of the bank was King George II. of England and after him every English monarch in turn has banked there, including Edward VII., as well as five kings and one emperor of France, a German emperor and his widow, the late Empress Frederick, the present Queen Christina of Spain and Czar Alexander II.

Lucifer.

The word "Lucifer," found in Isaiah xiv, 12, coupled with the epithet "son of the morning," clearly signifies a "bright star" and probably what we call the morning star. In this passage it is a symbolical representation of the King of Babylon in his splendor and his fall. Its application, from St. Jerome downwards, to Satan, in his fall from heaven, arises probably from the fact that the Babylonian empire is in scripture represented as the type of tyrannical and self-idolizing power, and especially connected with the empire of the Evil One in the Apocalypse.

Art Values.

Mr. Joshby (in front of fake art store)—Gee-whizz! Twenty-four dollars and fifty cents fer that there picture an' it's marked down from one hundred an' twenty-five dollars at that! I wonder what makes it so dear? Mrs. Joshby—Why, don't yew see that there other sign on it that sez "hand-painted?" Mr. Joshby—That's what puzzles me; I could easy understand them askin' that much fer it if it wuz painted by some armless wonder.—Puck.

He Got His.

"Where you been?" growled Mr. Titewadd. "Downtown," answered his wife. "What kep' you?" "Oh, I met a woman that I haven't seen for ten years." "Um." "She didn't look a day older, however," "While you have been so ground down that she didn't know you, I s'pose?" snarled the churlish husband. "Oh, yes, she knew me in a minute. Recognized me by my bonnet, you know." Then the brute subsided.

Invisible Building.

Life is a building. It rises slowly, day by day, through the years. Every new lesson we learn lays a block on the edifice which is rising silently within us. Every experience, every touch of another life on ours, every influence that impresses us, every book we read, every conversation we have, every act of our commonest days, adds something to the invisible building—Rev. J. R. Miller.

Relationship.

"After all, remarked Mr. Cumrox, "there is a certain relation between finance and poetry." "In what way?" "In both so much depends on capitalization and making things sound right."

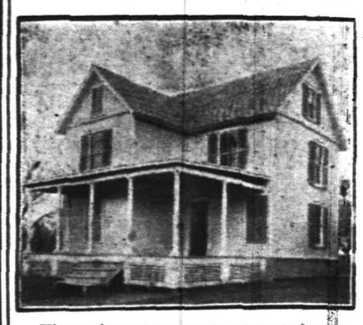
NEW SYSTEM OF BUILDING.

A MARVEL IN THE SCIENCE OF CONSTRUCTION.

A method far in advance of anything formerly used in the preparation of the different parts of a house when erected in sections, making it easy to construct any design of a house, and a very superior house for all seasons, countries and climates at a great reduction in cost.



These houses are constructed principally from the best kiln dried lumber in a factory entirely protected from weather, where best high speed woodworking machines are used for cutting and shaping of every piece, reducing cost for mechanics fully one-half, making a superior house when finished.

Houses or other structures erected under this system make the warmest houses in winter, and the strongest building that can be constructed with any material, the fiercest storm fails to cause any vibration whatever. They are adapted to receive all improvements, plumbing, lighting, heating, etc., when desired.

A new method of lath and plaster is used for interior finish, making a perfect indestructable wall superior to anything ever before used.

SEARCHING FOR HUSBAND

Mrs. Sutphen Has Not Given Up Hope Of Finding Missing Man.

NEWSPAPER TO AID

Wants Her Husband to Come to Home of His Uncle In This City—Wife and Daughter Grieving.

Still searching for her missing husband, Charles C. Sutphen, who disappeared September 26, 1906, from a farm in North Branch, Mrs. M. M. Sutphen, who is now living with Sutphen's uncle, John Stryker, 311 Lyman place, has appealed to a New York evening paper to help her in the hunt.

Mrs. Sutphen says her husband acted like a person who was losing his mind just before his disappearance. She thought he might have come to Plainfield to make a personal appeal for assistance to Chief Kiely. The chief set all his machinery in motion, but was unable to get a trace of the missing man. The police are convinced that if Sutphen came here, he did not stay any length of time, and did not show himself to anyone who knew him.

Lately Mrs. Sutphen heard her husband was seen in New York. She made her appeal to the New York paper on the strength of that information, and is hopeful that the wide publicity given to her husband's disappearance and his description may lead to his discovery. She wants Sutphen to come to the home of his uncle in this city. Mrs. Sutphen and her daughter are grief-stricken because of his absence.

Sutphen is six feet tall, weighs about 160 pounds, has a high forehead, blue eyes and a sandy mustache. There is said to be no reason for his disappearance excepting a disordered mind.

NON-SUPPORTING HUSBANDS ARRAIGNED BEFORE JUSTICE.

One Agrees to Pay $5 a Week to His Wife But a Second Balks.

John Journeaux and Martin Duffy, residents of the borough, were arraigned before Justice Clark Mundy, last night, on charges of non-support preferred by their wives. Journeaux agreed to contribute $5 a week toward the support of his better-half, and Justice Mundy placed him under bond to keep his word.

Duffy was not so willing to enter into an agreement to support his wife, and he appeared with his lawyer, William G. DeMeza, prepared to fight the case. Mrs. Duffy was represented by V. W. Nash, Jr., as counsel. Justice Mundy placed Duffy under $100 bonds to appear for a hearing next Monday night.

Final Accounting for Martine Dinner.

General Dennis F. Collins, chairman of the Union County Democratic Committee has issued a call for a meeting of the committee tonight at the headquarters of the organization 78 Broad street, Elizabeth, when final returns of all tickets for the Martine dinner must be made. A list of all ticket-holders will be made up so that they may appear on the menu card. The call states that the dinner is to surpass anything of the kind heretofore undertaken.

Change of Moving Pictures.

Manager Counihan announces a complete change of programme in the moving picture show at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight. All new films have been provided by the Shepard Company and new illustrated songs will be rendered by another vocalist from the city. This "continuous" form of entertainment has proven popular with the Plainfield people and is to be continued by Manager Counihan indefinitely.

Grip Plus Whiskey.

John Bishop, arraigned before Judge Runyon in the city court this morning, charged with helpless drunkenness, told the magistrate that grip was the cause of his appearance. He said he took two drinks of whiskey to fight the germs, and the germs must have gotten the best of it. He seemed to feel the disgrace keenly, and Judge Runyon suspended sentence.

Telephone Employes' Dance.

The employes of the telephone company connected with the local exchange will given their first annual dance in Saengerbund Hall tomorrow night. SHAKESPEARE CAPSULES FOR SOCIETY AUDIENCE

MARSHALL DARRACH GIVES FINISHED RECITAL OF "THE TEMPEST" AT CASINO

Marshall Darrach entertained a fashionable audience at the Casino, yesterday afternoon, with his recital of "The Tempest." The attendance was large, in spite of the dripping skies.

Mr. Darrach is a finished interpreter of Shakespearean characters, and he feels the spirit of the lines. His reading was one to be treasured in the memories of the Shakespeare lovers who were fortunate enough to hear him. He was illuminating, and his skillful reading lent new, or at least renewed, beauty to favorite passages.

Few artists in Mr. Darrach's field equal him in finding and holding the happy means between the lecturer and the actor that is essential to the success of a Shakespeare recital. His reading was smooth, and his work all through was completely successful.

AUGUST WINDHAM DEAD.

Passed Away Suddenly at His Home Last Night.

August Windham, aged sixty-five years, brother of Henry Windham, proprietor of the Hotel Waldorf, died suddenly last night at his home, 57 Fairview avenue, from acute Bright's disease. Mr. Windham had been ailing since last August and was a great sufferer. Only a few minutes before his death he was about his room and he spoke to all the members of the family just before passing away.

Mr. Windham was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Henry Windham, and was born in Holland. Prior to moving to this city, twelve years ago, he was engaged for many years in the grocery business in New York. When he came here he retired from business. He was identified with the German Lutheran church, of New York.

Mrs. Windham died two years ago and surviving are three sons, Augustus, Charles and Edward Windham, and three daughters, the Misses Louise, Florence and Emma Windham. The funeral arrangements have not been made.

TO GET SIX LATHES.

Additional Equipment for Manual Training Class of Borough High School.

The North Plainfield Board of Education, at its meeting last night, authorized the purchase of six lathes for the manual training department. The machines cost $42 a piece.

The commencement committee reported that all arrangements for the hire of the hall had been completed, and that correspondence as to the speaker was being conducted. Full plans for the affair have not yet been made.

An appropriation of $10 was voted to the seniors for class day exercises. A number of bills were ordered paid.

Charity Workers Consider Cases.

The Board of Trustees of the Charity Organized Society, of Plainfield and North Plainfield, met last night at the home of Mrs. Dexter Tiffany, of Crescent avenue, to consider several cases for assistance which were presented by the agent, Miss Margaret Holly. Since the merger of the Plainfield Relief Association and the Charity Organized Aid Association, and the appointment of new committees, there has been little to do in the way of relief. Miss Holly had five or six needy cases to present and the trustees met to dispose of them. The trustees will meet on the fourth Monday of every month.

Suffragists Discuss Single Tax.

The Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield held its last meeting for the season yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. David Thompson, on Rockview avenue. In the absence of Mrs. D. P. Hall, the president, Mrs. Isaac L. Miller occupied the chair. There was a discussion of next year's programme, but nothing definite was decided. Mrs. Thompson presented an interesting paper on the subject of "Single Tax," which was followed by a spirited discussion. The league will not meet again until fall.

STEEPLECHASE ENTRIES

Lists Closed Yesterday and the Array Shows Many Fine Horses.

TWELVE EVENTS IN ALL

Six Races Will Be Held On Each of the Two Days of the Meet—Dinner to Farmers.

Entries closed yesterday for the third annual race meeting of the Watchung Hunt Club, to be held at the Gentlemen's Driving Park, Decoration Day afternoon and Saturday afternoon. All of the old favorites will be seen in the various classes and many new horses are entered. A glance through the list will show that the entries comprise the pick of the best horses in the East. One of the new entries this year is that of A. R. Hamilton, of Pittsburg, who has several very fast horses. With but one or two exceptions all of last year's entries are on the cards and those who attended the meet can appreciate what this means.

The entries are as follows:

Decoration Day.

JULIA WARD HOWE IS OPTIMISTIC AT 88

DISTINGUISHED MOTHER OF FLORENCE HOWE HALL CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, the distinguished mother of Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, of Madison avenue, celebrated her eighty-eighth birthday at her home on Beacon street, Boston, yesterday. Mrs. Hall and her family attended the celebration. Two other children, Professor Henry Marion Howe, of Columbia University, and Laura E. Richards, the author, also attended the celebration. From early morning until evening she received flowers and gifts from friends, acquaintances and organizations in whose work she is interested.

Several of Mrs. Howe's grandchildren took part in the event, including Mrs. Carleston A. Shaw, (Julia Ward Howe Richards,) and her baby boy, Henry Shaw, the only one of Mrs. Howe's five great-grandchildren to be present. The youngest daughter, Maud Howe Elliott, is in Europe. A nephew, Marion Crawford, the author, called last week for a brief visit.

Mrs. Howe is still strong and well. This is her latest word:

"The world grows better and not worse, but it does not grow better everywhere all the time. Women of fashion seem to me to have lost in dignity of character and in general tone and culture. On the other hand, outside this charmed circle of fashion, I find the tone of taste and culture much higher than I remember it to have been in my youth. I find women leading better and nobler lives, filling larger and higher places, enjoying the upper air of thought where they used to rest upon the very soil of domestic care and detail. So the community gains, although one class loses—but that, remember, is the class that assumes to give standards to the rest."

KIRK COMPANY CASE.

Action In Which a Slow Automobile Figured On Today.

Trial of the suit of the W. T. Kirk Company, of this city, against Chester C. Henry, of Summit, for $300, on contract, was begun in the District Court this morning. It started at 11 o'clock, and at 2:00, when the court resumed after recess for lunch, the first witness was still on the stand.

The action is for extra work alleged to have been done on a garage the defendant had constructed. The suit was to have been heard two weeks ago, but the defendant couldn't get his automobile to go fast enough to get him here in time to find the court in session, and he discovered a judgment entered against him by default. His lawyer, Harry Osborn, was compelled to ask for a reopening of the verdict.

PERKINS BUYS HIS QUAIL.

Assemblyman Denies Having Received Birds from Game Commission.

Assemblyman Randolph Perkins, of Westfield, denied yesterday that he had ever received a gift of quail from the State Fish and Game Commission, as testified to by Benjamin P. Morris, president of the commission, at a hearing before the Assembly Lexow Committee in Trenton.

"Nary a quail," said Assemblyman Perkins, laughing. "They are barking up the wrong tree. I like quail, too, but I have always had to buy 'em. I never got a quail from any State official, let alone the Fish and Game Commission, or any member of it."

Receive New Constitution.

At a special meeting called for the purpose, last night, the Republican City Committee received the report of the committee on constitutiona revision. The changes in the constitution will be posted at the meeting next month, and it is expected that action on the proposed changes will be taken at the July session.

Stole P. S. C. Wire.

Thieves stole a half a mile of copper wire from the Public Service Corporation in Rahway between one and five o'clock this morning. The Rahway police, remembering the good work done by the police of this city in capturing wire thieves recently, telephoned to Chief Kiely to ask for assistance in tracing the criminals.

Sentence Suspended.

Patrick O'Donnell and James Kenisky, of this city, who were arrested in the borough Saturday night on a charge of being drunk and disorderly, were arraigned before Recorder Dolliver in the Borough Court, last night. Sentence was suspended in both cases, it being the first offense.

Miss Mary L. Van Eps, of East Fifth street, has returned from a week's visit with her cousin, Thomas Carter Hegeman and family, of Somerville.

PRIMARY UNION MEETS

Large Gathering of Local Sunday-School Workers at Annual Session Yesterday.

ADDRESS BY DR. DAGER

Prominent Philadelphia Clergyman Tells How Boys "May Be Saved"—Miss Rose Scott Conducts Conference.

Despite the disagreeable weather there was a large attendance of Sunday-school teachers and superintendents at the twelfth annual institute of the Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Union, held in the First Baptist church, yesterday afternoon and evening. The afternoon session was devoted chiefly to a general discussion of Sunday-school topics and conferences regarding various grades.

Miss Nettie Beeeching, president of the local union, conducted the devotional exercises and extended words of welcome to those present. A glance over the past year's work was told in an interesting report presented by Mrs. Robert W. Barnes, the secretary of the union. This is the same report presented at the annual meeting of the union in April, which was published in The Daily Press.

Miss Rose Scott, State elementary superintendent, conducted a helpful conference on beginners' work, giving many suggestions that will be of assistance to the local teachers. After an offertory solo by Miss Florence Conroy, soprano, Miss Scott gave a primary class programme, teaching the lesson the same as it would be in a class room. She also conducted the round table on Junior work. She answered many questions concerning the work of this department. In her opinion the teaching of a Sunday-school class was something more than going to the class once a week. She said that a teacher must love his work and be willing to make any sacrifice to bring the members of the class to Christ. She thought that children should be promoted from the beginners' to the Junior department at the age of three years and from the Junior to the intermediate department at the age of six years, and then to the main school at the age of nine years.

Miss Scott explained methods used by herself in teaching and in this respect she offered many novel suggestions. Following the round table there was a social and conference hour for superintendents, pastors and teachers, during which time supper was served by members of the local union, previous to the evening session, when Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor of the First Baptist church, conducted the devotional exercises.

The Sunday-school lesson for next Sunday, "Moses Called to Deliver Israel," was taught by Rev. Dr. Forrest E. Dager, a well known Sunday-school worker from Philadelphia. His interesting way of teaching the lesson was a pleasure to the large audience. After an offertory solo by Mrs. L. R. Howard, Dr. Dager made the address of the evening.

"Saving the Boys," was Dr. Dager's address, and as one of the superintendents remarked afterward, "he seems to have mastered the boy problem." The speaker was just brimful of suggestion as to the best ways to save boys. He began by saying that in many homes the girls are shown preference over boys and are given advantages that boys do not get; hence they get the idea that their place is with the rough and tumble element.

Among the most important suggestions were that one must be a leader of boys, be honest with them, give them the square deal every time. The speaker said that the average boy is quick to detect deception and underhanded methods and if one would get their confidence and have them look up to their leader they must be on the square, yet forceful. He advised that boys be allowed to lead themselves occasionally, and if the teacher would have his boys meet his Sunday ideals he must meet their Saturday ideals, by going out with them and joining in their sports.

Dr. Dager said that, being a lover of fishing and catching bull-frogs, he was able to secure a large class of boys through his expert methods of angling. Boys were attracted to him through fishing and he was able to hold them. He frequently joined with theim in their athletics and he often spent as much time as they in training for different events.

Dr. Dager spoke for over an hour and his remarks were so applicable to Sunday-school work that everyone was sorry when he finished speaking.

MUST PAY JUDGMEMT SECURED BY FORMER WIFE

KELLER ANNOUNCES INTENTION TO SEEK MODIFICATION OF DIVORCE.

Judge Truax in the Supreme Court of New York yesterday denied a motion on behalf of Augustus R. Keller, of this city, to vacate an execution for $175 obtained against him by his former wife, Annie L. Keller.

Keller said he was preparing a petition for the modification of a decree of divorce so as to strike out any provision for maintenance and also asking for the custody of his son.

Since Mrs. Keller got her divorce, it was stated, Keller had married the woman named as corespondent in the suit. The agreement of settlement in which the release was given, contained a covenant that Keller was to pay $20 a month for the support of his son.

Judge Truax held that as the agreement of settlement contained this provision, Mrs. Keller was clearly within her right in issuing the execution, and declined to vacate it.

AGASSIZ'S BIRTHDAY.

One Hundredth Anniversary Observed In City High School.

The one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Louis Agassiz was observed at the Plainfield High School this morning, when Franklin S. Smith delivered a scientific lecture, illustrated with stereopticon views. He gave a short history of the Agassiz Scientific Association, the Plainfield High School chapter of which was organized December 1, 1886. Mr. Smith devoted his lecture principally to the development and life history of shells and the method used by the naturalist in obtaining them.

He presented the school with a photograph of the old Assembly Hall taken in 1885; and an iron pan used by miners in prospecting for gold.

Master Masons Hold a Banquet.

The first annual dinner of the Master Mason's Association was held at the Hotel Iroquois, last night, the purpose being to "come together for the mutual benefit of all." There was no attempt at speech-making, the guests preferring to talk matters over quietly among themselves while enjoying a good dinner. There were fifteen master masons present as follows: William C. Smith, Warren Townley, Lorenzo Townley, B. F. Tallamy, Louis V. Tallamy, Titus Laury, Seaman Williams, Cormick Caulfield, John Snyder, Firman Gise, John Moran, Frank McInerney, Theodore Gray, John Cundy and Albert Pangborn.

Sued for Son's Debt.

Decision was reserved for a week by Judge Newcorn, in the District Court, this morning, in the contract case of Smith & Wagner, of New York, against Anna M. Scriven. The plaintiffs sued for books contracted for by the defendant's son when he entered a school for carpentery in New York. She signed the receipt for their delivery, and on account of the wording of the receipt the plaintiffs contended she had assumed responsibility for the payment. Harry C. Runyon appeared for the defendant and J. M. Aller, of New York, for the plaintiffs.

Freeholders' Committee to Meet.

The committee from the Union County Board of Freeholders which is considering the purchase of three paintings from the Drake Zouaves, of Elizabeth, for the county, will meet again tomorrow to discuss the matter. The paintings were by Julian Scott, of this city, and the Zouaves have offered them to the county for $1,000. Many people, it is said, favor the proposition, yet the freeholders are rather slow to act until they know the sentiment of the people throughout the county.

Over-Heated Stove Causes Fire.

A small fire at the home of Morris Deutsch, at 305 Madison avenue, caused an alarm to be sent in at 11 o'clock this morning from box 41, at Madison avenue and Third street. The kitchen stove became over-heated and set fire to the woodwork back of it and the mantel-piece. A couple of hand extinguishers were used to put the fire out and the damage was slight.

Recital at Park Club.

The annual piano recital by the pupils of Miss May Vincent Whitney will be held at the Park Club, tonight. An excellent programme has been prepared. William Searles, soloist at St. Paul's M. E. church, Newark, will be the assisting artist. Admission will be by cards of invitation.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis DeLacey Hyde will sail on Friday on the Deutschland, for a trip abroad. They will be away several weeks.

$3,000 DAMAGE BY FIRE

Prompt Work of City Department Prevents Destructive Blaze in Business District.

TWO STORES AFFECTED.

Stocks In Levy Bros. and I. H. Boehm Establishments Suffer From Inpouring Water.

A blaze which started in a large pile of packing boxes and kindling wood stored in the rear of Levy Brothers' dry goods store on West Front street, early this afternoon, threatened serious consequence to the surrounding buildings, and it was only through the quick arrival of the city fire department that great damage did not result.

Aside from the destruction of the packing boxes and shed in which they were kept, both the dry goods' stores of Levy Brothers and I. H. Boehm, adjoining, were thoroughly soaked with water and a great quantity of goods damaged. The firemen were given a lively half-hour's work before they got the fire under control and finally extinguished it.

It is supposed the fire was the result of a bon-fire which was burning in the vacant space back of Levy Brothers' store, the wind carrying sparks into the dry goods' boxes. The blaze was discovered by one of the clerks in Levy Brothers' store and an alarm was turned in from Box No. 12.

By the time the department arrived the fire had gained considerable headway and was rapidly eating its way up the wooden stairs and into the adjoining wood-work of the nearby buildings.

The chemical engine was the first to arrive and this succeeded in partially checking the course of the flames, until a stream of water could be turned on. The fire was confined to the junction of the buildings occupied by Levy Brothers and Mr. Boehm, and the firemen by hard work were able to keep it there.

The Boehm structure is of brick, but water porued into the extension of the store through the door and window and soaked the goods. Miss Whelan, one of the cashiers, was driven from her desk near the door by the streams of water and she just barely had time to pick up the loose money lying about and escape injury. The clerks were kept busy carrying the more expensive goods to places of safety, but even this effort did little good.

The same conditions were to be found in Levy Brothers' store, where the water was pouring in through the windows. Through the efforts of the firemen the fire did not reach the rear of S. Scheuer & Co.'s building, which adjoins that of the dry goods' stores.

Chief Doane estimates the total damage at about $3,000, chiefly through the damage to stock in both dry goods' stores.

DOG HAS RIDING CRAZE.

Known on all Lines, "Trolley Bess" Tours the State.

Trenton, May 28.—George C. Killen, master mechanic of one of the local traction companies, is the owner of a setter dog which has come by the title of "Trolley Bess," because of her fondness for riding on trolley cars. Her record of travel to date, is at least 5,000 miles. Her trips have extended as far as Newark to the north and Philadelphia on the south, and to the terminals of all the local lines.

At first she rode only with her master, when he was on inspection trips, but now she rides as she feels inclined. All local trolley crews know her, and she isnever refused transportation. Her favorite traveling place is at the feet of the motormen. She never pays the least attention to passengers.

Dr. Edward R. O'Reilly.

Former Union County physician and Elizabeth's city physician, Dr. Edward R. O'Reilly, died at his home on North Broad street, Elizabeth, this morning, from appendicitis. Dr. O'Reilly was operated on Friday by Dr. Edward Ill, of Newark, and paralysis developed. He was in the prime of life and always took an active interest in city affairs. He was a member of Elizabeth Council, Knights of Columbus; the Catholic Benevolent Legion, the Union County Medical Society and other organizations. He was also on the staff of the Alexian Hospital and St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Elizabeth. His wife is a member of a wealthy New York family. Dr. O'Reilly owned considerable real estate in Elizabeth.

Parlor Suites.

Two New and Distinctive Styles Sold This Week at Greatly Reduced Prices.

These are no ordinary reductions—no ordinary savings—but a purchase at these special prices means many dollars in your pocket—enough, really, to buy one or two extra pieces of furniture or a rug for the room the Parlor Suite is to go in.

5-Piece Parlor Suites, frames of mahogany, highly polished, legs in neat fancy design, with a trifle of carving at the top of frames; upholstered in cream tapestry, four colors of silk damask, Verona velour, Sicilian cloth, silk plush or panne plush as you elect—upholstering of the very best class. This is a design that has been on the floor for only a couple of weeks. It is fresh, new and beautiful. The regular selling price is $100, but we make an extraordinary concession to those who will come this week for them and we will sell them at $69.50

Can be bought on our liberal Club Plan.

3-Piece Parlor Suites—A beautiful new design which has just arrived from one of the best factories in the country, with elegance and tone in every line; the frames are highly polished, panels in back are mahogany inlaid with marquetry; the coverings are of cream tapestry, green silk plush, panne plush or Barcelona, as you wish. This suite has loose cushions—a decidedly novel and pretty feature, making them easy to keep clean and easy to re-upholster. To introduce this splendid Suite we will say, instead of the regular price, $55, to those who come this week $40

Can be bought on our easy Club Plan.

GOLF.

Today at the Plainfield Country Club the one-day tournament of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association is being held. The events will include a four-ball foursome, handicap, with prizes for the best gross and best net scores and an obstacle competition with prizes for the first and second best scores. The entry list is large.

At the Westfield Golf Club Decoration Day morning there will be a Scotch foursome and in the afternoon a mixed foursome.

The events at the Plainfield Country Club on Decoration Day will include the semi-finals and finals for the Class A and Class B cups, together with other special attractions.

Events of interest will attract many golfers to the Park Club on Thursday. There will be play for the Holiday cup, approaching and putting contests. The latter event will start at four o'clock in the afternoon.

The following officers have been elected at the Hackensack Golf Club for the ensuing season: President, W. D. Moffatt; vice-president, Charles W. Bell; treasurer, T. J. Thomas; secretary, E. D. Shotwell. Governors, F. R. Lang, G. G. Ackerson, George H. Williams, Dr. M. R. Brinkman and F. J. Oliver. The annual dues have been increased from $35 to $50.

Conditions governing the annual open championship tournament of the Western Golf Association have been announced. The competition will be held over the links of the Hinsdale Golf Club, Hinsdale, Ill., on Thursday and Friday, June 27 and 28. This is just a week later than the national open schedule for the Merion Cricket Club, near Philadelphia. The Western affair, which will be open to all professional and amateurs, is to consist of seventy-two holes of medal play, thirty-six holes each day. There are five moneys as follows: First, $150; second, $100; third, $75; fourth, $50; fifth, $25. Alec Smith, of the Nassau Country Club won the Western title last year.

The schedule at the Apawamis Club consists of the usual list of medal and match play contests. For a starter there will be a thirty-six hole medal play handicap on Memorial day, the players with the sixteen best net scores to qualify for a cup presented by Edward A. Downey. Team matches are to be arranged later.

The schedule of the Deal Golf and Country Club also starts on Memorial Day with a thirty-six hole medal play handicap. At the end of the season two cups will be given to be competed for at match play at eighteen holes and open to the winners of Class A and Class B contests. A cup will also be given for the best composite score from June 15 to Labor Day.

Some of the leading amateur golfers in the East have signified their intention of competing in the annual open tournament of the Huntingdon Valley Country Club, near Philadelphia, to be held May 31, June 1 and 3. This is about the only club that believes in the plan of starting a tournament on Friday and finishing on Monday. Included among the entrants is Jerome D. Travers of Montclair, twice winner of the Metropolitan Golf Association title. He won the Huntingdon Valley tournament a year ago. Fred Herreshoff of Garden City, has also entered, and so has Marshall Whitlatch, of Montclair. Besides these crack from the New York district are three Southerners of reputation from the Houston Golf Club, A. W. Pollard, Bryan Heard and David Rice. The Allegheny Country Club will be represented by O. D. Thompson, F. J. Byers and J. E. Porter. The Montclair Golf Club has a third representative in William T. Cross. From Washington there is Louis Weaver and another New Yorker is Walter Brown.

(Other sporting news on page eight).

—John Fagan, of Elizabeth, has taken the position of clerk at the Hotel Kensington, succeeding John Auten.

The concluding rounds in the East Jersey Lawn Tennis Association championship will be the attraction at the Plainfield Country Club courts on Thursday. There will also be other tennis events of interest.

RUNAWAY HORSE IN A PARLOR.

Milkman's Steed Cuts Up High Jinks in Elizabeth.

Elizabeth, May 28.—A horse in a parlor was the unusual sight to be seen at the home of John Devoe, of 19 Sayre street, yesterday. The horse is a big bay owned by John Mackay, a milkman. The animal wah standing on Sayre street while the driver was in a customer's house, when it became frightened by the whistle of a locomotive, and started off on a wild run. The horse dashed to the side-walk, crossed Mr. Devoe's lawn, then leaped up the low stoop and went crashing through a bay window and landed in the parlor.

The wagon was too broad to get through the window, and the traces held, so that when the horse had got into the parlor it could go no further. The animal was badly scared when it was freed finally from the wagon and led down into the street again. The horse was cut by glass, but not very badly hurt, and the wagon was only slightly damaged.

LIGHTNING STRIKES STEEPLE.

Wife of Chief of Police stunned.—Is Unconscious Four Hours.

Rahway, May 28.—The steeple on the First M. E. church, in this city, was struck by lightning yesterday during a heavy thunder shower; and was completely wrecked. Those living in the vicinity felt the shock. The wife of Chief of Police George Wright, who lives a block away, was stunned. Dr. H. Page Hough worked over her for four hours before she was brought to consciousness. Those who witnessed it say that the whole steeple was ablaze.

On May 13 of last year the steeple was struck in a similar manner, and damaged so badly that it had to be rebuilt. Twice previously the steeple had been struck by lightning, yesterday being the fourth time in three years. A pole at the corner of Irving street and Central avenue was struck at the same time. Joel Clarkson, a letter carrier, was taking mail from a box a few feet from the pole. He was stunned.

Each day there will be a farmer's race, the winner of the race on May 30 being barred from the one on Saturday. The entries for these races must be made to the clerk of the course by 12 o'clock noon the day of the race, giving name of horse and rider. The races are for work horses, the property of farmers in the neighborhood of Plainfield and the distance is about five furlongs on the flat.

Thursday night after the races the annual farmer's dinner will be given under the grandstand. Invitations to the number of 250 have been issued and it is intended to dine those over whose farms and lands the Watchung Hunt Club hunts during the season. L. E. Waring will be the toastmaster.

The stewards of the meeting are as follows: Lewis G. Young, master of the Union hounds, kennels at Orange; P. F. Collier, master of the Monmouth County hounds, kennels at Eatontown; Charles Pfizer, master of the Essex hounds, kennels at Gladstone; H. L. Herbert, of Lakewood, and Julian M. Gerard, of New York. The judges will be Percy Evans, of Warrenton, Va., and H. A. Bourne, of Westfield. F. M. Ware, of New York, will be the starter of the races and Augustus R. Fisk, of Short Hills, the assistant. Harvey Fisk will be the paddock and patrol judge and William S. Blitz will be the clerk of the course. The race committee comprises C. E. S. Bellows, Dr. M. O'M. Knott and Lewis E. Waring.

The club has arranged to have stages run from the trolley line on Park avenue, where it turns off the avenue to go to the Plainfitld Country Club. There are still a limited number of parking spaces for carriages or motors, for which application should be made to Dr. Knott or W. S. Blitz. The races will begin promptly each afternoon at 2 o'clock.

NEWARK LETTER-CARRIER SENTENCED TO PRISON.

Gets Three Years at Trenton for Embezzling Money from the Mails.

Trenton, May 28.—James F. Farrell, a Newark letter-carrier, who was convicted of embezzling money from the mails, was sentenced to three years in State prison by Judge Joseph Cross, in the United States District Court yesterday. Farrell was convicted on two counts and a sentence of three years was imposed for each offense, the terms, however, to run concurrently.

In sentencing Farrell Judge Cross said that circumstances had been brought to the attention of the court which, under some conditions, might be viewed as mitigating the offense. He added that because of the notorious postal frauds which recently have been practiced the court could not be moved by any consideration except the public importance of putting an end to such practises. Therefore he could show no leniency.

This attitude was in line with the policy already decided upon by Judge William N. Lanning and Judge Cross to employ drastic means in dealing with government employes found guilty of embezzlement or similar offenses. The specific complaint against Farrell was that he abstracted $3 from one letter and $2 from another last February. The letters were addressed to D. Robinson Company, of 199 Market street, Newark.

WEATHER BY TELEPHONE.

"Hello" Girl Will Dish It Out in Elizabeth Promptly on Request.

Elizabeth, May 28.—Hereafter the people of Elizabeth will get their weather reports from "Central." The local branch of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company has made arrangements with the National Weather Bureau to have forecasts, covering a period of thirty-six hours, ready each day after 11 o'clock.

The company assures the residents of this community that "Central" will politely and patiently answer all their inquiries respecting weather prognostication. The thing is experimental both on the part of the Government and the telephone company, which have entered into a year's contract.

DRY PLAINFIELDERS GO TO FANWOOD SUNDAYS

STRENUOUS OBJECTIONS TO RENEWAL OF LICENSE FOR HOTEL THERE.

In Court of Quarter Sessions at Elizabeth, Saturday, Judge Atwater considered the application of Alexander Ackerman for an inn and tavern license in the township of Fanwood.

Remonstrators were given an opportunity of being heard. The general objection to the license is that for the past few years, during which time it has been conducted by several different proprietors, the place has been run in a disgraceful manner. One of the remonstrators testified that it was a common thing on a Sunday to see both men and women lying helplessly drunk on the sidewalk and the gutter in front of the place after having been thrown out. He also said that it was a "hangout" for Plainfielders, who, unable to get drink in their own town, visited the place in large numbers.

Ackerman said that if he obtained the license, the place would be run in a decent manner. He admitted that he proposed to place the inn in the hands of another person to conduct it for him.

It was also declared by some of the remonstrators that several of the names of the signers appearing on the application were not property owners. The court continued the case one week in order to give the applicant an opportunity of proving that the signers to the application were property owners.

Wholesale licenses were granted to Rafaele Vinezia, of Fanwood township, and Nicola De Vito, of Cranford.

TRENTON TO BE PURIFIED.

Branch of Inter-church Federation Plans Campaign.

Trenton, May 28—Trenton churches have united in a branch of the Inter-church Federation, formed in New York last November, and at a big union meeting Sunday afternoon planned for aggressive work for better moral conditions in the city. Committees have been appointed on Sabbath observance, social purity, temperance, excise and aggressive evangelism.

The Sabbath observance committee will seek to compel the closing of business establishments and pleasure resorts on Sundays. Especial attention will be paid to a new pleasure park soon to be opened by a number of Trenton capitalists, some of whom are prominent in fashionable churches.

The Rev. Dr. J. Morgan Read, chairman of this committee, created a sensation Sunday by declaring that Christians must stop drinking soda water and smoking cigars on Sunday and stop reading Sunday papers. The social purity committee proposes to censor all shows at theatres and other places of amusement, with special care over the penny picture shows.

Bayonne Priest Injured.

MAY IRWIN IS MARRIED.

Actress Becomes Bride of Kurt Eisfeldt, Her Manager.

Clayton, N. Y., May 28.—On an island in the St. Lawrence River, three miles above this village, May Irwin, the actress, was married Sunday to Kurt Eisfeldt, her manager and press agent for the last three seasons. The ceremony was performed at 2:15 o'clock in the afternoon by an Episcopal clergyman, and was witnessed only by May Irwin's two sons, Walter and Harry.

The honeymoon will be passed this summer at Irwin Isle, where Miss Irwin has a new three-story granite cottage nearing completion, replacing the bungalow she now occupies. She is an ardent devotee of the newest of speed fads, the motor boat, and has two fine racers, the "Delawana" and the "23," out for cup honors this season at races to be held by local yacht clubs. Miss Irwin does not expect to retire from the stage, but will forsake the legitimate for vaudeville. She has signed with the Keith-Proctor circuit for next season.

NO STEAM; NO COURT.

Judge Hicks and Lawyers Object to Sitting in Cold All Day.

New Brunswick, May 28.—The cold weather yesterday morning caused an adjournment of District Court. When Judge E. W. Hicks, the jury and lawyers entered the room they found it cold and damp, and no steam in the pipes. The lawyers objected to sitting all day in such an atmosphere to try cases, so court was at once adjourned for the day.

The suit of the Rev. James Houston, a preacher, against Phineas M. Bowne, a justice of the peace of Spotswood, was down for trial. It is a slander suit, the minister claiming that the justice held him on a charge of stealing a bicycle, despite the protests of the owner of the wheel, and that the charge was never substantiated.

Negro Firemen Win.

Mayor Atkins, of Asbury Park, has vetoed the ordinance passed by the City Council eliminating the Eureka Company, the only negro fire company in the State, from the City Fire Department. Five votes were required to override the veto and as the supporters of the measure in the Council could muster only four the veto stands. The members of the eight white companies in the department have voted to strike on October 1 next. At the fall primaries they will try to nominate a candidate for Mayor who is opposed to the negro company.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

TenEyck & Harris, the coal dealers, are always ready to deliver the best Lehigh anthracite promptly and at low prices.

There is no better barber anywhere in this country than William B. Randolph, Watchung avenue. He gives vibration treatment. His place is thoroughly appointed.

The meat and poultry sold by the Grandview Market, Somerset street, is never of doubtful quality. The best is sold there always, at prices without fancy attachments.

Do you have trouble with your watch or clocks? Charles E. Vail, of Park avenue, can repair them faultlessly. He also sells standard time-keepers at prices to suit you.

If you appreciate the certainty of good meat when you order by telephone, make J. W. VanSickle, North avenue, your butcher. His stock is always of the finest, and he executes comissions exactly.

Haven't you opened that account with the Plainfield Savings Bank yet? Do so at once and get the benefit of the liberal interest paid to depositors. Every facility for conducting banking is offered.

Dudley S. Miller, the Park avenue druggist, can supply you with drugs and medicines of every kind; also toilet articles, and his prescription work is the best. When thirsty try his famous soda water.

S. Scheuer & Co., the grocers and butchers on West Front street, will take good care of your trade at all times. The firm carries a very large stock of groceries and the meat department is second to none. The prices will be found reasonable for such quality goods.

For the man who likes a solid, substantial smoke, of pure tobacco, at a moderate price, M. C. Dobbins' Ultra Pura cigar or the old favorite Nickel Yara is the thing. The Dobbins store, on North avenue, is the place to seek a variety of excellent natural leaf chewing tobaccoes.

MAY TERM OF COURT SHORTEST IN MANY YEARS.

Out of Nineteen Cases Majority were Against Railway Companies.

Out of nineteen civil causes which came up before Judge Vail in the May Term of Court, which lasted twelve days, verdicts were given to the plaintiffs in nine cases; in four cases the jury gave verdicts for the defendants; three were non-suited; two were discontinued, and one was referred to a Supreme Court Commissioner. The cases have been tried in a very short length of time, no one case taking more than one day to be tried. The verdicts ranged all the way from $100 to $3,000.

Thirteen cases were listed to be tried against the North Jersey Street Railway Company, and of the six tried, four decided in favor of the plaintiffs, and verdicts aggregating $5,700 were rendered. Two of these cases will be appealed. Rules to show cause why a new trial should not be granted have been filed in the cases of Patrick J. Martin, who sued to recover for injuries caused by a trolley accident; and in the case of Frederick W. Barge, who was hurt by a broken trolley pole, and was awarded $200, which is considered inadequate.

There were several cases against the Public Service which were tried and several against the Central Railroad Company. Altogether it has been a railroad term, there being but a few cases which were not against the railroad or trolley companies.

Quality and Price

The two vital questions in your piano purchase are, first, quality; second, price. An unsatisfactory piano, in tone and action, is the most annoying article you can have in your home. You dislike to be expending money on it continually to keep it in playing condition.

YOU FURNISH THE HOUSE

We'll Furnish the Fixin's

If you're a beginner or if you wish to "re-furnish" we'll supply every needed piece of furniture, floor covering or bedding—yes, stoves, pictures, lamps, clocks, shades, and curtains, too! That's not all—we'll ask you the least possible price, yet you're welcome to pay cash down or pay a little at a time! For nearly 50 years we've been fitting out homes this way; the popularity of our house to-day proves how we've succeeded!! Note the week's leaders:

$28 buys any one of the $35 damask covered Parlor Suits, mahogany frames of late design—all are effective.

Every Dept. is complete—plenty of variety of pattern and price!

The Best of Qualities—The Smallest of Prices.

The children of the First Baptist church Sunday-school are rehearsing an attractive Children's Day programme.

New members will be received at the First Baptist church tomorrow night and the regular communion service will be held Sunday morning.

Lawyer S. S. Swackhamer will have charge of the prayer meeting of the First M. E. church in Vincent chapel, tomorrow night, and make an address.

The Women's Home Missionary Society of the Baptist church is holding an all-day sewing meeting in the church, today. At noon luncheon was served by a committee from the society.

Rev. George B. Shaw, of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, left yesterday for Albion, Wis., where he will represent the American Sabbath Tract Society at the Northwestern Association meeting of the denomination.

The Sunday-school of the Park Avenue Baptist church is making elaborate arrangements for the Children's Day exercises on Sunday, June 9, including a special programme of music, assisted by the Sunday-school orchestra.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, Rev. George B. Shaw, J. D. Spicer and Rev. H. N. Jordan, the last named from New Market, returned yesterday from Ashaway, R. I., where they attended the annual meeting of the Eastern Association of Seventh-Day Baptists.

The monthly missionary meeting of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church will be held in the chapel tomorrow night. Rev. and Mrs. Wagner, of Alaska, accompanied by an Indian, will be present and speak. They will tell about the work in Alaska.

The Young Women's Missionary Society of the First Baptist church will hold a social meeting at the Park Golf Club on Friday. The members will meet at the home of Mrs. J. B. Probasco, at 11:30 o'clock and take the trolley to the end of the Somerset street line, from which point they will walk to the clubhouse.

On Sunday night the combined choirs of the Westfield Presbyterian church and the First M. E. church, of this city, will sing "Hear My Prayer," by Mendelssohn, and the cantata, "Daughter of Jairus," at the First M. E. church. The same numbers will be given in the afternoon in the Presbyterian church, Westfield. This will be the last special musical service for the season. J. Edmund Skiff will direct.

PERSONAL.

Bert Brandon, of Dunellen avenue, is spending some time at Atlantic City for his health.

Mrs. Whitney Frazee, of South avenue, has recovered from a long and severe illness and is able to go out again.

At the last writing Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Smith, of this city, are at Santa Barbara, Cal., and both were well and enjoying their trip exceedingly.

George Griffin, of West Seventh street, who is at Mt. Clemens, Mich., taking special treatment at a sanitarium, is reported as improving rapidly.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Douglass, of West Front street, will leave soon for Point Pleasant, where they will spend the summer. Mr. Douglass will commute to New York.

Miss Ernestine Curtis Smith, of Madison avenue, will leave on Thursday for Troy, N. Y., to spend a few days with Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Putnam. Mrs. Putnam was formerly Miss Ella Titsworth, of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Stafford, who have been sojourning at Atlantic City, have been in town for a few days. They will soon sail for Europe, where Mr. Stafford is to take charge of the foreign office for the company he is with.

The Mystery of Carneycroft

BY JOSEPH BROWN COOKE. COPYRIGHT 1907 BY STORY-PRESS CORPORATION

The widow made no sound, but stood perfectly motionless with face like marble and eyes almost bursting from her head.

MacArdel stamped his foot impatiently and muttered:

"There's more in this than I thought. Help me get this fellow up, Ware, and we'll take 'em both back to the house."

CHAPTER XII.
A Second Note.

Half leading and half carrying the unfortunate Jenks and followed by Mrs. Bruce who walked as one in a dream, we returned to the house. Once on the veranda, MacArdel unbound the fellow's arms and, noticing bloodstains on his face and shirt front, examined him closely to see if he had sustained any severe injury in his helpless fall. Nothing more serious than a badly cut lip was discovered, and we took the pair into the library, where a light was burning dimly. Turning up the lamp so that he could see distinctly, MacArdel sent me for a basin of water and a towel and stitched up the wound with material from his pocket instrument case.

Jenks submitted to this procedure in a stupidly dazed condition and as soon as the little operation was completed and an improvised dressing applied, he again fell forward in a swoon.

"Get him a drink, Ware," said MacArdel. "There's whisky in my bag, you know."

Jenks coughed and sputtered over the stuff in a manner nowise complimentary to the quality of liquor affected by MacArdel, and then, bursting into a cold perspiration, he began to tremble violently and beg piteously to be allowed to go home; while Mrs. Bruce, with pale, ghastly face, preserved the silence that she had maintained from the first.

"You may both go on one condition," said MacArdel, sternly, "and on one condition only! You must swear that you will never reveal a word of this night's doings without the consent of Mr. Ware or myself."

"And on One Condition Only!"

"Swear nuthin'," muttered Jenks, feebly. "I'll have the law on ye fur this, ye varmint!"

Like a flash MacArdel grasped his arm in a vice-like grip and said coldly:

"You remember how I handled you before, Jenks? Well, you know I'm your master when it comes to a fight, and unless you do as I tell you and do it at once, back you go to the path where the ghosts are!"

"I hain't afeered of 'em ef you hain't," mumbled Jenks, with a half-hearted attempt at bravado. "I reckon they won't hurt nobody none."

His very manner showed that he was quaking in his shoes, and MacArdel was quick to note it and make the most of it.

"You won't have me with you, Jenks," he continued, impressively. "We'll tie you to a tree and leave you there alone, unless you do as I say. Do you understand?"

That Jenks understood there could be no doubt, for his terror was obvious as he hastened to exclaim:

"I'll swear, mister! I'll swear teh anything, ef ye'll only let us git aouten this place an' go home!"

There was a small Bible on the library table and MacArdel caused Jenks and the widow to place a hand upon it as they successively took upon themselves a solemn obligation to preserve absolute secrecy concerning the affair of the evening. This done, MacArdel addressed them briefly but impressively:

"Do not think for a moment," he said, "that I have changed my opinion as to your knowledge of the things that are going on here. I'll admit that there is more to it than I thought at first and that more people are mixed up in it than I had supposed. But that only makes it the easier for us, because, in affairs of this kind, there is danger in numbers, and, while I am convinced that you two are the ringleaders in the whole business, the more confederates you have the sooner will we be able to make one of them confess.

"You may go now, but mind you remember the oath you have taken tonight or it will go hard with you both. As long as you keep this thing to yourselves you won't get into trouble, but the moment you start any fuss about it you will hear from us in a way that will make your hair stand on end! And whatever you do, don't forget that I'm a doctor, and that I know, just as well as you do, what those old rags have been used for!"

With this significant remark, MacArdel opened the door of the room and we followed them out of the house and watched them as they clambered into the wagon and drove rapidly away.

When they were out of earshot I said abruptly:

"This is a pretty mess that you've made of things, Mac! Do you realize that these people can have us up for assault and duress, and I don't know how many other crimes into the bargain, and yet we're no wiser than we were before!"

"Oh, yes we are!" said MacArdel. "We know a lot of things that we never dreamed of at first, and if you hadn't been so busy with Jenks when he toppled over you'd have seen what I mean."

"Well," I returned, "they were both frightened nearly out of their wits by the spooks, and I don't believe they know any more about 'em than we do!"

"Nonsense!" cried MacArdel. "You did not watch them as closely as I did, that's all. I confess they were frightened, but each in a different way. Now, Jenks was scared almost to death, and you may take my word for it that his terror was genuine, and that he believed the things to be supernatural. But it wasn't so with the widow. She knew all about them, you may be sure, and when they came so close to us she was only afraid that we would capture them or shoot them or do something of that sort. Of course this Jenks knows about the bundle of cloths because he had them last night when you shot him in the hand, but I don't believe he has any idea of what they had been used for. I tell you, Ware, the widow is at the head of this whole job and Jenks is nothing but her tool."

"Well," I replied, "it may be as you say, but I wish we were out of it. You may be right in your deductions, but they've got a perfect case against us if they choose to take it into court, and, with the popular prejudice that exists around here against the Carneys, a jury of these farmers would give us the limit of the law. It isn't a matter of fine, either, Mac. It's a felony that we've been committing tonight, and that means a term in prison, I want you to understand!"

"Don't worry, old man," said MacArdel, with a satisfied smile which, however, was far from reassuring. "They'll never tell. You may be certain of that. Jenks is so afraid of me that, with the ghosts and the blood-curdling oath I made him take, he's shut up as tight as a clam. As far as the widow is concerned, she isn't the sort to appeal to the law in a case like this, and, if she does, we can very soon tangle her up in a mass of evidence that will justify us in everything we have done. I don't believe she'd fancy the idea of having her house thoroughly searched."

Closing up the house we retired to our room and, as we were making ready for the night, I said:

"Why didn't you make them sign some kind of a paper that would have exonerated us? It would have been just as easy as swearing them to it and it would be hard for them to overthrow it in court. I might have thought of it myself, I suppose, but as I have been following you blindly all the evening without any definite idea of what you've been driving at, my brain wasn't working as quickly as it should have been. I tell you, Mac, I wish we had some sort of documentary evidence to show that we wouldn't be clapped into jail within the next day or so."

"Little good it would do to you," said MacArdel, "if you treated it as carelessly as those things you have in your pocket. You'll lose 'em out in another minute."

I extracted from the side pocket of my coat, as it hung upon a chair, a folded paper which was on the point of falling to the floor, and as I did not remember having seen it before, I opened it and read with interest and amazement. On it was written in a bold flowing hand:

"If you persuade Miss Carney to remain away from Carney-Croft and leave the house closed as in the past, the ghosts will make no further appearance, and neither Jenks nor Mrs. Bruce will disclose the affairs of tonight. Otherwise BEWARE!"

I handed it without comment to MacArdel who read it attentively and then exclaimed in triumph:

"What did I tell you, Ware? It's just as I said. The widow knew what to expect when I locked her in the house and she wrote this note so as to have it ready in case she needed it. Then she watched her opportunity and slipped it into your pocket as she stood by your side. I told you I was on the right track, old man."

"How Did the Note Get on the Bed?"

"Maybe you are, and maybe you're not," I grumbled, as I curled up in bed and reached to see if my pistol was handy before I closed my eyes.

CHAPTER XIII.
Quiet Is Restored.

"Now then," said MacArdel, the next morning, as we were comfortably seated in the library, "this mystery is clearing itself up more rapidly than I expected. Have you got those two notes with you? I mean the one you found on your bed the other morning and the one that slipped out of your pocket last night?"

I handed them to him and we spread them out on the table and examined them closely. The first was written in a cramped labored hand which was obviously disguised; while the more recent one had evidently been dashed off hurriedly and with no attempt at masking the chirography of its author. In both instances, however, the English style of writing was so clearly exemplified and there were so many letters having points in common, that it did not require the skill of an expert to perceive that the two notes were the work of the same individual.

"You see," exclaimed MacArdel, "I was right, only I got the cart before the horse. I told you that after we had discovered how the first note was placed on your bed we would have little or no difficulty in tracing its authorship. As matters have turned out, however, we know the author but we don't know how she got the paper into your room. Nevertheless you ought to be satisfied for you remember you said that you cared very little how the letter reached you, if you could only find out who wrote it."

"I am not so sure that we know who wrote it even now," I returned, gloomily. "The goings-on in this house are altogether too bewildering to suit my taste."

"Why, it must have been the woman!" cried MacArdel, with emphasis. Who else could have done it, man? You'll admit that both were written by the same hand, and I hardly think you'll deny that she was responsible for the one we found last night. If she wrote one she must have written the other, too."

"Perhaps she didn't write either" I muttered insistently.

"Oh, rubbish, Ware!" exclaimed MacArdel, impatiently. "What's the use of looking for more mystery when the whole thing is as good as explained! There she was, locked up in that little room across the hall. She couldn't get out, except through the window, and there was only one, which opened on the veranda right beside my chair. But she could look out and see all that was going on, and when we had our little tussle with Jenks, she took it all in from start to finish.

"Now, the widow's no fool, Ware, and as soon as she realized that she and Jenks were completely in our power she wrote this note at the desk in the corner of the room and kept it in her hand until the opportunity came to slip it into your pocket. She wrote hurriedly for she did not know when she would be interrupted and so she had no time to disguise her hand as she did before. She's English the writing's English and I'll warrant the paper in the desk is the same as this she used."

We crossed the hall to the little reception room, and, as MacArdel had suggested, we found the desk open and some stationery strewn about which exactly matched the paper I held in my hand. Moreover, on the floor near by was a lead pencil which, apparently, had been thrown down carelessly so that it rolled off the desk to the place where we discovered it.

The note was in pencil, and, undoubtedly, had been written with this pencil or with one of the same quality of lead.

There seemed to be no room for further argument as to the identity of the author of these remarkable communications, but, while the facts concerning the second were sufficiently plain, much mystery still surrounded the first.

"Hang it all, Mac!" I exclaimed, "I'll have to admit that the widow wrote the notes in spite of myself, but how on earth did she know of my feelings toward Miss Carney? And, what's more, how did she get that letter on my bed?"

"Guessed at it, as far as your first question is concerned," replied MacArdel, cheerfully. "Just used her common sense as to the fitness of the match, and took the chance. That's all there is to it, Ware."

"Even so," I returned, "and I'm hardly willing to admit that your explanation is correct, how did the note get on the bed?"

Boston at Philadelphia.

There will be two games on Crescent Oval Thursday. In the morning Clinton Avenue will play the Monos, at 10.30 o'clock, and in the afternoon Clinton Avenue will meet the Y. M. C. A. in the first league game between these nines. The Monos have been playing extra inning games this season and the coming contest should be a good one. In the afternoon Minford and Randolph will oppose each other in the box and it is sure to be a pitcher's battle.

Clifford Randolph, of the Clinton Avenues, is one of the star boxmen of the amateur league. It is doubtful whether any other twirler in the league has a thing on him. He has abundance of speed and control and uses good judgment.

Danny Hoffman is the American League's leading run getter.

Titus, the star right fielder of the Philadelphia Nationals, made a record on Saturday against Brooklyn that will probably not be duplicated this season. A double header was played and Titus won both games for his team by making three three-baggers in the first contest and a double in the second game. By his terrific hitting he scored in all seven runs.

When a manager changes pitchers in a game and his team loses he gets in either way. He is critised for not letting the first pitcher stay in and and on the other hand for not taking him out.

Joss, the crack boxman for the Cleveland Americans, has not yet lost a game, and he has a string of ten straight victories to his credit.

The Washingtons were the first American League team to be whitewashed by a double figure score.

All of the teams of the National League have now visited the Polo grounds this season, but none of them has shown a second baseman who has anything on Tommy Corcoran.

One trouble with Pitcher Hall, of the Cincinnatis, is a tendency to work too fast. He and Joe Doyle could compare notes to their mutual benefit.

National League teams are still too timid about the squeeze play. It can't be played by reaching for the home plate with one foot on third base.

More than 30,000 baseballs are used a season by the teams of the national agreement leagues. The New York and Chicago teams each use in the neighborhood of sixty dozen balls a season for the home games, an average of nine balls a game for those scheduled at home. The rule of the American League to throw out new balls instead of discolored ones means a largely increased number of balls used in that league. Forty dozen balls during the season is much below the average. The two big leagues between them use about 1,000 balls a season to say nothing of the minor leagues.

The city high school nine will play a practice game with a pick-up nine on Crescent Oval this afternoon. The school team has three games scheduled this week.

The Mono A. C. lost an eleven-inning game in Metuchen Saturday, by a score of 4 to 3. Errors at crucial moments were responsible for the defeat.

There will be only one Inter-City League game in the city Decoration Day. The Y. M. C. A. nine, which leads the league with one win and no lost games, will meet Clinton Avenue on Crescent Oval, in the afternoon. Walter Nelson, the Rutgers College catcher, will join the nine for the first time. With Minford on the firing line the Association battery work should make a great showing. Nelson is said to be the best amateur catcher in this vicinity, and as good as many a semi-professional who is getting real money for his work. He can hit well.

The Clinton Avenue nine may play the Mono A. C. Decoration Day morning. The Monos want to meet every team in the league.

Holy Cross Wallop Stillman.

The Holy Cross team defeated the Stillman Grammar School team on Hope Common Saturday afternoon by the score of 25 to 3. The church boys say that if there has been any doubt in the minds of the school team as which is the strongest aggregation, it should exist no longer. The borough nine walloped its opponents in good style. Ira Vail allowed but four hits, while thirteen hits were made off Clark. Douglass, of Stillman School, umpired the contest and gave satisfaction.

Wings and Flies

By Tom Muir.

Victor Moore, who divided honors with Fay Templeton in George M. Cohan's production, "Forty-Five Minutes From Broadway," during the past season, will be starred in "The Talk of New York," a new musical play by the versatile and prolific Cohan, next season. Several years ago Mr. Moore was a member of the Blaney Stock Company and later made a "hit" in vaudeville.

Was Candidate for Local Pastorate.

Rev. Dr. Edward Payson Terhune, who died on Saturday at his home in New York, was the husband of Marion Harland, and it will be remembered by many Plainfielders that when the present Trinity Reformed church was the Congregational church, he was considered strongly as a candidate for the pastorate. He afterward had a very successful and useful career in the ministry.

NEW SYSTEM OF BUILDING.

A MARVEL IN THE SCIENCE OF CONSTRUCTION.

A method far in advance of anything formerly used in the preparation of the different parts of a house when erected in sections, making it easy to construct any design of a house, and a very superior house for all seasons, countries and climates at a great reduction in cost.

These houses are constructed principally from the best kiln dried lumber in a factory entirely protected from weather, where best high speed woodworking machines are used for cutting and shaping of every piece, reducing cost for mechanics fully one-half, making a superior house when finished.

Houses or other structures erected under this system make the warmest houses in winter, and the strongest building that can be constructed with any material, the fiercest storm fails to cause any vibration whatever. They are adapted to receive all improvements, plumbing, lighting, heating, etc., when desired.

A new method of lath and plaster is used for interior finish, making a perfect indestructable wall superior to anything ever before used.

CLASS PLAY A SUCCESS

High School Seniors Present "Twelfth Night" with Unusual Skill.

WELL-BALANCED CAST

All Those Who Took Part Performed Most Creditably—Joseph Van Deventer Clever As Sir Toby Belch.

Presenting "Twelfth Night" with a finish and skill decidedly above the average of excellence in class plays, the High School seniors scored a success at the Casino, last night. The performance will be repeated tonight when a crowded house is expected, and even better work may be anticipated from the cast.

The play was well staged, and the smoothness and celerity with which the different scenes were brought on made what might have been a tiresomely long performance all too short. The casts are well-balanced, and all of those in it read their lines well and without hesitation. Where all did so excellently it is hard to distinguish one for especial praise, but were one compelled to pick the player who struck the most popular note with the audience, and scored a personal success through a finely sustained interpretation of the part, Joseph VanDeventer, who played Sir Toby Belch, would be named.

There was some good incidental music. A duet in merry strain by S. B. Howe, Jr., and Bertram Leggett at the close of the play was especially entertaining.

The cast was as follows:

Orsino, Duke of Illyria, William Osgood; Sebastian, brother to Viola, Helen Johnson; Antonio, a sea captain, friend to Sebastian, William Douglass; A Sea Captain, friend of Viola, Weston Gavett; Valentine, Curio, gentlemen aiding on the Duke, William Taylor, Frederick Smith; Sir Toby Belch, uncle to Olivia, Joseph Van Deventer; Sir Andrew Aguecheek, Robert Kyte; Malvolio, steward to Olivia, J. Adelbert van Brakle; Fabian, Feste, a clown, servants to Olivia, Edgar Freeman, Bertram Leggett; Olivia, Edith Hanaford; Viola, Queena Tillotson; Maria, Olivia's woman, Amanda Loughren; Priest, Rollin Williams; Pages to Duke, Misses Clara and Florence Kanen; Attendants on Olivia, Misses Carmen, Pryor and Cubberly; Musicians, Messrs. Howe, Leggett, Smith and Gavett; Officers, Messrs. Gavett and Smith; Songs by Joseph Addison, sung by Miss Tillotson and Mr. Leggett.

The executive staff is made up as follows:

Miss Elizabeth Goddard, Dramatic director; Mr. Lindsey Best, property manager; Mr. S. B. Howe, Jr., musical director; William Douglass, business manager; Weston Gavett, Joseph Van Deventer, assistant managers.

CHURCH MUSICAL.

Excellent Singing Enjoyed by Members of All Souls Church.

A musical entertainment was held at All Souls' Unitarian church, Park avenue, last night. It was much enjoyed by a good sized audience. The music committee of the church was in charge.

The programme included sextettes by Mrs. Guy Bender, Miss Coleman, Miss Alice Thompson, Miss Mabel Vandeventer, C. L. Riley and Jonas Lie; duets by Mrs. Bender and Mr. Riley; and solos by Mrs. Bender, Miss Coleman and Mr. Lie. All the singing was excellent, and the audience was moved to sustained applause after each number. Stephen Haff was the accompanist.

Fred Thompson Returns Home.

Fred Thompson, son of Peter Thompson, of this city, who has been employed by the Holland-American Steamship Company, at Hoboken, returned to Plainfield, yesterday. He had a position as an assorter, and not that of a strike-breaker, as reported by several State papers. He left home two weeks ago with no intention of taking the place of a striker at Hoboken, but securing a good position decided to remain awhile.

Barthiemy Carrar.

Barthlemy Carrar, aged forty-seven years, died this morning at his home in Watchung from an attack of acute pneumonia. He was a contractor and at one time was engaged on the bridge work on the New Jersey Central in this city. He leaves a wife and several grown children. The funeral services will be held from St. Joseph's church, the borough, Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

Organ Club Meets.

The Organ Club of Mt. Olive church met last night at the home of W. H. Mayhew, West Fourth street. Two new members were elected. A collation was served after the meeting.

MISSIONARY MAYPOLE PARTY ON CHURCH LAWN

CONGREGATIONALIST JUNIOR ENDEAVOR SOCIETY HOLDS OUTDOOR AFFAIR.

A novelty in lawn parties was given by the Junior Endeavor Society of the Congregational church yesterday afternoon. It was a missionary maypole party, and transformed the lawn before the church into a bit of color that brightened the whole street.

The Queen was Amy Winant and her maids of honor were Emma Van Alstyne, May Mattison, Esther Hellstrom, Helen Weseman, Eleanor Stover, Ruth Fuller, Gladys Waring, Thelma Curtiss, Katharine Day. Foreign countries were represented by Dorothy Richardson, Mexico; Katharine Day, India; Lillian Hellstrom, Macedonia; Lucy Douglass, Syria; Gertrude Gould, Siam; Helen Poole, Corea; Florence Nielsen, Japan; Claire Newman, China.

They took part in a most interesting and entertaining exercise. The attendance was large, and all those present praised the entertainers without stint.

The Juniors were aided in the entertainment by Miss Maud Emmons, who gave a mandolin solo and Miss Edith Robinson, who sang a soprano solo. The committee in charge was made up of Miss Nellie Winckler and Miss Stella M. Barnett.

C. E. JUNIORS GIVE A DELIGHTFUL PROGRAM

ENTERTAINMENT AT TRINITY CHURCH MUCH ENJOYED BY LARGE AUDIENCE.

Marked success attended the entertainment of the Junior Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity church, last night. The programme was much enjoyed by a large and appreciative audience. The lecture room, where the entertainment was held, was decorated with dogwood blossoms, the platform being especially attractive in its floral decking.

Exercises, recitations, singing and piano solos made up a programme that was most delightfully rendered. The younger performers did exceptionally well. All the numbers were warmly applauded, and if the very evident wishes of the audience had been deferred to the programme would have been stretched to twice its length.

The success of the affair reflects much credit upon Mrs. W. G. Tunison and Mrs. W. R. Kriney, who arranged it. Their admirable plans were most skillfully carried out.

The programme in full was as follows:

Song, "We're a Junior Band," by Juniors; greeting, Helen MacAffee; piano solo, Edna Cole; dialogue, "A Good Use For Money"' (first part), Margarite Van Deventer, Edna Oliver, Helen Crane, Maude Mac Affee, Florence Wilson, Ida Van Arsdale; recitation, "A Problem," Caro Grannatt; second part of dialogue, "A Good Use For Money;" recitation, "Old Shoes," Beatrice Tier; song, "The Song of Waves," Helen Woolley, Helen Roberts, Elsie Tier, Elizabeth Winn; recitation, "The Losing Bag," Howard Willett; dialogue, "Sunday-schools Now and Then," Edna Cole, Elsie Tier; recitation, "A Little Girl's Lecture," Marion Woolley; dialogue, "A Test That Told," Miss Katherine Gray, Miss Lucie Coriell, Miss Delia Dufford, Miss Edythe Leek, Mrs. Sidney Frazee, Miss Mazie Gray, Roy Layton, Bert Gray; piano solo, Elsie Tier; dialogue, "Retreat the Better Part of Valor," Edith Richards, Blanche Derry, Rosomond Rogers, Elmer French; recitation, "The Stolen Custard," Alfred Willett; dialogue, "The Story of a Peach Pie," Adelaide Cole and Lawrence French; monologue, "Polly's Surprise Party," Helen Woolley; exercise, "The Missionary Locomotive," greeting, Margarite Hope; leader, Helen Woolley; Helen MacAffee, Alfred Willett, Ella Porter, Nellie MacAffee, Katie Layton, Lillian McDonald, Cecil MacAffee, Alice Auten, Elizabeth Chickering, Madeline Layton, Wilma Tier, Maude MacAffee, Howard Willett, Elizabeth Higgins, Marjorie Storr; in costume, New Mexican, Helen Roberts; Alaskan, Madoline Strader; Mormon, Elizabeth Winn; Mountain White, Mildred Premier; City Waif, Adelaide Cole; Negro, Harold Storr; Indian, Millard MacAffee; recitation, "Good Night," Marion Woolley.

Witnessed Students' Initiation.

City Judge William N. Runyon went to New Haven yesterday for the purpose of witnessing the initiation of the Yale men elected to the Scroll and Keys society, one of whom is Robert Abbott, of this city. In connection with the ceremonies Judge Runyon delivered the address to the new members.

MISS JESSIE K. STEVENS BRIDE OF W. E. CAHOONE

CEREMONY IN GRACE CHURCH WITNESSED BY MANY GUESTS.

Miss Jessie Katharyn Stevens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick R. Stevens, of East Sixth street, and Walter Eaton Cahoone, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Cahoone, of Watchung avenue, were married at 7.30 o'clock last night at Grace church in the presence of a large number of guests from New York, Brooklyn, Newark, Montclair, Philadelphia, and this city. Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector, performed the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in white satin, trimmed with lace, and her only ornament was a diamond crescent the gift of the groom. She wore a tulle veil, caught up with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley and orchids. The maid-of-honor was Miss Frances W. Cahoone, sister of the groom, who wore a white lace robe, and carried pink roses.

The bridesmaids were Miss Teresa Brackebush, of Cranford; Miss Bessie W. Bond, of this city; Miss Helen Munro, of Philadelphia, and Miss Louise C. Russell, of Brooklyn. They wore gowns of white mousseline and carried shower bouquets of white sweet peas and green foliage. The best man was Royal H. Cahoone, a brother of the groom and the ushers were Richard Mott Cahoone, a cousin of the groom, of Brooklyn; Herbert Munro, of Philadelphia; Roy Hallock and Robert H. McCready, of Plainfield.

William E. MacClymont, organist of the church, rendered an attractive programme of classical selections previous to the wedding, and during the entrance and departure of the bridal party played the Mendelssohn wedding march and the march from Lohengrin.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on East Sixth street, which was attended by two hundred guests. The home was tastefully decorated with flowers and apple blossoms. During the hours of the reception supper was served and an added pleasure was an attractive programme of music by the orchestra. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Cahoone left for a bridal tour, which will include the Jamestown Exposition. They will reside in Plainfield upon their return.

The bride is well-known in a large circle of young people and is popular, as was evidenced by the large display of handsome and costly gifts received. The groom is the editor of "Playthings," a toy trade journal published in New York. He has been prominent in athletics, especially at the Y. M. C. A., where he has taken a number of prizes. He was also a member of the basket-ball team there for several years.

PLAINFIELD ELKS WILL VISIT BAYONNE TONIGHT.

Local Lodge Will Assist in Dedication of New B. P. O. E. Clubhouse

Accompanied by a fife and drum corps, over 100 members of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., will go to Bayonne tonight to participate in the dedication of the Bayonne Elks new clubhouse in West Thirty-fourth street.

The Plainfielders have been given a special invite to assist in the program and several of their members will speak at the exercises. It is expected that 3,000 Elks from all parts of the State will be in attendance.

The ceremonies will begin at three o'clock this afternoon and among the high officials who will speak will be District Deputy Thomas P. Fay, of Atlantic City; Past Exalted Ruler Arthur C. Moreland, of New York Lodge, and Rev. Horatio W. Maguire, chaplain of Bayonne Lodge.

The parade will not begin until night, and preparations for an imposing spectacle have been made. Houses all along the line of march will be elaborately decorated, and there will be a generous discharge of fireworks. The parade will start from West Eighth street, and beside the Plainfield delegation, lodges from Newark, Jersey City, Hoboken, New York, Paterson, Elizabeth, Trenton, Hackensack and Staten Island have accepted invitations to attend. The grand marshal will be Captain James R. Gatchel. The route will be along Eighth street to Broadway, to Fifty-fourth street, to Avenue C, to Thirty-fourth street, to the clubhouse. The new clubhouse was formerly occupied by the Newark Bay Boat Club, which has moved to new quarters.

August Windham's Funeral.

The funeral of August Windham will be held at his late home on Grandview avenue, tomorrow morning at 10:15 o'clock. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, will officiate. The interment will be in Hillside cemetery.

WHAT'S DOING TOMORROW

City Will Observe the Holiday With Exercises, Outings and Sports.

VETERANS TO PARADE

Assemblage in Reform Hall in the Afternoon to Be Addressed by Rev. Dr. John Sheridan Zelie.

Memorial Day will be a busy one for Plainfielders if they want to interest themselves in the many things planned for the day. The customary observance by Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., Women's Relief Corps, Co. K and Sons of Veterans will be of special importance. The veterans will visit the various cemeteries and decorate the graves of the soldier dead, after which there will be a parade of Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and Co. K, headed by Liberty Band, of this city. In the afternoon there will be public exercises at Reform Hall. Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie, pastor of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, will be the orator, and there will be special music.

For those seeking sports of various kinds there will be plenty doing. At the Gentlemen's Driving Park there will be the first of the two days' steeplechase meet under the auspices of the Watchung Hunt Club. There will be an attractive card of events for lovers of races.

There will be two baseball games on Crescent Oval. In the morning the Clinton Avenues will play the Monos and in the afternoon the Clinton Avenues will meet the Y. M. C. A. team. Both contests should attract large crowds. The other league game tomorrow afternoon will be Bound Brook at Scotch Plains. There will be several minor games of interest.

In golfing circles there will be attractive events. At the Plainfield Country Club there will be special competitions on the links, and social features at the clubhouse, while the championship tennis tournament on the courts will hold the attention of many enthusiasts. Special events events will also be held on the links at the Park Golf Club, as well as at the Westfield Golf Club.

For those who do not want to stay at home the Plainfield Grocers' Association will run an excursion to Coney Island. The train will leave here at 7:50 in the morning. The Jersey Central will also conduct excursions to Lake Hopatcong and Mauch Chunk.

In many other ways Plainfielders will have no trouble in spending a day of real pleasure should weather conditions permit.

The postoffice will close at 10 o'clock in the morning. The Plainfield Public Library and Reading Room will be open in the afternoon from 2 to 6 o'clock for reading only. No books will be circulated. The art gallery will be closed all day. The druggists will also close their places of business from 1 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon. On account of it being a holiday there will be no clinic at Muhlenberg Hospital in the afternoon. Nearly all the merchants will close their stores during the entire day.

SWEDISH LUTHERAN PASTOR.

Congregation's First Minister Will Begin His Work Sunday Night.

For the first time in its history, the Swedish Lutheran church, which holds its services in the German Lutheran church, Sunday nights, is to have a permanent pastor. He is Rev. K. J. Erkander, who has been preaching in the South. He will begin his ministry Sunday night.

The congregation has gained strength and stability, and under Mr. Erkander's charge it is expected to forge rapidly ahead. Hitherto, the church has been ministered to by students from Upsala College.

Leland Avenue Bridge Completed.

The Etter Erecting Company, of Philadelphia, has completed the construction of the Jersey Central's new bridge at Leland avenue, making the first of the thirteen to be put up in the city to be finished. The work was done under the supervision of Superintendent W. E. Etter and has been pronounced satisfactory in every way by Chief Engineer Osgood, of the road. Contracts for the remaining bridges are held by other companies.

Renewed Old Acquaintances.

Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Leppa, of Cleveland, O., returned home today after a ten days' visit with relatives and friends at Scotch Plains. Mrs. Leppa is the daughter of the late L. H. K. Smalley, justice of the peace in Fanwood township for many years.

Robert Clark, Jr., of Jackson avenue, returned home last night from a two weeks' business trip in the West.

MISS WHITNEY'S PUPILS GIVE ANNUAL RECITAL

PARK CLUB THRONGED WITH PARENTS AND MANY FRIENDS.

The annual piano recital by the pupils of Miss May Vincent Whitney, at the Park Club, last night, was probably one of the most pleasing events of the season. The assembly hall was crowded to the doors with admiring parents and friends who thoroughly enjoyed every number on the programme. Not only did the pupils acquit themselves in a way that brought additional honors to their efficient instructor, but the numbers by William N. Searles Jr., basso cantante, of St. Paul's M. E. church, Newark, were a delight.

Mr. Searles sang "She Alone Charmeth My Sadness," Gounor; "Longings," Rubenstein; "Shepherds See Thy Horses Foaming Mane," H. Smith; "Valse Lente," C. Krogmann, Miss Dorothy Stelle; "Titania," Lefebure-Woly, Miss Martine Weeks; "She Alone Charmeth My Sadness," Gonoud, "Longings," Rubenstein, William N. Searles, Jr.; "L'avalanche," Heller, Miss Julia Rowley; "Mazurka," Rogers, "In the Meadow," Merkel, Miss Elizabeth Martin; "Papillion," Levelee, Miss Edith Hamilton; grand duo, "Hommage a Handel," Moscheles, the Misses Frances Rittenhouse and Muriel Collins.

"Intermezzo," six hands, Gautier, the Misses Elizabeth Martin, Julia Rowley, Marguerite Barkalew; "The Chase," Garlitt, "In Slumberland," C. Krogmann, Miss Mary Clarke; "Impromptu in E Flat," Schubert, "On Wings of Song," Mendelssohn-Liszt, Miss Helen George; "Schez-Polka," Behr, the Misses Edith Hamilton, Ethel Neumann, Martine Weeks and Mary Clarke; "Kamennoi-Ostrow," Rubenstein; "Polonaise," Paderewski, Miss Muriel Collins; "I Love Thee," Greig; "Mazurka in E Flat," Leschtizsky, Miss Myra Emmons; "Shepherds See Thy Horses Foaming Mane," Speaks; "My Little Love," Hawley, Mr. Searles; "Nocturne in G Flat," Meyer-Helmund; "Polonaise," Moszkowski, Miss Frances Rittenhouse; "Jubel Overture," Weber, the Misses Myra Emmons, Muriel Collins, Helen George and Marguerite Van Zandt.

Everything Ready for the Carnival.

The various committees in charge of the carnival to be held next week on West Front street, under the auspices of Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus, met last night to perfect some of the details. Everything is working out satisfactory and when the affair opens on Monday every attraction will be ready. Tuesday night has been set apart for the Plainfield Business College and Wednesday night will be known as "Fraternity Night," when all the lodges will attend. Thursday night has been reserved for the Knights of Columbus. The other nights have not been decided upon.

Exhibition of War Relics.

In the show windows of "The White Store," A. E. Force & Co., proprietors, there is an interesting exhibition of both Civil and Spanish-American war relics, including small cannons, guns, swords, valuable documents, and pictures taken on the scene of battlefields. The exhibition is of especial interest at this time and attracts the attention of nearly everyone passing the store.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence B. Vail, of Norwood avenue, are parents of a daughter born to them on Friday.

STONECUTTER CHARGED WITH INSULTING WOMEN

MURPHY SAID TO HAVE ANNOYED THREE ON THE STREET.

William Murphy, 52 years old, a stonecutter, of 109 North avenue, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detective Sergeant John Flynn, at Front and Somerset streets, charged with insulting women. Flynn's attention to the man's alleged actions was called by Harry De Meza, clerk in James A. Blair's haberdashery, Park avenue, who said he saw Murphy accost a woman.

It is alleged that Murphy spoke to three women. One he is said to have approached almost in front of police headquarters. De Meza and two companions are said to have watched him until convinced that he was bent on annoying women, and then followed him. They saw Flynn on Front street and De Meza told the officer of Murphy's alleged offenses. The arrest followed.

Chief Kiely said this morning that Murphy had made a partial confession to him. It was said that Murphy showed signs of having had more liquor than was good for him when arrested. In addition to the accusation cited, Murphy is charged with drunkenness and disorder and the use of profane language.

Judge Runyon told Murphy he was an undesirable citizen in the city court this morning, and sentenced him to 60 days in jail and fined him $100. Murphy is not expected to pay the fine.

MUSIC-LOVERS ENJOY PROGRAM BY PUPILS

AFFAIR AT MRS. VAN BUREN'S HOME ENJOYED BY LARGE GATHERING.

Pupils of Miss Jeanie Rogers May, teacher of music at the Seminary, gave a musicale yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Laurens H. Van-Buren, on West Sixth street. The home was thronged with music-lovers, including parents and friends of the pupils. Miss May was a pupil of Herr Moszkowski, of Berlin, and she had been eminently successful in the teaching of the piano. She was assisted yesterday by Miss Verna McCutcheon, who sang two numbers, "Chanson de Florian," Godard, and "'Twas April," Nevin, in a delightful manner.

The recital by the pupils was brilliant and artistic and won great favor with the audience. The younger pupils displayed unusual ability in the rendition of most difficult numbers. This attractive programme was presented:

Ensemble—"The Dawn," and "Anitra's Dance," Grieg, Miss Margaret Leal and Helen Hooley; "May, May, All Is Gay," "I Had a Little Pony," L. E. Orth, Miss Margaret Condict; waltz, "Baby Bunting," L. E. Orth; "Gavotte," Breslauer, Miss Edith Palmer; "Waltz," Gurlitt; "The Cuckoo," Breslauer, Miss Josephine Zinkeisen; "March," Baumfelder; "L'avalanche," Hellen; "La Chevaleresque," Burgmuller, Miss Eleanor Hatch; "Minuet," Bach, "The Lark," Tschaikowski, Miss Helen Strong; "Impromptu," Schubert; "Ecossaisen," Beethoven—Reinecke, Miss Susanne Wharton; "Chanson de Florian," Godard; "'Twas April," Nevin, Miss Verna McCutcheon; "To a Water Lily," MacDowell; "Waltz," Chopin, Miss Helen Hooley; "Erotik," Grieg; "Idyl," MacDowell; "To Spring," Grieg, Miss Marion Hall; "Romance," Schumann; "Barcarolle," Rubenstein; "Scotch Poem," MacDowell, Miss Margaret Leal.

The numbers by the Misses Margaret Condict, Josephine Zinkeisen and Edith Palmer were played in several keys as requested by the audience to illustrate the Faelten system of fundamental pianoforte instruction.

Tinker Arrested.

John McElvain, who says he is 76 years old, and does tinkering and umbrella mending for a living, was arrested by Captain Frederickson at the station house, last night. He came in with a load of mixed drinks at war on his system and called for help. He will be arraigned in the city court this afternoon.

Will Attend Clerks Convention.

Gen. Collins Denies Stories Current About Effect of Martine Dinner.

NO PROTESTING LETTERS

The story that the arrangements for the harmony dinner to James Martine, which will take place at Elizabeth tonight, has caused a revival of discord among the different bands of Democrats, which has been reported in various quarters for several days, was emphatically denied by General Dennis F. Collins yesterday. Some newspapers printed the story and gave it currency. The idea of discord came from the fact that the list of speakers had been changed. The changes were made, it was said, because of a storm of protests against the speakers assigned to prominent parts at the feast.

There was not a single protesting letter, Col. Collins said yesterday. On the contrary, there were a number of letters of approval. The list was changed, he said, because it had been made out before the speakers slated had been consulted, and some of them could not accept on account of engagements made before there was any thought of a dinner to Martine.

Much of the comment arose from the fact that former Senator James B. Smith, who was asked to speak, had declined. It was said that the protestants had written against Smith's appearance at the dinner in any prominent role. They are said to have contended that it would hurt Mr. Martine to have men like Smith and William B. Gourley in the forefront at the dinner. As a result of all this alleged excitement, the committee was said to have shifted the list of speakers so as to eliminate the old bosses and bring young blood to the fore.

All this was without foundation, General Collins said. The men first selected to speak, he said, had to decline because of previous engagements. As for Mr. Smith, Gen. Collins has a letter from him that indicates his warm desire for the success of the dinner. The letter is as follows:

"May 18, 1907.

Gen. D. F. Collins, 600 Pearl street, Elizabeth, N. J.:

"My Dear General:

"With many thanks, I beg to acknowledge the receipt of your cordial invitation to be your guest at a dinner to be tendered to the Old Warhorse, James E. Martine, May 29.

"You can be assured that nothing would give me more pleasure than to be with you to do honor to him, but a previous and imperative engagement necessitates my leaving for the West tomorrow, and I doubt if I will be able to get back in time to attend it, in which case I would ask that you kindly convey to my friends, as well as the host of the evening, my best wishes for the cementing of a successful and united Democracy.

"Very respectfully yours,

"JAMES SMITH, Jr."

PATENT SUIT DISMISSED.

Brought By Patentee of Tooth Powder Box Against New Brunswick Firm.

Judge William M. Lanning, in the United States Circuit Court, has dismissed the suit started by Joseph C. Allen and Lewis A. Allen, of Plainfield, against the Consolidated Fruit Jar Company, of New Brunswick.

Joseph Allen, the patentee of a tooth powder box top, made arrangements with the Brunswick concern to manufacture the tops and pay him a royalty. He claims that the company took out seven more patents for tops, which contained the features of his invention, and that they made and sold the tops under their own patents and paid him no royalties. The company patents are in the name of Henry D. Kent, an officer of the company.

An Illustration

One of our clients owed $48 between four people. His salary is $14 weekly; rent $12 monthly. To have paid $2 weekly to each creditor, combined with rent, would have left only $3 per week to meet expenses, buy clothing, etc.—an impossibility you will agree. He borrowed $50, paid all his creditors, made his future credit good, if ever needed; pays his rent, the loan payments, and has $9 each week to use as his judgment dictates.

RHEUMATIC FOLKS!

Are You Sure Your Kidneys Are Well?

Many rheumatic attacks are due to uric acid in the blood. But the duty of the kidneys is to remove all uric acid from the blood. Its presence there shows the kidneys are inactive. Don't dally with "uric acid solvents." You might go on till doomsday with them, but until you cure the kidneys you will never get well. Doan's Kidney Pills not only remove uric acid, but cure the kidneys and then all danger from uric acid is ended. Here is Plainfield testimony to prove it.

Mrs. C. Rosseter, of 127 Watchung avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Years ago I had backache and headaches, and was troubled also with attacks of rheumatism. On being advised that Doan's Kidney Pills were good for such troubles, I got a supply at Randolph's pharmacy, and found relief soon after I began using them. I now keep them in the house, and use them whenever I feel a twinge of pain in the back or any other symptom of kidney trouble, and it only requires a few doses to chase the pain away. I especially recommend them for rheumatic pain, for my system seemed to be filled with it before I used your medicine."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Mrs. Hoar, of Fairview avenue, mother of Mrs. M. H. Ewart, who underwent an operation at the hospital a few weeks ago, expects to return home by Saturday or Monday at the latest.

Victor Crook, the nine-year old son of W. S. Crook, of South avenue, who cut his wrist a few days ago by falling through a glass door, is improving rapidly at the hospital and will be able to return home soon.

—There will be a regular meeting of the Republican City Executive Committee at the Casino on Tuesday night, June 3.

—All bills against the city must be in the hands of the city clerk by tonight to secure payment at the June meeting of the Common Council.

—W. E. MacClymont, whose comic opera, "The Peasant Prince," will be repeated at the New Plainfield theatre, June 11, is arranging to hold two or three rehearsals next week for the performance. The affair will be for the benefit of the hospital.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

The members of the Methodist church and congregation held an enjoyable reception last night in the church, the event being arranged for the purpose of having the members of the church and congregation meet the pastor, Rev. Mr. Dieterick, in a social way. The affair was a success in every particular, being largely attended. The committee in charge presented an interesting programme, consisting of music and addresses. The reception will bring pastor and people closer together and remain a pleasant memory to both.

Two good games of baseball are on for tomorrow. In the morning at 10:30 the locals will meet the strong team from the Roselle A. C. In the afternoon at 3:30, Bound Brook's league team will make its initial appearance on the local diamond. Both games should be witnessed by the fans as there will be plenty of baseball excitement as the local will have to put up its best article of baseball to win either game. Frentz and Hewitt will probably be the two pitchers used by Manager Frentz in the games tomorrow.

The Memorial Day exercises will take place tomorrow morning at 8 o'clock. The usual turnout of firemen and school children, together with a detail from Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., of Plainfield, will hold a short parade after which the exercises will be concluded with the decorating of the soldiers' graves in the Baptist cemetery.

Memorial Day exercises of a patriotic character were held this afternoon in the assembly room of the school. Besides a programme rendered by the children an address was made by Capt. William Hand, of Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., of Plainfield.

The electric light service on Front street has been very poor for several nights past, the light near the old well being out of commission since Saturday night.

Decoration Day will be generally observed as a holiday in town. The stores will close early in the day and the majority of the residents will take a holiday.

The regular quarterly conference meeting will be held Saturday night in the Methodist church.

George Allen, of Plainfield, was the guest of friends in town last night.

School closes this afternoon and will not reopen until Monday morning.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

DIAMOND DUST.

There will be two games at Crescent Oval tomorrow. In the morning the Clinton Avenues will meet the Monos and in the afternoon there will be the first amateur league contest between the Clinton Avenues and the Y. M. C. A. teams. Both contests should be close and exciting.

Tomorrow afternoon the fans will have an opportunity to see two of the best pitchers in the amateur league oppose each other. Minford, of the Y. M. C. A. nine, will be pitted against Clifford Randolph, of the Clinton Avenues.

Devlin, of the Giants, went through nineteen consecutive games before he made an error.

With all the changes that have been made in the baseball rules in the last forty years the ball itself remains about the same. The rules of 1868 prescribe, like the rules this year, a ball not less than five ounces in weight and not more than five and a quarter. The rules of 1868 said the ball should measure not less than nine inches and not more than 9½ in circumference. Now the maximum circumference is restricted to 9¼ inches.

"They are a game bunch," says Charles Dryden in the Chicago Tribune, speaking of the New York Giants.

In the opinion of the fans Ban Johnson handed the New York Highlanders a lemon in making out this season's schedule. They are given twenty-eight games away from home, including a visit to seven cities and to Boston twice before returning. But then the Highlanders may do what the White Sox did last season, rush to the front when warm weather arrived—if it ever gets warm.

The Brown University team has not lost a game this season, a record to be proud of.

There has been a noticeable absence of kicking at the amateur league games and the fans appreciate it. Abide by the decision of the umpire and if there are good reasons for a kick let the club appeal to the officials of the league.

Willie Keeler, with a batting average around the .200 mark, makes one think of the time Jim Jeffries was dropped by Jack Munroe.

The New York and Cleveland Clubs refused to waive claim on Schlafly the other day when Cantillon asked for waivers.

GOLF.

Tomorrow will be a busy one in local golfing circles and if the weather is fair it is expected that record-breaking crowds will be on the links. At the Plainfield Country Club there will be play for the Decoration Day cups, morning and afternoon, selected score cup, morning and afternoon; May cup, semi-finals and finals, Class A and B.

At the Park Golf Club there will be the competition for the Holiday cup, morning and afternoon, and an approaching and putting contest at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. In the play for the Holiday cup those who turn in their scores for eighteen holes before 2 o'clock will be allowed to play again for the trophy in the afternoon. Suitable prizes will be awarded the winners in the approaching and putting contest.

The events at the Westfield Golf Club tomorrow will include a two-ball foursome for men, 18 holes, handicap, Class A and B, in the morning, and an 18 hole handicap mixed foursome in the afternoon for prizes presented by C. C. Marshall and Joseph Sherman, Jr. There will also be social features at the clubhouse.

H. Chandler Egan, the national amateur golf champion in 1904 and 1905, has decided to make a determined effort to regain his lost title this year. That the far-driving Exmoor player is likely to be the favorite when the field starts at Euclid on July 9 is foreshadowed by the excellent showing he has made in recent Saturday handicaps over his home links. Egan has been straightening out his tee shots, it is said, and this should improve his game. In the amateur championship tournament at Englewood last summer he found it next to impossible to keep his long drives on the course. With Chandler Egan, Walter E. Egan, Ned Sawyer and Warren K. Wood available the Western Golf Association will be able to present a formidable team in the competition for the Olympic cup.

Followers of the game in New York have no notion of seeing the open tournament for professionals, which has proved such an attractive feature on the Van Cortlandt Park public links for the last two years, abandoned this season. Contributions toward raising the necessary purse have already been received, and it is expected that the tournament will be held some time in July. Alec Smith, the national open champion, won first money at Van Cortlandt last year.

Alec Ross won the title of open golf champion of Massachusetts in the play-off of the triple tie with Gilbert Nicholls and David Brown over the links of the Brae Burn Country Club on Saturday. Ross made the eighteen holes in 73. Nicholls and Brown were tied again at 80. They continued on, and the former finally succeeded in winning second money after twenty-two holes. This trio tied at the end of the first seventy-two holes last Friday, with scores of 302. This is the second time Ross has won the Massachusetts title. Brown was open champion of Great Britain some twenty years ago.

SHORT TALKS BY L. T. COOPER.

LACK OF ENERGY.

No man or woman can be successful or happy if they lack energy. If they get up in the morning dreading the days work ahead they will accomplish very little. A great many people are this way. The cause is lack of vitality. Vitality or energy is the power to go and keep on going without becoming more than healthily tired. It comes from a perfectly working system just as power comes from a perfectly working engine. If you lack this power something is out of order. Ten to one it's your stomach.

MR. A. G. LATUBYS.

Take two bottles of Cooper's New Discovery. It will get the stomach in shape. See if energy and ambition don't come back before the two bottles are gone.

This letter is from a man who tried it:

"After suffering for some time from stomach trouble, loss of appetite, headaches and a kind of 'all tuckered out' feeling I decided to try Cooper's New Discovery."

"I used to get up in the morning with my tongue coated and sick at my stomach. I would feel as though it was almost impossible to drag myself to work. Lots of times I had dizzy spells and backaches. After I used several bottles all these symptoms began to disappear and soon I began to feel like my old self again. Now I feel like a new man. It is a pleasure to work, for I always feel like it. I eat well, and sleep well and am sure I will have no further trouble with my stomach." A. G. Latubys, 167 Porter St., Detroit, Mich.

It is estimated that nearly half a million bottles of the famous Cooper medicines were sold during Mr. Cooper's recent demonstration in Chicago. We are agents.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

Belle Mead sweets are the finest of candies. Get them at P. B. Hodge's pharmacy, East Front street.

D. Demolli & Co., West Front street, are caterers of the highest class. Their bakery is a model for all the best bakers to adopt.

William Hand & Sons, of East Second street, do a general trucking business and will contract to move goods any distance. The charges are moderate.

Artists and those interested in works of art will find just what they want at the Plainfield Art Store in the Y. M. C. A. building, J. W. Brady, proprietor.

An Edison phonograph or a Victor talking-machine will give infinite pleasure. Harry K. Lister, of North avenue, sells both machines and always has a full line of records.

When you want to purchase a first-class time-keeper call on Taylor & Co., of North avenue. The firm sells the celebrated Howard watch, guaranteed to run accurate to the second.

A. M. Griffen, the hardware merchant, has a large stock of seasonable goods, including garden tools, farming implements, household furnishings, builders' materials and cutlery. The prices are right.

Fred Endress, of West Front street, has a large and increasing trade. The growth of the trade comes from the quality of the meat and poultry he sells, and the equally high quality of the service to be had at his store.

Summer shoe styles are to be seen in the VanArsdale line in attractive array. The styles are not only new and up to the latest and in fashion, but the quality is all you can hope for. Those who buy shoes without going to VanArsdale's store do an unwise thing.

The Woodhull & Martin Company is showing an exceptional line of spring and summer goods in all departments. All of the latest weaves in dress goods of proper weight and design and at low prices. The line of men's furnishings is large and complete and a visit through the housefurnishing department will show you many desirable things you need.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

Mrs. F. W. Morse, of this city, will speak in the Salvation Army Hall this evening. She will also render solos.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will hold a consecration service Friday night. Mrs. Frank Quaas will lead.

The Junior Epworth League of the First M. E. church will meet in Vincent chapel Friday afternoon, this week, instead of this afternoon, as usual.

On account of recent illness, Rev. Dr. Charles F. Aked, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Baptist church, New York, will be unable to speak at the annual meeting of the East New Jersey Baptist Association at Scotch Plains on Tuesday, June 4.

As a result of the Sunday-school Institute held at the First Baptist church on Monday, it is expected that a Sunday-school teachers' union will soon be formed at Dunellen. Several teachers from that place attended the local institute and were much enthused over the proposition.

—A large gang of men is employed on Park avenue laying pipes for the southside sanitary sewer. At present the pipes have been laid as far north as Arlington place and the work is progressing satisfactorily.

—J. D. Loizeaux, of East Seventh street, has returned from a business trip to Alabama, and says that the residents of that State never remember such a poor growth of vegetation. Cotton that should be knee high at this time of the year is only two or three inches above the ground.

The degree team of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., will assist Friday night in the institution of a new lodge of Odd Fellows at Perth Amboy.

Plainfield, N. J., May 29, 1907.

Tomorrow being a legal holiday, the Daily Press will not be issued.

Gov. Stokes' signing of the supplemental appropriation bill which allows $10,000 for the fight against mosquitoes, has met with approval from Union county people at least, as a goodly portion of this amount will be spent within its confines. It was largely through the efforts of Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, that the item was included in the supplementary bill and afterward approved by the chief executive and his interest is greatly appreciated. Though Plainfield is comparatively free from the pest, the withholding of funds at this time would have set at naught a large amount of ditching which has been conducted by Elizabeth, the county seat authorities having been exceptionally liberal in voting money for the cause. The latest local appropriation together with the amount forthcoming from the State, will suffice to practically complete the work in this neighborhood, leaving the extensive meadows in Linden the only important breeding places in this vicinity.

A PATRIOTIC PROGRAM.

Pupils of Parochial School Hold Memorial Day Exercises.

Under the direction of the Sisters a program of patriotic exercises were held at the Parochial School, this afternoon. There was present a representation from Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., in charge of Captain W. C. Smith, who with Father Bogan made a short address.

The program consisted of an opening hymn, "My Child Give Me Thy Heart," chorus; "Decoration Day," concert recitation, grade four B; "Jersey Land, My Jersey Land," chorus; "Gather Flowers for Patriots' Graves," concert recitation, grade five B; "Red, White and Blue," chorus; "Memorial Day," concert recitation, selected pupils; "Tenting Tonight on the Old Camp Ground," school; "The Vanishing Army," grade seven A; recitation, "The Moral Meaning of Our Flag," Willie Sullivan; "Our Heroic Sires," grade eight B; "Liberty Bell Drill," thirty-six girls. After the addresses by Father Bogan and Captain Smith the school sang "Holy God We Praise Thy Name."

The children of this school have been gathering flowers which will be given to the veterans tomorrow for decorating the graves.

SPOKE ON McKINLEY.

Former Mayor Randolph Eulogizes Martyred President in High School Address.

Memorial Day was observed at the Plainfield High School this morning when ex-Mayor L. V. F. Randolph delivered an address on the life and work of President McKinley. He gave a short sketch of Mr. McKinley's army career, and said that he came to his country's aid with a message and mission of benediction. He laid special emphasis on the fact that he favored labor unions.

He died fearlessly as he had lived, saying, "It is God's way. His will, not ours, be done." McKinley's whole life, declared Mr. Randolph, was characterized by a rounded character, a noble mind and purpose.

Mexico Near War.

City of Mexico, May 29.—Despite pacific reports sent out by the government, the general sentiment throughout the country seems to be that war is imminent, as matters have one so far that Mexico must obtain satisfaction. Newspapers here assert that private despatches say that President Cabrerafi of Guatemala, is preparing to flee to Germany. He has bought the Hamburg hoff, a palatial residence in Hamburg, at a cost of $2,000,000, the reports state.

Wings and Flies

By Tom Muir.

David Belasco has invented a new style of lighting his Stuyvesant theatre, which will surprise theatregoers when that playhouse is opened to the public in September. It will rival daylight, it is said, and yet be more harmless to the eyes than the present mode of lighting theatres.

Manager John Cort has obtained the right to produce "Zira," in which Margaret Anglin scored such a success as an emotional actress last year, west of the Mississippi, and will present Florence Roberts in it next season. Under the direction of George B. Hunt and George W. Gallagher, Mabel Montgomery will star in the play in the Eastern territory. Miss Montgomery appeared on tour last season in "Zaza."

Delia Stacey, who played the leading feminine role in Nat M. Wills' production, "A Lucky Dog," during the past season, will be starred by Broadhurst and Currie in a new musical play next season. This piece will be presented in the popular priced playhouses.

Following is a partial list of the many attractions which Manager Counihan has already booked for next season at the New Plainfield theatre: The Red Feather; 'Way Down East; Buster Brown; Montgomery and Stone in the Red Mill; The Grand Mogul; Joe Santley; Billy, the Kid; The Outlaws; Christmas; Mayor of Tokio; Under Southern Skies; Grace George in The Divorcans; Marie Cahill in Marrying Mary; McIntyre and Heath; The Belle of Avenue A; Hap Ward in Not Yet But Soon; The Hypocrites; Rose Stahl in the Chorus Lady; Prince of Pilsen; Neill Burgess in County Fair and Vim; The Student King; Belle of Mayfair; George Primrose, Lew Dockstader and Al. G. Fields, heading their minstrel troupes; Chauncey Olcott; Rogers Brothers; Just Out of College; Elsie Janis; Hattie Williams; The Lion and The Mouse; John Drew; Ethel Barrymore; Geo. Cohan in his The Honeymooners, as well as his other play, Little Johnny Jones; York and Adams, in Playing the Ponies; George Sideny in Bizzy Izzy's Vacation; Adelaide Thurston; Amelia Bingham; George Washington, Jr.; McFadden's Row of Flats; The Road to Yesterday; Brewster's Millions; The Virginian; The Hypocrites; George Cohan's Forty-five Minutes from Broadway, and Fifty Miles from Boston; Victor Moore in Cohan's Talk of New York; Lula Glaser; Flaming Arrow; Across the Pacific; Robert Mantell; Nat M. Wills and Thos. E. Shea.

Sales of New Homes.

During the past year E. S. F. Randolph has erected a number of new houses in this city and vicinity which have been sold to the following persons: Lawyer H. K. Gaston and Treasurer M. H. Johnson, of Somerville; one on East Fifth street, near Grant avenue, to Preston H. Smith, principal Bayonne High School; one at Grant avenue and West Fifth street, now rented by Dr. P. B. Cregar; one at Evergreen and Edgewood avenues to W. H. Stevens; one on Evergreen avenue to Edward Sharp; one on Union street to Warren Marsh and one on Kensington avenue to Lawyer Howard A. Williams, of New York. There is under construction a house on Evergreen avenue for Edward Lyons; one at 1057 Park avenue for Edward Sharp; one at 933 East Seventh street for Edward L. Allen, of New York; one at 927 East Seventh street, for Fred Letson, and one at 1026 Evergreen avenue unsold. Two houses at Westfield are also under construction.

Real Estate Tranfers.

The following local real estate transfers have been recorded at the office of the county clerk: Emma Darling et al. to Howard J. Runyon lot 37, "Map of Netherwood," Plainfield, $1; Edward M. Bliven et al. to William T. Sharp, easterly side Kensington avenue, corner Prospect street, Plainfield, $1; Edward S. F. Randolph to William T. Sharp, northeasterly side Park avenue, 200 feet southeasterly of Evergreen avenue, Plainfield, $1; Ellen Mullen to Howard P. Reynolds, southeasterly side West Fifth street, corner J. A. Bryant, Plainfield, $1; John McGinley to Giuseppe Janeiro, northwesterly side Cottage place, 154 feet southwesterly of P. Langbein, Plainfield, $1,300; Emma T. Terry to Thomas Muldowney, Fifth street, 33 feet southwesterly of A. Dunn, Plainfield, $1.

He Wanted Himself Shot.

Washington, D. C., May 29.—Elisha D. Berry, a prosperous farmer living near Falls Church, Va., committed suicide yesterday by shooting. He had suffered severely with neuralgia, and this, together with worry over a suit against an electric light railway for damages, is believed to have unsettled his mind. He had often expressed a wish to die and several times had requested a nephew to shoot him.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Lucy Hooper.

Mrs. Lucy Hooper, wife of Harry Hooper, aged twenty-one years, died this morning at her home, 304 Park avenue, from pulmonary troubles. The notice of funeral will be given later.

Alexandre Eugene Verdier.

Alexandre Eugene Verdier, aged fifty-two years, a native of France, and employed during the past six months as care-taker at the Perrin Cie glove factory on Washington avenue, died at 6 o'clock this morning at that place, following an illness of several weeks' duration. He came to this country fifteen years ago. He is survived by a wife. The funeral service will be held from the late home on Washington avenue Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Phil. A. Parsons, of the Christian church, will officiate and the interment will be in the Plainfield Avenue cemetery.

FEAR OF GRAND JURY MADE SALOON MEN SHY.

Elizabeth Experienced One of the "Dryest" Sundays in a Decade Sunday.

Elizabeth, May 29.—That the action of the grand jury last week in rounding up several saloon-keepers for violating the excise law by selling on Sunday had a salutatory effect on other liquor-dealers was shown by the way the lid was on Sunday throughout the city.

It was probably the driest Sunday seen in Elizabeth in a decade. For a stranger it was almost impossible to get into any saloon, and the few that did business were carefully picketed. Even these places shut down during the middle of the day and night. There was a large exodus of the thirsty ones to Staten Island, and if the weather had been fair the Elizabethport ferry would have done a rushing business. A large proportion of those who visited Staten Island came by trolley cars from Newark.

The grand jury resumed Monday its probing of the excise laws enforcement and it is rumored after getting through with investigating the saloon-keepers who are charged with violating the bishops' law it will take a turn at Elizabeth's Board of Excise as to its methods of granting license transfers.

For the first time in its history "Little Italy," as Peterstown, the Italian quarter of the city, is called, went dry Sunday, none of the liquor dealers there caring to take any chances while the grand jury inquest is doing business. Groups of disconsolate Italians wandered about the streets not knowing what to think about the sudden turning of the colony into a thirst desert.

It is said the grand jury will not finish its labors before some time next week and it may take even longer to dispose of all the cases under investigation.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Clarkson, of West Fifth street, will move next week to East Third street.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTIST ENDEAVORERS ENTERTAIN

An entertainment of exceptional merit was given in the parlors of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, last night, under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society, the affair taking the place of the annual musicale. There was a large audience and the silver offering received for the society work was gratifying.

The programme opened with a violin and organ selection, "Aria and Gavotte," J. S. Bach, by Mrs. Violet Truell Johnston and Arthur L. Titsworth, followed with a selection, "Welcome Pretty Primrose," by the women's chorus, comprising Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, Mrs. George L. Homan, Mrs. William J. Tallamy, Mrs. William C. Hubbard, Mrs. James Everett Kimball, Miss Nan Randolph and Miss Mildred Greene. Miss Jessie Utter was the accompanist.

Miss Mary Hubbell, soprano, sang "Lorelei," by Franz Liszt, and Mrs. Frank J. Hubbard and Miss Eva M. Rogers gave a piano duet, "Peer Gynt Suite 1. Part second of the programme consisted of a violin and organ selection, "Andante Religioso," by Mrs. Johnston and Mr. Titsworth, vocal solos, "What Is Love?" and "I'll Rock You to Rest," by Miss Hubbell, a reading, "Flowers," by Miss Ernestine C. Smith.

The last part of the entertainment was devoted to a little sketch entitled "Garden of Flowers," and choosing the flower queen in which the children of the Sabbath-school took part. They represented various flowers and were very attractive in paper costumes. Miss Hannah Shaw was the fairy and she impersonated the part in a pleasing manner. The programme concluded with a selection, "Now Is the Month of Maying," by the women's chorus.

The committee having charge of the entertainment consisted of Mrs. Nathan E. Lewis, Mrs. Frank Hubbard, Miss Mary St. John and Miss Mildren Greene.

LETTER CARRIERS MEET AT MONTCLAIR TOMORROW.

Local Office Will Send a Delegation to the Ninth Annual Convention.

The ninth annual convention of the New Jersey State Association of Letter Carriers will take place tomorrow at Montclair. The convention proper will be in Arcanum Hall and will be folowed by a banquet in the evening in Tegakwita Hall.

Mayor Crawford, of Montclair, is to make the address of welcome opening the convention. Others who are to speak include J. D. Holland, of Boston, president of the National Association; J. J. Gallagher, Jersey City, member of the executive committee and J. C. Bunton, of Hoboken, chairman of the Carriers' Home Association.

A feature of the convention will be a parade in the afternoon. It is expected that at least 500 carriers will be in line, headed by two bands and a platoon of police under Chief Gallagher, of Montclair.

The following letter carriers from this city will attend: Daniel Shay, J. W. A. Bauersachs, Robert Loughlin, Philip Giese, Charles Glaentzer, George Keen, Daniel Mack, E. J. Rippley and John Hines.

NEW MASONIC TEMPLE OPENED AT JERSEY CITY.

Two Plainfielders Among a Class of 262 to Receive Degrees from Fourth to Thirty-Second.

The $100,000 Scottish Rite temple in Park street, Jersey City, was formally opened yesterday, when degrees from the fourth to the thirty-second were conferred during the afternoon and evening on 262 Freemasons at sessions of the various Scottish Rite bodies. High Degree Masons were present from all parts of the State. The temple will be dedicated in the fall.

The exercises started at 1 p. m., when Master Harry C. Cadmus, of Elizabeth, called the craftsmen into session for the purpose of conferring the various degrees, and from that hour until long past midnight the work continued. Plainfielders who received the thirty-second degree were Elmer D. Cutting and Dr. A. H. Dundon.

Each candidate contributed $90 for his initiation so that a total of $23,580 was received from the 262 men.

Will Spend the Summer in Ireland.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Battell Loomis, who were former residents of Fanwood, have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Laurens H. VanBuren, of West Sixth street. About the first of July Mr. Loomis, accompanied by George Albert Fleming, a noted baritone, of New York, will sail for Ireland to be gone two months. Last night Mr. Loomis and Mr. Fleming gave an entertainment at the Salamagundi Club, New York, before a large audience. It is possible that they may appear in Plainfield next fall and winter in a series of entertainments.

Mrs. Elmore D. Moffett, of Orchard place, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Tams, of Trenton, during the past two weeks, has returned home.

Town Burdened With Money.

Lima, Ohio, May 29.—A handhome cement block opera house was dedicated in Shawnee township yesterday. It is furnished along the lines of the best playhouses in the country. Shawnee's trustees could find no other way to spend its income, which is received annually from the Standard Oil Company, whose storage tanks, refinery and car works, representing millions, are in that township. After having paved with brick some of the country roads and macadamizing others to a point of perfection, the money still kept piling up, and the opera house was devised as a means to rid the township of some of its surplus.

Special Master's Sale.

Nelson Runyon, special master, sold at public auction yesterday the Cutter Doblier farm, of about thirty-three acres, on Terrill road, Fanwood township, to Francis Morris, of New York, for $1,850. The sale was held at the Hotel Iroquois and was well attended.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning June 2.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—How to realize the presence of Christ.—John xiv, 15-23.

The question of the realization of the presence of Christ in our hearts and lives is a most important one. That Christ is constantly with us, our constant companion, cannot be denied, for it is directly taught by Christ Himself in the Scriptures. When He was about to depart from the disciples' world He comforted them with the thought that they should not be left alone in His absence—"that God would send them another Comforter, that He may abide with you forever," and further on He adds, "He dwelleth with you and shall be in you." The Holy Spirit therefore as the representative of Christ is an indwelling and abiding Spirit, and His dwelling in us is Christ dwelling in us. But while we acknowledge the fact the difficulty arises in our realization of the fact of Christ's presence through that of the Spirit, but no Christian need grow discouraged over this lack of realization of the presence of Christ. Christ's union with us is a mystical union, but the vast majority of Christians are practical rather than highly spiritual in disposition, and hence it is impossible for them to grasp what is so easy for those who possess mystical and highly spiritualized natures. What is so difficult to the practical man is second nature to the mystic. To many Christians Christ's words, "Abide in Me and I in you," mean little or nothing. To others they mean everything. They revel in the consciousness of Christ's presence. They seem to breathe the Holy Spirit into their very beings, as they breathe the air into their lungs.

But it is a mistake to suppose that those who are naturally of a spiritual disposition possess a superior Christianity to those who are more practical. Indeed, the opposite is often the case. There are many temptations of a serious nature, to which the mystical in disposition are susceptible, that would never appeal to the average Christian at all. Among these are pride, hypocrisy, presumptuous boasting and even certain immoralities. The man of practical bent may have no ecstatic revels in the consciousness of Christ's presence, but he believes in Him, loves Him and faithfully serves Him, which makes him a Christian in name and in fact. He has the presence of Christ even if he is not so conscious of that fact.

The realization of Christ's presence in us and with us is, after all, a great blessing and a great joy and undoubtedly a great inspiration to service. This being true, we may well inquire how we may realize this presence, how we may feel and know that He is always with us, our companion and our friend. Or, if we may be allowed to change the inquiry a little and to ask rather by what means we may have a fuller realization of Christ's presence with us, its importance increases. And in discussing this subject for the average Christian no elaborate, impossible and mystical scheme should be proposed. The Bible itself suggests what may be helpful to us all in the accomplishment of this desire.

1. Love will give us a realization of Christ's presence. The more deeply and truly we love Him the more we will feel His presence with us. This may be illustrated by human love. We feel the presence of those we love most dearly at all times. Their faces are before us. We hear their voices, and the very atmosphere about us seems to be charged with their presence. So it is when our love for Christ is deep and intense and not merely a travesty upon love.

2. Obedience will give us a realization of Christ's presence. In obeying those we love we have an increased realization of their presence with us. This is especially true of loved ones who have departed from us. If they have left us commands to obey or duties to perform, our remembrance of them is heightened and they seem to be with us. This is more true in obeying Christ. As we obey His commandments and fulfill His mission we become more conscious that He is with us.

3. Personal communion with Christ in prayer, the reading of His word and meditation—all these things are helps to a realization of His presence with us.

4. Faith will give us a realization of Christ's presence. He has promised that He will be with us, and of course He keeps His promises. All we have to do is to stand upon them. To believe is to have them. He is with us. To be more conscious of His presence we have but to exercise more faith in Him and in His word.

A Topic Card Suggestion.

The Second United Presbyterian Endeavorers of Spokane, Wash., have a very bright topic card, upon which we find the following list of suggestive imperatives:

SIX QUEEN B(EE)'S.

1. Be prepared.
2. Be on time.
3. Be prayerful.
4. Be quiet.
5. Be attentive.
6. Be sociable.

Your Pledge.

[In acrostic.]

Pray over it!
Live it out!
Examine it often!
Do more than it says!
Go forward steadily!
Enjoy it heartily!

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

June 2: "A High Standard." "Ye are an elect race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people for God's own possession, that ye may show forth the excellencies of Him who called you out of darkness into His marvelous light."—I Pet. ii, 9.

By REV. WALTER J. YATES, D. D.

Passages for reference—Matt. v, 29, 30, 45; II Cor. vi, 14-18; I Thess. iii, 12, 13.

The Christian religion presents to man the ideal of human perfection, not in the attainment merely of the most admirable physical development or in the cultivation of the intellectual powers simply. It presents the worthy goal of all human striving as the likeness of God in holiness of character. This cannot be imparted. It must be acquired by personal choice and exercise of all powers of the being under the influence of the Divine Spirit.

This is a vast world, with innumerable possibilities. The standards for human effort are many and varied. Many of those we see set up around us are far from the Christian ideal. The purposes and pursuits of those with whom we associate have influence with us. We are told so often "When you are in Rome you must do as the Romans do" that we almost come to believe the venerable lie is a time honored truth of value.

The fact is, when a Christian is in Rome or any other place he should do as a Christian ought. We have no business in any place in this universe where we must do otherwise. If in any situation the etiquette of the place requires an action that is contrary to our highest allegiance to Jesus Christ, we must change the rules of the place or get out with great alacrity. We cannot, we will not, change our settled course.

Are you at a wedding banquet where wine is offered and you are expected to partake, do you hesitate what course to take? Better have settled that question before you got there. If you have not done so, settle it now and settle it rightly. Under no circumstances take the wineglass socially. Let that be your position, as immovable as Gibraltar. Express it as pleasantly as may be, but so that your answer admits no debate and no further solicitation from any one whatever.

A man like U. S. Grant can go around the world and be banqueted without stint and keep his wineglass bottom up. Because he had learned to control one man he was able to command many.

There are many standards in the world, to be sure. You can have but one that is safe. You must fix that yourself. When rightly fixed, you would best not change or shift it in the least when under the stress of temptation. Under no circumstances consent to lower it. No condition in life is more hopeless than that of one who has attained his ideal. For such a one there is no more progress possible. No condition is so lamentable as that of one who has lowered his standard to conform to that of the folks around him. Such a one will never benefit the society whose fellowship he craves, for he has nothing to give that is worth its taking. He will get no good, for it has nothing of worth for him to get.

Set your standard at the greatest height you know. Run it up to the masthead and nail it there, never to be lowered in surrender of principle. If it comes down at all, let it be only when you have fired the last shot in the magazine and the deck sinks under you. Then go down with the craft into a glorious grave, fitting end of a well fought fight, but with the ensign still streaming masthead high.

God's Care For His Children.

To the Christian heart there is scarcely a thought more delightful than that embodied in the words "He careth for you." Amid all the happenings of this life so much seems to occur by chance and to the unobserving and undevout without any regard for the happiness of God's creatures that it requires some faith to believe there is an overruling providence which really cares for us. We are not only assured that this is the case in the words of holy writ, but every true Christian has the confirmation within himself that his heavenly Father is caring for him continually, watching over him with infinite love and tenderness, concerned in all that happens to him indeed, permitting nothing to happen by chance, but controlling everything in His directive providence. The Christian feels this, and it gives him courage to go forward with the assurance that he is not left alone in the toil and struggle, but is always and everywhere compassed about by the kindly providence of his God.—Christian Work and Evangelist.

Leadership of Soul.

We may inspire another to follow Christ. This is the highest, best use of leadership of soul. The prayer of every earnest heart is this: Give me spiritual power—right power over the minds and hearts and wills of men.

Sentence Sermons.

A man is specially and divinely fortunate not when his conditions are easy, but when they evoke the very best that is in him, provoking him to nobleness and stinging him to strength.—Mable.

If a thing is possible and proper to man, deem it attainable to thee.—Marcus Aurelius.

The measure of a man's life is the well spending of it, not the length.—Plutarch.

How shall I be able to rule over others that have not the full power and command of myself?—Rabelais.

He has not learned the lesson of life who does not every day surmount a fear.—Emerson.

The Mystery of Carneycroft

BY JOSEPH BROWN COOKE COPYRIGHT 1907 BY STORY-PRESS CORPORATION

"Easiest thing in the world," laughed MacArdel. "You were in and out of your room after you made up the bed for the night, weren't you?"

"Why, certainly!" I rejoined. "I fixed it up first and then came down and locked up the house. I must have been out of the room for 15 or 20 minutes after the bed was made."

"Well," he continued, "what more do you want? The woman, or one of her accomplices, evidently has a way of getting in and out of the houses, at pleasure, and while you were fussing around downstairs the note was tucked under a fold of the counterpane with the idea that you would find it when you turned in. As a matter of fact you didn't find it till morning, but you probably slept as well, for all that."

"How about the cigar case?" I asked, with a grin.

"Oh, bother the cigar case!" exclaimed MacArdel. "That was only an incident in this whole plot to scare people away from here. It looks queer, I know, but so did the other things, for a time. We'll find out how it was worked, sooner or later, and, even if we don't, I can't see that it makes any great difference. We know the leaders in this business and we've got them pretty well subdued. All you have to do is to go ahead and open up the place. There won't be any more nonsense when they realize that you don't care a snap of your finger for them or their doings. Just get your servants here all at the same time. Have the house cleared and aired from top to bottom and keep lights burning in the halls all night. Fill the stable with horses as you told me you intended to do, and see that all the servants' cottages on the place are occupied.

"You won't have any trouble, Ware, if you will only take the precaution to have all these people come at the same time, and transform the place into one of bustling activity within a few hours. All you have to do to stamp out this ghost business is to overwhelm it entirely, and there won't be any more of it, I promise you, as soon as the place is running full blast."

MacArdel's idea seemed to be the most practical one that presented itself, and within a few days, the house was filled with workmen and their helpers, while the retinue of carefully chosen servants was imported from town, and gave to the establishment an air of permanent occupancy. As many men from the village as could be persuaded to work on the place at all were assigned to the roads and lawns, and every effort was made to beautify and render attractive the entire estate.

I had no hesitancy in authorizing the lavish expenditures which were necessitated by such wholesale rehabilitation of the property, for not only was I assured that anything I might do would meet with the full approval of Miss Carney, but, from my position as her trustee, I knew that the income of the estate would warrant the steps I was taking toward its improvement.

There were no further uncanny manifestations or mysterious happenings of any kind, and Jenks and the widow continued to follow their usual vocations as if nothing out of the ordinary had occurred, so that we were forced to believe that they were living up to the spirit as well as to the letter of their oath.

MacArdel who had remained with me as my guest and companion while this work was in progress, did not half like this submissive behavior on the part of Jenks and the Bruce woman and his suspicions were greatly increased when I ordered the widow out of her cottage to make room for the golf links that Miss Carney wanted laid out.

"Keep an eye on her, Ware," said MacArdel, when I told him how promptly and willingly she had acquiesced in my wishes, and with what seeming gratitude she had accepted the new quarters in which I had installed her. "Watch her carefully, old man," he continued. "She'll be up to some devilry yet, you may be sure. Neither she nor Jenks has breathed a word, even to you or me, about that business the other night, but they haven't forgotten it by any means, and we'll hear from them when we least expect to, unless we keep a sharp lookout. I almost wish they had cut up a row over it at the beginning, rather than have them go on like this. They are nursing their rancor all this while and some day they will try to get their revenge."

A telegram announcing the sailing of Miss Carney and Miss Weston spurred us on to greater efforts and, when at last we were ready to leave for town that I might meet the travelers at the pier, we were both satisfied that our labor had not been in vain.

Carney-Croft looked like its old-time self in its happiest days. The lawns had been cut and sodded, the roads and paths graded and repaired, the shrubs and hedges trimmed, and the flower beds filled with rare and well chosen plants.

Within the house had been cleaned and renovated from garret to cellar and the corps of servants from housekeeper down to kitchen maid, were reliable, capable, and thoroughly attested respectability, while the stable, with its new horses and trustworthy men, was nowise behind in point of complete reorganization and equipment.

"You've done a great bit of work in the last few weeks," said MacArdel, as we were speeding toward town in the fast express.

"Well," I replied, "my heart was in it, Mac. That accounts for it, I suppose."

The idiotic grin with which he received this remark caused me to blush like a schoolboy, and I turned away from him to the window and watched the ever changing panorama that glided past as we rushed on toward the city.

CHAPTER XIV.

Return of the Wanderers.

Miss Carney came down the gangplank followed closely by Miss Weston, and greeted me in a way that was plainly sincere.

"Oh! I am so glad to be home again!" she exclaimed joyously, and her face lighted up with pleasure as she glanced about at the crowd of expectant people that choked up the pier.

"So is Annie, too!" she laughed, laying a hand on Miss Weston's arm and patting it playfully. "She was dreadfully ill all the way across and scarcely left her room until we reached Quarantine this morning. I don't know what seasickness is, myself, and I simply lived on deck. Why, how do you do, Mrs. Randolph! I am so glad to see you!"

Mrs. Randolph, who proved to be Miss Weston's aunt, kissed both young women affectionately and then I was introduced in due form.

"Mrs. Randolph is to be our chaperon," Miss Carney explained, "and is going to Carney-Croft with us as soon as the place is ready. I was wishing this morning that you knew her, for I was sure she would be here and you could have been company for each other while you were waiting for the ship to come up. We used to say, when we lived here, that there seemed to be a fate that kept you two people from meeting one another."

"You had a pleasant trip, I hope?" I asked, solicitously, after expressing my regret that I had missed the pleasure of Mrs. Randolph's acquaintance.

"Delightful, every minute of it!" she rejoined. "If it hadn't been for Annie's seasickness and—"

HOMEMADE SOAP.

Soap can be made at home by a trifling expenditure of time and labor, out of materials that otherwise would be thrown away, or sold below their real value.

Fat, water and an alkali are the only ingredients absolutely necessary. Others can often be added to improve the appearance of the soap, and some may slightly increase its efficiency, but these alone make an excellent compound for cleansing purposes. This simple soap is pleasant to use and does not roughen the hands.

Every particle of fat if not fit to use in cooking should be carefully saved. If raw, it can be fried out by putting it over the fire in a thick iron saucepan, and stirring it frequently to prevent burning. When done, strain it into a clean jar. A little boiling water can be poured on the scraps, and after boiling a few minutes set aside. When cold the cake of fat can be taken from the top and put in the jar.

The remains of dripping, the fat skimmed from soup, or gravies, or any similar material, should be treated like the scraps. Stir frequently while it is boiling, and the impurities will sink to the bottom, leaving a clean cake of fat on top when it is cold.

The contents of the jar should be often inspected in warm water, and heated again, without water, if there are trace of mould or an unpleasant smell. Soap grease should be as pure and sweet as suet, or butter, used for cooking.

Any good brand of concentrated potash can be used. Castic soda is equally as good, and much cheaper, but it can usually be obtained only from wholesale druggists, or at a soap manufactury. Crude potash is said to be excellent, but from this the writer cannot speak from personal experience, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

A large pot is very desirable, as the soap froths up at one stage of its manufacture, and is apt to boil over if in too small a vessel. A tin washboiler can be used, without injury to itself or its contents.

If, after a fair trial, the soap is liked it will be worth while to have a wooden box lined with zinc to run it in. Any carpenter can make it. ne, eighteen inches long, twelve inches wide and six inches deep, inside measurement, will hold a batch of hard soap. Thezinc is neatly fitted to the bottom and sides, turned over the top and nailed on.

A Good Hard Soap: Five pounds of grease, three gallons of soft, hot water, one pound of concentrated potash. Let these boil together for five or six hours, adding water as it boils away to keep up the original quantity. When done it is a dark yellowish-brown, clear like jelly, almost transparent.

If the tongue is touched to it the taste is smooth and not unpleasant; it is sharp and acrid if not sufficiently boiled. It should be frequently stirred while boiling. Pour it into the zinc-lined box, and leave it to harden. In twenty-four hours it will be a solid mass of nearly white soap.

Turn it out on a table and cut it in thin bars lengthwise. If desired it can then be divided into squares.

Soft Soap for the Laundry: Two pounds of caustic soda, ten pounds of grease, eighteen gallons of water. The soda and grease may be boiled with one-third of the water, precisely as in the preceding receipt.

When done, pour it into a half barrel, or any large receptacle, and add twelve gallons of boiling water.

Stir until thoroughly blended, and it will be when cold a soft, jelly-like paste, very pleasant to use for many purposes, and particularly useful in the laundry.

In using any of these receipts, if the grease floats and is not absorbed, the alkali used is too weak, and more must be added.

ONE DAY TOURNAMENT FOR WOMEN GOLFERS

MANY METROPOLITAN ASSOCIATION MEMBERS IN THE TWO EVENTS.

The one-day tournament open to the members of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association, attracted a large field to the Plainfield Country Club, yesterday, and was considered a success. While a number of the prominent women golfers were absent, many familiar faces were seen on the links. There were two events on the schedule—a best ball foursome in the morning and an obstacles approaching and putting contest in the afternoon, when the contestants had to put around four stakes, loft over two boards about two and one-half feet wide and six inches high, and also put through a barrel.

In the best ball foursomes, Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers and Miss Gertrude Noe won the prize for the best net score with an 82, and tied with a 90 with Miss Julia Mix and Mrs. Neidlinger for the best gross score prize. The last-named pair received the gross score prize. The scores for the foursomes follow:

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers and Miss Gertrude Noe, 90, 8—82; Mrs. E. T. Sanford and Miss M. Patterson, 91, 4—87; Miss Julia Mix and Mrs. Neidlinger, 90, 2—88; Miss M. Harrison and Miss Maude VanBoskerck, 100, 5—95; Mrs. H. B. Clark and Miss E. Check, 101, 5—96; Miss Edith Tracy and Miss Margaret Goddard, 108, 11—97; Mrs. Ralph Lane and Miss Palm, 110, 11—99; Mrs. W. B. Moffat and Mrs. W. H. Watt, 120, 14—106; Mrs. C. F. Berrlacker and Mrs. J. F. Sage, 119, 12—107.

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers won the obstacles approaching and putting competition with a score of 15. The other scores: Mrs. M. C. Patterson, 16; Miss E. Check, 17; Mrs. Ralph Lane, 18; Mrs. M. Harrison, 22.

At noon the women of the Plainfield Country Club entertained the visitors at luncheon and the social features were greatly enjoyed.

CHAMPIONSHIP TENNIS CONTINUES TOMORROW.

East Jersey Association Members Will Again Contest On Country Club Courts.

The continuation of the tennis play commenced on Saturday for the East Jersey Lawn Tennis Association championship will be the attraction on the courts of the Plainfield Country Club tomorrow.

In the men's doubles there are five pairs from Elizabeth left in and one from Plainfield, Brown and Cochran. Play wil begin at 10 o'clock in the morning, with a match between F. E. and L. H. Ferris against D. Mathey and R. A. West; At 11 o'clock the winner of this match will play M. S. Charlock and H. M. Glazebrook; also at the same time Wylie Brown and H. J. Cochran will play Cragin and Pendergast. The finals in the afternoon at 3 o'clock will be between the winners of these matches.

The women's singles will begin at 11 a. m., when Miss Edna Wildey will play Miss J. Eggleston, of Elizabeth; also Miss Mildred Wildey will play Miss Nathalie Wildey and the finals will be in the afternoon.

MAY BE FATALLY STABBED.

Aldene Carpenter Laid Up In Critical Condition.

Roselle Park, May 29.—Terry Vanello, a carpenter, was perhaps fatally stabbed in the neck Saturday evening, and Joseph Griffe, of Hoboken, charged with the crime, is locked up. The affray took place on Westfield avenue, here, and, the police say, was the result of a dispute over the price of shingles which Griffe had bought for Vanello.

The men were on their way to where the shingles were purchased when, according to the police, Griffe suddenly struck Vanello in the back of the neck with a carpenter's compass, inflicting a severe wound. Vanella was conveyed to his home. Griffe fled, but was caught at Kenilworth by Policemen Birmingham and Ratchford. He was arraigned before Justice of the Peace Noah Woodruff and committed to the county jail at Elizabeth.

FIFTH PASTOR IN 85 YEARS.

The Rev. Charles E. Corwin Installed in North Branch Reformed Church.

The Rev. Charles E. Corwin, of New Brunswick, the fifth pastor the Reformed church at North Branch has had in nearly eighty-five years, was installed yesterday afternoon. The exercises were in charge of the Classis of Raritan and its presiding elder, the Rev. Thomas M. Simanton, of Peapack, presided and read the form.

The installation sermon was preached by the Rev. Dr. E. Tanjore Corwin, father of the new pastor, and formerly professor in the theological seminary in New Brunswick. The Rev. Dr. E. G. Read, of Somerville, charged the people, and the Rev. Isaac Sperling of South Branch, the pastor.

SPECIAL MESSAGE BY STOKES.

Governor to Take Strong Stand on Civil Service Reform.

Trenton, May 29.—That Governor Stokes intends to take a determined stand in the matter of civil service reform was indicated by some expressions he made last night. The Governor said that he intended to send a special message to the Legislature, when it reconvenes on June 18, in which he would strongly urge the enactment of a law which would make continuance in public office contingent upon efficient service to the State rather than to party loyalty, as at present.

In this message the Governor will take up several subjects, some of which were referred to in his annual message. Besides civil service the Governor will urge the enactment of a Grand Jury reform law, and will again advocate the passage of a bill for the expression of the popular choice for United States Senators at the primaries.

The mid-week service at the Congregational church tonight will consist of readings from Ian Maclaren's stories.

David J. Ranney, of New York, a reformed "Bowery boy," will speak at the Y. M. C. A. meeting Sunday afternoon, on "Life on the Bowery."

"CENTRAL PARK"

Was—Is—Will Be

IT WAS, only about a year ago, just a pretty farm.

IT IS to day the finest building site in Plainfield, with broad avenues macadamized their entire width, concrete curb, sidewalks, trees, gas, electric light, in fact all improvements. Nearly $100,000 expended in new and handsome dwellings, now ready for the market.

WHAT IT WILL BE we hardly dare predict, with contracts out for even more extensive improvements and twelve more handsome residences.

Central Park is that beautifully situated tract bounded by Park, Prospect, Hillside and Thornton Avenues.

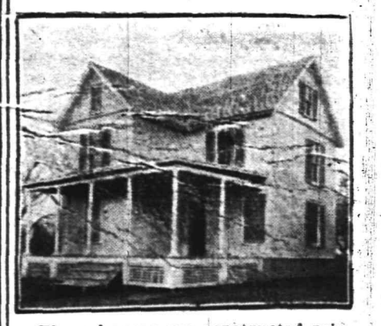
NEW SYSTEM OF BUILDING.

A MARVEL IN THE SCIENCE OF CONSTRUCTION.

A method far in advance of anything formerly used in the preparation of the different parts of a house when erected in sections, making it easy to construct any design of a house, and a very superior house for all seasons, countries and climates at a great reduction in cost.



These houses are constructed principally from the best kiln dried lumber in a factory entirely protected from weather, where best high speed woodworking machines are used for cutting and shaping of every piece, reducing cost for mechanics fully one-half, making a superior house when finished.

Houses or other structures erected under this system make the warmest houses in winter, and the strongest building that can be constructed with any material, the fiercest storm fails to cause any vibration whatever. They are adapted to receive all improvements, plumbing, lighting, heating, etc., when desired.

A new method of lath and plaster is used for interior finish, making a perfect indestructable wall superior to anything ever before used.

DEMOCRATS GREET MARTINE WITH ENTHUSIASM

Dinner of County Committee Proves a Magnificent Tribute to Popularity of Farmer-Orator.

MAKES STRONG ADDRESS

Declares Vigorously For Political Reforms—Says He Has Been Honored in Defeat As Much As He Could Have Been In Victory.

Democrats from all over Union county and from other counties of the State attended the dinner held by the Democratic County Committee in honor of James Edgar Martine at Turn Hall, Elizabeth, Wednesday night. More than 300 diners sat down to the feast, and everyone of them was an ardent partisan of Mr. Martine, and a warm admirer of his kind of Democracy. He was wildly acclaimed when he rose to speak, and he was hailed as a possible governor. General Dennis F. Collins, who was toastmaster, gave the keynote for the gubernatorial chorus.

Plainfield was well represented at the tables. Among the Plainfielders present were D. C. Ivins, Edward Van Buren, J. V. F. Dilts, W. C. Linbarger, L. B. Woolston, W. H. Conway, W. L. Hetfield, Sr., S. H. Schlief, John Galbraith, Jr., John F. Casey, E. J. McCue, Hon. S. S. Swackhamer, D. W. Martine, D. J. Carney and Samuel Townsend.

General Collins, in opening the speechmaking in answer to the toast "Our Guest," referred to Mr. Martine as "the man always ready to answer to the beck and call of the party in the state and the nation." His mention of the name of Mr. Martine awoke sustained applause and cheers.

General Collins aroused a great demonstration by saying that he hoped the Union County Democracy would have a chance to break loose at the mention of Martine's name on next election night. In closing his speech General Collins said the party had best look over its candidates carefully and pick those who could be trusted to give the people, as well as the corporations, a square deal. The sentiment was warmly applauded.

Mr. Martine responded to General Collins. As he arose from his seat the diners broke into wild applause. They cheered and cheered again, waving napkins and hands in their overflowing enthusiasm. The demonstration lasted for almost three minutes. Mr. Martine was never accorded a more enthusiastic greeting. It was not the only moment of acclaim. All through the night every reference by the speakers to Mr. Martine evoked sustained and spontaneous applaue. It is a certainty, if the signs apparent at the dinner go for anything, that Union county will be solid for Mr. Martine for the gubernatorial nomination at the next convention.

"My heart is full," said Mr. Martine, "and I can scarcely say what my heart bids me. This magnificent tribute is far beyond my desserts. As a citizen of Union county and a humble member of the Democratic party I deserve no such great plaudits. I have simply done in the past thirty-five years what my conscience bade me do, and I would do it again. I cannot individualize in expressing my feelings; to individualize would be cruel. I can simply say, to one and all, I thank you.

"I can hardly take this tribute to myself. Rather must I take it as a tribute to the great and glorious cause for which I stand. I ask you to keep my memory green, not for myself, but for the glorious cause that seeks to loosen the chains of struggling humanity.

"What is to be our course in the struggle that faces us? What is bringing on the great uprising of the people? What is it that is disintegrating parties? It is simply the process of education. The people are pressing forward to the general recognition of the necessity for equal laws and justice for all men. It is not to recognize boss rule under corporate domination. (Sustained applause.)

"I hope with all the strength of my soul for the spread of the blessings of equal rights, laws and justice to struggling humanity of all the earth. The Democratic party stands for that thought, and true Democracy will ever stand for it. I want territorial conquest to go on to the ends of the earth, but not for plunder, not for aggrandizement. I would see the conquest that our heritage of constitutional liberty be given to all the world.

"Do not sympathize with me because I have never been elected to an office. No man can be honored more than to have been your standard-bearer; no man can battle for Democracy without being dignified. Defeated? Yes; but I can bear it. Defeat never crushed a truth nor annihilated a principle."

At this point an enthusiast in the center of the hall yelled "We are going to elect you governor of New Jersey."

"I am optimistic. I would rather walk among the clouds than in the dust. I hope for a brighter day for Democracy in the future. New Jersey needs a return to simple, honest and economical administration of State affairs. The great railroad systems and the public service corporations that are interwoven with our well-being should be supervised by a railroad commission not appointed by the governor, but elected by the vote of the sovereign people."

In outlining the platform he considered best for the State Democracy, Mr. Martine spoke against the balloting machines, in favor of the Werts bill, compulsory balloting, initiative and referendum, and a system of perfectly equal taxation.

"My slogan this year," said Mr. Martine in his concluding sentences, "shall be: Clean house and put in clean men."

Former Mayor William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, who responded to the toast, "Democracy's Hope in New Jersey," produced a marked impression. Both his humor and his serious passages were enthusiastically received. He was greeted with three cheers, proposed by Mr. Martine.

The other speakers were Martin A. Conboy, of Essex county; Hon. James Baker, of Hudson; Hon. Frank S. Katzenbach, of Mercer; and Hon. Joseph Tumulty, of Hudson. They all had cordial things to say of Mr. Martine. Mr. Conboy spoke on "The Democracy of the Fathers;" Mr. Baker on "The Legislature of 1907;" Mr. Katzenbach on "A United Democracy;" and Mr. Tumulty on "Democracy's Future."

Among the letters of regret received from prominent members of the party and read at the dinner were the following: Robert Davis, R. H. Hudspeth, Former Senator James Smith, Jr., William B. Gourley, William J. Curtis, Judge Howard Carrow, Senator James Minturn, Former Senator Rufus Blodgett, William A. Stryker and Senator James C. Price, of Sussex. The latter referred to Mr. Martine as "our next Governor."

An unexpected compliment to the guest of the evening was the appearance on the stage of the Elizabeth Mannerchor Society, which came in full force to serenade Mr. Martine. He made a little speech in German to them after their songs.

Among the guests of honor at the speakers' table were E. E. Lethbridge, speaker of the House; Senator William C. Gebhardt, of Hunterdon county, and Senator Johnston Cornish, of Warren county.

CUT WITH PENKNIFE.

Colored Gallant Assailed by Common-Law Husband of His Companion.

William Parker, colored, of Manning avenue, saw Lewis Randolph, colored, with his common-law wife on West Fourth street, near Plainfield avenue, yesterday afternoon, and went after him. He had a penknife in his hand. The woman hurried ahead and left the men to settle the question between them.

Parker upbraided Randolph until Plainfield avenue and Third street was reached, where he struck at him. A mix-up followed, in which two gashes were cut beneath Randolph's eye. An eyewitness told Roundsman Higgins of the fight, and the officer arrested both men.

In the city court this morning Judge Runyon sentenced Parker to sixty days in jail. He released Randolph under suspended sentence, because he seemed to have been punished enough for his indiscretion.

Holy Cross Wins Two Games.

The Holy Cross Club played two games yesterday, defeating Hope chapel in the morning by the score of 15 to 5, and Scotch Plains in the afternoon by a score of 10 to 3. Both games were played on the Cricket Field in the borough. Ira Vail pitched for Holy Cross in the morning and Blazier in the afternoon, while Bamberger pitched for Hope chapel and Carona twirled for Scotch Plains.

VETS HONOR THE DEAD

Winfield Scott Post Turns Out in Goodly Numbers for Observance of Memorial Day.

PARADE AND EXERCISES

Favored with good weather, the members of Winfield Scott Post, G. A. R., turned out in goodly numbers for the observance of the day dedicated to the memory of their departed comrades. Fifty or more of the veterans, about half the membership, were in line.

The post met in its rooms on East Front street at 7:30 o'clock, and details for the decoration of the graves were made out. H. C. Smith was in charge of the detail at Hillside cemetery; John Finley at the Catholic and Friends' cemeteries; Runie Manning at Samptown, John Wagner and Firman H. Gise at New Market, and Edward Johnson at Scotch Plains. When the details reported back at 10 o'clock the veterans formed in line, and with Company K for escort, and headed by the Liberty band of nineteen pieces, they marched to the North Plainfield and Evergreen cemeteries, where they decorated the graves as a post. The graves in Westfield were decorated by a detail composed of Westfield members of the post. Samuel Reese was in charge there.

The post went first to North Plainfield, and from there over the line of march, to Evergreen. The marshal of the day was Capt. William Hand. The veterans were commanded by Dr. J. F. Berg, commander of the post.

The annual exercises were held at Reform Hall at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The families and friends of the veterans attended them in large numbers. The hall was prettily decorated with flags, bunting and flowers. The stage looked especially attractive.

Rev. Dr. Charles W. Parsons, of Grace M. E. church, offered the opening prayer. Dr. Berg, who was in charge of the observance, led the officers in the annual ritualistic exercises. The speaker of the day was Rev. John Sheridan Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue church.

His main theme was the need of the same martial spirit and the mettle that carried the G. A. R. men through the war in the conflicts of everyday life. It had been asked, he said, what could take the place of war in making and keeping nations strong and virile, and what substitute there was that would prevent them getting soft. Was not there enough in ordinary life, he asked, to call for the display of all the soldierly qualities? There was much to be done that would require all the spirit of devotion and sacrifice that marked the Civil War. That war's campaigns had left compaigns that were now on. The harvest was plenteous, but the laborers were few.

A feature of the programme was the singing by a chorus of fifty children. The Liberty Band played a number of selections and there were recitations by Miss Try Mattox and talented young people.

Funeral of August Windham.

The funeral service of August Windham was held yesterday morning from the late home on Grandview avenue, the borough, at 10:45 o'clock and was largely attended by relatives and friends, including many from New York. There were a great many floral tributes, which completely covered the casket. Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, conducted the service, reading Scripture selections, offering prayer and making a few remarks. The interfinment was in Hillside cemetery and the pall-bearers were William Weston, John Carl, Augustus Hendricks, Jacob Herlitz, William Barge and William Droger. The last two named were from Brooklyn and the other four were relatives of Mr. Windham.

William G. DeMeza to Marry.

Mrs. William White, of Willow avenue, has issued invitations for the wedding of her granddaughter, Miss Florence Heyer White, to William Grant DeMeza, of West Second street. The ceremony will be performed at Mrs. White's home Wednesday afternoon, June 12, at 5 o'clock. Mr. DeMeza is the well known young lawyer and is prominent in practice throughout the county.

GOLF COURSES THRONGED

Ideal Weather Brings Out Large Crowds For Holiday Play on Local Links.

GOOD SCORES MADE

Social Features at Plainfield Country Club Enjoyed By Many Members and Their Friends.

Ideal weather attracted an unusually large crowd of golf enthusiasts to the Plainfield Country Club, yesterday. The links were thronged all day with contestants and some of the best scores of the season were returned. Aside from the playing on the course the social features were enjoyed by a great many members and their friends. Throughout the afternoon and evening a delightful programme of music was rendered by Glockner's orchestra from Elizabeth. Many dinners and luncheons were served and a majority of those present remained for the dance in the evening.

The chief event on the course was the play for the Decoration Day cup, Classes A and B. This brought out a large field. S. D. Lounsbery won the cup for Class A with a net score of 78, while Arthur H. Chamberlain won the Blass B cup with a net score of 73. These scores were returned for the two trophies:

Class A—S. D. Lounsbery, 86, 8—78; Frank O. Reinhart, 81, 0—81; W. Lester Glenney, 81, 0—81; R. F. Murray, 87, 5—82; C. E. Halsted, 89, 6—83; W. T. Glenney, 83, 0—83; Arthur Murphy, 91, 5—86; W. D. Riggs, 98, 10—88; D. H. Rowland, 102, 14—88; Stuart H. Patterson, 103, 10—93.

Class B—Arthur H. Chamberlain, 100, 27—73; George E. Cathcart, 89, 15—74; A. G. Henderson, 99, 20—79; W. L. C. Glenney, 102, 20—82; W. F. Merrill, 107, 24—83; James P. Murray, 100, 15—85; D. W. In the finals for the May cup, Class B, C. C. Burke, Sr., beat Herbert S. Rogers, 2 up. In the morning there was the semi-final play for the May cup, Class A, when W. Lester Glenney, who won from F. C. Talmadge by default, beat Frank O. Reinhart, who won from R. Story Rowland, 1 up in 20 holes. In the final play C. B. Morgan beat W. D. Riggs, 4 up and 3 to play, both Morgan and Riggs having won from their opponents by default.

An equally large field was attracted to the Park Golf Club, yesterday, when the play for the Holiday and Hydewood Park cups and a mixed approaching and putting contest were the chief events. Rev. L. R. Howard won the Holiday cup and scored the first three points for the Hydewood Park cup. The scores for both cups are as follows:

Rev. L. R. Howard, 109, 30—79; Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll, 102, 21—81; Samuel St. John McCutchen, 100, 13—87; Charles W. McCutchen, 108, 20—88; George A. Chapman, 106, 18—88; Charles B. Morse, 106, 18—88; Walter C. McNaughton, 111, 20—91; Leon R. Thurlow, 108, 15—93; Reuben Knox, 112, 19—93; Charles A. Reed, 103, 8—95; Rev. C. L. Goodrich, 106, 11—95; Alexander Gilbert, 119, 23—96; J. B. Betts, 124, 28—96; A. W. Kenworthy, 111, 14—97.

Miss Lydia Loizeaux and Charles A. Reed won the approaching and putting contest with a score of 10. The other scores:

Rev. and Mrs. C. L. Goodrich, 12; Miss Harriet Shreve and E. H. Suffern, 13; Miss Mabel VanDeventer and E. A. Lyons, 13; Mr. and Mrs. Augustus VanDeventer, 14; Rev. and Mrs. L. R. Howard, 14; E. A. Lowe and Miss May Shreve, 14; Miss Harriet Shreve and Samuel St. John McCutchen, 14; Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Betts, 15.

Dunellen Priest Transferred.

Rev. Father Edward J. Dunphy, for five years rector of St. John's Catholic church, Dunellen, has been transferred by Bishop McFaul to New Monmouth, where the parish is larger. His place will be taken by Father John Murray, who has been in charge of the church at Flemington. The changes went into effect this morning. Father Dunphy's departure is regretted by the Dunellen Catholics.

Left Gun for Fine.

George Emmons, of Flemington, arrested yesterday afternoon at the trolley station, for quarrelling with the conductor, Harry Cornell, and swearing before a carful of people, was fined $10 in the city court this morning. He left a valuable Parker gun, with which he had been spending the day at a shoot yesterday, as security for his return with the fine.

WATCHUNG HUNT RACES

Yesterday's Events Among the Best Ever Held at the Driving Park.

BATJER'S GREAT FINISH

Pulls Up From Third to First in Homestretch for the Middlesex Cup—Another Card Tomorrow.

Before one of the largest crowds that has been seen at the Gentlemen's Driving Park in years, the first day's races at the Watchung Hunt Club's fourth annual steeplechase were helde yesterday afternoon. There were five regular events on the card, three steeplechase and two flat, and they were all close and exciting. In addition to these the customary farmers' race was held but it was hard to tell whether the plow horses were racing or running away in fright at the unusual excitement. It was won by Scott Terry's "Gray Billy."

The best event of the day was the fifth race, a steeplechase of two and a half miles for the Middlesex cup, in which there were four starters. The lead was taken after the getaway by Miss Molly C. Maxwell's "Agio," ridden by Mr. Davis; and Rudolph Weld's "Sallie Thomanson," carrying Mr. Burden. The third horse was Louis Batjer's "Tobosso," ridden by the owner and for two thirds of the way around he was well in the rear. In the homestretch he began to eat up the distance and passed both leaders in a typical Tod Sloan finish. All three horses were closely bunched, "Agio" getting second and the Weld entry third.

The sixth and last race was also an exciting one, through "Jimmie" O'Brien recovering from a throw and on Singleton VanSchaick's "Adjutor" crowding David Dows' "Wexford' and Charles Pfizer's "Ninnette" for the finish, the latter two getting first and second only by half a length. In the fourth race, E. C. Cowdin finished first on "Anticipation," but was disqualified on O'Brien's claim that he had fouled him on a turn.

Six more races will be on the second day's card tomorrow and they will commence at 2:30.

The summary:

First Race—Five furlongs on the flat for Galloways. Netherwood cup—The Lad, E. C. Cowdin, won; Pecos Johnnie, R. H. Hamilton, second; Spring Beauty, Singleton VanSchaick third.

Second Race—Two and a half mile steeplechase for the Watchung cup—Stronghearf, Charles D. Freeman, won; Boo Ba, R. R. Howard, second; Mechanic, C. E. S. Bellowes, third.

Third Race—Farmers' event, five furlongs on the flat—Gray Billy, Scott Terry, won; Dexter, William H. Clark, second; Nancy Switchem, David Hand, third.

Fourth Race—Hack or hunters, one mile and a half on the flat—Golden Arms, Leonce Fuller, won; Wishaway, Harvey Fisk, second; Nimrod, J. E. Davis, third.

Fifth Race—Steeplechase, two and a half miles, for Middlesex cup—Tobosso, Louis Batjer, won; Agio, Miss M. C. Maxwell, second; Sallie Thomason, Rudolph Weld, third.

Sixth Race—Steeplechase, two and a half miles, for Hillside cup—Wexford, David Dows, won; Ninette, Charles Pfizer, second; Adjutor, Singleton Van Schaick, third.

Young Couple Quietly Wedded.

Miss Katie Gottlick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wenzel Gottlick, of Murray Hill, and Harry E. Templin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Templin, of East Second street, were married Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at St. Mary's church rectory by Rev. Father Bogan. Cyril Gottlick, the bride's brother, was best man, and Miss Louise Hess, of Newark, was bridesmaid. After the ceremony the bridal party returned to Murray Hill, where a wedding supper was served and a reception was held. Dancing was the feature. After a trip the couple will reside on Jackson avenue, the borough, where the groom has furnished a home.

Henry G. Disbrow.

Henry G. Disbrow, aged eighty-eight years, died yesterday at the home of his niece, Miss Carrie A. Gardner, 5031 Larchwood avenue, Philadelphia. He was a brother-in-law of the late Frank Gardner, for many years cashier of the City National Bank. Mr. Gardner was a resident of Brooklyn for a number of years. The funeral service will be held from the home of Miss Gardner Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock and the interment will be in this city on Monday.

HARTRIDGE SCHOOL COMMENCEMENT TODAY

MANY FRIENDS WITNESS GRADUATION EXERCISES AT THE CASINO.

One of the many delightful entertainments given at the Casino, few are more interesting than the exercises this morning in connection with the season's close of the Hartridge School. The girl graduates, the wealth of flowers, the popular speaker and the interested audience made a combination replete with charm. The stage-setting of Springtime green, lighted from above, with branches of apple blossoms in place of foot-lights made a charming back ground for the blossom decked hall. On this stage were grouped effectively, the graduates, the speakers of the day and the teachers of the school, some of them in their college caps and gowns.

The exercises were opened with prayer by Rev. Dr. John S. Zelie, after which the school joined in singing the anthem, "Praise Ye the Lord."

Mayor Charles J. Fisk, in a few pleasant words congratulated the school and the graduating class, introducing the speaker, Dr. Edward Howard Griggs. "The Use of the Margin," was Dr. Griggs designation for the occupation of the time left an individual which did not have to be spent in the actual business of life, but on the use of which depended the success or failure of life. Giving character, intelligence and power as the capital of life, most of which had to be spent in the effort to live, he said that the right use of an individual's spare time multiplied his power and ability to work. Play he considered free and spontaneous action but to play well one must have worked well. Worry he termed idiocy or insanity.

Dr. Griggs special word to the graduating class was the use of the margin in the cultivation of the lost art of solitary meditation, the almost lost art of cultivating friendship, love for nature in its beauty and sublimity and a care for the fine arts, leading to ennobling thought and worthy aspiration.

The presentation of diplomas was made by the principal of the school, Miss Hartridge, who congratulated the class on their faithfulness and loyalty, wishing them success in their future work. Six of the seven graduates are to enter college: Miss Annie Waldo and Julia Siebager, Vassar College; Misses Ellen Burke, Blanche Buttfield, Frederika Mead, Smith College, and Miss Margaret Atwater, Teachers' College, New York. Miss Virginia Fox has not completed her plans.

$2,000,000 Cement Company.

Clarence L. Murphy, of this city, is the president of a cement concern which is to be known as the National Cement Company, now in course of organization, the plans of which are to merge several cement plants in the east. The present capital stock is $2,000,000, but eventually it will be $25,000,000. Mr. Murphy has transferred important cement lands near Carpentersville to the new company and it is said that negotiations are underway to acquire three additional properties in Pennsylvania and New Jersey. The company's offices are at No. 1 Wall street, New York. There will be a meeting of directors tomorrow morning to decide important questions.

In the Borough Court.

William Morris, William Ruttledge and Harry Hansen, young lads residing in the borough, were arrested Wednesday night while trying to break into Saengerbund Hall through a rear window. A charge of disorder was preferred against the boys and Recorder Dolliver fined each one of them $1. Later William H. Morris, father of William Morris, was arrested on a charge of being drunk and disorderly and Recorder Dolliver fined him $5. Sheridan Jones, colored, was picked up in the borough last night, being drunk and disorderly. He will be given a hearing tonight.

Miss Elsie May Toms.

Miss Elsie May Toms, aged seventeen years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Howard Toms, of Warrenville, died yesterday after a two weeks' illness with pneumonia. She is survived by her parents and six brothers. The funeral service will be held from the residence of the parents Sunday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. Interment will be at Springdale.

Principal for Borough High School.

The Borough Board of Education has decided to make H. C. Krebs, now supervising principal, the superintendent of schools, and create the office of principal, which will be filled by Prof. Phelps, of Pennington Seminary. The change will be made in the fall.

DISHEARTENED BY ILL FORTUNE, ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

In the Presence of Foster-Father, Fred S. Whittaker Sends Bullet Crashing Into His Brain.

DEATH A CERTAINTY

Antecedents of Young Man Unknown But Is Thought to Be of Noble Parentage—Still Living This Afternoon.

Disheartened by a period of illfortune, Fred Stevens Whittaker, 26 years old, adopted son of Robert Whittaker, the horse trainer, shot himself in the head shortly after 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon. He was still alive at noon today, at Muhlenberg Hospital, but no hope for his recovery is entertained.

The attempt at suicide was made in the quarters above the barn at 414 East Fifth street, where Whittaker and his foster-father lived. In the barn proper was quartered their trained horse, "Dahl," the illness of which was practically the cause of the young man's act.

While "Dahl" was in shape to perform the two men were well off; engagements, paying well, were easy to get. "Dahl" fell and sprained his back early this spring, and since then the fortunes of the Whittakers has been steadily on the ebb. They were compelled to cancel an engagement with a Western circus, and "Dahl," as well as themselves, had to be cared for out of their dwindling store of money.

Fred and his foster-father went out yesterday afternoon, Fred dressed in a new suit of clothes. Fred returned at about 6:15 o'clock. He paused at the house of Chief of Police Kiely, who is their landlord and lives next to the barn, and romped for a few minutes with one of the chief's children. A short while after he entered the barn, Robert Whittaker returned.

Chief Kiely had just left the supper table and was waiting on the porch for a car to take him to headquarters when he heard the foster-father exclaim "Oh, Fred!" Then Whittaker ran from the barn and agitatedly called to the chief.

The chief ran over to the barn, and upstairs. Fred was lying before a workbench with a bullet hole in his right temple. A thirty-two calibre revolver lay on the floor beside him.

Whittaker said the revolver used was one that always lay, loaded, on the workbench. Fred and he had talked of their condition, he said, and the young man suddenly exclaimed "I am tired of the whole thing." He snatched the revolver from the desk and shot himself before Whittaker could make a move to prevent him.

The young man was unconscious when Chief Kiely bent over him. The chief had him removed to Muhlenberg Hospital with all speed, but the physicians at the hospital said there was no hope. He had weakened this morning, without regaining consciousness, and his death is regarded as a certainty.

An air of romance hovers over the young man. His antecedents and real name are unknown, and he is said to be the son of an English gentleman. He came to this city from England seven years ago, with a professional singer who had induced him to leave home for a career on the stage. The singer abandoned him at the Iroquois Hotel—then the Plainfield Hotel—taking all his clothes but what he wore. The boy was befriended by G. O. Stevens, and took his name. His own name he steadfastly refused to make known. After working for a while with Dr. Middleton O'M. Knott, he attracted the attention of Whittaker, who adopted him. He assumed the name of Whittaker, and became his foster-father's associate in the show business.

He impressed everyone who came in contact with him as a thorough gentleman, and one of more than ordinary education. He told Chief Kiely at one time that he was born in Eton, England, and the chief gathered the impression that he had been educated at the great school there. Whittaker said last night that the young man was the son of a man of title, and he could not remember the title. Whether or not the young man is of noble blood, those who know him are certain that he was not of the lowest English class. An effort will be made to locate his people.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

George Allen, the former old Scotch Plains catcher and first baseman, did the trick for the 'Plains team that defeated the Roselle A. C. team in the game at the 'Plains yesterday morning. Allen's two base hit in the ninth with the score a tie, 7 to 7, brought the winning run across the rubber. The contest was a slugging match at times. Perry, who was in the points for the home team, was replaced in the seventh by Hewitt. This held the visitors down as Perry was in poor form and Roselle brought three runs across the plate in the sixth, tieing the home team, who had led by the score of 7 to 4. Following is score by innings and lineup: Roselle A. C.—E. McMahon, 2b; Linahan, ss; Mack, 3b; C. Black, 1b; A. Blake, cf; Roberts, lf; J. McMahon, p; Crawley, c; Leonard, rf. 'Plains—Mahaffey, 3b; Allen, 1b; Alberts, c; Baldwin, ss; G. Frentz, 2b; Reick, lf; Schreinbeck, rf; Eller, cf; Perry and Hewitt, p.

Roselle . . . 0 0 1 3 0 3 0 0 0—7

Umpire, Alberts.

Just to keep the game going, "Tune" Hewitt wore that old Home chapel smile as usual yesterday and at critical stages when a hit was needed fooled them. Jacot's catch in center field in the fifth inning was a peach and was enough to break the hearts of Bound Brook fans. George Frentz found the ball at the right time and brought in two runs. If he had been a little madder he would have made it a home run instead of a three bagger. Baldwin made up for his errors in the morning game by taking everything his way in the afternoon game. From our point of view the team looks good and with a little more team practice will keep near enough to the top of that percentage column to be not only dangerous, but among the leaders.

Umpire Brown was unquestionably off in several of his decisions in the game with Bound Brook yesterday afternoon, but that is no reason why Manager Frentz should have lost his head and delayed the game by arguing. This does not help baseball. Brown was wrong and even Bound Brook was willing to say it was a tough deal to call a batter safe after his fly hit had been caught by Reick, but the umpire is there to decide and his decisions have got to be accepted. The only thing to do is to take as it comes and charge it up to baseball luck.

Memorial Day exercises held yesterday were on a simpler scale than has been held here in a number of years. A small detail from the G. A. R. were present. The members of Excelsior Hook and Ladder Company and the school children met the veterans at the trolley shortly after 8 o'clock. The cemetery was visited and the graves decorated by the children. There was no speech-making. After this was done the veterans were escorted back to the trolley car and the line of march was broken.

LIGHT-WEIGHT SUITS

THAT COMBINE EVERY ESSENTIAL.

What do you consider the most essential in a garment? Is it serviceable materials? Is it exclusive pattern. Is it expressive tailoring in which distinctiveness has its source, or is it a radically new model? Let it be all of these and still your demands will find satisfaction in Marshall & Ball Spring Suits.

And whatever price you pay, there is a built-in element which insures permanent shapeliness to even the lightest Summer fabric.

Our great assortment of patterns in the new gray tones and blue serges makes the selection of a Spring suit an easy proposition. The wide price range makes it easy on your purse.

Spring Suits, $12 to $35.

Last Chance! $4.50 and $5.00 Shoes at $3.15.

Sample Skirts at Half.

There is no better news for the economical than this in today's paper. The story is this. We have secured a lot of about 135 Sample Skirts of excellent Black Taffeta and Voile—skirts made in the most fashionable of this season's models, with side plaiting and folds or bands of cluster plaiting and box plaiting. These skirts come from a maker of high repute—one who produces nothing but high-class garments, and we were delighted to secure them at the price we did as you will be to get them at the price we will ask. Two lots to choose from at prices averaging about half.

Lot 1—Skirts of Black Taffeta and Voile—Side plaited and box plaited effects; the voile with trimmings of taffeta; beautiful models, all of them; splendidly made; values $12.75 to $15.50, to go in this sale at only $7.50

Lot 2—Skirts of Black Taffeta and Voile—In side plaited and box plaited effects; with 2 and 3 bands; the voile skirts handsomely trimmed with taffeta; value $16.50 to $25.00; priced for this event, at only $10.50

Suit Prices Halved.

All our Woolen Suits must make way for Summer stock, and to move them rapidly and certainly prices are cut to just about half former markings. These suits are wearable right now and will be good in the Fall, so that whichever one you buy you will profit immensely.

"CENTRAL PARK"

Was—Is—Will Be

IT WAS, only about a year ago, just a pretty farm.

IT IS to day the finest building site in Plainfield, with broad avenues macadamized their entire width, concrete curb, sidewalks, trees, gas, electric light, in fact all improvements. Nearly $100,000 expended in new and handsome dwellings, now ready for the market.

WHAT IT WILL BE we hardly dare predict, with contracts out for even more extensive improvements and twelve more handsome residences.

Central Park is that beautifully situated tract bounded by Park, Prospect, Hillside and Thornton Avenues.

Lots selling rapidly—Prices very low—Great investment or speculative opportunities.

NEUMAN BROS.

WATCHUNG AVE. and FIFTH ST.

Clinton Avenues Lose.

The Y. M. C. A. team defeated Clinton Avenue on Crescent Oval, yesterday by the score of 10 to 6. Up to the fifth inning the contest was rather close and there was little advantage on either side, although both Minford and Randolph were not up to their usual form. They were more or less wild, and at times both teams showed that they were having an off day. Randolph and Minford each were credited with ten strike outs, but six errors made by each side tell a good part of the story of poor playing. However, the contest was a good one in many respects and gave the friends of both teams plenty of opportunity to root.

Trolley Sprinkler and Rig Collide.

The Public Service Corporation street sprinkler and a rig from the Plainfield Cab Company were in collision on Arlington avenue, at the entrance to the Casino, this morning, when the horse was thrown down and badly cut and the two seat phaeton more or less managed. Mrs. Martin I. Cooley, who was being taken to the Casino, had just left the carriage, when the sprinkler came along. Everett says he signalled to the motorman to stop, but that he kept going. The horse became frightened and turned about directly in front of the watering car.

Scotch Plains Defeats Laurels.

Scotch Plains helped its percentage column in the Inter-City Amateur League race yesterday afternoon by defeating the Laurels, of Bound Brook, by the score of 5 to 3. The contest, which was played at the Plains, was an exciting one, and attracted a big holiday crowd, including a big delegation from Bound Brook. The home team secured its hits just when they were needed the most, while the Laurels were a trifle weak connecting with the deceptive curves of Hewitt.

New Pastor at New Market.

The First Baptist church of New Market has called Rev. George H. Gardner, of Platnsville, Conn., to the pastorate left vacant several months ago by the resignation of Rev. Frank Fletcher. Mr. Gardner preached twice before the congregation and made a most favorable impression. He was pastor at South River for eight years.

TALCUM POWDER.

It is a positive relief for sunburn, chafing and afflictions of the skin.

It removes all odor of perspiration.

For the nursery or home, where there are small children it is indispensible.

Mono F. C. "Whitewashed."

Clinton Avenue got sweet revenge yesterday morning, when it defeated thet Monos by a score of 8 to 0. The field club team did not have a look-in, Emery allowing them but three hits, while the Clinton Avenues secured ten hits off Conover. The Monos made a poor showing in the field, being credited with nine errors.

Mounted Cop.

Acting on a suggestion from Mayor Fisk, the police department yesterday mounted Roundsman Maurice Higgins on a horse. It is proposed to mount him on Sundays and holidays, to handle traffic on Park avenue and Front street.

Last Night of "Twelfth Night."

The concluding performance of "Twelfth Night" was given by the senior class of the high school at the Casino Wednesday night. It was enjoyed by a full house.

—Neuman Brothers will have 500 quarts of fine Maryland strawberries in early tomorrow for the Saturday trade. Fruit extra good; prices low.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Emerson, of Philadelphia, were the guests yesterday of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Cutter, of Sandford avenue.

Mrs. Richard Barkalew, of Newark, is spending a few days at the home of her brother-in-law, L. E. Barkalew, of Lincoln place.

THE DELICATE WOMAN

unable to operate the ordinary form of sewing-machine without fatigue, can use the SILENT SINGER AUTOMATIC with the greatest ease. The acme of perfection in construction and artistic finish, this machine is positively the lightest-running of any. Its low, broad treadle enables frequent change in position of the feet, or it can be furnished in a portable form to be effectively run by hand if desired. It has neither shuttle nor bobbin, and no tensions to adjust, but is ready for use when the needle is threaded.

The Silent Singer

has many points of preference that can easily be demonstrated by examination and comparison with similar machines.

Special Display of Sterling Silver and Quadruple Plated Ware.

Suitable for the Present Wedding Season.

While our stock is always up to date in assortment, we have made a special effort this season to eclipse all our previous efforts.

An inspection of our stock with its beautiful assortment will satisfy the most fastidious that we have the largest and best selections of Sterling Silver and Fine Quadruple Plated Ware in the city.

In the line of Sterling Silver Tableware we have two or three new designs that are as perfect specimens of the silversmith's art as have ever been shown. Prices consistently moderate.

Tea Spoons, Table Spoons and Forks, Berry Spoons, Preserve and Jelly Spoons, Sugar Shells, Cold Meat Forks, Butter Spreaders, Oyster Forks, Orange Spoons, Ice Cream Spoons, Cake Servers, Pie Servers, Salad and Fish Sets; Soup, Gravy and Cream Ladles, Sardine Forks, Bon Bon Spoons, Pickle Forks, Butter Knives and Picks and a host of dainty novelties too numerous to mention.

Our customers tell us that they find here the best assortment of novelties in sterling silver to be found in the city. And all priced so comfortably low that the most economically inclined can always find something suited to their purse.

In the line of Hollow Ware, in quadruple plate only, are Tea Sets, of which we have fifteen to twenty patterns in stock, including several of the newest designs that are among the most artistic as well as the best adapted for practical use we have ever shown.

4-Piece Tea Sets and 5-Piece Tea Sets—Other pieces comprise after-dinner Coffee Sets, Water Sets, Tilting Ice Pitchers, Cake Baskets, Fruit Dishes with decorated linings, beautiful Berry Bowls, Salad Bowls, Sandwich Plates, (something entirely new.) An extremely rich collection of Candelabra, 3, 4 and 5 lights, with single candlesticks to match.

One beautiful set, consisting of five light Candelabra and five Candlesticks to match, is specially worthy of mention. Style is old Colonial, plain polished the base and standards of which are richly hand engraved.

We are constantly adding to our stock the latest designs from all the prominent and most reliable makers in the country.

In the line of Tableware, in plate, we carry only the most reliable makes—Rogers' 1847, Wm. Rogers' and other equally well-known makes—while our Cutlery line is principally of the old and well-known Landers, Frary & Clark make. Tableware, Knives and Forks in rubber, celluloid mountings. Bird, Game and Carving Sets in stag handles with sterling silver mountings, as well as celluloid handles.

Our stock is complete, and all we desire is an inspection and comparison of styles and prices, whether you are prepared to buy or not.

THE LAST DAY

OF THE

TRUSTEE'S SALE

Of the Chas. H. Fisher & Co. Stock of

NEW AND USED PIANOS

At 81-83 Market Street, Newark

Enormous Savings for Those Fortunate Enough to be in Time!

To the People of New Jersey:

Tomorrow (Saturday) will be the last day of this historic Piano Sale. It will be a record-breaker. Including the last car-load, which arrived from Philadelphia this morning, there are exactly 57 pianos to be disposed of—in the one day! You know what tremendous selling that means—and what tremendous reductions are necessary.

We have not hesitated, however. The price of every piano has been CUT ENORMOUSLY, and the opportunity tomorrow for 57 lucky people will indeed be a rare one. New upright pianos (just received this morning) that we would have offered earlier in the sale as great bargains at $175—tomorrow, $95! Used uprights that would have been eagerly bought at $125—tomorrow, $65! Throughout the list, the SAVINGS ON THE ORIGINAL FISHER PRICES are from $100 to $300! Think of it!

Below are a few of the bargains; space does not permit our printing all. The prices given are for spot cash. Time payments can be arranged for at a slight advance. Every piano is guaranteed as represented, or money will be cheerfully refunded.

To sell 57 pianos in one day is a tremendous undertaking, but these prices will send them flying. If you wish to be the "early bird that catches the worm," or if you cannot come tomorrow—come this evening. The store will be open until 9 o'clock.

Respectfully,

J. V. STEGER, Trustee.

81-83 Market Street.

POINTS FOR THE BUYERS

E. B. Maynard's barber shop on North avenue is the place to get a first-class shave, hair cut or shampoo.

There is no better coal mined than that sold by V. W. Nash, Sr., of Park avenue. Remember this when you need some.

If you contemplate building consult Titus H. Laury, the East Front street contractor, and he will estimate right on your work.

John A. Koch, the Watchung avenue butcher, invites a share of your patronage. He prides himself on selling only high-grade meats and poultry.

George F. Brown, of Somerset street, represents the leading accident and fire insurance companies, and also deals in first-class real estate.

Whenever you need coal for any purpose order it from L. A. Rheaume East Fourth street or South Second street. His coal burns as good coal should burn.

They who want their painting and peperhanging done right, give the commissions to Woolston & Buckle, North avenue. They are the premier painters of Plainfield.

M. F. Gano, of North avenue, would like to talk to you about real estate, if you are interested in the subject. He has a desirable list of properties for sale or lease.

There is much that is attractive in the stock at J. W. Gavett's store on West Front street. A stroll down the aisles is a pleasure, and visitors are always welcome. As good as a visit to an art museum.

SHORT TALKS BY L. T. COOPER.

SPRING AILMENTS.

A man and a house need the same thing in spring---a good cleaning out. A certain amount of impurities have gathered in both during the winter. I am no authority for house cleaning. So far as the man is concerned Cooper's New Discovery taken for two weeks will bring the desired result. It will positively do these three things ---clean out the stomach and bowels, tone up the system generally, and bring back the snap to body and mind that now seem dull and worn out. Try it and see if you won't be as pleased as Mr. Hull, whose letter I quote below:

MR. A. W. HULL.

"I suffered a general breaking down of the system. Had no appetite, poor digestion and was constipated. I lost ambition and took no interest in anything. Nothing I could do seemed to give me relief until upon a friend's advice I began to use Cooper's New Discovery. It helped me from the start. Now I am able to do as much work as the next one and I enjoy it. I have a hearty appetite and am stronger and better every way. Your New Discovery medicine is certainly the best tonic and system builder I have ever known." A. W. Hull, 142 Porter St., Detroit, Mich.

These are the famous medicines with which Mr. Cooper recently created such a stir in Chicago. His demonstrations there attracted wide attention We are agents.

REASONS WHY!

There are more than "forty-eleven" reasons why young men and young women like to buy their Shoes at VanArsdale's this season. Their principal reason, however, is that no other store in Plainfield carries the enormous variety of styles that VanArsdale does.

Bear that in mind now, so that you will not forget THE ONE Shoe Store when you finally decide to buy.

VanArsdale says "that never before did he ever go into the low shoe selling with so much of real enthusiasm, and so much careful forethought and system as he has this season." So complete is the VanArsdale stock of low shoes that very few, if any, can leave his store disappointed. All the new low shoes of VanArsdale's creation, exclusive custom shapes.

The price? Well, they start at $1.50 and end at $4 and $5.

THIRD GREAT Anniversary Sale

SATURDAY, JUNE 1.

This Sale Will Continue for Ten Days Only!

This marks the beginning of our fourth year in Plainfield as well as our fifteenth year in Freehold, and with this double event in view we have prepared to celebrate with a sale offering the most stirring bargains ever presented to the people of this city and surroundings. This is not an ordinary every-day event, for we have been weeks preparing for this great anniversary. The doings of this store are like the workings of a fine piece of machinery—always a steady, regular stroke that forges it ahead—not a noisy, screechy movement like that of a worn out engine which makes a terrible lot of noise but shows poor results. Thousands daily find pleasure and profit in doing their buying at this well tried store, where they find dependable merchandise at dependable prices, and now we will show our appreciation by having you share in these wonderful cut price offerings.

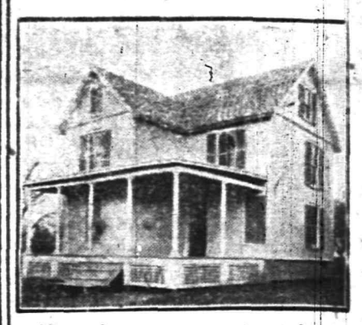
NEW SYSTEM OF BUILDING.

A MARVEL IN THE SCIENCE OF CONSTRUCTION.

A method far in advance of anything formerly used in the preparation of the different parts of a house when erected in sections, making it easy to construct any design of a house, and a very superior house for all seasons, countries and climates at a great reduction in cost.

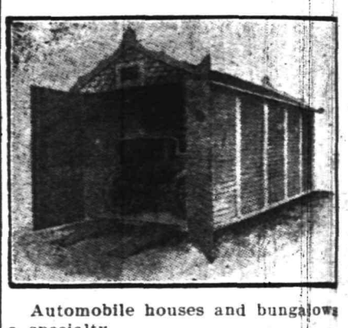


These houses are constructed principally from the best kiln dried lumber in a factory entirely protected from weather, where best high speed woodworking machines are used for cutting and shaping of every piece, reducing cost for mechanics fully one-half, making a superior house when finished.

Houses or other structures erected under this system make the warmest houses in winter, and the strongest building that can be constructed with any material, the fiercest storm fails to cause any vibration whatever. They are adapted to receive all improvements, plumbing, lighting, heating, etc., when desired.

A new method of lath and plaster is used for interior finish, making a perfect indestructable wall superior to anything ever before used.

Estimates furnished.



Automobile houses and bungalows a specialty.
